BOARD OF EDUCATION REFUSE TO BUY COAL AT HOME.

The June Meeting Transacts a Great Amount of Midyear Business—Repairs to Be Made to the Buildings.

There was a considerable amount of business transacted at the regular July meeting of the Board of Education Monday evening, but the chief topics of interest were fire, water and repairs.

All the members were present after Clerk F. B. Clark read the minutes of the June session, which were approved. A large batch of bills were presented and all were ordered paid, excepting the one of D. C. Heath for $74.75 which the board was not acquainted with. It was contracted for by Principal Maxson, and when found correct it will be paid. Another bill of Miss Fanny Comstock, of Connecticut, for botany topics, with additional cost for notary public fees as certification, was also not paid as the board decided they had no right to pay the fees. The matter will, however, be settled satisfactorily.

Collector Johnson reported that $1,230.68 had been collected from 1886 to 1895, the interest on same was $161.97, making total $1,392.65. Of that amount, $664.67 had been deposited in the First National Bank and $727.98 in the City National Bank.

Captain George F. Edwards sent a communication to the board which he desired to have forwarded to Adjutant General Wm. A. Stryker asking that he be appointed captain to drill the boys in the schools. The board did not think in their best judgment it would be wise to introduce drills at this time and on motion it was laid on the table.

A communication was received from Mrs. J. Brown in which she stated that she would clean the vaults at the various schools for $8 each, and other work of a like nature at proportionately low rates. It was received and filed.

Mr. Lounsbury stated that he had seen a representative of the firm of H. P. Smith, of New York, in regard to the changing the size of coal to be used in the furnaces, and that they advised against using small coal as it could not be depended upon to give the desired heat. He also said that he had received estimates on proposed repairs on the High school building, and the cost of the work, including ventilators, new floors and stairs, would be about $1,600 or $1,700, and it might possibly cost $2,000. Mr. Lounsbury said that Principal Maxson was anxious to have the assembly room changed so that there might be a study room, and that would cost $500 more. He read a letter from Mr. Maxson, in which the latter gave his idea on the changes.

It was figured that about $2,500 would be necessary for the changes, and an additional $2,200 for fire escapes. $3,000 had been set aside for fire escapes and repairs, and another $1,000 would probably be needed.

It was thought that it would be a good idea to make the repairs, and borrow the additional money and charge it to next year's account, as the repairs were most urgent.

John Abbott submitted an estimate for furnishing a flag pole to be erected between the Franklin and Stillman buildings, which were $60 for one 75 feet long, and $125 for one 100 feet long. The board thought it best to secure the longest one, which will be spliced and will be 100 feet above ground. It was also decided to have the pole on the Franklin building taken down, as it was not safe.

The matter of water for the Irving school was brought up by Dr. Probasco, he stated that the company would not put pipes in before next April and only then if the board would pay $85 a year. Mr. Lovell said the company had made a contract that water would not cost them over $20 dollars a year and that they had promised to put it in last April.

Letters were read from E. R. Pope and Frank Bergen explaining matters, but Mr. Lovell thought the company ought to fulfill their contract and offered a motion that was carried, that the clerk be instructed to write the company and respectfully ask them to do as they promised.

Mrs. S. E. Collins, in a communication, asked the board to remove an elm tree on school property adjoining her property at 211 West Fourth street, as the bugs and insects made it impossible for her to hang any clothes in the yard. The matter was referred to the building committee. Mrs. A. J. Praed living next to the Washington school asked the board to erect a new fence on the line as the old one was worn out. This matter was also referred to the building committee with power.

The matter of persons playing tennis in the Bryant school yard was referred to the building committee.

On motion of Mr. Finch a vote of thanks was tendered to Miss Petrie, principal of the Irving school, for the very excellent entertainment recently given for the benefit of the school library and which netted $75.

The committee on fuel then reported bids from the coal dealers. All gave the same quality of coal and prices except TenEyck & Harris. The others were Upper Lehigh and pea coal $4.50 and $3.75 per ton. TenEyck & Harris's bid was $4.40 for Lehigh coal. The others bidding were: L. A. Rheume, agt., George O. Stevens, C. H. Rugg, F. W. Hand, Boice, Runyon & Co., and J. A. Thickstun.

Dr. Jenkins recommended that the contract be given to a Plainfield dealer for upper Lehigh at $4.50 per ton, 2,240 pounds to a ton.

Mr. Lounsbury said he always supported Plainfield trade, but he had no sympathy with anyone who would not make concessions for a large order such as they would give. He thought the Plainfield coal dealers unjust, as they charge the same for a large number of tons as they do for one ton.

Mr. Lovell said he thought they were duty bound to give the contract to the lowest bidder, whether he lived in town or not, and he made a motion to the effect that it be given the lowest bidder. It was carried, Dr. Jenking voting against it.

Mr. Lounsbury stated there was too much independence in Plainfield dealers, and cited an instance when he recently wanted a stone walk laid, and asked a man to measure it and give his figures, when the man replied, "it will cost so much per foot, you can measure it and figure it up as well as I can." Dr. Jenkins thought the board ought to secure the kind of coal they advertised for and not an inferior grade, and said that he had figures in his pocket that might prove startling, but he had promised not to show them. He thought the contract should be kept here. He made a motion that each ton be weighed before it was delivered and that the weight be handed over. It was adopted.

A short recess was then taken and the members went through the building to see about needed repairs. When they met it was decided on motion that the building committee investigate the matter and report as soon as possible at a special meeting of the board.

The meeting then ajourned subject to the call of the president.

TRILBY AT THE NETHERWOOD.

Miss Lewis Will Present Her Own Version Thursday Evening.

Miss Catherine Lewis, who is to bring her company to the Hotel Netherwood on Thursday evening, July 11th, will be remembered most kindly by all theatre-goers for her long list of successes under Mr. Daly's and other managements. She is to present in the drawing room of the hotel her own condensed version of Trilby, she playing the title role. The Countess of Castelvecchio plays Svengali, which in itself is a sufficient novelty to draw a good house. The rest of the players are well known and it was only on the competence of the caste that A. M. Palmer gave his permission to the playing of this new adaption. An excellent programme is to fill up the evening, and thanks to Mr. Spitler the Netherwood guests ought to have a treat.

Evidence of Reliability.

W. V. Mundy, agent for the Traveller's Accident Life Insurance Company, of Hartford, Conn., Monday handed George Kesselring, the Park Avenne tonsorial artist, a check for $57, for sixteen days disability, resulting from a fall. Mr. Kesselring has only been insured for four weeks, and considers himself very fortunate in being insured in such a reliable comaany as the Traveller's.

Thieves broke into the wagon house and granery of Bizzilla French at Union Village, Saturday night, and stole forty bushels of corn, a set of harness and about thirty-five hens. All they left was one hen and a dozen little chickens.

To Join the Camp.

Albert Finch, of Belvidere avenue, and Benjamin O. Bowers, Jr., of Franklin place, will soon join the Y, M. C. A. camp at Northfield, Mass. Several of their friends are talking of joining the party.

On Bicycle Wheels.

Work is progressing favorably on the Crescent Wheelmen's float for the Fourth of July parade. It will be run on bicycle wheels.

BALL TOSSERS OF OLD TIMES

FAMOUS CRESCENTS RESURRECTED TO PLAY THE Y. M. C. A'S.

Greatest Ball Game of the Season to Be Played Saturday—Secure Your Tickets Early and Avoid the Rush.

The reconstruction of the old Crescents in the baseball diamond is a fact hailed with delight by the cranks of the city of Plainfield, and this fact will be demonstrated and uniquely exemplified at the Crescent Oval on Saturday afternoon next, at 3:45 p. m., when the veterans will don their uniforms that have been gathering dust upon the shelf for nearly a decade and the way they will make the ball twirl and twist and spin all over the diamond will be a phenominal feature not to be forgotten. It will bring most vividly to the 1,500 spectators in the grand-stand, cheering their respective favorites on to victory, the memory of bygone days when enthusiasm ran high, pulses beat fast, and brilliant stops and catches brought forth volley after volley of cheers and applause.

The Stonewalls will be there, and will form a regular barricade, invincible and impregnable.

Joe Gavet will don the mit and plant himself on first base and with an eye like a hawk will swoop in every ball sent in his domain.

Samuel St. John McCutchen will look after the interests of second base, with a zealous care, as in the days of yore.

George Cornwall will prance around that portion of the diamond known as the short stop's territory with the alertness of a youth in his teens; and pick up the ball with the grace and cleverness of a second Fuller or a "Shugart."

J. Hervey Doane will hug third base and keep his eye on Joe, and you just watch the ball go to first.

"And what about the battery?"

"It's all right!"

Walter Freeman, the first man that ever pitched a curved ball in Plainfield, will toe the mark, while James W. MacMurray, as backstop, will send out every batter with a cipher.

And you ought to keep a sharp eye on the outfield if you want to see some grand stand catches.

Demarest will be there.

Roger Murray and Roger Murray will be there, too.

Yes, of course, we'll all be there. Hurrah for the old Crescents.

The tickets will be good to return until July 31st.

Excursion tickets, good going via one route and returning via another, will be sold on the same dates at a slight advance over the one-fare rate for the round trip.

Changes in Realty.

Scrapers of a Dusky Hue.

The North avenue railroad station was the scene of a lively fight last Monday about 7:30.

James Morris, colored who runs the bootblack stand for Thomas Timbo, was seated in his chair when a young man, also colored, named King, came along and the two had some words. The latter finally hit Morris and then they pitched into one another. King bit Morris in the throat, injuring him.

Persons standing near were obliged to separate the would-be puglists. King then dissapeared and today he went on the excursion to Asbury Park. He will be arrested on his return and properly dealt with.

The Next Excursion.

The First Baptist Sunday-school and its missions will have their annual excursion to Ocean Grove, on Thursday, July 11th. Grace P. E. Church Sunday-school and all their friends go with them. Do not miss the opportunity of spending a pleasant day at the seashore.

THE MERRY DANCE.

The Casino Held a Jolly Throng of Society People Last Night.

The second of the summer subscription dances in the Casino took place last Monday, and was quite largely attended. The evening was a splended one for dancing and Rogers and Conde were at their best. The ever moving throng of dancers with the black and white of the men's costumes and the many colors of the women's made a beautiful sight which only came to an end in the small hours of this morning.

The second dance was a greater success than the first if it were possible and all expressed themselves delighted. The next will occur sometime in September. The committee in charge consisted of Howard W. Beebe, Fred W. Waltz, and Laurens VanBuren.

The Old Bell Will Parade.

There has been some doubt as to whether or not the old fire bell would be allowed in the Fourth of July parade, owing to the objection of the New York firm who bought it some time ago. However, at the earnest solicitation of Chief Doane and several prominent business men permission has been secured. The bell will be mounted on a new wagon and drawn by six large horses, donated by John D. Runyon. An escort of exempt firemen will accompany the bell along the line of parade.

Popular Excursion.

On Thursday, July 4th, the Central Railroad will run one of its popular low-rate excursions to Mauch Chunk, Glen Onoka, and the wonderful Switchback railroad, the fare for the round trip being only $1.75. A special express train will leave the North Avenue station at 7:25 a. m., making a quick run to Mauch Chunk and the beautiful Glen Onoka, and give a full day's out to all who go.

Lots at Private Sale.

The building lots of the Plainfield Land Improvement Company will be offered at private sale until July 15th. A quarter page ad explaining terms, etc., will appear in the Daily Press tomorrow.

After the Horse Thieves.

Three horses were stolen Sunday night in New Providence. The detectives of the Protective Society are in pursuit of the thieves, but have thus far discovered nothing.

Will Make Lots of Noise.

The North Plainfield Cadets have secured the use of Mr. McDonald's cannon for the parade Fourth of July. Forty-four salutes will be fired during the day.

Another Exponent of Blackstone.

A. H. Barnett will ride in the King's County Wheelmen race meet in Brooklyn, this afternoon.

Clarence Titsworth and J. VanEps are planning a cycling trip to the Delaware Water Gap. They will go via Port Jervis so as to be able to enjoy the famous thirty-five minute coast. They will leave Plainfield about August 25th, and will be absent nine days.

Walter Probasco, of East Front street, has been enjoying an extended cycling trip. With one of his school chums, Mr. Newman, and another friend he rode to Woodland in the Catskills and spent several days there. He was expectted to leave for home yesterday and will probably arrive today.

RAILWAY EXTENSION SLEEPS

NOT A WORD SAID IN REFERENCE THERETO LAST NIGHT.

The July Meeting of the Common Council Taken Up With Small Business—First Steps in Watchung Avenue Opening.

When the Common Council was called to order last Monday, thirty-four minutes after the announced time, there were six councilmen, besides President See, in the chamber. They were Messrs. Frost, Ginna, Bird, Moore, Frazee and Westphal. Clerk MacMurray talked 500 words a minute for thirty minutes before the reading of the minutes of the June meetings were finished, and then it was after nine o'clock before any real business was got down to, which consisted principally of petitions and remonstrances, though Councilman Ginna introduced one or two important ordinances.

In a remonstrance couched in language that brought laughter from the councilmen and much trouble to Clerk MacMurray in deciphering the writing Mrs. J. L. Tobin protested against paying taxes on the property of Peter Collins. Mrs. Tobin averred that Assessor Hubbard was unjust in assessing the place more than what she considered it worth. She stated that Collins and his wife were poor and that she had taken care of them for some time, and therefore saved the city the expense of caring for them. Now the property was advertised for sale by Justice Nash for delinquent taxes. She threatened to throw the old couple on the city if the council did not recognize her arguments forthwith. The petition was referred.

Petitions for lights and hydrants were received and granted.

The invitation of the executive committee of the Fourth of July to review the parade was accepted.

Mrs. C. DeForest petitioned for the privilege of erecting a drinking fountain on West Second street, for man and beast. W. R. Codington asked for the privilege of building a brick addition to the store at 105 Park avenue. The Public Library report was received and placed on file.

It was ordered that one two-way hydrant be placed on Kensington avenue, West Eighth street, and corner of West Sixth street and Arlington avenue. The Dunellen Electric Light Company were ordered to remove poles and wires illegally erected on West Front street and Rock avenue.

Councilman Ginna offered a resolution, which was adopted, that the city treasurer be authorized to borrow $500 to apply to the poor fund, and $8,000 to apply to the payment of sewer work. He also offered an ordinance seeking to establish curb lines along lower West Front street properties.

Councilman Westphal introduced a resolution that Honan & Son be requested to clear the streets of obstructions over which the Fourth of July parade was to pass. It was adopted.

Councilman Ginna offered ordinances to establish curb lines on Arlington avenue, and to regulate the grade on Watchung avenue from East Ninth street to Cedar brook. They were both read first and second time and ordered advertised.

Mr. Ginna also introduced an ordinance looking to the widening of Watchung avenue, from Front street to Green brook.

On the motion of Mr. Ginna it was laid on the table.

Councilman Westphal from the committee who were appointed to confer with the general Fourth of July celebration committee introduced a resolution that the sum of $100 be appropriated for the celebration.

Mr. Ginna questioned the propriety of the appropriation inasmuch as it would establish a precedent for all future public celebrations, and besides the city had no more money on hand than was needed. He said he wanted to see a proper observance of the day, but thought it bad policy for the council to give any money.

Mr. Frazee explained the reason the resolution had been introduced was that the celebration committee were not meeting with much financial aid in the borough. The resolution was carried, Messrs. Ginna Frost and Moore voting No.

Councilman Frost from the committee on sewers announced that John Marshall, of New York, was the successful bidder for the main outlet sewer.

Councilman Moore wanted to know if the contract called for a size of pipe that would be large enough to answer the purposes of tide water disposal.

Mr. Frost said that the pipe would not have to be changed no matter where the sewage was taken to.

The council adjourned to Monday, July 8th.

CUPID BUSY IN JULY.

Month of Weddings Past, But His Work Does Not Let Up.

A very pretty marriage was solemnized in New Providence, Monday afternoon. The happy couple were Louis Frentz, of Scotch Plains, and Miss May Bonnell, of New Providence. H. Frentz, brother of the groom, was the best man and Miss Ella Frentz, his sister, was the bridesmaid.

The bride was dressed in a pretty traveling dress of tan cloth, trimmed with brown satin and ereedscent beads. She was given away by her uncle, W. Crause, of Staten Island, who celebrated his golden wedding only two weeks ago. Miss Mamie Dickenson played the wedding march. The house was decorated with roses and ferns and was well filled with numerous wedding gifts which were both useful and ornamental. Rev. Mr. True, of the All Saints church, of Scotch Plains, performed the ceremony. The newly married couple left immediately for a trip through New York State.

There was a large number of guests present from New Providence, Summit and Scotch Plains, in addition to these there were Mr. and Mrs. Frank Putnam and child, of this city, and Mr. and Mrs. Winfield Jimmerson, of Westfield.

Mr. Frentz has followed the trade of carpenter in Scotch Plains for several years and will resume his work as soon as he returns. He is also well-known as the reliable first baseman on the Scotch Plains nine that played here last Saturday.

LET HER BOOM.

Everything Is Ready for the Great Celebration.

One more day and the Fourth of July will be here with all its noise and parade. The preparations for the day are almost completed and last evening the general committee met in Red Men's Hall to make the final arrangements. The reports of the various committees were made and accepted and everything promises a day long to be remembered in Plainfield.

The executive committee met at the conclusion of the other meeting and listened to reports of the sub-committees. The finance committee reported that their part of the work was progressing very favorably. The music committee reported that the Union Band of New Brunswick had been secured for the parade. The question of the arch over Park avenue was brought up and thrown aside as there were not sufficient funds to make a success of it. The fireworks committee reported that everything was ready for a grand exhibition of pyrotechnics. The other committees reported everything completed or being constructed.

MR. CORIELL VINDICATED.

The Court of Chancery Decides That His Actions Were Proper.

The Press congratulates William Wallace Coriell on his important victory in the New Jersey Court of Chancer. Mr. Coriell is well known in Plainfield as a man of integrity. The case that he has just won involved the charge that he had committed fraud in inducing John Warren to sell the entire estate left by the latter's mother, Sarah C. Coriell, who was Mr. Coriell's stepmother. The plaintiff is a resident of Brooklyn, where he was formerly employed in the navy yard, and was represented in the suit by able counsel from Plainfield assisted by New York counsel.

Craig A. Marsh was retained by Mr. Coriell, and, as generally happens when Mr. Marsh takes charge of a case in the higher courts, he won his case. The court not only holds that the plaintiff failed to prove his case, but also that his charges had been disproved. Mr. Coriell is vindicated, and he retains the property.

THE NATIONAL EMBLEM.

More Than Two Years of Warfare Without a Flag.

A national ensign was not adopted till June, 1777. A glance at the promiscuous banners under which the different American forces engaged during the first two years of the revolution will be found of interest at this anniversary of the birth of the nation.

The first regular battle of the war was Bunker Hill. It is not likely that there were any colors carried by the forty militiamen who were hastily gotten together at Concord and Lexington two months before. But after the skirmishes at these places each of the colonies set up its own flag. Unfortunately descriptions of these flags were not preserved, and the information we have is very vague.

The most definite information as to American flags we get is in foreign journals at ports where American ships at that time touched. There is no satisfactory information as to the standard used by the colonists at Bunker Hill, fought on June 17, 1775. Indeed it has never been proved that they had any standards, though one writer says "they were as various as the troops were motley." There is a picture of the battle in the rotunda of the capitol at Washington, painted by Trumbull, the celebrated American artist of that day, in which the Americans are pictured fighting under a red flag having a white canton bearing a green pine tree. Warren is said to have reminded his troops of the motto on their standard, on one side of which was, "Qui transtulit sustinet" (He who brought us here will sustain us), and on the other, "An appeal to heaven." This appears to have been the Connecticut motto. An old lady told Mr. Lossing, the historian, that her father was at the battle and assisted in hoisting the flag. He described it to her. The ground was blue, with one corner quartered by the red cross of St. George, in one section of which was a pine tree.

On July 18, 1775, a standard was presented to Washington bearing the motto, "An Appeal to Heaven." On Oct. 20, 1775, a plan was suggested for a Revolutionary flag, which was a white ground and a tree in the middle bearing the motto, "An Appeal to Heaven." It was the flag of American floating batteries. This was undoubtedly adopted by Massachusetts, and it was used on American ships.

In September, 1775, Colonel Moultrie, in South Carolina, had a flag made which was blue, with a white crescent in the corner. On June 28, 1776, this flag, with the word "Liberty" inscribed upon it, was raised on what is now Fort Moultrie. This was the first American flag displayed in the south.

The colors of the American fleet (July, 1776) were 13 stripes, with a rattlesnake across, bearing the motto, "Don't Tread on Me."

In Paul Jones' flag the stripes were alternate red and blue. The rattlesnake was a favorite device among the colonists. In 1775 an old device used in the French and Indian war was revived, being a rattlesnake cut into parts. It was adopted by the newspapers to represent the separate colonies and with the motto, "Unite or Die."

On the 8th of February, 1776, Colonel Gadsden presented to congress a standard for the commander of the navy. It was a yellow flag, with a rattlesnake in the middle coiled ready to strike, and the motto, "Don't Tread on Me." At the equipping of a fleet a committee was appointed at Cambridge to consider a flag. The result was the union jack, coupled with 13 stripes. This was the close of the year 1775. The flag was hoisted on the 2d of January at the Cambridge camp. At the battle of Long Island, Aug. 26, 1776, the British captured from a small band of Americans a red damask flag, with the motto, "Liberty." At the battle of White Plains, Oct. 28, 1776, the Americans carried a flag with a crossed sword and staff, with a liberty cap on the end of the staff and the motto, "Liberty or Death."

The earliest suggestion of stars in an American flag is in a standard of the Philadelphia Light horse (1774-5), though it is not probable that this influenced the design of the national flag. It was on the 14th of June, 1777, that the American congress decided on a banner. It was on that day resolved "that the flag of the 13 United States be 13 stripes of alternate red and white; that the Union be 13 stars, white in a blue field, representing a new constellation." This design was at once promulgated, and the vast number of colonial flags bearing rattlesnakes, pine trees, union jacks and other emblems and mottoes disappeared, and the remainder of the war was fought out under the stars and stripes.

S. W. SAVAGE.

CELEBRATED AFTER THE WAR

A FOURTH OF JULY THIRTY YEARS AGO IN THIS CITY.

Names and Incidents That Will Bring Back to Memory a Great Event in the Minds of Many.

The celebration of July Fourth, 1865, was undoubtedly the most unique and grotesque that ever occurred in Plainfield. There were no policemen here in those days and the town was truly rural and the boys did about as they pleased. On the eve of the Fourth all night long a big bonfire would blaze away in the street opposite Somerset on Front, surrounded by the youths of the town. That continued at the same old stand until the town became incorporated in 1869.

The writer of this celebration thirty years ago was only nine years of age at that time and if his memory is in any way remiss it is in regard to the forgetfulness of some of the names of some of the participants, and not as to any of the events that occurred on that day.

It is easy to recall the sons of Capt. Reguer, Joe and Lon, who lived up in Washington Valley, riding the mules that their father brought home from Virginia; Capt. "Ed" P. Thorn and Lon Townley, Col. Craig Spencer, the late William Dunn, Russell Johnston, John Chandler, Chris Pope, Jake Naylor, Bill and Dave Linbarger, Tom Terry, Aaron and Connett (both dead), Andrew Webster, Frazee Connett, Marshal and Dave Pangborn, Wm. B. Ayers, Albert Runyon, Wm. Paine, and others.

The war had closed in April, 1865, and all the boys who had left their homes in Plainfield to fight in the country's defense, and had not been among the missing, with the few weeks among their families here made them, that is, the younger element, crave for a devil-may-care-kind-of-a-time and the Fourth of July was selected for the blow-out. The line was formed on Front street, right resting on Cherry street, now Park avenue. The line of march took in all the streets and a more woe begone looking gathering never appeared in parade.

The parade was on the calathumpian order and many were the unique and odd characters that were represented. An aged citizen from up over the hills whose name was Isaac Winans, and who has long since passed away drove a team of oxen attached to a bay-rigging that was full of characters. The old gentleman himself wore a long claw from a lobster over his nose and walking beside his oxen was a sight in itself.

The parade stopped at the residence of Hon. Joseph W. Yates, on Seventh street and were entertained, the crowd all entering into the yard where refreshments were passed. They also stopped at the Mansion House and Laing's Hotel, and also at the residence of H. P. Bronk, the old Seminary building, on Front street opposite the First Baptist church, and were royally entertained.

Ed. P. Thorn and ex-Marshal William Pangborn were seated in an old-time open carriage that belonged to Mr. Thorn's father. The wagon was a sight. Every kind and color of paint they could procure was on the vehicle. The animal, an old bony little pony that belonged to Patrick Muldoon, the then junk man, furnished the motive power. Modesty made them make the poor beast wear a pair of drawers on his fore feet.

H. N. Spencer, the marshal of the day, wore a large pair of pants that belonged to a citizen, now deceased, who weighed nearly four hundred pounds. They were stuffed with hay to fit the occasion.

One of the bands, who rode in a hammer-and-tongs, consisted of Larry O'Neal, John Bangham and Joseph all deceased, and Amos Moffett, who is still with us.

Of course the Frazee family were in the parade, as nothing ever happened in those days unless they took part. There was Augustus, Samuel, and the late Abraham Frazee, and on the evening of the Fourth there was high old times at the Beuna Vista hotel, which was located on Front street and kept by their father, and the site was opposite where Harry Werner now keeps his clothing store.

There was a large number of army mules in the parade ridden by different ones. Some of the mules belonged to Capt. Hand, who purchased them in Virginia, and afterwards used them in opening up Grove and different streets hereabouts.

Some of the riders on the mule went so far as to ride them into a beer saloon, on the corner of Chatham and Somerset streets, kept by Charles Smith's father.

After the parade, in fact all the later part of that day, mules could be seen wandering aimlessly about the streets The riders immediately dismounted, on arriving in the vicinity of where the crowd congregated, leaving the animals to find their homes as best they could.

THE LAST SCHOOL TO CLOSE.

ENTERTAINING EXERCISES AT THE PAROCHIAL SCHOOL LAST MIGHT.

A Delightful Little Sketch Presented by the Scholars, Who Evinced Thorugh Training—Other Exercises.

Even the pouring rain could not dampen the enthusiasm of those who attended the closing exercises of St. Mary's School last Thursday. Had it been a pleasant evening the hall would have been crowded to its fullest capacity and, as it was, a good-sized audience comfortably filled the room.

The programme opened with a selection by a chorus of girls entitled "Gently Fall the Dews of Eve," which was quite suggestive, considering that the rain was falling in torrents outside. The chorus was composed of about twenty-five young girls costumed in white and formed a very pretty picture, while their singing was excellent.

The principal part of the evening's entertainment consisted of a drama entitled "Kathleen; or, The Cost of a promise. The cast was as follows:

Kathleen.....Miss E. Day
Mrs. Connors, (Her Mother), an Invalid.....Miss M. Smith
Granny Gilligen, Old Apple-Woman.....Miss M. Fosbre
Mrs. Royalton, Wealthy Sister of Mrs. Connors.....Miss A. M'Intyre
Ethel Royalton and Lucille Royalton, Nieces of the Late Mr. Royalton—Miss L. Flanagan and Miss K. Walsh.
Madame Felice, French Attendant to Mrs. Royalton.....Miss A. O'Keeffe
Topsy, Maid to Ethel and Lucille.....Miss J. Murphy
Magistrate.....Master E. Flynn
Guards.....{Master J. Burks / Master J. Daley
Messenger.....Master J. Berry
Loda / Zola — Gypsies.....{Miss K. Homan / Miss E. Walsh

CHILDREN PLAYING IN THE PARK.

Olive.....Miss M. McCann
Selina.....Miss K. Roach
Annie.....Miss M. Carty
Frances.....Miss M. Doll
Maggie.....Miss M. Shannon
Josie.....Miss L. Rafferty
Nellie.....Miss L. Corrigan
Gertrude.....Miss J. Lutz
Genevra.....Miss L. O'Keeffe
Helen.....Miss E. Barelle
Susie.....Miss S. Lynch
Mary.....Miss M. Callahan

The plot was quite interesting. The first scene showed a room in Mr. Connor's cottage; Mrs. Connor was dying, and called her daughter to her side and told her of her past history, and how she had been defrauded from her inheritance by an older sister, now Mrs. Royalton, and made Kathleen promise that she would try to recover it by some fair means. The second scene was in a public park, and Granny soliloquizes on various subjects. After her disappearance, two gypsies entered and danced most prettily in which they were soon joined by the children, and when in the midst of it, they beat a hasty retreat at the sight of Granny, the applewoman. In this scene it is learned that one of the gypsies is not a real one, but was picked up by the other when almost drowned in Italy. The Royalton House is where the next scene is laid, which opens with a soliloquy by Mrs. Royalton in which she mourns over the death of her child who was drowned in Italy, and the treatment of a younger sister. The scheming neices appear and try to be as loving as possible. They learn that Mrs. Royalton is taking a fancy to Kathleen who comes to play the zither for her, and fearing her influence decide to get rid of her, by putting a bracelet in her bag and then charging her with stealing. But Topsy, the colored maid, overhears all their plotting. In the fourth scene Kathleen is brought before a magistrate and the bracelet discovered in her bag, but Topsy testifies and she is released and, in the last scene, restored to her real position. The litlte gypsy is found to be the lost child, and all ends happily.

To give the names of those who did the best, would be to name the players again, but everything showed that some master-hand governed them all. The arranging of the stage also reflects great credit on those in charge. The rest of the programme was as follows:

Chorus—"The Flower Gatherers".....Glover
A Picture Chorus—"Hide and Seek".....Blake
The "Tots."
Solo and Chorus—"The Ship I Love".....Glennon
William Lawler.
Vocal Solo—"What Would You Take for Me, Papa?".....Westendorf
Miss Mary McCarthy.
Chorus—"When Daylight's Going."
La Somnambula
Instrumental—"American National Airs."
Knight
Piano—Misses K. Quinn and E. Kelly. Organ—Miss St. Leger. Violin—Miss A. Quinn.
Finale—Tableaux, representing Goddess of Liberty and States.

The drills and tableaux were certainly very beautiful and showed that Mme. Elizabetta Menzelli had been most successful.

The final tableaux was a fitting end to a most excellent entertainment. Miss Catherine Cooley as Goddess of Liberty was surronded by forty-eight girls, each dressed to represent one state, while J. Daly as Uncle Sam smiled benignly upon them. Just at the close G. Thorn took a flash light picture of the group.

A BRILLIANT MARRIAGE.

DAVIS-UNDERWOOD NUPTIALS A BIG SOCIETY EVENT.

Crescent Avenue Church Elaborately Decorated—Ceremony Performed By Rev. Dr. Brett—The Bridal Party.

An audience that represented the wealth, beauty and culture of Plainfield assembled at the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church, Thursday, and witnessed one of the prettiest June weddings. The front part of the church was decorated with Nature's fairest products, forming an immense bank of palms, cut rushes, pinks, white pinks, purple pinks, and gracefully entwining was broad pink and white satin ribbon, reaching to the top where it was neatly joined in two very handsome bows, while half way down the church in each aisle were handsome bouquets of pink and white roses tied with pink satin ribbon.

The contracting parties were Miss Florence Allison Underwood, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Underwood, of 138 Crescent avenue, and Seward Davis, of Jersey City.

While the expectant throng were awaiting the arrival of the bridal party Miss Jessie Utter seated at the organ gave delightful renditions from Rossini, Wagoner and Gregh.

It was past the hour, eight o'clock, when the first notes of Lohengrin's wedding march were heard, and as the favorite bridal march was being played, entering on the left from the front were the flower girls, Helen Underwood and Alice Parrott, of Elizabeth, dressed in white and carrying baskets of pink and white carnations. Then came the first bridesmaid, Miss Eleanor A. Underwood, sister of the bride, gowned in white, carrying a French cane at the top of which was a beautiful bouquet of pink carnations tied with pink ribbon.

She was followed by two additional bridesmaids gowned in green silk, trimmed with velvet ribbons of a darker shade. They carried French canes with bouquets of migonettes, tied with white ribbon. They then proceeded down the aisle to the left of the centre to the rear of the church. Here they met the maid of honor, Miss Laura Underwood, sister of the bride, gowned in pink silk and carrying a bouquet of white carnations, and the bride, wearing a beautiful gown of white satin, trimmed with duchesse lace. She also wore a mulle veil, pinned with a diamond crescent, the gift of the groom. A shower bouquet of white bridal roses and lilies of the valley was carried gracefully by the bride.

The ushers leading, followed by the bridesmaids, flower girls, maid of honor, and the bride, leaning on her father's arm, returned to the front of the church, where they were met by the groom, and best man, Mr. Knox, of New York, and Rev. Dr. Brett, pastor of the Dutch Reformed church, of Jersey City Heights, and Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards, pastor of the Crescent Avenue church.

The party gracefully formed around the altar, when Dr. Brett performed the ceremony, which was the Episcopal service, assisted by Dr. Richards. While the nuptial knot was being consummated, the intermezzo from Cavalier de Rusticana was rendered in delightful manner by Miss Utter.

In leaving the church the bride and groom preheded the rest of the party, she carrying an ivory bound prayer book, given her by the officiating clergyman. Then followed the maid of honor and best man, flower girls, bridesmaids and ushers. While they were retiring, Mendelssohn's wedding march was perfectly rendered in every detail.

The ushers were S. V. Parrott, of Buffalo, N. Y., Mahlon Apgar, Mr. Strang, George Fielder, of Jersey City, L. A. Underwood and Julius Erickson, of Plainfield.

A reception followed at the residence of the bride's parents at 138 Crescent avenue. The rooms were choicely decorated with smilax and roses. In the parlor was arranged a large fan of smilax, drooping from which were choice roses.

Music was by Isler of Newark and Max Wiertz was the caterer.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis were the recipients of many costly and handsome presents. During the evening they left on a bridal tour.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis will reside at Jersey City on their return from the bridal tour.

Eight hundred invitations were issued for the wedding and five hundred for the reception but owing to the stormy weather and the inability of the Plainfield people to secure carriages, very few were able to be present.

To Handle the Funds.

At a recent meeting of the executive board of the Union County Equal Suffrage Association Mrs. M. H. Eaton was appointed treasurer pro tem of the organization, during the absence of the regular treasurer, Mrs. Samuel Huntington, for the summer.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

A Young Thief.

For sometime past Thomas Johnson, a colored boy in the employ of Edsall, has been stealing goods from the store. They were missed but it was difficult to detect the person. Yesterday Mr. Edsall succeeded in catching the young thief. It was learned that he had taken neckties, handkerchiefs, jewelry, and money from a pocketbook belonging to one of the clerks. The boy confessed his guilt and was discharged. He took the articles at different times and placed them in a box he had hid back of the building and at night would take them away.

Insurance Money Contest.

The case of Henry Pendleton deceased, against Metropolitan Insurance Company, was tried yesterday morning before Justice Mosher. Lawyer S. S. Swackhamer represented the widow and City Attorney James Connolly, of Elizabeth, the company. The plaintiff claimed fraud in the payment of a death claim of $165, while the defendents claimed that they did not owe the money. The case consumed three hours and Justice Mosher reserved his decision till next Monday.

NETHERWOOD IS AROUSED.

CITIZENS BOUND TO HAVE THE TROLLEY ROAD EXTENSION.

Out of Forty-Two Property-Owners Only Four Are Said to Be Opposed to the Extension—Mean Business.

The Netherwood people turned out recently. They filled the reading-room of the Hotel Netherwood, and they were filled with a burning zeal for public improvements, particularly the trolley. Out of forty-two property owners in the district, it is said that all but four want the trolley, and the sentiment of the meeting was that the wishes of the forty are better than the vivid imaginations of the four.

W. A. Lord was called to the chair and G. W. Thomas was made secretary. Mr. Lord stated the object of the meeting which was that those present be given an opportunity to place themselves on record as wanting the trolley road in Netherwood. Continuing he said the railway company want to run their tracks to the end of Putnam avenue, but unless they will lay their tracks to the Netherwood station they don't want the extension at all. He said that the company act very indifferent in the matter and will not turn their hand one way or the other, for or against. The advocates of extension, he said, may meet opposition, and no doubt will, and the question was whether they wanted to retain counsel to fight the opposition. To his mind the other side was making a bluff, and there was no reason why Netherwood people should not stand ground and see the matter through.

Mr. Finch offered a resolution that it be the sense of the meeting that the Netherwood people want the trolley and that it must come to Netherwood before the trunk line goes through, and that the citizens be represented at the Common Council meeting held Monday night; also that the Council be asked to carry out the wishes of Netherwood citizens. It was carried unanimously.

Mr. Finch made a motion that a committee of fifteen be appointed to attend the meeting of the council on Monday night next. It was adopted, and the following were named by Mr. Lord: F. C. Langhorne, N. P. T. Finch, C. P. Ellis, F. W. Hand, S. A. Guion, W. L. Brown, Howard Runyon, Dorsey Hyde, Edward Willis, F. I. Smith, H. A. Ostermoor, D. W. Hand, A. J. Beal, William Daveson, George Thomas. W. A. Lord was added to the committee, as was also A. D. Thompson.

It was reported that one man in opposition had said he would spend $5,000 to defeat the trolley construction. It was also reported that a Plainfield lawyer had been retained by the same man.

Mr. Stillman, a lawyer living at Netherwood, was asked for his opinion, and he said that there was no need of securing counsel till it was known what the opposition were going to do.

Another resolution was offered by Mr. Finch and carried that the chairman be authorized to call a meeting, if in his judgment he thought the opposition would warrant it.

It was understood that the same lawyer who had been retained by one of the opposition, was also counsel for one of the large property owners who had signed in favor of the trolley.

Those present at the meeting included the following: H. A. Ostermoore, W. A. Lord, N. P. T. Finch, John Christianson, F. W. Hand, William Daveson, Fred I. Smith, David Hand, Edward Willis, George Thomas, C. P. Ellis, Dorsey W. Hyde, S. A. Guion, A. J. Beal, W. L. Brown, F. C. Langhorne, Martin Korff and Howard Runyon.

The Democratic list was handed in by Allan McDermott, Chairman of the State Committee, yesterday. Woodruff of this city, and William Chamberlain of Rahway.

TABB-DANIEL NUPTIALS.

Another Plainfield Belle Carried Away by an Outsider.

Another of Plainfield's belles was carried away by an outsider, when Miss Grace Daniel and Albert Tabb, of Brooklyn, were united in wedlock at the home of the bride on the corner of Plainfield avenue and West Eighth street, Thursday afternoon at half past five o'clock.

The marriage was a very quiet affair, only relatives and a few near friends being present. Rev. Dr. W. R. Richards performed the ceremony. The bride was dressed in full bridal costume, white silk dress, tule veil and orange blossoms. Miss Genevieve Daniel, the maid of honor, looked pretty in white with pink bouquet, while the three bridesmaids, Miss Estelle Daniel, sister of the bride, Miss Skidmore, of New York, and Miss Farwell, of Montreal, were all dressed in pink, and carried pink bouquets Irving Daniel was the best man.

The decorations were, besides the palms and greens, entirely pink, arranged in a most artistic manner. P. Ludwig Conde, on the violin, assisted by a harpist, furnished the enjoyable music, playing before the marriage the well-known Lohengrin wedding march. During the ceremony the Angel's Serenade was played very softly, but after it was concluded the grand strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march were spiritedly rendered. Afterwards a varied programme of select music was rendered.

STRUCK BY THE TROLLEY.

A Horse Knocked Down on West Front Street.

Thursday afternoon, between three four o'clock, Max Wiertz was preparing to deliver some goods at the residence of William Underwood. The wagon was filled with silver and China ware, and the young man in charge of the rig came out the driveway on West Front street, crossing the street railway tracks. Just then a car came along, making fast time. It struck the horse knocking him down and cutting him severely. The harness broke, and the horse managed to get up, and then ran into the yard.

After considerable effort he was captured and placed in the stable.

Mr. Wiertz at once secured another horse from Blair's livery stable.

It will be some time before the injured horse can be used.

FESTIVAL FOR CHILDREN.

Sunday-School Scholars of Church of The Redeemer Entertained.

The scholars of the Sunday-school of the Church of the Redeemer were given an enjoyable treat Wednesday afternoon on the lawn in the rear of D. L. Thompson's residence on Rockview Terrace.

It was the annual festival and Mr. Henderson, of New York, was present, and gave a very clever exhibition of sleight-of-hand, ventriloquism, etc.

The little ones as well as the older ones thoroughly enjoyed the affair.

Excellent refreshments were afterward served by the women.

Mr. Saltzman Off for Europe.

A meeting of the Exempt Firemen's Association was held Wednesday. President Auguste Saltzman presented the association with a frame of badges which he has been collecting for a long time and made a short farewell speech, as he sails for Europe next Wednesday. The question of being represented in the Fourth of July parade was thoroughly discussed and a number of members expressed their willingness to turn out. It was not decided whether to have the old fire bell, the Fanwood hand engine or the old Zephyr hook and ladder truck in line.

Mr. Kirk Gets the Job.

The special committee of the Union County Board of Freeholders into whose charge has been given the matter of widening the Grand street bridge that spans the Rahway River at Rahway, have awarded the contract to W. D. Kirk, of this city, whose bid was $1,775. There were five bids received. Dean & Westbrook being the next lowest, their's being $1,795. The job will be commenced in two weeks, and the bridge will be made the same with as Grand street.

Dr. Raymond's Likeness.

GRAND ARMY UNDER THE SNOW.

Uprising of the Germanic States Follows the Disaster in Russia—Battles of Lutzen and Bautzen—The Fifth Coalition Allies in Paris—Abdication and Elba.

XX.—From Dresden to Erba via Moscow.

In the early spring of 1812 Napoleon had his court in Dresden. Pageantry could go no further than was witnessed there. He was surrounded with a retinue of veritable kings and princes. The princesses were there also, headed by the mother of the King of Rome. Emile Bayard has painted for posterity one of the Imperial receptions. Fashion and gallantry and royal state could rise no higher. Meissonier has added to his Napoleonic cycle a picture of the "Advance of the Grand Army."

On the 29th of May, the march to the Niemen began. More than a half million of men, gathered from nearly a score of nations, moved forward. The cynical Bourrienne says that sixteen races, like so many chained dogs, advanced on Russia. The military genius of all Central and Western Europe was in the train. Napoleon was backed by all the resources of European civilization. He had his veterans and his marshals. He had his underlings. He had his genius, and the experience of more than fifteen years of warfare. He knew that he was now going into battle with an antagonist second only to England.

As for Russia, she had savage forces, vast domains, an assemblage of barbarous peoples, inaccessible cities, impassable rivers and illimitable steppes. She had also patriotism and physical hardihood. She had the Cossacks. She knew herself, and her enemy knew her not. She had winter—sublime, yellow-black winter, blown out of the hyperborean caverns, unveil by the men of Western Europe. She had frozen mercury in her thermometers, and soldiers who would not fall when their brains were out!

On the 24th of June, the Grand Army, crossing the Niemen, headed toward Moscow. The advance was but little impeded. The Russians fell back before the resistless invaders. Soon, however, a new commander appeared on the scene—one with whom Napoleon was unfamiliar. It was Field-marshal Nature. Marshal Nature had an army that the Old Guard had never confronted. His commission was probably from God. His herald was frost, and his aide-de-camp was zero. One of his army corps was snow. His bellowing artillery was charged with Lithuanian tempests. Hail was his grape and shrapnel. The Emperor of the French had never studied his tactics—not even in the Alps.

The Russian summer was a mid-winter to the soldiers of France and Spain and Italy. The divisions of Jerome and Eugene could hardly advance at all. The howling storms made impassable the ungraded roads; the 1200 guns of the Grand Army sank into the mire. Horse-life and man-life fell and perished in the sleet of the mock-summer that raged along the watershed between the Dwina and the Dnieper.

The Russians under Kutusoff receded during July and the first half of August. On the 16th of that month the first battle was fought at Smolensko. This plain the French pounded into ruins and captured with a loss to themselves of nearly 18,000 men. Dorogobourg, Viazma, and Giatsk fell before the invaders. The Russians durst not stand in the open field. Not until the 7th of September did Kutusoff plant himself on the Moskwa and offer battle to his antagonist. There, at the village of Borodino, was fought one of the greatest murder of modern times. A thousand cannon vomited death all day. Under the smoke a quarter of a million of men struggled like tigers. At nightfall the French had the field. But the defeated Russians hung sullenly to the skirts of the bloody arena, where they had left more than 40,000 of their dead and wounded. The French losses were almost equally appalling: "Sire," said Marshal Ney, "we would better withdraw, and reform." "Thou advise a retreat, Michel?" said the marble head, as it turned to the Bull-dog of Battles.

Kutusoff abandoned Moscow. Most of the inhabitants receded with him from the city to the great plains eastward. On the 15th of September, Napoleon entered the ancient capital. The streets were as a necropolis. All was silence. The conqueror took up his residence in the old palace of the Czars. He had now performed this act in nearly all the royal places of Europe. He had walked unbidden into Schonbrunn. In the vault at Potsdam he had put his hand on the catafalque of Frederick the Great. He had trod the unwelcoming slabs of the Escurial. He had wintered in Warsaw. Now he slept in the Kremlin.

Moscow promised rest after hard slip. Here we will spend the winter in the luxurious quarters of the Muscovite grandees and metropolitans. We will extemporize our theaters, as in Cairo. Beautiful women shall dance before the marshals of the Empire. From this place we will issue our edicts, as from Berlin and Milan. Lo, out of the Bazaar, near the Kremlin, bursts a volume of flame! The surrounding region is lighted with the glare. The equinoctial gale springs up. The city is on fire in a thousand places. Skulkers have remained behind and given us to the flames. The French army tries in vain to quench the conflagration. For five days there is the roar of universal combustion. Then it subsides; but Moscow is in ruins. Napoleon returns to the Kremlin and gazes vain negotiations with the Czar. Alexander and Kutusoff will not hear. The French are in the ashes of a burnt-up Russian city.

Already winter was at hand. Snow was falling. The Soldier of Fortune has at last found his destiny. On the 19th of October, he leaves Moscow, and the retreat begins to the Niemen. On every side the Cossacks arise and assail the fugitives. The soldiers of the West and South drop by thousands on the frozen roads. The snows cover them. The ice-darts in their sides are sharper than bayonets. The columns stagger and swing to right and left. A hundred and twenty thousand men roll away across the hostile world. At the Beresina the bridges are broken down under the retreating army. In the following spring, when the ice-gorges go down the river, 12,000 dead Frenchmen shall be washed up from the floods!

There is constant battle on flank and rear. All stragglers perish. The army dwindles. Ney brings up the rear-guard wasted to a handful. At the passage of the Niemen, soiled with dirt, blackened with smoke, without insignia, with only drawn sword and facing backwards towards the hated region, the "Bravest of the Brave" crosses the bridge. He is the last man to save himself from the indescribable horrors of the Campaign of Russia.

The remnants of the Grand Army find refuge in Konigsberg. Napoleon, after Moscow, had taken to a sledge, and had sped across the snow covered wastes of Poland on his way to Paris. He came there unannounced. At four o'clock on the following morning, some one found him in his office at the Tuileries with his warman of Europe spread before him on the floor!

As soon as it was known that the Grand Army was under the snows of Russia, there were signs of upheaval through all the borders of the West. The Germanic States were first to profit by the disasters of the French. Frederick William gave his hand to the Czar. There was a revolt in Hamburg. The Confederation of the Rhine began to fall to pieces. Alexander sent an army to Berlin; Napoleon must guard his eastern frontier, or perish.

The turmoil of 1813 began on the 2nd of May with the battle of Lutzen. With incredible speed Napoleon had planted his new armies on a line extending from Lubeo to Venice. At Lutzen the French were victorious. Frederick William, Alexander, and Napoleon were once more on the same field! On the 21st of May, the Emperor hurled 125,000 men on the allies at Bautzen, and won another victory. Davout retook Hamburg, and terribly punished that place for its defection. Napoleon held Dresden in one hand and routed the allies with the other until his antagonists were glad to accept an armistice. They agreed to convene at Prague for making a treaty of peace.

But secretly, in the interim, the Czar and Frederick William, aided by England, constructed the Fifth Coalition. Austria and Saxony were won over to the league. The father of Maria Louisa perfidiously entered the lists against her husband. On the 26th of August, after the truce had expired, the Emperor met the Prussians and Russians at Dresden, and gained another victory. But his enemies were only beaten—not overwhelmed.

The war in other parts of the field bore hardly on the French. At Grossbeeren the allies defeated Oudinot, and on the 26th of August, the battle of Katsbach was won by Blucher over Macdonald, who suffered heavy losses in men and guns. Bernadotte, who had renounced the Emperor, came down against Ney at Dennewitz, and there, on the 6th of September, disastrously defeated him. The allies concentrated in great force on Leipsic, and on the 16th of October were beaten there by Bonaparte. Vainly he sought to open negotiations. The second battle of Leipsic was fought on the 18th of the month—a terrible conflict in which Napoleon was forced from the field. The city was taken; the bridges blown up; and Poniatowsky drowned in the Elster.

The French, hard-pressed, were obliged to fall back from the frontier of Germany. In November, Napoleon reached Paris. He sought in all possible ways to conclude a peace, but also exerted himself during the winter to prepare for the coming avalanche. Beyond the Rhine the French power was broken up. Hanover was recovered by the allies. Holland proclaimed William I. of Orange. Jerome had to abdicate the throne of Westphalia. The small princes of Germany took back their ancient estates. Norway went to Sweden. Denmark leagued with Great Britain. The Austrians overran the Illyrian provinces. Murat, king of Naples, made a treaty with Austria. Only Eugene, viceroy of Italy, remained loyal in support of the Emperor.

In the beginning of 1814 was begun the so-called Campaign of France. Napoleon everywhere confronted his enemies. All the eastern borders were darkened with the oncoming armies of the Coalition. Wellington, who in the preceding summer had won the great battle of Vittoria, was now in command of the allies on the side of Flanders. Napoleon gave the Pope his liberty, and restored him to his States. All the whales and monsters of the Middle Ages came up from the sea; he threw to this one a bait and to that one a tub. The Austrians under Schwartzenburg crossed the Rhine. Blucher also crossed, at Coblentz. The Russians came by way of Holland. Bernadotte pressed southward with 100,000 men.

The struggle that ensued was without a parallel in history. Napoleon, like King John at Poitiers, warded right and warded left. He fought one battle after another, until both Blucher and Schwartzenburg were crushed, and Austria sued for peace. But the Germanic powers returned to the battle with the powerful support of Russia and Sweden and England; and the French began to recede. It was now seen that the allied generals had learned from the lion many of his own arts of war.

Napoleon, with his usual audacity, plunged into Germany; the allies, instead of following him, pressed on towards Paris, and the Emperor was obliged to return. Arriving at Fontainebleau, he found that Alexander and Frederick William were already in his capital. Europe was in an uproar. The French Empire was sinking to its knees. Such legislative authority as existed in Paris was asserting itself for peace and abdication. On the 11th of April, the Emperor agreed to withdraw in favor of his son; but the triumphant allies would have nothing less than the absolute. The absolute was accepted by the Man of Destiny. To him was given, instead of the Empire of Europe, the island of Elba, with its ninety square miles of petty mountains, its sardines, its crabapples, and its small wine! Besides this, in compensation for the crowns of Caesar and Charlemagne, we will give General Bonaparte a pension of 2,000,000 francs!

The Paterson Daily Press yesterday published a column of Trenton gossip concerning the Governorship contest, in which it is endeavored to show that ex-Senator Griggs has as good a chance for the nomination as John Kean, and that Senator Voorhees' boom is as good as dead now.

The term of seven State Senators expire the present year, as follows: Skirm, of Mercer: Stokes, of Cumberland; Smith, of Ocean; Hoffman, of Atlantic; Winton, of Bergen; Daly, of Hudson, and Drake, of Morris. The first four are Republicans and the other three are Democrats.

His candidacy is based not on his developed ability as a State Senator, nor his undeveloped possibilities as a State Governor, but upon the single fact that he is in good standing with the A. P. Hahne & Co., the Newark drygoods merchants, have taken into their own hands the matter of inaugurating the early closing, Saturday half-holiday movement. There are in Newark as elsewhere a very few greedy men who would keep open stores day and night if they believed a few paltry dollars could be earned thereby. These men have thus far blocked the movement for a general Saturday half-holiday. Hahne & Co. seem to be big enough and broadminded enough to go ahead alone, and they have announced that they will close their store at noon Saturdays during July and August. Such action deserves not only the appreciation of the public but likewise its substantial recognition.

The power-of-removal bill passed by the New York Legislature for the benefit of Mayor Strong ceased to become operative last Saturday. The passage of such laws as the removal bill, in the view of popular suffrage at the ballot box, is one of the curious anomalies of American government in 1895.

The Daily Press is glad to hear that at least one member of the Board of Education was in favor of awarding the contract for supplying coal to the schools to a Plainfield dealer, to the exclusion of outside dealers. FOR GOOD GOVERNMENT.

DR. LEWIS TALKS TO YOUNG PEOPLE ON THE SUBJECT.

Says the Present Movement Resembles the One Before the War, But Along Different and Just As Important Lines.

A very interesting "Good Government" meeting was held in the Congregational church, last evening by the Christian Endeavor Society of that church. John V. Beekman, Jr., president of the society, acted as leader. After several opening hymns, a selection of Scripture was read, after which Rev. C. L. Goodrich led in prayer.

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis was then introduced as the speaker of the evening. He spoke of the prophetic movement that occurred in 1860, when the military tactics were used so extensively in the presidential campaign, and how it prepared the young men of the time for the coming war. The present "good government" movement, he said, is the forerunner of a grand movement that is coming in the next century by which the many questions that stand so prominently before us today without any apparent solution, will be definitely settled. Attempts are now being made to settle them by legislation but the true solution will be the adoption of practical Christianity in the government. I do not agree, he said, with the party that believe that as soon as the words "Christ" and "God" are put in the Constitution, everything will be all right, but I believe that when the time comes, and it will come too, that this country is governed from a Christian standpoint, these questions will no longer trouble us. It is the young people of today that will see the beginning to this great movement and they must be prepared to do their share. It is not likely that there will be war as in '61, but the issues will be just as important if not more so.

Failed to Push the Case.

Complaint was made by Charles Wyckoff against Reed Allen sometime ago, charging him with stealing a wagon seat. This morning the case came up before Justices Crosley and Sperry. Allen was represented by Lawyer George DeMeza, pleaded not guilty.

Wyckoff finally withdrew the complaint and paid the cost of the court and counsel's fee.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

The theories of physicians in regard to female complaints suffer a "Waterloo" very frequently, when sensible and thinking women take matters into their own hands.

Women are sometimes compelled to act for themselves, because of the suffering forced upon them by incompetent doctors, who are baffled by very simple complaints, because they are not the right sex to comprehend them.

Lydia E. Pinkham when she gave to the world her Vegetable Compound, lifted women from the darkness into light. She placed within their reach a guaranty, not only of health, but of delicacy and self-respect.

The following letter is a little story where a "dear little boy" was the "Waterloo."

"I have taken three bottles of your Vegetable Compound, one package of Sanative Wash, one box of Liver Pills; and now I have a dear little babe four weeks old, and I am well. I have to thank you for this.

"I have spent $200.00 for doctors' bills without a cure. For my cure I only spent $5.00.

"I was once a victim of female troubles in their worst form. I have suffered untold agonies every month; had to stay in bed, and have poultices applied, and then could not stand the pain.

"My physician told me if I became pregnant I would die. I had bladder trouble, itching, backache, catarrh of the stomach, hysteria, and heart trouble, fainting spells and leucorrhœa. Can you wonder that I sing the praises of a medicine that has cured me of all these ills?" MRS. GEO. C. KIRCHNER, 351 Snediker Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

THE PLAINS TEAM DEFEATED

Y. M. C. A. TEAM WINS A VICTORY BY FOUR RUNS.

Few Errors Made By Either Team, Though the Ball Was Wet and Slippery—Billy Lee at Short.

Even water cannot check the enthusiasm of the cranks, especially if they have a chance to see the home team win, and so it was at the Crescent Oval Saturday afternoon in the baseball game between the Y. M. C. A. team and the Scotch Plains club, when the Y. M. C. A. boys won by the score of 5 to 1.

Despite the fact that the ball was wet and slippery, neither team made many errors, although some of the Scotch Plains infielders seemed inclined to juggle with the ball. The Plainfield boys won their game fairly, out-fielding and out-batting their opponents. Burt seemed a perfect puzzle, and although his delivery was hit, yet only one was hit safely. It seemed like old times to see Billy Lee on the diamond again, but he now plays short instead of his old position at third. He did not play his old game, however, except in the fourth inning when he made one of those famous left-hand cathes of an apparently safe hit of Townley's.

Four of the five runs were scored in the third inning. Schenck was first to bat and hit to third, who threw him out at first. Dupee got his base on balls, and ran around to third on Erickson's fumble of Schoonmaker's grounder. Schoonmaker stole second, and then Egan put one in Billy Lee's hands who dropped it. Dupee crossed the plate and Schoonmaker took third. A prettty base hit by McKelvey sent Schoonmaker home and Egan on to second. By this time the cranks were enjoying the game to their heart's content. Johnson lost his nerve and sent Burt to first on four balls forcing Egan to third and McKelvey to second. Egan tried to do a rash thing, to steal home, and succeeded, while McKelvey and Burt each advanced a base. A long fly of Davis's enabled McKelvey to score the fourth run on the throw in. Wyckoff ended the inning by striking out.

The other run was made in the sixth by Wyckoff on errors by Johnson, Lee and C. Frentz. Lee made the only run for the Scotch Plains nine on an error by Schoonmaker, a sacrifice hit, a stolen base and a hit by Johnson.

At the end of the second inning, play was suspended for a time on account of rain, but was resumed in a few minutes.

After one half of the seventh inning had been played the rain came down so hard that umpire Theirs called the game.

The score by innings was as follows:—

Scotch Plains	0	0	0	1	0	0	—	1

Tennis Tournaments.

The Hillside Tennis Club will hold an open singles tournament on July Fourth, snstead of the club tournament previously announced. The open tournament, which was to be held on the courts of H. E. Rider, of East Front street, on July 3, has been postponed until July 12, so as not to conflict with the Hillside Tennis Club's tournament.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Miss Jennie Crosley, of Dner street, has been presented with a Victoria bicycle, which she is learning to ride.

A German wheel paper advertises "false calves for use by thin-legged wheelmen." France comes to the front with "a conversation cycle," which is a tandem bicycle so built that the riders are facing each other when riding. Even the dead are to ride with comfort to the grave, thanks to the pneumatic. An Atlanta undertaker has a hearse equipped with pneumatic tires.—The Wheel.

Mrs. J. C. VanName Dies After Fifty-two Years of Married Life.

Saturday afternoon occurred the death of Mrs. J. C. VanName at her home on Elmwood place after an illness of two weeks.

Mrs. VanName was the daughter of Moses VanPelt, and was born at Mariner's Harbor, S. I., seventy-two years ago. She was married to J. C. VanName, and they took up their residence in this city a number of years ago. Two sons, Henry and Garrett VanName, and one daughter, Mrs. C. Kohler, survive her.

Mr. and Mrs. VanName had lived together fifty-two years and were very devoted to each other. She was a faithful member of the First Baptist church and was a steady attendant.

The funeral services were held this morning at eleven o'clock from her late residence, Rev. Dr. Yerkes officiating. Interment was in Hillside cemetery, Mariner's Harbor, this afternoon.

At Hymen's Altar.

Wednesday, at 5 p. m. Mr Ernest Barrett of Plainfield and Miss Delia Casey were united in the bonds of wedlock, in St. Francis' church, by the Rev. Father Freeman. There was a very large attendance of deeply interested spectators. The charming bride was attired in a lovely white silk dress, and carried a bouquet of bridal roses. The bride's maid, Miss Mary Tilford, wore an exquisite dress of pale green silk. Mr. David Power was best man. There were four ushers, namely: Messrs. James Power, John Power, T. Barrett, and L. Townley. At the close of the ceremony a splendid reception was given at the residence of the bride's mother. The happy couple were the gratified recipients of many hearty wishes for their future happiness. They left on the 7:53 east bound train for Jersey City whence they took a late train for Washington D. C. Mr. Barrett is a very superior young man. Mr. David Power took charge of the church decorations which were very tasteful. Mrs. Townley discoursed appropriate organ music before and at the close of the ceremony.—Metuchen Courier,

The July Forum.

The Forum for July has an uncommonly interesting table of contents. One of its notable articles is by Dr. Max Nordau, the alienist and author of "Degeration," who makes his first appearance in an American periodical with an article in The Forum, entitled "Society's Protection Against Degenerates," showing to what extent the degenerate in art and literature degrades society, and the best method by which society may defend itself against them. The article is in effect a supplement to "Degeneration." Two important financial articles are "Coin's Food for the Gullible," in which Prof. J. Laurence Laughlin, of Chicago university, relentlessly exposes the fallacies and misrepresentations in "Coin's Financial School;" the other article is by William Salomon, a prominent banker of New York, on "Sound Currency the Dominant Political Issue." He declares sound money to be the dominant issue in the coming campaign, and urges all who are able to throw any light on the intricate financial problem to do so; and he predicts that that political party which shall make sound money its platform will win the next Presidential election.

Resolutions of Condolence.

Whereas: It has pleased Almighty God to take from this earth James Connedy, a faithful husband a kind father and a beloved comrade, while still in the vigor of manhood, and from the circle of a devoted family.

Resolved, That while we bow to the dispensation of a Merciful Creator, who knows all things and does all things for the best, we mourn the loss of this devoted comrade whose perseverence earned the regard of his fellow members in the Legion.

Resolved, That Plainfield Council, No. 244, Catholic Benevolent Legion, desires to express its heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved household, and regrets the severance of ties that were ever pleasant and true. Be it further

Resolved, That a copy of these resolutions be spread upon our minutes and also sent to the bereaved family, and published in The Plainfield Press. Thomas Happin,

OFFICIAL LINE OF MARCH.

How the Division Will Form and the Streets on Which They Will Go.

Amos Andrews, chairman of the parade committee of the Fourth of July celebration, today announces the official line of march and the points at which the different divisions will form are as follows:

Fourth division—Right resting on Watchung avenue, extending down LaGrande towards Richmond street.

The line of march is as follows, the only change from the proposed line published on Saturday being the substitution of Eighth street for Seventh street, the latter thoroughfare not being in condition to draw the heavy floats over it:

From Watchung avenue through Seventh street to Park avenue, through Park avenue to Arlington place and countermarch to Eighth street, to Liberty street, to Front street, to Washington avenue, to Mercer avenue, to Grove street, to Linden avenue, to Somerset street, to Craig place, to Grove street, to Front street, to Richmond street, to Fifth street, to Park avenue, to North avenue and dismiss.

A Delightful Drive.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Schuyler, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Roberts, John Meeker and the Misses Hewson, of this city, and William Chamberlain, of Westfield, drove on Friday to Fox Hill, where they remained over night and on Saturday continued their journey to Chester, Morris county, where they were the guests of Frank Hewson, whose father, William Hewson, kept the City Hotel in this city in the latter part of the '70s. The delightful trip was immensely enjoyed, and their reception and treatment at Chester a long to be remembered event. The party returned last night.

He Is a Fool,

so the great Homer thought, "who only sees the mischiefs that are past." He is wise who, anticipating the mischief that may result from inattention to care of his eyes, seeks the advice of a reliable optician, and learns how to provide against loss of sight and the ills that follow in its wake. Go to Collier's then, and get timely counsel on this important subject. All examinations free at 103 Park avenue.

Will Be Missed By Friends.

William Gray, of Nyack, N. Y., died on Saturday at the advanced age of eighty-five years. He was the father of Mrs. John F. Harman of this city. A gentlemon of the old school, genial and vivacious in manner, of rare humor, with a poetic temperament, the personal friend of William Cullen Bryant, his loss will be keenly felt by a large circle of friends.

Why, of Course, They Will.

Several people on North avenue have been wondering whether any of the merchants are going to decorate their places of business. In view of the fact that North avenue will receive the visitors from out of town, it seems as though they ought to go into the decorating business with a good will.

An Important Feature.

One of the most important features of the Fourth of July celebration has arrived in town. It is a young pig who will be greased and let loose upon the Crescent Oval on the afternoon of the Fourth. He arrived from Somerville, and as a squealer does credit to the town from which it hails. The pig will be shaved by Brown.

Made Rich in a Day.

Daniel Sorrell, a poor painter, who lives in East Grand street, Elizabeth, has received word from England that he has fallen heir in that country to $75,000 by the death of a relative. He will sail for England this week to claim his fortune.

A Pretty Big Place.

The population of the city and North Plainfield borough and township, which are really all one place, is 18,508. In the figures of total population given in the Press of Saturday, the township was omitted.

A Gift to the Library.

The Free Public Library has just received from Mrs. John Dietrich, of 16 Arlington place, Frost's "Pictorial history of the world" in three volumes, and the "Life of Benjamin Franklin" by Jared Sparks.

Don't Build Too High.

Merchants who are building floats for the Fourth of July parade should not build them over 11 feet high on account of the railroad bridges being only 12 feet from the roadway.

A MOVING FESTIVAL.

But The Little Girls Made Money Just the Same.

A lawn festival in the rain was not to be thought of and so the young people who were to hold one on the lawn of E. H. Hannagan, of Craig place and Grove street, Saturday afternoon and evening, moved to a vacant house on Craig place kindly lent for the occasion by Mr. Hannagan. The festival was started on the lawn in the afternoon, but when the rain came and the waitresses had to pass the ice cream from under umbrellas, the moving began. John P. Emmons gave the use of his wagon and he and Mr. Hannagan did their best in assisting. Mrs. Hannagan, Mrs. C. H. Smith and Miss Safford helped to rearrange the booths and by eight o'clock the festival was in full swing.

At a pretty booth at one end of the room Miss Edna Smith and Miss Aimee Emmons sold delicious candies. Lemonade was passed out by Miss Della Grant, while the root beer, in a regular gypsy's kettle, was presided over by Miss Genie Hannagan. Miss Marion Safford and Miss Clara Woodward were in charge of the cake department. Mrs. Hannagan served out the ice cream which was served by the Misses Dora Waring, Helen Walter, Mildred Everett and Blanche Heideloff. Miss Maud Emmons was the flower girl, and Frank Emmons looked after the grab bag. Orville Waring and Herbert Cathcart took tickets at the door.

The net profits were $21.

TOM PLATT AND THE FOURTH.

He Will Send Out the Famous Express Wagon for the Parade.

Manager Mills, of the U. S. Express Company, has at last succeeded in securing the company's World's Fair exhibition for the Fourth of July parade. It consists of the largest, handsomest and most complete express wagon ever placed on wheels, together with four of the largest horses owned by the company. The harness is gold mounted.

Mr. Mills had great difficulty in securing the rig, and was obliged to go personally to President Platt. The order for it was received Saturday. The Plainfield branch have also been given the privilege of keeping it four days to deliver goods. Mr. Mills also received a requisition to decorate the company's office.

DEATH OF MRS. BERRY.

Was an Active Worker in the First Presbyterian Church.

Deborah Berry, wife of John C. Berry, passed away quietly Sunday morning at her home, 27 Craig place. Two weeks ago in coming down stairs Mrs. Berry slipped and fell, injuring herself internally. She never rallied and Plainfield lost a good and Christian woman and the First Presbyterian church an active worker. Mrs. Berry had been a resident of Plainfield for thirty-five years, coming here from New York. Her husband survives her. Mrs. Berry's nephew, D. S. Berry, lives at 25 Craig place, and Mr. Cox and Mr. Spangenberg are both related to her. She had three daughters, Mrs. David Shotwell, now in Florida, Mrs. Harriet Bailey, who resided with Mrs. Berry, and Mrs. A. C. Sutton, of Riverton. She also had four grandchildren of whom Oliver Sutton of Dunellen is one.

Why Go Away From Plainfield?

While some friends are discussing summer schools established in different parts of the country that have recognized the fact that children are benefited by a little study in summer, they do not know that in Plainfield at the Manual Training and Grammar school, on East Front street, there is a class of boys and girls meeting three mornings in the week for instruction from Miss Dalziel in clay modeling. This accomplished young teacher, who has recently returned from Philadelphia where she has been studying under Prof. Platchvart, has a happy group of boys and girls about her, who have found in substituting clay, for the sand-pits at home, great satisfaction in the better results of their scientific play. A glance at their cheerful faces will convince parents and friends of children that a little work during the long vacation is of great value, and that it is also true that "All play and no work work makes Jack a dull boy."

A Watermelon Party.

The mention of a watermelon party suggests great times, and the one given by Andrew Wilson, of Washingtonville last Friday evening to a number of his young friends, was equal to the expectations. After an evening of singing and instrumental music the melons appeared. Among those who enjoyed Mr. Wilson's hospitality were the Misses Jessie Coddington, Jennie Simpson, Josie Fritts, Lena Smalley, Minnie Smalley, May McLoughlin, Miss Speer, Harry Coddington, Allen Coddington, Will Kitchen, Robert Clark, Edward Clark and Will Titus.

THE CHEAPENING OF BOOKS.

A False Business System Has Prevailed Many Years to Keep Up Prices.

The announcement that booksellers will meet the prices of the department stores in the sale of books marks the end of a long and foolish struggle artificially to maintain an outworn trade system. It also marks the beginning of a period in which the public are to share the advantage of cheapened paper and book making processes.

In the days before railroads, fast mails and cheap telegraphy the local booksellers all over the country were a necessary part of the machinery of book distribution. The march of improvement rendered their service unnecessary nearly a generation ago, or if not unnecessary at least less necessary than before, When it became possible and easy for the dweller in any remote town to order his books of the publisher and get them within two or three days the local bookseller ceased to be a necessity. His stock could never compare in completeness with that which publishers' catalogues, with the aid of fast mails, offered to every book buyer to select from. To increase sales publishers began to broaden the scope of their discounts until nearly all buyers found that they could do better by ordering their books by mail.

Then a great "conference" was held at Put-in-Bay to devise means of "protecting" the retail book trade—that is to say, compelling book buyers to support middlemen for whose services they had no use. Rigid rulss were adopted, only to be broken, because they deserved to be broken. Every publisher fixed a false price on his books. He gave the retailer a discount of 40 per cent., and an additional discount of 10 per cent. for cash. That is to say he sold $1 books for 54 cents to the retailer.

Naturally a good many publishers began to seek a retail trade by giving discounts to direct buyers. There was more money in selling a dollar book to the reader for 75 cents than in selling it to the retailer for 54 cents and permitting him to collect a dollar for it.

The system broke down, as it deserved to do. Then the dry goods stores saw their opportunity. They could buy books at 54 cents on the dollar of retail price and by sharing this excessive profit with the ultimate buyer they could undersell the retail bookseller.

They were stigmatized as "book butchers" and by other opprobrious names, but their business was perfectly legitimate. They were merely selling goods at a fair price which had been sold at an excessive price. They were carrying out the sound principle of "large sales and small profits."

The whole thing is very simple. Under an artificial system the price of books has been kept up, while the cost of making books has enormously declined. At last the public is to have the advantage of the cheapening, as it ought long ago to have had.

The result will be to benefit publishers, authors, booksellers and book buyers alike. At lower prices more books will be sold. The profits of publishers and the royalties of authors will be increased. The people will get more for their money. The reading habit will be greatly stimulated. Popular culture will be advanced. And if here and there a bookseller in some obscure town has to go out of the business, the loss will not compare with the great gain.

We are at the beginning of the universal reading age.

THE ALLADIN OVEN.

A Maximum of Heat for Domestic Purposes From a Minimum of Fuel.

The most complete application of the principle of boxing up heat and applying it at at a moderate degree has been accomplished by Professor Booker T. Washington, of the Tuskegee Colored Institute of Alabama, where there are 650 adults, men and women, to be fed every day. Beginning in a small way a year ago, he has lately constructed a very large oven of pine planks plastered inside on wire lathing, with three-quarters of an inch mortar. It is heated with five or six Bradley & Hubbard lamps. In that oven the tough, stringy Southern beef and mutton are made tender, succulent, appetizing and nutritious. Two hundred and fifty pounds of beef are put in every night and are cooked, without any attention after the oven is charged, with vegetables, oatmeal or cornmeal or other food in proportion. A varied nutrition from the products of the country has been attained. The cost of the oven without lamps was $18. A full description of this apparatus with all the details is about to be printed in the fourth edition of Edward Atkinson's book, 'Science of Nutrition,' published by Damrell & Upham, Boston. Any ordinary mechanic can make an oven.

Railroads of America.

At the beginning of 1892 there were 171,048 miles of railway in this country, which had cost nearly $10,000,000,000, representing the growth of a little over sixty years, and about four-fifths of it that of thirty years. In the year 1890, while our railways covered 162,500 miles, those of all Europe did not reach 145,000 miles. In the single year 1887 nearly as many miles were built here as the entire amount in operation in England and Wales.

The number of passengers carried that year was 492,430,865, and the number of tons of freight, 636,541,617. It is further stated that the average journey per passenger was 24.00 miles, and of freight 119.72 miles; that the average railway travel of the inhabitants was 190 miles each in the year, showing a great use of railroads, while for each inhabitant ten tons of freight were moved about 120 miles. Of the earnings 29.41 per cent. was derived from passengers and 68.23 per cent. from freight traffic, the small remainder being charged otherwise.

The most precious goods are done up in the smallest parcels. The women's bonnets are becoming microscopically small, and meantime the price grows steeper

A NEW SHIP OF STATE.

Then, too, sail on with speedy gait,
Sail on, O sloop, and never wait,
Take them, with all her fears
And all her hopes of future years,
Hanging breathless on thy fate.
We know what master laid thy keel,
What workman wrought thy ribs of steel,
What polished bronze thy sides will plate,
What deep fin keel will keep the straight,
What care was put on mast and ropes.
(The boom came from far "Rockies'" slopes),
What anvils rang, what hammers beat,
In what a forge and what a heat
Were shaped the anchors of thy hopes.
We know why centerboards are past,
Why English cutters may be fast,
And this we know, and will repeat,
That we their cutters always beat.
O, sloop, sail forth, thy race to run.
Sail forth nor fear the starting gun,
Fear not each sudden sound or shock,
'Tis of the wave and not the rock,
'Tis but the flapping of a sail,
And not a rent made by the gale.
Valkyries come, Valkyries go,
The new boat Ailsa is not slow.
Fyfes and Watsons may look wise,
But Herreshoffs will cause surprise.
The Stars and Stripes will proudly float
O'er thee, thou new and speedy boat.
Sail on, nor fail to breast the sea:
Our hearts and hopes are all with thee,
Our hearts, our hopes, our prayers, our tears,
Our faith triumphant o'er our fears,
Are all with thee, are all with thee.

A VENERABLE STUDENT.

Having Fought and Preached, Dr. Stevens Is Studying Law at Seventy.

There are many queer people in attendance at the Kansas State University at Lawrence, Kan., but probably the most interesting of these is a law student who is at least 70 years of age. He is Dr. Martin Van Buren Stevens. This is his second year at the university, and he expects to graduate this spring and become a full fledged lawyer.

The doctor's life has been one of much education. Wilkesbarre, Pa., was the place of his birth. He married at 20 a pretty Pennsylvania German girl. Soon after this he enlisted in Company D, Fifth New Hampshire, and went to the war.

The old gentleman has received the degree of Bachelor of Arts at Oberlin College, in Ohio, and that of Doctor of Medicine at the Adelbert College, at Cleveland, O., 1871. His first wife having died, he married again, this time selecting a Michigan girl, a niece of "Fighting Jim" Richardson. At one time he studied theology and preached for awhile, but gave it up, and studied phrenology under Fowler, of New York.

In a cozy little house on the side of the hill this queer old man lives alone. He keeps everything about the place scrupulously clean. One warm meal a day he considers sufficient; the other two he carries to school with him in a small shoe box. Very little meat passes his lips, in fact, he might almost be called a vegetarian. "People eat entirely too much," he says.

Last year he was somewhat conspicuous on account of the number of badges and emblems he wore on the front of his coat. They were the badges of the G. A. R., Christian Endeavor Society, Phrenological Society, the Y. M. C. A., a medical society and C. L. S. C. Another of his peculiarities is that he carries a watch which is fully four inches in diameter. He winds it with a pair of six-inch nippers.

Dr. Stevens has been in every State and Territory of the United States. Every summer he goes out on a lecturing tour, and tells the people all about phrenology, physiology and physiognomy.

The Dicker Was Too Long.

This tell-tale tale tells of how a Roxbury, Mass., grocer grievously offended a customer; also, of how the customer wounded the sensitive feelings of the grocer and of the circumstances which led to this most unhappy estrangement. The customer was "every inch a lady;" the grocer, though he never wore a stovepipe hat, was in other essentials a gentleman.

They met at the grocer's counter, and this is the conversation that placed between them a great, yawning chasm:

"Are those eggs fresh?" she asked.

"Yes marm," replied the grocer.

"You are quite sure?"

"No doubt about it, marm."

"Now, if there is any doubt about it I shouldn't care to buy any."

"You can depend on it, marm. I wouldn't say they were fresh if they wasn't."

"There were three rotten ones in those I bought the other day."

"You won't find none of these that way."

"Now, you say you are positive these are perfectly fresh?"

"That's what I said, marm."

"You'll take back the bad ones if I find any, won't you?"

"You've got to take them just as they come."

"You'll warrant that there are no bad ones among them, won't you?"

"No, I won't. I warranted them when you came in, but they've grown old since then. You can't expect eggs to last forever, marm, and another thing——"

But the slamming of the door as the lady flounced out lost to the world the verbal pearls that continued to come from between the grocer's celluloid filled teeth.

May Men Shed Tears?

"Sooner mayst thou trust thy purse to a professional pickpocket than give loyal friendship to the man who boasts of eyes to which the heart never mounts in dew. Only when man weeps he should be alone—not because tears are weak, but because they should be sacred."—Bulwer Lytton.

"Tears spring from no weak and woman source, but flow from the loftiest fountain of emotion. Tears befit a warrior when his troops desert him—a patriot when his countrymen rush to their doom—a father when his children rebel against his love."—Lytton.

"There is a sacredness in tears. They are not the mark of weakness, but of power. They speak more eloquently than ten thousand tongues. They are messengers of overwhelming grief, of deep contrition and of unspeakable love."

A PRETTY HOME WEDDING.

A HANDSOME ARLINGTON AVENUE MARRIAGE EVENT.

The Home Beautified With Radiant Faces, Charming Manners, Showers of Congratulations and Fragrant Flowers.

The home of Mrs. Isabelle Ollif on Arlington avenue was Wednesday the scene of one of the prettiest weddings of the season, when her daughter, Miss Sarah Currie, was united in marriage to Percy VanAlstyne, son of Mr. and Mrs. William VanAlstyne. The rooms were beautified with ferns, greens, roses and palms.

An alcove in the rear parlor was profusely decorated with the choicest flowers over which was a bower of greens and ferns. Seated in the front parlor was P. Ludwig Conde and his orchestra, and from six to seven o'clock a delightful programme of classical music was rendered. At seven o'clock while the orchestra was giving a perfect rendition of Mendelsohn's wedding march, the bride, preceded by her sister, Miss Harriett Currie, as maid of honor, entered the parlor leaning on the arm of her mother. At the same time the groom and best man, Clarence VanAlstyne, cousin of the groom, and Rev. C. L. Goodrich entered from a rear room, and the bridal party met at the alcove where the ceremony was performed. The bride was given away by her mother.

The bride was gowned in white brocaded silk, trimmed with point lace and lillies of the valley, and carried a bridal bouquet of white roses. The maid of honor wore a gown of white taffeta silk, and carried a bouquet of pink roses.

A reception room just off the rear parlor was prettily trimmed and Mr. and Mrs. VanAlstyne were showered with the best wishes of all present.

Supper was then served by Max Wiertz in his usual faultless manner.

The decorations of the table were pink and white.

The ushers were J. E. S. Petrie and George Sterling, of Plainfield.

The guests present were: Mr. and Mrs. William Van Alstyne, Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Ollif, Mrs. Becker, William Van Alstyne, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Van Alstyne, Plainfield; Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Van Alstyne, Miss Van Alstyne, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sutherland, Miss Van Alstyne, Chatham Centre, N. Y.; Mrs. F. M. Vreeland, East Millstone; Mr. and Mrs. Chadsey, Miss Parsons, New York city; Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Stillwell, Gravesend, N. Y.; Mr. and Mrs. John Suydam, Miss Suydam, Parkville, N. Y.; Miss Alice Gillen, Mrs. Dolby Gillen, Brooklyn; Mrs. Terville ar, New York; Mr. and Mrs. Rowley, Louis Ollif, Plainfield; Edward Crampton, Miss Emily Crampton, B. Crampton, Brooklyn; Edward Stone, Rochester; Mr. and Mrs. William Dick, New York.

A large number of costly and useful presents were received.

Mr. and Mrs. Van Alstyne will go at once to New York, and take up their residence on One Hundred and Thirty-Fourth street, where the groom has a handsomely furnished home.

To The Mountain by Water.

Harry and Herbert Johnson, of La Grande avenue, and their friend, Charles W. Darlon, left New York on Tuesday morning on their naptha launch, "Plainfield," on their way to Mr. Johnson's cottage on the shores of Lake Champlain. Yesterday they arrived in Albany at four o'clock p. m., and reported having had a glorious time. This is not their first long trip, as they have made the journey several times before.

Look Out for the Thieves.

Chief Grant has received word from Charles P. Bently that two new bicycles were stolen from his store, 351 Main street, East Orange, between the 25th. and 26th. of June. One was a Spalding, the other a Credenda, also two lamps. The chief also received a postal from Chief of Police Edward B. Kelly of Summit, describing a bay mare, and wagon which was stolen from that place June 21st. A reward of $50 is offered for the recovery of the latter.

A Valuable Gift.

The Free Public Library has received from James E. Martine a very valuable map of the United States. It is entitled "Map of the United States and Territories, with adjacent parts of Canada and Mexico, etc., showing the extent of public surveys, Indian and military reservations, etc., compiled under the Hon. Thomas H. Carter, 1892." It may be seen upon application.

A Good Suggestion.

It has been suggested that, although the fire department cannot parade the engine and trucks in service, yet the silver hose carriage of the Alert Hose Co. and the old hook and ladder truck could easily be brought into line.

CHAPEL ATHLETES TO MEET.

Young Men of Hope and Monroe Avenue Will Contest in Field Sports.

The Young Men's League of Hope Chapel, and the Young Men's Association of Monroe Avenue chapel are making arrangements for an outdoor athletic tournment to be held Saturday morning, August 31. The two committees met Monday night and decided on the following events.

The tie will be played off Saturday morning July 13, and promises to be an exciting game.

WATER OF ORGANIC PURITY.

That Is the Kind That Plainfielders Are Imbibing.

During the visit of Allen Hazen to this city on June 4th he took back to Boston with him samples of well water and city water from the house of Councilman S. A. Ginna, which underwent a sanitary analyses. The examination was made June 5th, with the following results in parts of 100,000:

	Well water.	City Water.
Turbidity	none	none
Sediment	none	none
Color	.00	.00
Odor	none	none
Free Amonia	.0000	.0000
Albuminoid Amonia	.0000	.0000
Nitrogen as Nitrates	.1580	.1600
Nitrogen as Nitrites	.0000	.0000
Oxygen Consumed	.0000	.0000
Chlorine	.3700	.3300
Iron	.0000	.0000
Hardness	12.	10.

Mr. Hazen makes the following comment on the examination:

Both of the samples, the well water as well as the city water, are waters of great organic purity, and you are to be congratulated upon having so good a supply, and you need have no anxiety whatever as to their wholesomeness. The well water differs but slightly in its composition from the city water. It is slightly harder, but this is of no significance and is not in any way injurious to health.

WEDDED AT ST. MARY'S

A Happy Nuptial Event of Two Popular Young People.

Wednesday afternoon, at 4 o'clock in St. Mary's church, Miss Nellie Moran of 655 West Fourth street, and Thomas J. Comerford, of 209 Spooner avenue, were joined in wedlock by Father Smyth. An abundant shower of rice was sent after them as they left the church and drove to the home of the father of the bride, Patrick Moran, of 655 West Fourth street, where in the evening, about sixty of the numerous friends of the bride and groom were received and entertained. Eugene O'Reilly furnished the music.

The bridesmaid was May Geunder, and the best man was J. Comerford of Roanoake, Va. brother of the groom.

The bride's own beauty was set off by a changing costume of old rose silk, trimmed with white ribbons and lace. The bridesmaid also looked very pretty in lavender silk trimmed with ribbons of the same color and white lace.

BOYS WHO ARE FAST RIDERS.

GOOD TIME MADE AT THE CRESCENT OVAL YESTERDAY.

The Events Were All Contested With Much Spirit—Who the Entries and Winners Were—Details.

It is surprising what the boys can do sometimes, and the time in some of the events at the race meet on the Crescent Oval yesterday afternoon was almost phenomenal, considering that all the contestants were under sixteen years of age.

The first event was a handicap one-hundred-yards dash. The starters were: Roy Cox, 6 yards; Morris Dumont, 2 yards; H. Finch, scratch; Wallace Beveridge, scratch.

Finch left Beveridge and soon overhauled Dumont and Cox, and won by two yards. Dumont was second by a yard with Beveridge third. Time, 11¼ seconds.

The starters in the quarter-mile bicycle race which came next were: George Coard, Carroll Runyon, Harry Cuming.

The three hung together for about half the distance, when Coard started out, followed closely by Runyon, who passed him on the curve and crossed the tape awinner by a length. Coard took second by two lengths. The time was 35¾ seconds.

The handicap two hundred and twenty-yards dash brought out three runners: Morris Dumont, 3 yards; H. Finch, 1 yard; Wallace Beveridge, scratch.

Finch had this run all his own way and won without trouble by two yards. Dumont took second by a like distance. The time for this event was 25 seconds.

The last event of the day was a one-mile handicap. The starters were: Ray Cox, 200 yards; William Roome, 150 yards; William Wadsworth, 100 yards; David Pond, 100 yards; Harry Lister, 25 yards; Irving Smith, 25 yards; Carroll Runyon, scratch; Geo. Coard, scratch; Harry Cuming, scratch.

Lister and Smith did not want their handicap but started with the scratch men. Coard set the pace for the back men on the first lap and took them right through. Runyon took them for the next lap and overhauled Roome first and then Cox, Wadsworth and Pond. Runyon's pace was a hot one and Lister fell behind. Coard and Runyon led out together on the last lap and had the race all their own way. Coard won by two lengths with Runyon second by three. Pond made a very pretty finish and, with Wadsworth at his back wheel, just passed Cuming on the home stretch, taking third place with Wadsworth fourth. The time was 2:36¾ and was a creditable performance as it was made by a scratch man.

Handsome silver and bronze medals were given to the first and second respectively. The judges were Rufus Finch, Charles Morse and Geo. Smith. Messrs. Havens, Hillman and Leonard acted as timers.

To end the afternoon's sport a scratch race was ridden. The starters were: Ray Cox, Robert Tilney, Howard Roome, David Pond and Will Roome. William McCutchen acted as pacemaker. Pond won after a splendid spurt, with Tilney close behind. Cox was a bad third. No time was taken.

PRETTY BOOTHS, PRETTY GIRLS

Festival for the Benefit of the Children's Home.

The children in the neighborhood of Jackson avenue, near Somerset street, conducted a most successful festival on the lawn of Mr. and Mrs. S. VanFleet's residence on Jackson avenue Wednesday afternoon and evening.

The lawn was made attractive by the use of pretty booths and a profusion of flowers that were well arranged.

The little girls worked earnestly for the success that crowned their efforts, and many friends stopped to assist them. The object, a most worthy one, was for the benefit of the Children's Home, and the money received will make some of the inmates happy in more ways than one.

The affair was in charge of Clara VanFleet and Grace Emmons, who had planned it. Those who assisted were: Cake booth, Emma Line; candy booth, Ida Fountain; pop-corn booth, Clara Martin; waitresses, Mary Woolston, Clyde Slater, Hazel Martin, Hattie Messerschmidt, Sadie Fountain; lemonade booth, Bessie Martin. Tickets were received by Willard Martin.

Slow People in Rahway.

The Rahway Electric Light Company will not, from present indications, be able to fulfil its contract with the city and begin lighting the streets by July 1. The erection of the poles, it is said, cannot be finished by that time. It also looks as if the railroad to Woodkridge and Sewaren will not be completed and in operation this summer. The Rahway electric road was to be extended to Sewaren by July 15, but there is not the slightest indication now of the work's being begun. It will take a month to finish the road.

HYDROPHOBIA AFFLICTED HORSE

Necessary to Kill the Animal Because of His Viciness.

A very valuable horse belonging to the Ice and Cold Storage Company, was killed Thursday, owing to a bad attack of hydrophobia. Symptoms of the disease were noticed yesterday while he was being driven with his mate to an ice wagon.

He became so violent that it was found necessary to shoot the animal, which was done by Lewis Wyckoff.

Dr. F. C. Herbert was in attendance, and did all he could to save the animal, but to no purpose.

The horse was valued at about $300.

Committee Meetings.

The executive committee of the Independence Day celebration will meet tonight in the Alert Hose Company's parlors. The parade committee will meet in the rooms of the Zephyr Hook and Ladder Company, tonight, to finally decide upon the route of the parade and the order of the floats and wagons.

Freight Wagon Upsets.

While Alvin Horgland was loading freight on his wagon near the freight house yesterday afternoon, the wagon, which was standing too near the hill that runs down to Park avenue, was over balanced and in consequence upset. All the goods were thrown out, but there was no damage as Mr. Hoagland caught the horse by the bridle before he started to run away.

No One From Union County.

H. N. Spencer was re-elected a member of the executive committee from Somerset county at the meeting of the State Republican League held at Trenton Wednesday. There was a large representation from all parts of the State, but strange to say there was not even one representative from Union county. There were forty-two clubs from Hudson county represented and they intend making a strong fight for the nomination of Col. Tuffey for Governor.

Picnic and Picture.

A stageload of jolly little people from the Reform Hall sewing school journeyed to French's picnic grounds on Johnston's drive Wednesday morning, and spent the day there enjoying themselves as only those of that age can. The trip was made in one of George Conover's carryalls, who furnished it gratuitously. In the afternoon the party assumed their prettiest smile while a photographer took a group picture. Miss Pessinger, superintendent of the school, chaperoned the party.

New Quarters Secured.

The fire that partially destroyed the Liberty building in New York, yesterday, damaged very slightly the property of the Columbia Telephone Manufacturing Company, of which W. M. Miner, of East Sixth street, is chief electrician, the building was rendered unsafe however, but through the energy of Mr. Miner, new quarters were secured by noon and the work of removing at once began. The company will now occupy part of the building at the corner of Washington and Cedar streets.

THE IDEAL OF WOMANHOOD.

MISS CASEY'S VALEDICTORY AT THE PAROCHIAL SCHOOL.

Father Murphy Advises the Scholars in an Admirable Address—Names of Those Receiving Honorable Mention

A good entertainment does not always secure a large audience, but the closing exercises of St. Mary's Parochial School, last Friday, filled the school hall to overflowing with an enthusiastic audience. The exercises were even better than Thursday night, if such a thing were possible, and all were sorry when the curtain fell on the final tableaux.

The programme opened with a selection, Cheerfulness," by a chorus of girls dressed in white. Then followed a selection "Ye Banks and Braes O'Bonnie Doan" a selection by a double quartette composed of the following: Misses C. Cooley and L. Flanagan, sopranos; Misses C. Flynn and A. McIntyre, tenors; Misses M. Smith and E. Kelly, altos; Misses E. Day and K. Walsh, bases. "Come Where the Cowslip Bloweth" was next rendered by the chorus, after which Whittier's well-known "Barbara Frietchie" was given most charmingly by the girls of the senior classes as a part recitation and part song. Miss E. Day next recited "The Legend of Bregenz" in a manner that brought forth great applause. Then came one of the features of the evening, the Roman sabre drill arranged by Mme. Menzelli. It was something entirely novel, but proved most successful. The drilling was done by a number of uniformed young men with swords and shields assisted by a bevey of girls dressed to represent Peace and Victory. Many most beautiful tableaux were the result. A most enjoyable duet, "Pizzicati," was next given by Miss K. Quinn, piano, and Miss A. Quinn, violin.

The attention of all was held by the operetta "Queen Flora's Day Dreams" in which the characters were, Queen Flora, Miss Anna Daley; Stella, Miss Catharine Roach; Bumble Bee, John Madden; Bull-Frog, Charles McCann; besides numberless faries, daisies, roses, butterflies and frogs. Many pretty dances were introduced while the bullfrog dance, led by Charles McCann, sent the audience into roars of laughter. Several beautiful tableaux ended the operetta, which was photographed by G. Thorn.

The next time the curtain rose it showed the three graduates, Miss Elizabeth Casey, Miss Catherine Flynn, and Miss Catherine Cooley, seated in front with the members of the senior classes behind them.

Father Smyth then came forward and presented each of the graduating young women with a diploma and a gold medal. Father Murphy next announced the following honorable mentions:—Senior Class, Mary Smith, Anna O'Keefe, and Edward Flynn.

First preparatory class—Joseph Murphy, Elizabeth Rafferty, and Elizabeth Flanagan.

Second preparatory class—Catherine O'Keefe, Arwea Ryan, and Joseph Walsh.

Second junior class—Mary Higgins, Loretto Flanagan, and Catharine Muldowney.

The Old Testament begins with the mournful story of a woman who distrusted God, disobeyed, fell and dragged down with her the whole of our race. The New Testament begins with the history of a woman who trusted God and gave herself up to His Holy will in loving obedience, and rose into His light, and with her lifted up our whole race. Against the sad story of Eve is set the joyful story of Mary. Both parts of the Sacred Scriptures begin with a woman. The first is the sad story of a fall; how this world of ours went wrong; and the heart that drank in the poison which poisoned our whole race was the heart of a woman. The second tells the glorious story of the rising, of the redemption and restoration, and here, too, the lowly and loving heart which received the joyful word of redemption and renewed the world was the heart of a woman. Hence, according to the designs of Divine Providence, woman was destined to exert a lasting influence in the world. Whether that influence was to be a baneful or a beneficial one, depended on the world at large and on woman in particular. In the early ages of the world, woman was treated as the slave of man; she was regarded as a being of an inferior order. The Hindoos pronounced her an afterthought of the Deity and the mother of all evil. The historic accounts of old pagan rites give us an idea of the humiliation and degradation of woman in ancient times. The contemptuous opinion entertained of women in the past has found expression not only in literature but also in unjust laws and customs. In marriage she has been a serf, in public instruction she was ignored as though she did not exist. She was the equal of man only when punishment and payment of taxes were in question. In past ages Shakespeare wrote two mottoes, one contradicting the other; the first was an old adage, believed in by the world and quoted generally. "Frailty, they name is woman," and underneath it and unlike it was the other. "The Earth waits for her Queen;" the first described woman as she has been understood in the past, as she has masqueraded in history and as she has, in a certain sense, existed. The other prophesied of that grander type of woman, towards which the whole sex is moving. This grander type of womanhood was shown to the world by God, Himself. For it was not till the dawn of Christianity that woman was exhibited in her true light, or permitted to occupy her proper sphere in the world. Christianity proved that woman, instead of being the "Mother of evil," could and should be the "Mother of good," a "ministering angel" in the world, the queen for whom the earth was waiting. Christianity, by showing forth the true part that woman performed in the redemption of the world, by placing Mary the Madonna in the exalted position which is justly hers, has shown the world that the power and influence of woman, for good, is of the greatest importance. The chivalry of the middle ages, which made of woman something sacred, was but the result of the church's labor in making the world realize the true worth and influence of woman. Woman can make her influence felt in various ways, and in various spheres. She can exact of the world a respect and a deference which none other on earth can exact. She can repress the roughness of human nature, she can soothe and mollify the more violent passions of man, she can make the world better by exerting her influence in the home, in the family and through them over the whole world. Of late it seems to be the fashion among women to appear as much like men as possible; but such is not in accordance with the true ideals of the grace and beauty of womanly nature. It is the true and established sphere of women to influence man and guide him to look to higher ideals and more worthy desires. Many men of rare promise, whose early manhood has glowed with high ambitions, have been made petty and ignoble by their female companions; these through physical weakness, mental paverty and lowness of moral tone, have ruined the progress of their sons, brothers or husbands by lowering their ideals. For this reason women should devote their faculties to the cultivation of all the nobler virtues so as to fit themselves for the state of life in which Providence has placed them. When woman does this; when she fulfils the noble, the exalted destiny that God has marked out for her, when she can say that she has left the world gentler, better than she found it, then she has approached nearer to the true ideal of womanhood. Mary the Madonna shines as a star through the mist of ages, as the highest type of womanhood. Yet it was by devoting herself to the cultivation of the domestic virtues, by her true womanliness, that she reached that exalted position. She is our ideal, and if we, the women of the present age, wish to approach her standard, then we must follow in her steps. Not by trying to occupy the place in the social or political order, destined only for men, will women reach that standard, but by cultivating like Mary the virtues that render women a mighty power on earth.

Father Murphy next made a short address. He said in part:

To instill a noble sentiment into the heart is of far greater value than the teaching of the human mind. This is only brought about by religion. Our system of education embraces the religious and natural sciences. Education means to draw out and to train up, and it must train every faculty. Man is composed of two elements, the material and the spiritual, and the last is the most important. Our system of education develops the spiritual as well as the material, it satisfies the noble ambitions of the soul as well as the ambitions of the mind. An education that does not develop both is not a perfect education. I dot need to refute the calumny that our church favors ignorance. History is my witness. All the learning of the middle ages was stored up by the church to be given out as man should wish. The libraries and art galleries of the Vatican are thrown open today to the students of all religions, and everything is done for the advancement of learning and science.

Let us always go forward, let our motto be "Excelsior." The barbarian is happy in his way, but where is the Christian soul that would return to barbarity. The aim of the Catholic education is to advance, but let us remember the God who made us and from whom all blessings flow.

After a vocal solo, "We Now Must Part," by Miss Catherine Cooley, the exercises closed with a tableau composed of the graduates and the girls of the senior classes.

STANDS WHERE HE STOOD.

MR. HUMBLE STILL OPPOSES WATCHUNG AVENUE EXTENSION.

Ordinance Looking Towards the Opening of Duer Street Is Laid on the Table—Other Borough Council Business.

An adjourned meeting of the North Plainfield Council was held last Friday, all the members being present except Mr. Schutt.

A communication was received from Secretary A. E. Kenney, of the Fourth of July Executive Committee inviting the Mayor and Council to review the parade. It was unanimously accepted.

W. J. Buttfield stated in a communication that he had laid a stone walk on the northwest side of Rockview avenue between Magnolia and West End avenues, and he asked that the adjoining property owners be requested to make their walks conform with the ordinance. It was referred to the Street Committee.

A small number of bills were presented and later ordered paid.

Mr. Smith stated that he had seen the surveyor in regard to the grade on Harrison street and as soon as he obtained it they would then be ready to receive bids. He also said that the work on Somerset street was finished, as was also Greenbrook road, and that today the Street Commissioner would commence repairing Washington avenue, Grove street and several cross streets. The report was received and filed.

The Mayor then stated the object of the meeting was the personal objection of J. P. Humble to the opening of Watchung avenue. Mr. Humble was given an opportunity to state his objections, but he said that he had nothing further to say than that stated in the letter which he sent to the Council.

The Mayor said that the next thing to do was to select a person to treat with the property owners along said proposed new avenue, to see what property can be purchased for, and report to Council. He then appointed Dr. Justus H. Cooley.

Mr. Lounsbury offered a resolution that Duer street be opened, and that the Clerk give the proper notice for all objectors to file their statements at the Council rooms on July 17th, before six o'clock in the evening.

Mr. Valiant thought that the opening of Watchung avenue would be the greatest improvement the borough had ever known, and did not favor the opening of Duer street. He amended the resolution, so to have it lay on the table. The amendment was carried, Mr Lounsbury alone voting against it.

Mr. Smith presented a resolution that the action of the Mayor and Council in drawing $98 in favor of Collector Spencer be ratified. It was carried.

A resolution by Mr. Lounsbury, that Corporation Counsel C. A. Reed draw up an ordinance regulating the size tires to be used on wagons and heavy trucks, was carried.

The Mayor then appointed J. J. Stahl assistant chief of Fire Department and Mr. Peck offered a resolution that the name be confirmed, which was carried. Mr. Valiant offered a similar resolution in regard to Dr. Cooley. That was also adopted.

Mr Smith reported that several weeks ago notice had been served on certain property owners to regard to the laying of sidewalk in front of their property, and that all had complied except one or two and they were preparing to follow out instructions, but one citizen had been complained of because he had not complied. He had seen him and explained wherein he had not complied. Mr. Smith wanted to know if he should have the work done.

The Mayor thought it would be best to give the thirty days notice and then if it was not done, have the Council by resolution authorize Mr. Smith to have it done. Council then ajourned.

THE KING'S DAUGHTERS.

Gold Rule Circle Conduct a Profitable Lawn Festival.

Pretty waitresses and good things to eat made the lawn festival of the Golden Rule Circle of King's Daughters, held yesterday afternoon and evening, at 65 Grandview avenue, a great success financially as well as socially. The ice-cream department was carefully managed by Miss Cora VanArsdale, president of the circle, assisted by the Misses Mabel Stevens, Lucetta Clark, Flossie Conroy and Eva Dorringer. The cake table was under the efficient control of Miss Emma Stevens. Lemonade was furnished to the thirsty by Miss May Conroy, while behind a table prettily decorated with pink, the Misses Lydia Pangborn, Bertha Stevens and Lizzie Hoagland, sold candy to the ready purchasers. The popcorn table was cared for by Miss Mary Hoagland.

The entire stock was sold out, and the managers of the festival expect great returns from the sale of tickets. The festival was held for the benefit of the city nurse.

DYNAMITE AND A HAIRPIN.

A BOY LOSES HIS HAND BY THE COMBINATION.

Clarkson Palmer, the twelve-year-old son of Mrs. Forrester, of 1113 West Third street, was the victim of a terrible accident Friday, between eight and nine o'clock, when a dynamite cartridge exploded in his left hand, completely shattering that member.

Young Palmer has been working for sometime with Michael Udahl, grading streets in the west end near the Irving School. It often became necessary for Mr. Udahl to use dynamite cartridges in removing old stumps of trees and large stones in properly grading the streets, and he always had a supply in his tool chest.

Last night when Palmer stopped work he saw the cartridges in the chest, picked three out and took them home with him. For a few nights past he had been helping a neighbor, Mr. Cashon, to move, but last night he remained at home. A little later his step-father, Charles Forrester, was sent for to help move a stove.

In the hall Palmer, his sister and two smaller brothers were seated. His sister noticed that Clarkson had a cartridge in his hand, but thinking it was an old one paid no particular attention, as he sat there picking at it with a hairpin. They were all close to each other, when without any warning the three cartridges exploded, tne one he was picking at effected the others in exploding.

Mrs. Palmer heard the terrific noise and almost fainted, while the sister and two brothers were horrified. The injured boy was frightened beyond description.

Those near him were spattered with blood as was also the walls a distance of some four feet from where he was seated.

He was taken at once to Muhlenburg Hospital, and Drs. Long and Boone were called. They found that the boy's hand was so badly injured that he will have to lose it, and the pieces of flesh and bone left were amputated near the wrist.

Today young Palmer is getting along as well as can be expected and it is not thought that he will be confined to the hospital more than a few days.

That the explosion did not kill those in the group is a mystery.

WHERE THE CYCLIST COMES IN.

Common Council of Cyclists is Not Improbable, and Then Look Out.

To The Editor of The Daily Press:—

Will you allow me a few remarks suggested by City Judge Coddington's manifesto against the cyclist printed last night, telling of the dreadful peril of the man who dares to wheel after July 5th. I don't wish to refer to the so-called bicycle ordinance because, of course, all such measures are absurb.

While they are about it, too, would it not be well to give us a tip as to how the so-called bicycle ordinance now stands? Some say that a fine for having one's light go out is $10 others say $5 others $2 and even $1. Ditto concerning sidewalk riding when the streets are absolutely impassable.

I should not mind paying one or two dollars once in a while provided the policemen were polite about it, but five or ten is a trifle too strong, and would make one feel almost like a wrong-doer.

If the Common Council must amuse itself monkeying with bicycles, why does it not enact an ordinance to send up the idiots who throw bottles and tacks in the public streets, or who, without looking where they are going cross at points other than corners, and to electrocute the careless children permitted to run wild in the middle of the thoroughfares? If a cyclist knowing his business is not to be allowed to use the sidewalks when it is utterly impossible for him to ride anywhere else, it would seem only fair that the large percentage of brainless pedestrians who do not know how to take care of themselves, should be kept from the roadways.

It will be well for the Council to consider that in a very short time the wheelmen will be the majority everywhere and that it will soon be a matter of duty to look after the cyclist first and be very civil about election time. Some day we will elect a Council of wheelmen, and have some light upon the subject.

Meanwhile we must just whoop it up till July 5th, and then lay low.

L. A. W. 40,338.

Take It Away.

The large tool chest on Watchung avenue betweeu Second street and North avenue, belonging to Honan & Son, the sewer contractors, is becoming an eyesore to the residents in the neighborhood. It should be removed, since the sewer on that thoroughfare has been completed for over a week.

ACTED OUT ADVERTISEMENTS

NEW FORM OF ENTERTAINMENT GIVEN BY THE METHODISTS.

The Last Sociable of the Season Given in the Front Street Church Last Night—Happy Affair All Around.

The last, but by no means the least, of the spring sociables of the Epworth League of the First Methodist Episcopal church was held in Vincent chapel last Friday, and thoroughly enjoyed by a goodly number of members and friends.

The programme opened with a Rose Drill by Miss Anna Teale, after which the audience was favored with a selection, "'Blige the Lady," by Plainfield's only George O. Stevens, the applause for which would not cease until he sang another selection. A novel form of entertainment was then tried. Different advertisements were represented and the audience guessed what they were. Miss C. Florence Barnes first represented the well-known picture of "Chocolate Menier." Wilbur F. Cornwell made a good chef in representing Franco American soups." Miss Teale next gave a selection, "Mohameden Prayer," a pantomime of easter temple service. Miss Lucie Davis next came on the platform in the well-known costume of the "Baker's Chocolate" girl. A table was brought up, and Raymond A. McGee, disguised as a baby with long dress, sat down to the table and tried to eat a pretended pancake. The cake could not be cut, so he attempted to take it whole and then rushed from the platform, while everyone cried "Hecker's Buckwheat;" the toughness was not the cause of the correct guess though. Miss Teale next faced the audience with a pantomime hymn, "Nearer My God to Thee," which was sung by Miss Madge Barnes. The effect was very pretty.

After a little interval for conversation, Miss Grace E. Overton gave the recitation "Old Ace," in her usual excellent manner, holding the close attention of all through the piece.

After the programme was completed, lemonade and cake were served while conversation took possession of the room. The sociable was arranged by the literary and social committees of the Epworth League of which David Dunavan and Miss Elsie Horne are respectively chairmen.

The refreshments were under the special charge of Miss Sharp, Miss Jackson, Miss Roberts and Miss Van-Middlesworth.

NORTH PLAINFIELD CENSUS.

FIGURES OF BOTH THE BOROUGH AND TOWNSHIP.

The Township Has Fallen Off and the Borough Shows an Increase—Details of the Enumeration.

Assessor Cooley completed the census of the North Plainfield borough and township Friday. This is the first time that the borough and township have been taken separately, so that the gain in each cannot be given, but Assessor Cooley says that the township has lost, if anything, and that would make the total gain of 648 come upon the borough. The total inhabitants in borough and township was, in 1890, 4,231, and this year it is 4,879. The detailed report of the enumeration is as follows:

	BOROUGH.	TOWNSHIP.

A MODEL COTTAGE FOR $550.

It is one of the primary principles of political economy that the happiness and prosperity of a country is gained by the general thrift of the inhabitants, and not by the abundance of the few. That would be the model community in which each head of the family owned, in the derisive words of the British statesman, "An acre and a cow," even if not a single individual had much greater possession than that.

"Landlordism" is responsible for much of the misery which exists in cities. Happily there is a growing disposition in this country for wage earners to become householders. It is not difficult for the laboring man and the small artisan to render themselves independent of landlords. The suburbs of our cities have abundant room for growth, and the land is not all in the possession of a few families. Every day it is proven possible for a man with shrewd management, prudence and a little self-denial to build and own a house for himself, with scarcely more of a weekly outlay than he was called upon to expend in rent. A dollar or two more a month for a few years is not difficult to manage, when it means in the end such a neat and attractive home as is pictured herewith, instead of a mere memory of shelter and fat profits in the pocket of a landlord.

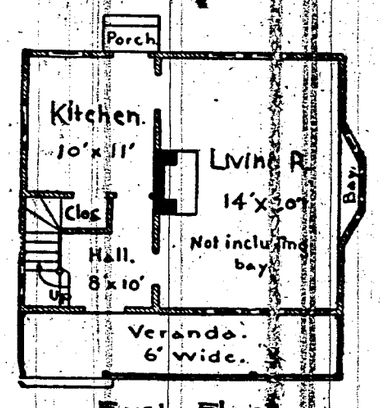
This little cottage, which is capable of various modifications to suit individual tastes, can be built, according to the most careful and reliable estimates, for $550. Its width, including bay, is 27 feet; depth, including veranda, 27 feet; height of first story, 8 feet 6 inches; second story, 8 feet.



Exterior materials: Foundations, posts or piers; first story, clapboards; bay-window, gables, dormers and roofs, shingles.

Colors: Body, all clapboard and shingles of bay window, terra cotta; trim, Pompeiian red; shingles in gables and sides of dormers treated with burnt sienna and oil; roof, shingles dark red; sashes, bronze green; blinds, terra cotta; veranda floor and ceilings, oiled.

The principal rooms and their sizes, closets, etc., are shown by the floor plans. Open fireplace in the living room and cheerful bay window. Front door glazed handsomely. A circular cellar may be added in which vegetables may not freeze. The living room may be divided in half with a smaller bay window in the front room, and the back used as a dining-room, with open fireplace, which heats upstairs, economizing the expenditure of the coal. A few extra dollars will build a one-story extension at the rear, used as a storehouse or woodshed, and in the summer as a laundry when the heat of the kitchen range would be oppressive.

The finished neatness of this design, its economical arrangement of rooms and the low cost for which it can be built, appeals directly to the mechanic and the laboring man. Nor is it a hard matter to figure how so small a sum be made to represent a weekly or monthly payment scarcely in excess of the rent of a room or two in the crowded city tenement.

An Up-to-Date Donation Party.

The Rochester Herald says the Rev. A. W. Hayes of Asbury Methodist Church, is the happy owner of a fine and new bicycle. It was presented to him the other night by the members of the church. The young people and many of the older members of the congregation assembled in the church parlors to participate in a "poor man's social," and incidentally the wheel was pushed out from behind the curtains and given to Mr. Hayes.

QUEEN ONLY IN NAME

THE GOOD VICTORIA LIVES MOSTLY IN SECLUSION.

She is Seventy-six and the Climate of England is Conducive to Rheumatic Pains. That the Prince of Wales May Become Regent is a Future Possibility.

For many years Victoria has ceased to be more than a name and a memory to the great mass of her people. Since the death of her beloved friend and servant, Beaconsfield, she has taken little or no interest in public affairs. The jubilee year, indeed, did rouse her to some little social activity, and with it there came something like a renaissance of the old royalist spirit in Great Britain. But that was soon followed by even closer seclusion and a still further weakening of the thread that binds the personality of the sovereign to the lives of the people.

To-day the Queen is almost an invalid. Her rheumatism has grown upon her to such a degree as to render a residence in the wet, foggy and changeable climate of England extremely undesirable. She longs constantly for Italy, it is said, where she has passed so many months of peace and comfort of late years. She cannot walk at all except with the support of a cane and an attendant, and in England she cannot venture out during the late autumn, the winter and the spring months.

This confinement is extremely wearisome and depressing to the Queen. She no longer attempts to keep in touch with the affairs of state. She does not even dictate the responses to personal letters, which until recently she has always done. Her secretaries write all her letters for her, except those to her immediate family, which are written by Princess Beatrice.

Loved and revered in her own immediate circle, gentle and considerate always to those about her, Victoria has drifted apart from the ideas, the aspirations and endeavors of her people and practically belongs to a past generation. The political and social movements that are dominant forces in the England of to-day neither disturb nor interest her. Her days are given up to her family and to the three delights of an old woman's life—religion, match making and the society of her grandchildren. Her appearances at the royal social functions are now increasingly rare and are made great state occasions.

Yet withal, the abdication of the Queen is extremely improbable. It would be without precedent, and, as far as possible, the English do nothing of this character without precedent. James II. did, indeed, abandon the crown to William of Orange, but from the monarch's point of view it was a case of exile and flight from armed rebellion rather than of abdication. The mad and mischievous old king, George III., yielded the reins of power to the regency of his infamous and worthless son, but that was a case of absolute necessity, and the king was still king in name.

There yet remains in England a peculiar and intense veneration for the monarchy, which an abdication would tend to greatly shock and disturb. Although in the British theory of government the monarchy is purely the creature of Parliament, it is not so in the minds and hearts of the people.

Every foot of land surrounding the home of Queen Victoria is historic. At the foot of the hill lies the village where Shakespeare first met Mistress Davenant and where the characters of Mistress Page and Mistress Ford, of Justice Shallow and Master Slender, of Fenton and Sweet Anne Page, took shape in the poet's brain. Back of the castle, with its miles of open glade and dense woodland stretches the historic park where Falstaff was burned by the fairies—the hunting ground of many generations of English kings, and still the source of the venison that furnishes the royal table. A few miles below the park the Thames divides at Magna Charta Island, and there you may stand upon the very spot where King John signed the first declaration of independence, and under the very tree which tradition says is a scion of the oak about which the barons were gathered. Across the river from the castle is Eton, the mother of many generations of illustrious Englishmen, her walls scarred with immortal names, carved by boyish hands for centuries—Eton, upon whose playground Wellington testified that he got the training which enabled him to beat Napoleon at last.

Nor is Windsor itself less striking and significant than its surroundings. The great gray towers which have seen many a stubborn siege guard a treasure of surpassing excellence and beauty. From the Waterloo room, with its great battle painting and historic trophies, to the old oak paneled banqueting hall, with the arms of every knight of the Garter, from King Edward's time down to the present, hung upon its walls; from the old bed chambers, with their quaint furniture and their portraits of Stuart, princes and fine court ladies, by Lely and Kneller, to the splendid chapel of St. George, with its noble monuments, Windsor Castle, more than any other spot, except Westminster Abbey, embodies the national spirit of the English people.

Of course, the Queen occupies only a comparatively small portion of the present castle herself. Her private apartments are in a wing, the approaches to which are guarded by soldiers, even when her Majesty is not in the residence.

The Queen seldom enters the state apartments now. When she receives the Prime Minister or any member of the royal family it is in her own room. One of the very few occasions when the grand staircase has been used of recent years was when Gen. Grant and Mrs. Grant visited the Queen at Windsor, and her Majesty received them at the head of the staircase. All presentations now are during the limited season when the Queen is at Buckingham Palace.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destored forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness, caused by catarrh, that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Last June Dick Crawford brought his twelve-months-old child, suffering from infantile diarrhœa, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and had always been sickly. I gave it the usual treatment in such cases but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25 cent size had been used a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared, and its father and myself believe the child's life was saved by this remedy. J. T. Marlow, M. D., Tamaroa, Ill. SPARKS FILLED THE AIR.

WHILE A GREAT CROWD FILLED MARTINE'S COMMON.

"Siss boom-ah" said the rockets, and "Oh-ah" said the crowd that completely filled Martine's common and the adjoining streets, for the public knew that something good was in store and turned out accordingly. If the committee had applied to Farmer Dunn himself for a night made to order, they could not have secured a better one. There was a little too much wind, perhaps, but that did no harm. And the fireworks—the applause of the immense audience told what was thought of them better than words could do, for it was the best display Plainfield ever witnessed, and that is saying a good deal.

Early in the afternoon the army of visitors poured into Plainfield, on foot, on horseback, in carriages, or riding wheels, while the trains deposited their loads all the early part of the evening. But at about seven o'clock they came the thickest, and from that time until long after eight a steady stream of visitors wended their way up Park avenue and all the streets leading to the common. Farmers from Somerset county mixed with the 400 from Westfield, for it was a truly democratic throng, and no one was any better than the rest. Every little hamlet within ten miles sent its delegation, while the larger towns sent armies of sightseers. The grand-stand near Park avenue furnished the only seats besides Mother Earth and the barb-wire fences, and it was well packed before the display had even begun. On a smaller stand, nearby, Guttman's band rendered sweet music to the pleasure of those that could hear, for the hum of the multitude, especially at some display, drowned all other sounds.

A loud saluting rocket began the pyrotechnics, another followed and then the enjoyment commenced. A set piece called the "True Lover's Knot" was the first, and then followed other set pieces, rockets, bombs and mines in quick succession. The serpents and the golden ram from the rockets seemed to please the audience especially. A little excitement was caused by the short-stick rockets which had the appearance of being tipsy, for they flew off in the most unlooked for directions, plowing through the crowd or dashing among the set pieces in a most eccentric manner, but no serious accidents took place from their wildness beyond badly frightening those in its path. The bombs were very pretty with their showers of colored stars, while the wheels spun around and sent off their showers of sparks in a most satisfactory manner. One of the prettiest pieces was a statue of Washington over which was a semi-circle of colored stars. This evoked loud applause while a number of young men gave the well-known cry of "Who was George Washington, etc." An "Eccentric Bouquet" and a "Double Revolving Kaleidoscope" were the next two important pieces. A portrait of Abraham Lincoln in colored lights was a fairly good likeness and was easily recognized. This called for loud applause. The last of the set pieces was the Niagara Falls of fire. It was sixty feet long and made a very pretty effect.

Many in the crowd thought that this concluded the display and started to leave, but suddenly the air was filled with fire and about 1,500 rockets shot into space with a loud roar. A loud bang and nothing could be seen except the brilliant colored stars. The suddenness with which they began rather startled the throng, many thinking that it was an explosion. A grand exhibition of Roman candle batteries ended the pyrotechnic exhibit.

In the later part of the evening, one of the bombs fell without exploding. Edward W. Vail, of 407 Watchung avenue, was directly in its path, when right beside him it went off with a loud report sending its shower of colored fire into the crowd. Vail received the greater part of it on the arm, while his face, neck and leg were badly burned, when to make matters worse in stepping back he sat down on a wheel and fell through the wheel badly wrecking it. This morning, he pluckily resumed his duties as head clerk in Councilman V. L. Frazee's grocery store. Although several were slightly burned by flying fire, there were no other serious injuries.

Coming home after everything was over was a rather difficult job. Most of the immense throng tried to go down Park avenue all at once where scores of cyclists and carriages tried to escape from the general mixup. William H. Brokaw, the builder, of West Front street, was among the jam of vehicles, and in attempting to get out had his back wheel colide with that of another carriage. Brokaw's wheel was completely smashed. After a time the crowd thined out and the common quieted down to its usual silence.

The fireworks were furnished by DeHart, of New Brunswick, who, although his regular occupation is carpentering, he is a great enthusiast in the manufacture of pyrotechnics. Those given last evening were manufactured by him in his labratory in New Brunswick. They were shot off by some of his rssistants.

A number of the rockets failed to explode owing probably to being wet on the Fourth.

WILL RUN IT RIGHT.

Music Hall Patrons Will Enjoy a Good Season.

William M. Stillman wishes to notify the people of Plainfield and vicinity that he has taken personal charge of the management of Stillman Music Hall. He is giving it a complete overhauling and when the season opens in September the place will be as clean as anv private residence, and will be kept so, as he has employed Charles Ellis as janitor, who will be under his own personal supervision and pay, and who will have nothing else to do but to keep the place clean and warm.

Mr. Stillman will attend to the bookings himself and give the matter his most careful and personal attention.

William R. Mattox has been employed as stage-manager, and Edward Nelson, the genial Central railroad ticket agent has been employed as ticket seller. Prof. Guttman will furnish the orchertra.

Mr. Stillman asks the people to give this Hall a fair trial this year and help him in making the place a success.

HOW THE BOY WAS KILLED.

The Smith Boy Accidentally Shot By Another Lad.

The father of the boy whose sad death was recorded in yesterday's Daily Press, Seymour G. Smith, of Crescent avenue, left last evening for Hartwick, the scene of the accident.

This morning's New York Tribune publishes the following despatch from Oneonta:

Seymour P. Smith, son of S. G. Smith, of Plainfield, N. J., was shot and instantly killed at Hartwick, eighteen miles from Oneonta, yesterday afternoon. Smith, with a companion, was bathing, when a young man named Sternberg came along, shooting frogs. While he was explaining the working of his rifle to the boys the weapon was discharged, the bullet entering Smith's left breast. Smith was 15 years of age. His father is a tea finisher and packer at No. 129 Water street, New York.

The interment will probably take place at Hartwick, as the Smiths own a burial plot in the cemetery in that place.

The Right Idea.

Trades organizations of Essex county have united to prevent the giving of work on the public parks to contractors who, the union men assert, would employ cheap labor and ignore those in the county who might be glad to secure the opportunity to earn a living. The Essex Trade Council have organized a Producers' Home Market League, and appointed a committee to see the Park Commissioners for the purpose of influencing them to have the parks built by county residents, and if that will not be possible, to give the contracts to persons who will promise to employ only men who live in Essex county.

To Fight the Improvement.

Citizens of Paterson who are opposed to the erection of the new courthouse, as decided upon by the Board of Freeholders, have engaged Eugene Stevenson, a lawyer, to fight the case in the courts. He will apply for an injunction restraining the Freeholders from spending the money. The courthouse is to cost $20,000, according to the plans and estimates. The citizens say the new courthouse is unnecessary at the present time.

The Man Ought to be Muzzled.

Some miscreant let all the dogs out of the pound in North Plainfield a few days ago, and Chief Marshal Van-Horn is on the lookout for the guilty one. The authorities are endeavoring to arrange for a place in the rear of Boyce's Hotel for a dog pound.

Giving the Dogs a Chance.

The Elizabeth police have ceased killing dogs on the public highway, and the animals now have free use of the street: muzzled or unmuzzled. The dog-pound, which has been moved to South Broad street, has not yet been put in order.

Something Very Fine.

The Plainfield Camera Club members are making arrangements for an exhibition to be given in their rooms at an early date. It will be something very fine.

FRONT STREET EXCITEMENT.

Trolley Car Frightened a Horse Into Running Away.

The trolley car was the indirect cause of an exciting time on West Front street Wednesday. A woman from Fanwood drove down to Plainfield to do some shopping, and stopped in front of a West Front street store.

Her coachman, George Dunn, stood at the horse's head. Just then an electric car passed by and the horse, which already has quite a reputation as a runaway, reared and pulled the reins out of Dunn's hands.

He then started down West Front street until he reached Plainfield avenue, when he ran through that street to Third, and then to Liberty street. Here he tried to run back to Front street again, but there were several wagons in the road, and he stopped instead.

Frank Smith tried to stop the runaway on Front street, and probably would have succeeded, only that some one ran out at the horse and frightened him so that he shied and almost ran into Smith.

The horse was attached to a two-seated surrey.

HORR AGAINST COIN.

These Two Great Men to Debate the Money Question.

One of the greatest debates of the present time will be held in the Palmer House, Chicago, commencing July 16th, between Horr and Coin, two well-known representative men.

Mr. Coin will argue for a double currency standard while Mr. Horr will stand on the single standard. The debate will be private. An audience of not over fifty people will be present. At the conclusion of the debate stenographic reporters will be called in to make a verbatim report of the debate. After that the matter will be published in the papers.

Mr. Horr being a well-known resident of Plainfield, there is naturally considerable interest manifested by those who make the subject one of study, and the result will be anxiously waited for.

DOG TAX DECISION.

Judge McCormick Decides in Favor of the Canines.

In the court of special sessions at Elizabeth on Wednesday Judges Thomas and McCormick rendered a decision that the dog ordinance under which the police have been raising havoc with the canines for the past month is unconstitutional and inoperative. The decision is the result of an appeal brought by fifteen citizens who in 1894 were fined $20 and costs for refusing to tag and muzzle their dogs. The police have no right to molest dogs hereafter and the tax must be collected as other personal taxes.

Trying to Save the Elms.

The Woman's Town Improvement Association, of Montclair, apparently has a big contract on hand to rid the elm trees of the destructive beetle. When nurserymen imported English elms they let in the foreign beetle. In England there is a bird which craves the beetle, and the little pest never becomes very troublesome. The women will have a poisonous solution sprayed over the trees. The association has appointed a committee to have this work done.

A Painless Pull.

The wonderful anaesthetic employed in the painless extraction of teeth by Dr. C. R. Theirs, of 13 Grove street, has received the endorsement of Plainfield's physicians as well as local professional and business men. The anaesthetic allays all pain and has no subsequent ill effects, Special price reductions are made on Thursday.

Everybody Will Be There.

A number of cyclists are going to ride to Asbury Park this week, but they would have much more fun if they took their wheels and put them on the special wheel car in the excursion train of the First M. E. Sunday-schools, next Friday morning, and go down with them. Most of your friends are going, and there will be lots of pretty girls, too.

Another Borough in Prospect.

Wilbur Corey, who is working to have the borough of Locust Grove formed from a part of Westfield Township, reports that he has secured the number of signers necessary to place the petition for a borough before the Court.

A Pig on Their Hands.

The pig which was to have been greased and used at the games Fourth of July afternoon is at the Crescent Oval and is being fed and kept by the Crescent Wheelmen. They are anxious to secure a buyer and thus dispose of him.

THE CITY TO BE BONDED

Common Council Will Borrow $100,000 for Sewer Work.

PAYABLE WITH PREMIUM IN GOLD.

Councilmen Moore, Frazee and Westphal Opposed the Loan—Bids for the Chemical Engine Received—The Land for Sewage Beds Purchased—Watchung Avenue Opening Progressed—James Conneely's License Transferred to His Widow.

It was 3:15 by the faithful clock in the City Council rooms when President See called the members to their seats at adjourned meeting Monday evening, and all responded to the roll-call except Councilmen Fisk and Erickson.

The regular business was suspended to receive the bids for making house connections from the sewer mains Councilmen Ginna and Dumont were appointed by the president to assist City Clerk MacMurray in this matter. Seven bids were received and submitted as complying with the advertised specifications. The figures given below are so much per lineal foot. They are as follows:

	A	B	C	D	E	F
P. Plunkitt, Jersey City...	27	27	27	27	27	27
J. Siddall, Trenton.....	19	18	18	18	14	14
J. H. Hurly, Trenton.....	25	22	25	22	20	19
B. Brady, Plainfield.....	29	29	29	29	29	29
A. Andrews, Plainfield....	38	35	35	30	30	30
T. Dowd, North Plainf'd.	30	30	30	28	28	28
Honan&Sons, Chester, Pa..	27	25	23	19	19	27

They were all referred to the street committee.

Mr. Ginna offered a resolution that the city buy the land belonging to the Mutual Life Insurance Company and Mrs. Penfield for the proposed sewer beds. It was carried. The sewer committee were appointed to make the deal. Mr. Ginna then stated that the Mutual Life property would cost $15,500 and the Smock property $8,000, and offered a resolution that the terms be accepted, which was carried. He then presented certificate of title to the property which was received and filed.

The regular order of business was then taken up, and the city clerk read the minutes of the last meeting which were approved.

Mr. Bird, of the fire and building committee, presented two bids for the furnishing of a chemical fire engine. One was from D. C. Woodhouse offering an engine for $1,860, and the other from S. F. Haywood for $1,900. They were received and filed.

J. E. Martine presented a petition through Councilman Bird asking Council for two fire hydrants, one on Martine avenue, and the other nearby on Park avenue.

Mr. Bird's motion that they be granted was lost. Councilmen Ginna, Moore, Frost, Dumont, and Stockton voting against it.

Mr. Dumont offered a resolution that the city treasurer draw $15,500 for the purpose of buying land for proposed sewer beds. It was carried.

Two communications were presented by Mr. Dumont in which the Mutual Life Insurance Company, and Harvey Fisk & Sons, of New York, offered to take $100,000 worth of Plainfield city bonds at four per cent, the same to be payable with the premium in gold. Mr. Dumont then moved that Harvey Fisk & Sons offer be accepted.

Councilman Frazee, Moore and Westphal thought that the city should receive a premium from the bonds and Mr. Moore stated that N. H. Harris, of 15 Wall street, were offering premiums to smaller towns than Plainfield.

The three councilmen argued strongly against the motion, and said they could see no reason why the city should be bonded under such unfavorable conditions to pay for the sewer work.

The motion prevailed however, the three councilmen voting against it.

Mr. Moore introduced an ordinance giving Mrs. Conneely the privilege of continuing the liquor business lately conducted by James Conneely, deceased.

It was adopted on first and second reading and ordered advertised. Councilmen Frost and Ginna voting against it.

Mr. Ginna thought it would conflict with a city ordinance that prohibited a woman from conducting a liquor business.

The Watchung avenue extension ordinance was passed on second reading and ordered advertised.

Mr. Ginna offered a resolution, which was carried, that Monday evening, August 5th, at eight o'clock, be set as the time to hear objection to the proposed extension.

He also made a motion that Monday evening, July 15th, be set as the time to act on the sewer bids. Council then adjourned.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MR. RIKER

TAKEN SICK AND EXPIRED IN A FEW HOURS.

His Wife Prostrated by the Suddenness of His Death—A Substantial and Respected Citizen.

The very sudden death of Ira F. Riker, the undertaker, at his home at 142 Central avenue, on Wednesday at three o'clock, will be a shock to his many friends and acquaintances.

Mr. Riker has not been feeling very well of late, but nothing unusual was thought of it as he remained at his place of business all the time and even yesterday he was busy all day up till eight o'clock in the evening. Between seven and eight o'clock last evening he went to see Chairman V. W. Nash in regard to some camp chairs which the latter had hired. He returned home and retired early. During the the fore part of the night he was awakened with terrible pains about his heart. He could get no relief and it gradually grew worse until he expired.

His wife was prostrated with the sudden death, and she is not now allowed to see anyone.

Mr. Riker was born in Brooklyn thirty-nine years ago and was the son of Robert and Mrs. Riker who live at that place.

His father and three brothers conduct an undertaking business in Brooklyn at the present time.

He has lived in Plainfield about fifteen years, and was bookkeeper for A. M. Griffen for several years. His health being poor he gave it up to go in the undertaking business.

He was a member of the Royal Arcanum, and First M. E. church. He leaves a widow, three daughters and one son, besides a father, mother, four sisters, and three brothers.

Mr. Riker was a member of Royal Arcanum, and the announcement of his death has already been forwarded to the Arcanum headquarters. His wife will receive $3000.

Imagined He Had Hydrophobia.

What the physicians term a case of ysnophiolya, or false hydrophobia, has developed in Johnson Richards, a young farmer of Spotswood. On May 11th a small dog, affected with the rabies, bit Mr. Richards' dog and he shot it. He had a sore on his hand when he buried the dog and became possessed of the notion that he had been affected through the sore. Richards became melancholy, brooded over his supposed state and neglected his farm duties to read up on hydrophobia symptoms, and he would talk of nothing else. A week ago the farmer became so ill that he was taken to his bed in a delirium. A consultation of physicians decided that Mr. Richards was actually suffering from a case of false hydrophobia, induced by fright. A physician from the Pasteur Institute, who was summoned, said that Mr. Richards was a fit subject for treatment there and he was taken there.

Hanged Himself in His Barn.

Simeon Ammerman, fifty years of age, and an old resident of Peapack, was found hanging from a beam in his barn about five o'clock Sunday afternoon by David Philhower, a neighbor, who was passing the place and looked through the door. The deceased had procured a small rope which he had fastened to a beam, and had evidently stood on a box while putting the rope around his neck. No apparent cause can be assigned for the act, but the supposition is that it was done in a temporary fit of insanity, as Mr. Ammerman had been sick for some time and was despondent. A widow and five children survive him.

Ambulance Soon to Be Here.

The Muhlenberg hospital ambulance will arrive in town this week, and be harbored in Roberts livery stable on North avenue from where it will respond to the calls as needed. The vehicle has been in course of construction for some months in New York, and is the gift of the Ladies Auxiliary.

Chapel to be Dedicated.

The new chapel at Marconnier is about finished, and will be dedicated on Sunday, July 21st, with appropriate exercises. J. E. Townsend is making the memorial tablet to be placed in front of the building which is a model in every respect.

Don't Forget It.

While all the excursions are going to Asbury Park people should not forget that the Park Avenue, First Presbyterian and Congregational churches go to this great summer place next week.

Royally Entertained.

The Fourth of July Committees were royally entertained last night by Chairman Nash at his home after the display of fireworks.

THE BOY LIEUTENANT'S NERVE.

He Lost It Once, but Redeemed Himself in Gallant Fashion.

Just how it happened no one could ever explain, but the more charitable argued that the boy lieutenant lost his head for a moment. He was fresh from West Point and only a boy, and had never seen a hostile Indian in his life. He had a dozen troopers with him, and was beating up the country along Sunflower Creek when a band of fifty warriors suddenly appeared. It was a complete surprise, and the small troop was somewhat scattered, but the thing to have done was to rally on the bush covered knoll a quarter of a mile away, and there make a "stand off." The horses would probably have been sacrificed, but the soil was soft, and the men could have intrenched themselves and held the position against a hundred warriors. The siege might have lasted into the next day, but help from the fort was sure to come within twenty-four hours. The young officer didn't do the right thing. He gave the order to fall back to the creek, a mile away, and reached it to find that it offered no position of defense, while four troopers had been shot from their saddles during the flight. Not a man would have escaped with his life but for the sudden and unlooked-for appearance of a couple of horse hunters, who were taken by the Indians for scouts in advance of cavalry.

The officer had made a mistake and sacrificed four men. He had been tried and found lacking in nerve. From that hour he was a marked man. No other officer or no officer's wife gave him the cut direct, but he was made to feel that he walked in the shadow. Had they believed it was cowardice his resignation would have been demanded within the hour. No, they could not call it that, but his loss of nerve at a critical moment was almost as bad. There was a splendid opportunity to make a gallant fight and inflict loss upon the enemy, but he had ordered a retreat and lost a third of his men. It was too small an affair in those stirring days for a court of inquiry, and so the young officer had to bear his burden. He could not help but know that he had lost caste with his brother officers, and he could not help but read the same story in the eyes of the enlisted men. Everybody wondered why he did not resign, and though many secretly sympathized with him he was forgiven by none.

Weeks and months dragged away and then came a fresh campaign against the hostiles. One day a troop of sixty men was detached from the main command for a scout. The first lieutenant was absent on detached service, and the second ranked next to the captain, who had never openly censured him, and yet had never forgiven him for the stain on the escutcheon. After a ride of fifteen miles the troopers wheeled about to find that a band of hostiles had crept in between them and the main command. The fight opened with odds of four to one, and in ten minutes the captain and four men were lying dead, and the little force was being pushed back and surrounded. Every man knew that the boy lieutenant had once upon a time lost his nerve, and as he assumed command the lines became unsteady and a panic was threatened. Then for the first time they heard his voice above the din of battle, shouting encouragement to them:

"Stand fast, men, stand fast! Steady down there on the left and don't throw away your cartridges!"

He could not be seen a dozen feet away through the smoke, but his voice was steady and full of fight, and the fear of disaster was replaced by grim determination. Confident in the strength of numbers, and determined to make it a slaughter, the Indians pressed recklessly forward. The lieutenant was down on the left flank when the bullets began to fly in there, and a sergeant and ten men were left faced to meet the danger. He was up on the right flank when the yelling warriors bore down upon it, and a sergeant and ten men were right faced to drive them back. Ten minutes later the horse holders were being shot down from the rear, but the lieutenant and a corporal and four or five privates were quickly there and making every bullet count.

"He's a daisy! He's a fighter! He's got the nerve of old Crook himself!" said the troopers to each other as they filled the chambers of their Spencers.

After half an hour the fire of the Indians began to slacken. Help might come at any moment to the little band holding out so determinedly. There had been no order to retreat—no signs of a panic. The troopers were lying behind rocks and bushes and in rifle pits dug by their knives, and they were shooting to kill. The Indian has pluck but lacks persistency. If victory cannot be won at a dash he anticipates defeat. It was so in this instance. Surprised at the fierce defense—fearful of a superior force coming down upon them—dispirited at their losses, which were five to one, they made ready to draw off. Then the exultant cheering troopers heard the voice of the lieutenant shouting:

"Up men and into your saddles! We have stood them off—we have driven them away—but that is not enough!"

There were forty-eight troopers who swung themselves into the saddle and followed the boy lieutenant as he dashed out at the body of Indians slowly riding away. With ringing cheers—with sabers flashing—the little band drove down into the mass and through it, cutting and slashing and shouting defiance under the cloud of dust. Back they came, fighting more like demons than men, and then the Indians broke and fled in terror and halted not until they were miles away More than forty of them lay dead and wounded. Of the troopers ten were dead—twenty wounded. And that night the general complimented the boy lieutenant and every officer had taken him by the hand.—Detroit Free Press.

MASON W. TYLER PRESIDENT OF THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS.

Mayor Gilbert Appoints Three New Directors—The Gift of the Monday Afternoon Club Accepted—Other Business.

The regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Public Library and Reading Room was held last night. All were present except Mr. Dumont. The minutes of the meeting of June 4th were read and approved. Larrabee, who, at the meeting of July 10, 1894, was appointed a committee of one to prepare a list of books suitable to be purchased for the Babcock Scientific Library and therein to act in consultation and in co-operation with the library committee, was reappointed and continued as such committee with like purpose during the coming year.

The following bills on motion were approved and ordered paid; Wm. H. Williams, $13.50, Samuel H. Allen, $40, Miss Davis, $30, Miss Adams, $50.

On motion the proposed gift of the Monday Afternoon Club of books to the library, as evinced by their letter bearing date June 12th, 1895, was accepted upon the terms expressed.

The librarian was granted a vacation of four weeks during the month of August. A communication from the librarian respecting the opening of the library on Saturday afternoons for the delivery of books was referred to the library committee.

It was moved and carried that the sum of $100 be appropriated, and placed subject to the order of the librarian, for the purchase of such books as she may deem important or especially desirable to be purchased for the library.

The librarian's report for June, 1895, was read, and on motion ordered received and placed on file.

"TIP" GETS FREE.

He Crawled Under the Bed But That Didn't Matter.

Gilbert Thompson, better known as "Tip," the colored one-armed bootblack, and Hattie Jackson, a notorious colored character, came before Judge Coddington this morning as the result of a raid on a disorderly house on Cottage place Monday night. The other inmates had escaped, but "Tip" had crawled under the bed and was captured. "Tip" was released, as no evidence could be brought forward that he had acted in a disorderly manner. Hattie Jackson was told to leave town immediately if she did not care for sixty days in the county jail. George W. DeMeza acted as counsel for the prisoners.

BEFORE THE CADI AGAIN.

George Lewis, the Camp Meeting Orator, Held for the Grand Jury.

The case of J. F. Buckle against George Lewis, otherwise known as "Jumbo" Lewis, the camp meeting orator, came up before Justice Crosley this morning.

Lewis was charged with stealing paint and paint brushes from A. D. Thompson's house on Verdon street, which was being painted by Woolston & Buckle.

Lawyer C. A. Reed appeared for Mr. Buckle and Lawyer George DeMeza for Lewis. Several witnesses were called, including Mr. Buckle, his employe, John Hoagland, John Goodwin, Mrs. Messerschmidt and Chief Marshal VanHorn who made the arrest last night.

The evidence seemed to be conclusive that Lewis was connected with the crime, but his lawyer waived examination for the Grand Jury and Lewis was placed under $300 bail to appear before the Grand Jury.

Crop Reports.

The Weekly Crop Bulletin of the New Jersey Weather Service publishes the following crop reports this week from Union County:

Westfield.—A drought was feared in the early part of the week, but Wednesday and Thursday brought abundant rain, followed by cloudy, showery weather, bad for drying and getting in hay and grain, much of which is down and still out; grass crop heavy; corn and vegetables growing vigorously; potato crop assured; cherries that are left are rotting badly; raspberries coming in.

Plainfield.—Crops are looking better; the ground has been so dry in some places that pease have been spotting; hay is a fair crop; hail on the 24th broke rye and wheat straw, making bad cutting; the hail was not general, but about the size of a chestnut. Rainfall, 1.42 inch.

Elizabeth.—A week of showery weather very unfavorable for hay making, but just the kind needed for all growing crops; potatoes much improved; corn looking very well; oats will be a heavy crop; rye about ready to cut. Buffalo horn fly very numerous and annoying to dairy stock. Rainfall, 1.85 inch.

Musical Organization Reorganized.

The old Annicitea orchestra, which enjoyed quite a reputation in this vicinity, and which disbanded a year ago, came together last evening at the residence of Joseph Moore on West Front street, near Grant avenue, and reorganized. Those present were: Joseph Moore, claronette; C. Davis, trombone; J. G. Carpenter, piano; Joseph Sattels and M. A. Korff, violins, J. Vallende and Mr. Borndyke, cornets. The latest selections were effectively played by the orchestra, and later refreshments were served. It is expected that several new members will be secured for the missing instruments. The next rehearsal occurs next Tuesday evening.

She had three daughters, Mrs. Harriett Bailey, who resided with Mrs. Berry, Mrs. A. C. Sutton, of Riverton, and Mrs. David Shotwell, of Florida. She had four grandchildren, among whom are James E. Bailey, of 97 Jackson avenue, Oliver Sutton, of Dunellen, Mrs. Anna Teeple, of Riverton, and Mrs. Julia Lockwood of San Francisc.

What a Thought Did.

Robert Simpson was driving along Mountain avenue yesterday afternoon, and thinking that he had an errand got out of the wagon. The horse started on a run, and going down Mountain avenue turned into Somerset street, and then started for Front street. When near Emily street Special Marshal J. Goodwin stepped out in the road and waved his hat at the horse; at the same time Will Smalley caught the reins and held the animal. In a little while Mr. Simpson came up and took charge of the rig.

Suing for a Loan.

A suit to recover $365 has been brought in the Union County Circuit Court by John Harper, of Jersey City, against the estate of the late City Attorney Garret Berry, of Rahway. The suit is against Mrs. Elizabeth L. Berry, widow of the deceased City Attorney, who is executor of his estate. The claim is for money loaned, as alleged to the dead counselor in a civil case the plaintiff was interested in

Not Likely to Organize Yet.

The new Elizabeth Board of Education, which is Republican, will meet tonight to organize, but it is doubtful if it will be able to do so. Schuyler Sours, Republican member from the Tenth Ward, has gone on his vacation, and will not be back for two weeks. Unless a Democrat can be found to help by voting for Commissioner Mattews, the slated Republican nominee for President, no organization can be effected until Mr. Sours returns. The Democratic secretary of the board will probably retain his office a few weeks longer.

THE COUNTY LEGISLATORS.

The Board of Freeholders Transact July Business.

The Board of Freeholders met on Wednesday afternoon, the change of date being on account of Fourth of July. All the members were present.

Two communications having reference to excavating on the county roads were received from F. A. Dunham, engineer-in-chief of the Westfield sewer system, now in course of construction. The Westfield Township Committee and the County Road Committee have held conferences over the question of privileges of opening the roadway for the sewer, and it was expected the township would be represented at the meeting. The failure of Westfield to send its representative, and the intimation in one of the communications that a portion of the road was to be excavated before the privilege had been granted caused considerable debate.

It was finely resolved that the Clerk of the Board serve a notice on the Westfield Township Committee forbidding any disturbance of the roadbed of the county roads without permission.

In order that Westfield might not suffer from the delay of a permit till the next meeting it was voted that the Director of the Board and the County Road Committee should have power to make a contract with the Township Committee on the same terms under which Summit laid its sewers on the improved roads.

The Board also received two communications from Fanwood, alleging that a portion of the county road in that township was in bad condition, and asserting that the wagons from the stonecracker were cutting ruts in the pavement by the heavy loads carted and narrow tires of the wagons.

Mr. Morrell asked if physicians called to examine the insane were entitled to any compensation, and Director Hubbard answered that the county pays only for the subsistence of the patients when at the Asylum, and not for examination or conveyance to the Asylum. The latter expense is borne by the cities and townships.

ON THE BOULEVARD.

Scrappers Who Come From That Celebrated Section.

A lively scene took place in the city court room in the Serrell building this morning. John Sheehan and Jack Deady charged Michael Welch, John Welch and John Macalvoy with quarreling and fighting, and the case came up before Judge Coddington. Welch keeps a stable back of "Buck" Day's saloon on West Third street. Sheehan and Deady came and asked for money to treat, but were refused; a fight resulted. The Judge thought Sheehan and Deady should be tried also and so they were. The all pleaded not guilty.

After a rather exciting morning, Sheehan and Deady were discharged as there was not sufficient evidence against them, while the two Welches and Macalvoy were given their choice between a $5 fine and twenty days in the county jail. They all paid their fines. George W. DeMeza acted as counsel for the defendants.

Joe Blimm in Business.

Joseph C. Blimm has purchased the grocery business of John H. Blimm on East Third street.

AUNTIE SPENCER DEAD.

A Good Woman Leaves This Earth at Four Score Years.

The large circle of friends of H. N. Spencer will learn with regret of the death of his mother, which occurred this morning about 7:30 at his home on Somerset street.

Mrs. Caroline B. Spencer was the widow of the late Lyman Spencer, and was always very active up to a short time ago. Death was caused through general debility and old age. She was very well known throughout Plainfield and North Plainfield. Two daughters, Mrs. Elias Allen, of Washingtonville, and Mrs. Alonzo Regur, of Delavan, Ill., and three sons, Lewis C. Spencer, of California, W. F. Spencer, of Washingtonville, and H. N. Spencer, of North Plainfield, survive her. Mrs. Schutt, wife of Councilman Schutt, is a granddaughter.

Mrs. Spencer was eighty-seven years old.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday afternoon next at two o'clock at the home of H. N. Spencer on Somerset street.

Did the Burglar Hide.

Some boys playing last night about Nelson's grocery store, corner of Somerset street and Manning avenue, discovered a window open in the basement at the rear of the store. They also heard footsteps in the store and they notified Chief VanHorn. He secured Marshals John Goodwin and Frank Whitely, and together with them, went to the place and made a search through the basement, but could find nobody. The trap door leading to the store was fastened and they did not open it. There was no light in the store and it would have been a very easy matter for one to hide behind the counters or boxes.

Officers Installed.

The officers elect of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., a list of which was published in these columns, were installed last night by District Deputy Grand Chancellor James Pattison. Two additional officers were appointed at the meeting as follows, Inner Guard, Edward Mackey; Outer Guard, Peter Straum.

The members enjoyed a social time under the good of the order.

Capt. Flannery, of the Crescent Division, was highly complimented for the excellent work in securing the handsome banner that was carried in the Fourth of July parade.

Fined Six Cents.

The case of Boyle against Walpole, in tort, came up before Justice Nash and a jury of twelve men yesterday afternoon. It was the continuation of a suit four years old, brought about by the damage done in Mr. Boyle's garden by Mr. Walpole's chickens. Both sides were represented by counsel. The jury brought in a verdict of six cents damages.

W. K. McClure represented the plaintiff while the defendant was represented by H. C. Runyon.

A WIDE TIRE ORDINANCE.

BOROUGH COUNCIL TO ENFORCE THE NEW STATE LAW.

The July Meeting Transacts But Little Other Important Business—Sidewalk Repairs Occupy Some Attention.

There was no business of any great importance to occupy the attention of the Borough Councilmen at their regular meeting last evening, and in consequence the session was not very long.

Councilmen Smith, Valiant and Howell were not present.

Clerk Arnold read the minutes of all the June meetings, and they were approved. He then presented his monthly report which was as follows:

	Balance	Deficit
Borough	$686.86
Fire Department		$304.24
Light	107.94
Road	983.94
Poor		100.00
	$1,778.56	$404.24
	404.24
Total	$1,374.32

Forty-six dollars and ten cents was reported collected during the past month from all sources.

The report was received and filed.

T. B. Brooks, W. J. Buttfield and others asked the Council that the residents of West End avenue at the intersection of Greenbrook road be asked to lay stone walks.

The matter was referred to the street committee.

W. J. Buttfield stated in a letter that he would lay a stone walk in front of his property. The letter was received and filed.

J. P. Emmons and Charles Barlow, residents of Prospect place, asked the Council to macadamize the above street and agreed to pay their portion of the expense. It was referred to the street committee.

The committees from the borough and township who made the settlement of the township property presented an official report of their work and it was received and filed.

A small budget of claims were presented and later ordered paid.

Mr. Peck stated for the fire, water and lamp committee that extra precaution had been used on the Fourth of July and that no fires were reported. He further stated that the fire department needed hose and that some progress had been made in that direction. It was learned that it could be purchased for sixty-five cents a foot. Later Mr. Peck offered a resolution, which was carried, that the council purchase 1,500 feet, the same not to cost over sixty-five cents per foot.

Mayor Hegeman, Jr., appointed Henry DeMott as special marshal, who was confirmed by resolution of Mr. Lounsbury.

Mr. Lounsbury offered a resolution which gave the street committee power to lay a stone walk on Michael Powers' property on Somerset street. The reason given was that Mr. Powers had been given the required thirty days' notice and had not complied therewith.

Another resolution by Mr. Lounsbury, which was carried, provides uniforms for summer wear for the borough marshals.

The usual ten days vacation, with pay, was granted the borough marshals. On resolution of Mr. Lounsbury, an ordinance was introduced by Mr. Lounsbury, which provides for the size tires to be used on coal, lumber, express, brick and stone wagons in the borough.

It says that the tire shall be 3½ inches wide for all wagons that carry 1,500 pounds and a fine of $20 for each violation.

On motion, which was carried, it was read by title and passed to second reading, and then on motion it was adopted on second reading and laid over for thirty days subject to amendments. The Council then adjourned, after which special Marshal Perry was sworn in by the Mayor.

WANT A FIREMEN'S PARADE.

Some Merchants Make the Proposition That One Be Arranged.

There was some talk among local merchants last night agitating a firemen's parade for Labor Day in this city. Their preparations for the Fourth were big, but their profits turned out to be losses in most cases. The enthusiasm has been aroused and they are anxious to see the city take on holiday garb once again this summer. It is argued that the Crescent Wheelmen have a sanction from the L. A. W. for a meet on that day, and this attraction alone would draw hundreds of bicyclists and other people to the city.

The expenses for a firemen's parade would not be near as much as for the Fourth of July celebration, the only necessary costs being that of entertaining visiting companies. The probabilities are, though, that Plainfield has got all the celebration she wants for this year.

O. C. M. A. Celebration.

The Omer C. Moore Association held their Fourth of July celebration at Coontown. The orators of the day were Peter Weaver and David Weaver, and the event was a notable one.

TALK OF A GOLF COURSE.

HILLSIDE TENNIS CLUB CONTEMPLATING PROVIDING THIS SPORT.

It is a Fascinating Game and Plainfield Club People Are Likely to Enjoy the Attendant Pleasure of It.

The latest news among the clubs of of Plainfield is the probable building of a golf course by the Hillside Tennis Club. There has been a widespread and growing interest in this most fascinating of games in America for several years, but only in the last two or three years have clubs become convinced that it has come to stay. At a recent meeting of the Governors of the Hillside Club the question of putting in a course was seriously considered, and Messrs. Howard Beebe and J. S. Anthony were appoited a committee to investigate the matter.

It is expected that grounds for the course can be secured so that the first "tee" will be but a very short distance from the clubhouse and the course will in all probability consist of about six or seven holes, or about one mile in length from the first tee to the last hole, the line of play bending around so as to bring the start and finish near together. Wherever links have been built the game has found immense popularity awaiting it among the women as well as the men. It has been suggested that members of the other Plainfield clubs be admitted to the golf priveleges of the Hillside for a small sum per annum and that ladies have the same priveleges in regard to the links as members of other clubs. Should the present plans prove feasible the links will in all probability be put in very soon so that the fine fall weather, which is an ideal time for golfing, may be taken advantage of. The season for playing golf is much longer than that of any other out door game, lasting as it does from early spring until the snow makes playing unpleasant.

Either Mr. Beebe or Mr. Anthony will be very glad to talk with those in or outside the club who are interested in the game or who are desirous of obtaining information about it.

That a golf course would add greatly to the attractions of Plainfield is certain and the links would form a rendezvous of unusual attractions.

Eight Bottles of Soda Water.

A novel contest was held at the Norwood Athletic clubhouse yesterday afternoon, when Walter Hetfield, Clarence Thorne, Will Thorne and Wyatt Barnes tried to see who could drink the most soda water in three minutes. They went at it like gladiators, and Clarence Thorne managed to down eight bottles before the time expired, and, as none of the others could equal that, he was given the victory. This contest was the sequel to a pie eating contest held Thursday afternoon, which was won by Wyatt Barnes.

Evangelistic Work.

Plainfield Christian Endeavorers have begun already to plan for evangelistic meetings next February, according to the plan of the State Department. There was held a conference of the prayer meeting committees. It will be placed before the Christian Endeavor pastors of the city for their co-operation at an early date. A joint conference of the prayer meeting and lookout committees will soon be held.

Frightened at the Trolley.

Trolley accidents are not frequent in Plainfield and those that do happen are usually not the fault of the cars or their motormen. Such was the case yesterday afternoon, when Charles Adam's horse, standing in front of Vincent Frazee's grocery store became frightened at a passing car. He started to run, but ready hands soon brought him to a standstill with no damage resulting except a slightly broken harness.

A Commendable Exhibit.

Through an oversight the display of Hillier & Co. was omitted in yesterday's issue of The Daily Press. It was the only one representing a laundry, and was particularly handsome with a fine display of red, white and blue. On each side was a shirt, collar and pair of cuffs, laundered, showing the very excellent work done by this well-known house. Their Plainfield manager, Miss Mary Brown, deserves credit for the exhibit.

Luncheon on the Fourth.

The luncheon and lawn party that was planned by Mrs. Augustus D. Shepard for the afternoon of the Fourth was enjoyed on the piazzas of their palatial residence. There were fifty or more of the young people of Plainfield present who passed a delightful afternoon in dancing and sociability. Luncheon was served by Max Wiertz.

Competed With the Best.

Marsh, Israels & Harder, the Broadway architects of New York, of which firm A. L. C. Marsh, of this city, is a member, were successful in securing the third prize of $500 in the competition for designs for the new home of the New York Athletic Club which is to cost $450,000. The competition was opened to all architects.

A CENTURY RUN OF MUD.

Asbury Park the Destination of Three Hundred and Six Cyclists.

Plainfield was invaded this morning by a mud-bespattered, knickabockered crowd who entered the town silently on their wheels and as quietly took their departure. It was the annual century run of the Associated Cycling Clubs of New Jersey, starting from Newark at five o'clock and on its way to Asbury Park.

The first men made their appearance at about half-past nine but the main body did not arrive until an hour later.

About three hundred and fifty riders of whom ten were women started from Newark and three hundred and six were checked as passing through Plainfield. One hundred and five of them were from the Mercer County Wheelmeen, to which the only tandem in the run also belonged.

Frank Randolph and Harry Maxon represented this city in the run and they appeared as fresh as anyone. F. L. C. Martin rode down to Westfield and led the run back to Plainfield, he was unable to go the entire distance on account of the press of other duties. The checkers were Volney Green, George P. Smith, and Raymond A. McGee, all of the P. H. S. A. A., and were stationed at the corner of Washington and Fifth streets.

Part of the riders stopped for lunch at McVey's and at the Revere House while the rest went on to New Brunswick where they will lunch. The main body of the cyclists left here at 11:10.

A few accidents were reported and all the men seemed in fairly good condition although several of the less experienced riders were helped by their stronger friends by connecting the two wheels with a tow-rope.

One of the century riders in cleaning his chain in Elizabeth, caught three of his fingers in it and had to have them amputated. Another slipped on Fifth street near Hebard's drug store and cut off one finger. Grover Smith, another member of the run, broke his crank and damaged several other parts of his wheel.

Who Will Win Them, Fourth of July?

The prizes for the games of the Crescent Wheelmen are on exhibition in J. Hervey Doane's window. They are as follows: One hundred yards dash, silver watch, value 12; potato race, silver watch, value $12; running high jump' pearl and diamond pin, value $10; one mile scratch bicycle race, diamond pin, value $15; one hundred and twenty yards hurdle race, gold cuff buttons, value $10; two-mile lap bicycle race, jeweled gold watch fob, value $15; sack race, gold stick pin, value $9; three-legged race, two weekly meal tickets to McVey's restaurant, value $7. The prize for the chaseing of the greased pig will be the squealer himself, and he is a nice one, too.

Needless Pain

is sometimes caused to children by having them undergo surgical operations for cross-eyes: not infrequently this trouble will be remedied by properly fitting glasses, and this should always be resorted to before trying the severer alternative. Take your child to Collier's, 103 Park avenue, then and learn from a skilled optician whether or not the defect of vision can be painlessly relieved.

A Boys' Camp.

Charles S. Dudley, who interested so many at the Y. M. C. A. conference last spring, is organizing a Y. M. C. A. boys' camp on the shores of Lake Champlain from July 9th to July 26th. Several Plainfield boys are preparing to join the party.

You Should Join.

If you are not already a member of a building loan association, you should be, and the Home Building and Loan Association, of which Isaac W. Rushmore is president, and S. R. Struthers secretary, presents an announcement in the advertising columns of The Press today that you should read.

On to Beantown.

The Christian Endeavor society of the First Presbyterian church, has appointed John Lindsay as their delegate to Boston. Mr. Liudsay will leave town next Tuesday, and will stop at Worcester, Mass., for a few days to see friends. He will retuon about the last of July.

All France Responds to His Call to Arms. Battle of Waterloo and Extinction of the Old Guard—Death at St. Helena of the Emperor of the French.

XXI.—THE HUNDRED DAYS AND FINIS.

On the 12th of April, 1814, the Past rode into Paris. It had on the white cockade of Bourbon, and came out of England. The Past, after an absence of twenty-three years, was old and fat. Young men born in the year of the Terror, sitting in the cafes on that day, had never seen the Past before. At the gate of the Tuileries, it reeled on its fine horse, and was about to fall. The attendants helped it to alight, and saluted it as Louis XVIII. Paris, the city of effervescent jubilee, was ominously silent. Some ci-devant royalists tried to shout, and only gasped. That was the Restoration!

On the 30th of May the allies concluded their trial treaty of peace at Paris. Napoleon had gone to Elba. There he began at once the organization of his "country," just as though it were an empire. His capital was Porto Ferrajo; his residence, the Hermitage of La Marciana. The new sovereign saw at a glance what were the resources of his kingdom; and the little insular realm felt the touch of the master hand. Improvements appeared in the municipal governments. A fine road was built from the capital to Porto Longone. The traveler in Elba finds to-day the Napoleonic museum of San Martino, and notes with keenest interest the relics relating to the brief ascendency of the Emperor. His reign in the island extended from the 4th of May, 1814, to the 26th of February in the following year; then the Man of Destiny went suddenly away.

NAPOLEON BY MEISSONIER.

The temporary settlement made by the allies in Paris was carried to Vienna, in October, 1814, to be there completed and confirmed by a congress of the Powers. Prince Metternich presided. The discussions were in the ancient manner, orthodox and dull—mere platitudes and precedents. The winter months were consumed in debates about technicalities. The real issue was how the Past might be set up again in Europe and the Future prevented. This profound business, so mediaeval and inane, was still on at the end of February, 1815, when the startling news was borne to the Congress that Napoleon Bonaparte, quitting Elba, had landed at Cannes.

The intelligence flashed north, south, east and west. The cowardly and pallid Past enthroned in Paris smiled a ghastly smile. The Court newspaper chronicled the landing at Cannes thus: "The information comes to us that that miserable adventurer and brigand Bonaparte has left the island of Elba and again polluted the soil of France with his bloody feet." The next notice of news from the south was given in the same organ thus: "Our intelligence is that the man Bonaparte has set out from Cannes to Lyons, and that certain turbulent adventurers have joined him on the way." On the following day the same paper said: "It is now certain that General Bonaparte at the head of a great and enthusiastic force is approaching the city, on the Lyons road." On the next morning the paragraph read thus: "His Majesty the Emperor Napoleon entered the city last night, and slept at the Tuileries!"

This journalistic transcript of events, absurd as it seems, was in striking conformity to the facts. On the 1st of March the "man Bonaparte" did land at Cannes. On the way out from Elba the ship Zephyr, on which he sailed, had been accosted by the barque Inconstant, whose officer called out through his speaking trumpet, saying, "How is General Bonaparte?" Napoleon, being on deck and hearing the call, himself took the trumpet of the Zephyr and answered, "The Emperor is quite well, thank you!" At the landing, when an enthusiastic peasant came up in salutation, Napoleon said to Bertrand: "Here is one recruit already!"

The spectacle that ensued has no parallel in history. The old soldiers of the Republic and the Empire rose as if from the earth to greet their commander. His progress en route to Paris became a triumph. At Grenoble the officers and soldiers of the King joined him. At Lyons the forces of the Duke of Orleans went over to the Emperor. Ney, who had accepted the Restoration and become a peer of France, had promised the King to put Napoleon in an iron cage and bring him to Paris. With a division of the army he met his old commander at Auxerre, forgot all his hateful oaths of allegiance to the Bourbons, and rushed into the Emperor's arms.

For eighteen days the gathering tumult swelled and broke into a tempest of enthusiasm. On the 19th of March, Napoleon entered Paris, and the Restoration was blown like a thistle-down out of the city. Louis fled to Belgium, and his Royalist followers returned to England. The Congress of Vienna rose suddenly from the consideration of court etiquette and regalia to find that their card-board house in Paris was gone, and that the Imperial Reality was there again with the gray coat, and three-cornered hat, and marble face, just as of old.

From the 1st of March to Waterloo was a period of a hundred and ten days. History calls it the Hundred Days. The iron purpose of Napoleon, his tireless energy, and omniscient perception, were never seen in such prodigious eruption and glare as in this period of his fate. The allies had become desperate. The whole world perceived that the Imperial republicanism of France, impersonated in Bonaparte and springing in the wind of his sword, must now triumph to the borders of Europe or perish miserably under the heels of banded kings. The two ideas which the parties of the past and the future represented were irreconcilable; they could no longer coexist. Either must Napoleon and his dynasty be stamped into the earth, or the old system of political society in Europe disappear forever.

The French people sprang to the call. In a few weeks 867,000 men, volunteers and conscripts, were thrown into the field. It was the last call to arms, and France was drained from her mountains to the sea—drained not only of men and horses, but of that moral force and enthusiasm which constituto the soul of war. Napoleon declared that with a few additional weeks in April and May of 1815 he would have drawn around his Empire a rim of brass and fire that no human power could penetrate.

But he was obliged to take the field with incomplete preparation. The allied armies of England and Prussia, under Wellington and Blucher, came on, the one from Flanders, and the other from the Rhine. It was the policy of Napoleon to prevent the union of his enemies. The 15th of June found him on the Belgian frontier with 124,000 men. On the next day he defeated Blucher at Ligny. The attack of Ney on the English at Quatre Bras was unsuccessful. The impetuous marshal, who was now the Emperor's right arm, fell back to the village of Waterloo. The place was about nine miles from Brussels. It was situated in the forest of Soignes. There the allied commanders had agreed to form a junction. Napoleon ordered Marshal Grouchy with his division of 34,000 to follow up Blucher on his retreat from Ligny to Waterloo. The plain purpose was that if Blucher should join Wellington then Grouchy should unite his division with that of Ney. The failure of Grouchy to do this—to hang upon Blucher's rear—was a fatal circumstance of the final catastrophe.

On the night of June 17th the British and French armies encamped only a short distance apart. A modern field-piece could easily throw a shell from La Belle Alliance over La Haie Sainte to Mont St. Jean and far beyond into the forest. During the afternoon of the 17th and the greater part of the night there was a heavy rainfall—another fact in the catastrophe. On the following morning the Emperor, viewing the situation from his headquarters at the farm of La Belle Alliance, was unwilling to precipitate the battle until his artillery might deploy over a dry field.

Hugo has made the place and the scene immortal in the greatest battle-piece since Homer. The field of Waterloo is a undulating plain. Strategically, it has the shape of an immense harrow. The clevis is on the height called Mont St. Jean. Behind that is the village of Waterloo. The right leg of the harrow terminates at the hamlet of La Belle Alliance. The left leg is the road from Brussels to Nivelles. The cross-bar intersects the right leg at La Haie Sainte. The right leg is the highway from Brussels to Charleroi. The intersection of the bar with the left leg is near the old stone chateau of Hougomont. The battle was fought on the line of the cross-bar and in the triangle between it and the clevis.

The conflict began just before noon. The armies engaged were of equal strength, numbering about 80,000 men on each side. Napoleon was superior in artillery; but Wellington's soldiers had seen longer service in the field. They were his veterans from the Peninsular War, perhaps the stubbornest fighters in Europe. Napoleon's first plan was to double back the allied left on the center. This involved the capture of La Haie Sainte, and as a strategic corollary the taking of Hougomont. The latter place was first attacked. The field and wood were carried; but the chateau was held in the midst of horrid carnage by the British.

Early in the afternoon a Prussian division, under Bulow, about 10,000 strong, came on the field, and Napoleon had to withdraw a division from his center to repel the oncoming Germans. For two or three hours in the area between La Haie Sainte and Hougomont the battle raged, the lines swaying with uncertain fortune back and forth. La Haie Sainte was taken and held by Ney. On the whole the British lines receded. Wellington's attempt to retake La Haie Sainte ended in a repulse. Ney on the counter-charge called on Napoleon for reinforcements, and the latter at that moment, changing his plan of battle, determined to make the principal charge on the British center. The support which he sent to Ney was not as heavy as it should have been, for the Marshal concluded that the crisis was at hand, and Napoleon sought to support him with Milhaud's cuirassiers and a division of the Middle Guard. Under this counter-charge the British lines reeled and staggered, but still clung desperately to their position. They gave a little, and then hung fast and could be moved no farther. In another part of the field Durutte carried the allied position of Papelotte, and Lobau routed Bulow from Planchenois. At half past four everything seemed to portend disaster to the allies and victory to the French.

Just at this juncture, however, an uproar was witnessed far to the right. The woods seemed to open, and the banners of Blucher shot up in the horizon. Grouchy was not on his rear or flank! Napoleon saw at a glance that it was then or never. His sun of Austerlitz hung low in the west. The British center must be broken, or the Empire which he had builded with his genius must pass away like a phantom. He called out four battalions of the Middle and six of the Old Guard. In the last fifteen years that Guard had been thrown a hundred times on the enemies of France, and never yet repulsed. It deemed itself invincible.

At seven o'clock, just as the June sun was sinking to the horizon, the bugles sounded, and the finest body of horsemen in Europe started to its doom on the squares of Wellington. The grim horsemen rode to their fate like heroes. The charge rolled on like an avalanche. It plunged into the sunken road of O'Hain. It seemed to roll over. It rose from the low grounds and broke on the British squares. They reeled under the shock; then reformed and stood fast. Around and around those immovable lines the soldiers of the Empire beat and beat in vain. It was the war of races at its climax. It was the final death-grip of the Gaul and the Teuton. The Old Guard recoiled. The wild cry of La Garde recule was heard above the roar of battle. The crisis of the Modern Era broke in blood and smoke, and the past was suddenly victorious. The Guard was broken into flying squadrons. Ruin came with the counter-charge of the British. Ney, glorious in his despair, sought to stay the tide. For an hour longer he was a spectacle to gods and men. Five horses had been killed under him. He was on foot. He was hatless. He clutched the hilt of a broken sword. He was covered with dust and blood. But his grim face was set against the victorious enemy in the hopeless and heroic struggle to rally his shattered columns.

Meanwhile the Prussians rushed in from the right. Wellington's guards rose and charged. Havoc came down with the darkness. A single regiment of the Old Guard was formed by Napoleon into a last square around which to rally the fugitives. The Emperor stood in the midst and declared his purpose to die with them. Marshal Soult forced him out of the melee, and the famous square, commanded by Cambronne—flinging his profane objurgation into the teeth of the English—perished with the wild cry of Vive l'Empereur!

On that spot French patriotism has planted a bronze lion to commemorate forever the extinction, not of the Old Guard only, but of the Empire and of Napoleon the Great. There the traveler from strange lands pauses, at the distance of eighty years from the horrible cataclysm, and reflects with wonder how within the memory of living men human nature could have been raised by the passion of battle to such sublime heroism as that displayed in these wheatfields and orchards where the Old Guard of France sank into oblivion, but rose to immortal fame.

The rest may be briefly summarized. Napoleon once more in Paris is obliged to abdicate without conditions. He becomes a fugitive. On the 3rd of July we see him at Rochefort, on the western coast. He would fain reach the United States; but the English fleets patrol the Atlantic. His mind is confused amid the wrecks of his destiny. He changes his purpose, and throws himself on the generosity of England. He claims to be a prisoner of war, and expects the treatment accorded by international law to great captains taken in battle. Vain expectation! He is conveyed to Torbay on the 25th of July. There are furious debates in the British Commons. For what shall we do with Him?

That indeed, O Great Britain, is a question! The worst, the most ungenerous thing is done. He shall be banished to St. Helena. The thing is accomplished. On the 16th of October, 1815, the greatest military leader, and in many respects the most remarkable man who has appeared in the world since the era of Christ, was debarked on his desolate island, that "Petite Isle" with which he had concluded his school exercise at Autun, thirty-six years ago!

Napoleon was not only exiled; he was imprisoned. St. Helena was his prison. He was guarded. His masters watched him with cruel surveillance for nearly six years. Under their sleepless eyes he dictated his "Memoirs" to Bertrand, conversed with his friends, or caught an hour in solitude on the rocks near Longwood, looking out to the sea. His health at length gave way. Though his constitution was superb, there was an organic malady which came, as if from his father's grave, to destroy him. An ulcer of the stomach—symptoms of which had appeared at intervals for a decade—began its ravages, and in a few months he sank away. It was on the 5th of May, 1821, in the midst of a terrible tempest desolating the island, that Napoleon died.

They gave him a grave under some willow trees, by a fountain in Slane's valley. There for nineteen years and a half his body lay, until a new generation, rising from the shadows of a revised Bourbonism, turned to the hero who, at the beginning of the century, had made France the first of nations; to him who had led her armies to victory and built for her an empire covering the better part of Europe. On the 15th of December, 1840, the body of the Emperor Napoleon, under the care of the not ungallant sons of Louis Philippe, was brought back in state from the desolate island of his exile and death. The coffin with the Great Dust in it was taken in pomp and pageant unsurpassed through the streets of Paris, and deposited in the sarcophagus of dark-red porphyry, to rest for times and a time under the magnificent dome of the Invalides. There he reposes; and the Third Republic guards him.

Mr. Voorhees replied that he was not a candidate in the interest of any other person, and that he will not withdraw in favor of any one else.

Police Commissioner Roosevelt, of New York, is full of common sense when he sums up the matter of enforcing the excise laws on Sunday as follows:

It seems to me that every honest public official and every honest citizen ought to do everything possible to discourage the habit of passing legislation which it is not intended to enforce. Legislators will with light hearts put on the statute books laws which are designed to placate one set of citizens and at the same time endeavor to see that they are not enforced so as to placate another set. Such a course is absolutely subversive of the political foundations of morality. To put a law which is not observed and which is not meant to be observed upon the statute books is a crime. To enforce such a law against some people and not against others is a rather worse crime. We suffer in this country from over-legislation, and we suffer also from a lax administration of legislation.

The Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad are making a feature of selling ten trip tickets at reduced rates from the Oranges to New York. This is a policy that should be commended to the Jersey Central. While the fifty trip ticket of the Central is a great convenience and saving, yet there are many people who are unable to invest all the money at one time necessary to purchase them. The ten trip ticket would be a great convenience to many who make frequent trips to the metropolis, and who, no doubt, would make the journey oftener if such a privilege was extended, and thus increase the revenue of the road sufficiently to pay for its adoption.

The so-called "Nicholson" temperance law which went into effect, in Indiana, on the 1st inst., by proclamation of the Governor, is very stringent in its provisions. It requires that saloons shall only be located on the ground floors of buildings; prohibits the use of musical instruments in saloons; forbids connection between saloons and restaurants; prohibits screens and other obstructions to the view in saloons, and provides that a majority of the residents of a ward may prevent the issuance of a license to any saloon. In some parts of the State a disposition to resist the provissions of the law is reported, but the Brewers' Association has advised saloon keepers to observe the law, until the Supreme Court has passed upon it.

The councilmen who voted against the establishment of water hydrants for fire protection purposes on Martine avenue and Park avenue, because Mr. Martine is delinquent in taxes, displayed poor judgment. Whatever Mr. Martine owes for taxes the city will get, with ten per cent interest added. There are several valuable residences in that section, including Harned academy, who are now without proper protection, and against whom the council's action effects as much as Mr. Martine. The Daily Press regrets that any such spirit as evinced in this action should have found favor in the minds of any councilman.

DUNELLEN'S SLAUGHTER.

The Arlingtons Are Playing Winning Ball Nowadays.

The Arlington Athletic Club of this city played the Dunellen Athletic Club on the latter's grounds Saturday, and defeated them by a score of 21 to 6. The Arlingtons played all around the Dunellenites, winning very easily. Bogart, who pitched a few games for the Y. M. C. A. team of this city, tried his hand at pitching, but he lasted only four innings, for the Arlingtons pounded his curves all over the field. The Arlingtons played a very fine fielding game, only three errors being charged against them. While the Dunellenites also played a good game, that did not count, for the Arlingtons had their last defeat still in their minds and were bound to get sweet revenge, and they got it, as the score will show.

The pitching of Sutphen for the Arlingtons was perfect, only five hits being made off his delivery, two of which were infield hits. The features of the game was the batting of the whole Arlington team.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destored forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness, caused by catarrh, that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

GOOD SHOT BUT POOR AIM.

SIXTH STREET HOUSE BOMBARDED WITH A CANNON RAMMER.

A Fourth of July Present that Proved to Be a Dangerous Instrument in the Hands of a Youth.

There are very few Plainfielders who have been bombarded by cannon but that list has been enlarged by Mrs. Alonzo Weseman and children, of East Sixth street, who passed through a novel and rather dangerous experience Monday morning. A colored lad named Peterson, who lives in the East Sixth street row, was made a present of a cannon all loaded and primed. As he was away on the Fourth, he did not celebrate that day, but the thought of the cannon still remained in his mind and yesterday he decided to shoot it. It was only supposed to be loaded with powder and wadding, but in some unexplained manner an iron rammer about fifteen inches long got down the muzzle. The cannon was a large one, being nearly twenty inches long and with a bore an inch in diameter. Peterson aimed the cannon at the chicken house, so he says, and then fired it. But the cannon was a wicked one and at the moment of explosion turned and pointed at Mr. Weseman's house. With a tremendous bang it went off, and so did the rammer, which missed a window by about a foot and crashed into the clapboarding with a noise that was heard all around. But luckily for the inmates it struck sideways and the filling of brick prevented it from going clear through the wall, but two of the weatherboards were smashed and the framework inside somewhat battered. The cannon became so frightened at what it had done that it exploded and flew in every direction. The colored boy was somewhat worried and actually turned pale with terror. After a well deserved reprimand from Mrs. Weseman, he met Mr. Weseman, who is the superintendent at the Scott Printing Machine Works, on his return to lunch, and like a man told him what he had done and was very glad to pay the damage on being told that the stern policeman would not be sent for.

HURT BY A HAIRPIN.

Mrs. Gavett Suffered a Peculiar Accident This Morning.

A serious accident occured this morning in front of Marsh, Ayers & Co's. store. Mrs. Joseph Gavett with her children drove up in a two seated surrey. There were a number of wagons in the locality, forming a blockade and among them was one driven by Wm. J. Nelson. The wheels of his wagon collided with the wagon in which Mrs. Gavett and the children were seated. The horse became frightened and jumped on the sidewalk. The shafts and whiffletree were broken and the wagon upset, throwing Mrs. Gavett and the children out. Mrs. Gavett struck her head on the curbing and a hairpin in the back of her head made a painful incision.

The children were not injured. Howard Wilson caught the horse and prevented further damage. Joseph Gavett at once secured a wagon and took his wife home.

WORKING GIRLS.

WILLING, ABLE, AND AMBITIOUS,

But Often Held Back by an Illness They do not Understand.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

A young and intelligent working-girl of Brooklyn, N.Y., graphically pictures the working-girl's life.

Day in and day out, month after month, she toils. She is the bread-winner of the family, and must work that others may live. Rain or shine, warm or cold, she must get to her place of employment sharp on time. With the sunshine and gladness all crushed out of her life, she goes on until she falls.

Oh! this pictures only one of thousands. Some work in cramped positions, but the great majority of working girls, so to speak, live on their feet.

Among the latter the symptoms of female diseases are early manifested by weak and aching backs, pains in the lower limbs and lower part of the stomach. The "monthly period" is irregular: with some profuse, with others a cessation. The sure symptom, leucorrhœa, is present, and with faintness, weakness, loss of appetite and sleep. She may be sure that a womb trouble assails her. She knows not where to go for aid.

Miss Mary Smylie, of 2078 Susquehanna Avenue, Kensington, Philadelphia, Pa., urges her fellow working-girls to have faith in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She says: "I am a working-girl, and must stand eleven hours every day. I have suffered terribly from painful menstruation and kidney trouble; and my head was so dizzy I could hardly see. I began to take your Lydia Pinkham's Compound some time ago. It was highly recommended to me by a friend. Now I feel like a different girl: no more aches and pains. I am praising it to every one. Our Druggist sells lots of it.

BIG ROW IN THE NOTCH.

ITALIAN SEWER WORKERS ATTACK MICHAEL GLEASON.

A Beer Drinking Party Turned Into a Free Fight With Gleason the Under Dog.

The sewer gang of laborers living at the Notch near Washingtonville have had more or less trouble since they were located there. Quantities of beer are drank and the men become infuriated and the result is that fights are frequent. People who are obliged to pass the place say that they are not safe and they never know what is going to happen.

Sunday afternoon Michael Gleason, a sewer laborer living in town, paid the mountaineers a visit and as usual there was an abundance of beer. All hands had their share and more, too, when the crowd became very talkative and boisterous. A difference of opinion between Gleason and an Italian named Frank Derontz, in regard to something, resulted in the two having a fight.

The other Italians assisted Derontz and Gleason was unmercifully beaten and stabbed. A bottle was broken over his head inflicting several severe wounds. He was also stabbed in the hip with a penknife.

A man who works for Coddington, the iceman, heard the noise and went over just in time to save Gleason's life.

The injured man was taken to Dr. Carman and had his wounds dressed. This morning on a warrant issued by Justice Crosley, and endorsed by Justice Mosher, Constable Taynor arrested Derontz at his work on the corner of Central avenue and Fourth street and taken to the borough lock-up. Derontz says at a man named Servantz did the cutting and that he is innocent. A hearing will be held this afternoon.

There was not sufficient evidence to hold Frank Derontz for the stabbing of Michael Gleason, at the hearing before Justice Crosley this afternoon, and he was therefore released. Gleason would not press the charge.

SHOT WHILE ON A VACATION.

YOUNG SEYMOUR G. SMITH KILLED AT HARTWICK, N. Y., YESTERDAY.

Was Enjoying a Good Time in the Country When a Misaimed Bullet Brought His Career to a Close.

Sorrow entered the house of Seymour G. Smith, of Central avenue, Sunday afternoon, in the form of a telegram that told that Mr. Smith's youngest son, Seymour P. Smith, had been accidentally shot and killed at Hartwick, N. Y., where he was enjoying his vacation. The telegram gave no further details, but Mrs. S. G. Smith, mother of the deceased, and her other two sons, Fred and George, left on the midnight train for Cooperstown from which a nine mile stage ride takes them to Hartwick.

Last Monday, Seymour and his friend, Lester Baldwin, left for Hartwick where they were to spend the summer, to be joined this week by the rest of the Smith family.

The whole family feels the death very keenly as Seymour was much beloved by all. He was born in Brooklyn in October, 1879, of slight build and quiet in temperment. He was always looked upon as a careful boy and it is the opinion of most of his friends that he was shot through the carelessness of some one else.

He graduated with honor from the grammer department in the public schools, where he always stood high in his lessons, and was expected to follow the example of his brother and take a prominent part in the literary and athletic societies in the High School. He was a regular attendant at Henry B. Nayhal's class in the Crescent avenue Sunday school and was very popular among all the young people of the city and borough.

As Mrs. Smith lost her mother about a month ago, the loss of her youngest son comes all the harder, especially as she could not be present when he passed away.

AT KEITH'S THIS WEEK.

A Splended List of Attractions for this Week.

The excellence of the continuous performance at Mr. Keith's popular play house, the New Union Square, is not abated in the least during the summer months. On the contrary, every effort is made by the management to put forth attractions of such uncommon quality and quantity as to induce the Union Square patrons to continue loyal in their patronage. The house is now famous for its coolness, its perfect ventilation and its manifold comforts, while its programs are constantly of high standard. This week's show is headed by that long popular and always clever monologue comedian, George Thatcher, who thus makes his debut on Mr. Keith's stage. His engagement must be regarded as notable. Another new comer in the contributors performance is Harry Gilfoil, whose capital abilities as a mimic and whistler were long ago demonstrated in "A Trip to Chinatown." The Three Milons, the French trio of athletes, gymnasts and strong men, make their first appearance at Keith's tomorrow, and another item of newness in the bill is the engagement of Charles F. McCarthy, who was for many years Mr. Harrigan's leading comedian. McCarthy is to be assisted by Crimins and Gore and a special cast of 7 or 8 others, and they will present a short but lively farce. Others in the program include Smith and Campbell, the conversationalists; Swift and Chase, burnt cork musicians; Alburtus and Bertram, expert club swingers; Edward and Josie Evans, in a new comedy sketch; Whitman and Davis, in their travesty of "Blue Jeans." Sydney Grant and Miss Norton, in a refined singing and dancing skit; Boyal and Graham, knockabout pair; Raymond and Welch, trapeze performers; and Signora Adelina Roattini, an Italian singer new to this city; George W. Monroe, the "My Aunt Bridget" comedian, will make his debut at Keith's next week.

CIRCUS ON THE DIAMOND

GREAT LOT OF FUN AT THE CRESCENT OVAL SATRRDAY.

The Famous Original Crescents Go Down Before the Y. M. C. A. Team to the Tune of 21 to 12 Runs.

Barnum's circus has long been known as the best of its kind in the country, but it cannot equal the circus that took place at the Crescent Oval, Saturday afternoon, when the famous old Crescents tried their skill as ball tossers against that of the Y. M. C. A. team. The practice before the game was almost as much fun as the game itself. There stood Tom Keller, once manager of the famous Crescents, in his shirt sleeves catching the balls that came to firstbase with the air of an old timer. Out at short George Cornwell appeared stopping the balls and throwing to first with his old time vigor. Fred Walz, at second, showed he was alive yet, while Hervey Doane played his old position at third as if he had been doing it every day. After a time Joe Gavett showed up in a bicycle suit and tried to play first while Tee Kay went out to rightfield. John Murray, Jr., chased the long flies over in leftfield while Roger Murray, in an old Crescent suit, enjoyed himself at centre, while Corey and Townley, looked after the battery work.

The Y. M. C. A. team was badly broken up. Burt, the regular pitcher, failing to appear, while Captain Schoonmaker, the third baseman, and Schenck, from first, did not arrive until the middle of the game. Dupee twirled the ball in Burt's place for four innings, but lack of practice made him somewhat wild so each of the infielders was given a chance to show what kind of a pitcher he was.

The fun began in the first inning. The Y. M. C. A. boys were first at bat. Dupee had three strikes called on him and then McKelvey went to first on four balls. Hits from Runyon, F. Freeman, and a two-base hit from Wycoff, allowed Mac and Freeman to score, Runyon being caught at second. A muff of Davis's fly to centre sent Wycoff home, and strike out by A. Freeman ended the inning.

Errors by Dupee and McKelvey put Townley at third. Corey got his base on balls and then stole second, and both scored on a sacrifice hits by Gavett and Walz. Doane went out to Wycoff with the score three to two in favor of the Y. M. C. A's.

A base on balls and a stolen base put Bosterle on second base in the second inning and a pretty hit by McKelvey brought him home on the run. Cornwell stopped a hot one of Freeman's and got it to first in time to make the third out, with but the single run scored.

The Crescents were in for blood in their half of the inning, and on single hits by Cornwell and Townley, and sundry fumbles by the infield, delighted the rooters, by scoring three runs, thus making the score five to four in their favor.

The other team got a batting streak in the third inning, and hit Corey all over the field, a single, a double and a triple base hit resulting. Three runs were tallied for them, of which two were earned.

A big round goose egg was all the Crescents could make in their half of the inning, the score now standing seven to five in the "Y's" boys favor. Gavett and Keller now changed places, "Tee Kay" was given a chance to distinguish himself at first, which he did by catching every ball that came within his reach and running after flies in the most lively manner imaginable.

The fourth inning netted five runs for the Y. M. C. A., on two single hits and a multitude of errors, while the Crescents failed to score.

The fifth inning showed that the Crescents could play ball yet, for although their opponents filled the bases, they were unable to score. But the Crescents had the same luck in their half of the inning, Davis making a pretty catch of an apparently safe hit of Keller's.

Hits by Bolsterle, Dupee, and McKelvey, added by a dropped fly and a sacrifice hit by Schenck, brought in two more runs for the Y. M. C. A. nine in the sixth inning. Keller opened the lucky sixth for the Crescents by walking to first on four balls. Townley did likewise, Keller having a run to second on a wild pitch. Cornwell then ran for Keller and stole third, and both he and Townley scored on an error by Freeman. Corey went out on a high fly to Dupee, and Joe Gavett sent the grand stand into loud cheers by making a pretty hit over short and, after various adventures, completed the circuit by stealing all that was not given to him. Walz and Doane each went to first, but Cornwell and Johnny Murray ended the inning by hitting flies, Cornwell's out being made by a pretty left-handed catch of Dupee's.

In the seventh inning, an error by Corey and a two-base hit by McKelvey, sent in three more runs to the credit of the young men. While a two-base hit by Corey, and fumbled flies and grounders allowed three of the Crescents to cross the plates, making the score seventeen to eleven in favor of the Y's.

A very jolly time in the eighth inning made the Y. M. C. A. score four runs more. Schoonmaker bunting for two bases and coming home on Weykoff's single, while Schenck, Wyckoff, and Neal managed to run around also. With a man on third and one on second, the Crescents could not get one home in their inning.

Nothing was gained by the Y's in the last inning, while the Crescents made their only earned run, when Gavett got to first on a hit, took second on a sacrifice by Walz, and finished the circuit on a single by Doane to left field. Doane stole his second and third in fine style, but was unable to score before the last out.

The score by innings was:

Y. M. C. A.	3	1	3	5	0	2	3	4	0	—21
Crescents	2	3	0	0	0	3	3	0	1	—12

WITH RAQUET AND BALL.

Hillside Tennis Club Tournament Finished on Saturday.

Although the weather was not all that could be desired, a goodly number of people turned out at the courts of the Hillside Tennis Club on Saturday, to see the Fourth of July tournament played off. A few sets of the first round had been played on Thursday but the rain prevented any material progress in the tournament until Saturday, when by playing morning and afternoon all but the finals were finished in spite of frequent showers which made both watching and playing disagreeable. The last set was not played until nearly seven o'clock, but a number of people stayed until the end.

The play on both days was as follows:

First round—George Ryder beat C. Morgan 6-2, 6-8, 6-3. Henry Ryder beat V. R. Schuyler 6-0, 6-4. Henry D. West beat F. S. Keeler 6-8, 6-2, 6-2. George Schoonmaker beat W. V. A. Keeler 6-2, 6-1. S. Hunter beat C. Pfeiffer 6-2, 6-1. W. L. McClure beat H. L. Bogert by default. J. H. P. Wharton beat T. A. Smith by default. F. K. Fish, Jr. beat R. A. Beebe 6-2, 6-4.

Second round—H. Ryder beat C. Morgan 6-1, 6-1. H. D. West beat George Schoonmaker 6-3, 7-5. S. Hunter beat W. L. McClure 6-4, 6 1. F.K. Fish, Jr. beat J. H. P. Wharton 6-2, 6-3.

Semi-finals—H. Ryder beat H. D. West 6-3, 6-3. F. K. Fish, Jr. beat S. Hunter 6-4, 6-4.

The finals between Henry Ryder and F. K. Fish, Jr., will be played off some time this week and should make an interesting match. The prize is a pair of gold sleeve links.

A Cow Suit.

The appeal suit of Farmer John Edgeworth, of Linden township, against Policeman Henry O'Rourke, of Rahway, has just been tried in the Union County Court. Justice Frazee gave a judgment for $50 against Edgeworth as damages in the sale of some cows to Officer O'Rourke. Edgeworth refused to pay this money and carried the case to the higher court. After all the testimony was submitted Judge McCormick said the Court would reserve its decision.

THE PARK CLUB FIREWORKS

A TRIFLE BELATED BUT ENJOYED JUST THE SAME.

An Immense Crowd Gathered to Witness the Display—A Dance to the Guests Afterwards.

There is more real enjoyment in an unpremeditated affair than in half a half a dozen previously arranged schemes, and so it was with the dance at the Park Club Saturday evening. The fireworks were a success although they had been arranged before hand, but would have been a greater success had not a thunder shower appeared at the most importune moment and mixed up everything generally. The committee in charge of the pyrotechnic exhibit consisted of B. A. Hegeman, Jr., William J. Roome, Edwin T. Douglass, Julius E. Erickson, Charles A. Reed and William G. Runyon. The Consolidated Fireworks Company, of New York, furnished the fireworks and sent a corps of their men to set them off, which accounted for the prompt manner in which the firing was done. The committee also deserve great credit, as the celebration was one of the best Plainfield ever saw. Rockets, batteries, mines and fountains of fire followed each other in rapid succession, while colored lights cast a pale or ruddy glow, as the case might be, over the assembled throng. The set pieces deserved the hearty applause that they received.

The well-kept grounds of the Park Club were crowded with the invited guests, while outside Washington avenue was packed with a dense throng who came to watch the postponed celebration. When the exhibit was about concluded a few drops of rain and thunder and lightning sent the crowd scurrying for shelter, and soon the dancing hall of the clubhouse was alive with the gay dancers, while Rogers and Conde played dance inspiring music. The dance was only arranged at the very last moment, when a committee, consisting of Carl Brown, W. E. MacClymont and Wm. Thiers, started the ball rolling, which ended by the junior members of the club giving an informal dance. It was informal, too, some of the young men appearing in negligee costume and others in evening dress.

Down stairs in the bowling alleys ice cream was served, while punchbowls of lemonade sat around for the thirsty visitor.

The decorations in the dancing hall were the same as on the Fourth, while outside strings of Chinese lanterns cast a soft light on the scene. The dance was even better attended than that of the Fourth, and the visitors only departed when Sunday morning drew near.

Among those who were present during the evening were:

Mr. and Mrs. Lemuel Serrell, Mr. and Mrs. William E. MacClymont, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Brewster, Mr. and Mrs. George Hallock, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Howell, Mr. and Mrs. Buckingham, Mr. and Mrs. William J. THE CONTINUOUS SHOW.

The continuous show at Proctor's is just a novel, high class and admirable in midsummer as in midwinter. One of the chief factors in the remarkable success of this popular resort has been the maintaining of a high standard of entertainment. On the Fourth of July, about the worst theatrical holiday of the year over a thousand people were turned away. This is significant of the success of the Proctor policy. Elsie Adair, a delightful comiedenne and dancer, who has been touring Japan, China and India with her own company, and winning great honors from Oriental dignities, is a feature this week, assisted in her bright and breezy sketches by Walter Vanderlip. The Four Emperors of Music have a capital melange of humor and harmony. Stinson and Merton are very funny in "The Insurance Agent" and others of entertaining gaiety are Madeline Marshall and Fanny St. Clair, serio comics; Nelsonia, finger shadowist and necromancer; Borgore and Moore, the pretty California character duettists; Claudine, a dancer of remarkable skill; Ward and Lynch, originators of "Little Johnny Doogan!", M'lle. Bertini, contortionist; Kennedy and Quinn, eccentric comedians; Aida Armout, male impersonator; Chas. H. Stanley, comedian and parodist and Atlas, the modern juggler. Mr. Proctor's new million dollar theatre in east 58 street, between 3d and Lexington avenues, will be opened September 2, and will be known as Proctor's Pleasure Palace. It will be the most comprehensive place of amusement in America, embracing music hall, thertre, garden of palms, Turkish Divan, German cafe, Roof Garden and other novel features.

AN INCIDENT OF THE BOULEVARD.

John Dorgan Was Tough, So He Swore and Fought An Officer.

Things were rather lively on the Boulevard yesterday afternoon. John Dorgan was coming down Liberty street near the Mt. Olive Baptist church when he met the colored special officer, Pine Yetman. Dorgan began to curse and swear when Yetman requested him to be quiet and go home. He refused and continued his disorder and then the officer started to arrest him. Dorgan resisted and a lively little scrap ensued in which Dorgan's mother and father, who had now arrived on the scene, took a hand. A bystander came to the assistance of Yetman and the culprit was taken to jail.

When brought before Judge Coddington, this morning, he pleaded guilty to the charge of disturbing the peace and resisting the officer. The Judge gave him his choice between a fine of $10 and thirty days in the county jail. The fine was paid.

Hudson River By Daylight.

The most attractive and charming inland water trip on the American continent for Summer travel, is by the Hudson River Day line of steamboats, leaving foot of Desbrosses street, North River, daily, at 8:40 a. m., and 22d street at nine o'clock, arriving at Albany at 6:00 the same day, thus giving a full day on the magnificent Hudson River. The palatial iron boats, "New York" and "Albany," are second to none in American waters for speed and comfort; and to further add to their attractiveness band concerts are given every morning and afternoon by a first-class orchestra. Meals are served a la carte and table d'hote. The fare on these magnificent floating palaces is considerably less than by rail, (about one-half) and the conveniences and comforts are not to be compared.

A Choir Boy for Seven Years.

Master Arthur Smith, son of Borough Councilman W. C. Smith, has been presented with a handsome silver watch by Rev. T. Logan Murphy in recognition of his faithful services as choir boy in Holy Cross church during the past seven years. Holy Cross vested choir was organinized seven years ago. Master Smith has been singing in the choir from the very beginning.

THE SHIRT WAIST.

COOLEST AND MOST CONVENIENT OF WOMEN'S GARMENTS.

Two Suits of Stylish Cut, One of Crinkly Silk, the Other of Gray Alpaca. Sashes and Bows Should Now be All Loops and No Streamers.

One of the distinguishing features of this season's styles in dress is that most sashes and bows are all loops and no ends. The ribbon belt or sash invariably ends with big, bristling bunches of loops. The long, floating streamers of former years seem to have almost disappeared.

When well fitting in every respect, properly laundered and carefully adjusted, the shirt waist is a stylish and becoming garment. When ill-fitting, badly laundered and, instead of reposing peacefully at the waist line it bulges at the shoulders and lets the dress shirt band show below the belt, the shirt waist is most unbecoming and non-stylish. This year's shirt waist is noticeable for a decided improvement in make. The improvement, too, extends to its wearers. The majority of shirt waists that are seen nowadays are worn with style and grace, and as one sees several hundred daily, this may be taken as conclusive. The only way to insure a shirt waist keeping in place is to have a waistband at the waist line. At the back it should also have large metal eyes, upon which the dress skirt should be hooked. The outside belt should then be pinned down in the back, after which there can be no danger of the unwelcome gap.

Here is a gown with several novel characteristics to recommend it. First, its skirt is slightly trimmed. Second, its sleeves vary just a trifle from the season's ordinary arm covering. Third, its bodice is of a cut becoming to almost any style of figure. The color of the gown is a medium shade of light blue, with trimmings of jet and butter-colored lace. Its material is crinkly silk. The skirt, which flares well all round, has in the front two long V-shaped insertions of minor velvet of a darker shade of blue and ending with jet ornaments near the waist line. The only other touches of velvet about the gown are the plain round belt and the high choker collar, over which are two little tabs of French muslin edged with butter-colored lace. The bodice is of plaited black chiffon over blue silk, drawn down tightly in the back and sagging in the front. A yoke effect is supplied by bands of black jet trimming placed across the front and downward from the shoulders. The sleeves are all of the silk, but the enormous puff is caught up much higher than is usual, leaving quite a length of tight-fitting sleeve below. This puff is apparently held in place by a big, butterfly-shaped bow of yellow lace. At the wrist the sleeve is ornamented with a lengthwise trimming of jet. The hat worn with this gown is broad brimmed and is turned up in the back. It is of black straw, with two blue plumes and a mass of yellow lace to give it color.

Another gown is of gray alpaca. Its skirt is full and flaring. Its plaited bodice is drawn down tightly under a belt and extends below in a brief but very full skirt. This bodice also has a yoke effect, produced this time by deep, running pieces of yellow lace. A black ribbon stock with spreading loops is at the neck. The belt, also of black ribbon, is fastened in front with a rosette and falling ends of the lace. The sleeves hang in large puffs to the elbow and fit smoothly below. The cuffs are caught midway with rosettes of the yellow lace. Down the bodice

A FORGETFUL SENATOR.

And the Trouble His Absentmindedness Caused in His Household.

"In matters purely social," remarked a Cabinet officer to a reporter for the Washington Star, "I never like to be quoted, so in what is to follow you may omit my name.

"Last winter one of our best known Senators from one of the Gulf States lying between Louisiana and Florida was at the theater. After the performance, he, with a friend, repaired to a German restaurant to be refreshed.

"For the first time in his long and well spent life he encountered that powerful confection known as Limburger cheese. He was delighted with it as with a revelation in gastronomy. He craved of the owner of the hostelry a specimen of the cheese that he might convey it to his household, there to be exhibited and taught to them as a lesson in the palatable, and all to the end that large quantities of the cheese might be purchased and consumed by them. The good natured restaurateur gave the statesman an entire cheese, wrapped in the usual tinfoil which is its market overcoat.

"The Senator blithely received the cheese and stowed it away in the stern sheets of his dress suit. Then he went home, and hanging his costume in the wardrobe, went to bed.

"In the morning, with the approacing cares of a tariff day overshadowing any memory of that Limburger, he pulled on his every day suit and went down to the Senate. When he sought his home again at 6 p. m., he found doors and windows open, while his family went about in furs and similar defenses against the cold.

"There were artisans about who had taken up flooring boards, sawed into the wainscot and torn ragged holes in the frescoes over his head. The house looked as if some plumber who loved his art had been looking for a leak.

"'What's the trouble here?' demanded the Senator with a strain of irritation in his tone.'

"'There's a dead mouse in the wall or floor somewhere,' said his wife from out her sealskins. 'We've got to find it and get rid of it. We can't live in the house.'

"Then the statesman remembered the faithful Limburger lurking in his dress coat. It was removed from office, and a colored person was employed to carry it to leeward of the Senator's household as far as he could go for two bits."

HE WAS WILLING.

Time Had Tempered His Grief for His Lamented Partner.

There was an old man with a big and bulky satchel at his feet and a weed on his hat leaning against the Griswold street front of the Detroit post office the other day, when a vag who had been hanging around for the right sort of man to appear, approached him and said:

"I see that the grim destroyer has invaded your hearthstone."

"The which?" asked the old man.

"The grim destroyer—the angel of death. I take it your wife has gone hence."

"Yes, gone hence."

"Allow me to extend my heartfelt sympathies."

"Yes, you kin extend 'em."

"You must be lonely."

"Yes, purty lonely."

"I have lost the partner of my own bosom, and I know how it feels. You seem to be all alone in this great world?"

"Yes, that's the feelin'."

"Life appears to be a desert to you?"

"Yes, reglar desert, with sand a foot deep."

"But in your loneliness—in the seeming emptiness of your life—has it not occurred to you that you could do something to add to the happiness of your fellow man?"

"Yes, it has."

"And will you do it?"

"I will. It's 'leven months now since my wife was taken away, and if you'll pint me out a woman about forty years old who wants to gets married I'll pop the question so gaul-durned quick that it will make her heels lift up. You betcher life I want to do sunthin' fur my feller man, and I'm waiting right here to get another sight of a woman whom I've follered fur three miles and winked at over a dozen times."

Bicycles Cutting Rail on Earnings.

The passenger earnings of many roads are not only being cut into locally by the trolley lines but by the bicycles. Since the warmer weather set in people living out a few miles from their business places who have been patronizing suburban trains now ride the bicycle. Where there are cities but a few miles apart the passenger men say that between the electric roads and the bicycle competition their local earnings are showing a marked decrease.

A passenger official who had just returned from Boston states that within a radius of eight to ten miles hundreds come in on bicycles on pleasant mornings and return in the evening in the same manner, and hundreds more find the electric cars quite an attraction, so that altogether the Boston steam roads are losing quite heavily on this particular portion of their income.

He say that Boston passenger men told him that trains that were formerly crowded are now fairly well filled, and in some instances a number of trains run for surbuban business have been taken off and those kept on are hauling fewer coaches.—Indianapolis Journal.

Here is a sentence from the new book on labor and the money power which Mary E. Lease is writing: "Rolling back the dark and tear stained curtains of the world's history, and looking down the long vista of years to connect the past with the present, it becomes manifest that two great agents or factors have ever controlled and robbed the hive of labor. These two factors have been the titled nobility or aristocracy of roy-

SKETCH OF JOHN WEIR.

His Life and Character Was One to be Modeled After.

John Weir who, in the prime of manhood, passed away at his home, 72 Willow avenue, was born in Thankerton-Lanarkshire, on the Clyde, Scotland, Oct. 3d, 1856. His parents, who survive him, are Scotch Presbyterians. The family removed from Scotland to Canada in 1865. John Weir, at the age of twenty-one years, came to New York, where by diligence in business, he became in 1885 the head of the firm of Weir & Hallett, grain commission merchants. At one time he was one of the board of managers of the Produce Exchange.

He married in 1882 Nina M. Skeel, daughter of Rev. H. Skeel, presiding elder of the Oswego district, New York. In 1887, Mr. Weir moved to Plainfield, occupying the house of Lebbeus Martin on Washington avenue. In 1890 he built the handsome house on Rockview avenue, at the head of Washington avenue, where he resided until signs of failing health made a change necessary. The house is now occupied by Charles Hogan.

Hemorrhage of the lungs, attending hasty consumption, made rapid inroads on a strong physique, and for four months Mr. Weir has been bravely facing the end at his home on Willow avenue. He was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church, of this place, and the vital quality of his religion was evidenced by his calm acceptance of his Father's will, and a firm reliance on the truths of divine grace, that made his leave-taking of earth a veritable "going home."

A quiet gentleness of manner, combined with real strength of character, won John Weir, during his lifetime, many true friends, and will win for his memory many gracious remembrances, and much heartfelt sympathy for the family so deeply bereaved, especially the wife who mourns the departure of a faithful husband, and two little girls who have lost a devoted father.

TALENTED ARTISTS.

Miss Lewis and the Company to Present the Famed Trilby.

Miss Catherine Lewis who is to appear at the Netherwood Hotel with her company on Thursday, the 11th inst., will be forever remembered by theatregoers for her successful appearance a few years as Bettina in the Mascotte. Her association with the Daly Company has constantly kept this star before the New York public. Her condensed dramatization of "Trilby" by permission of A. M. Palmer, is said to be very bright and effective. She herself plays Trilby to the life and is ably supported by the Countess of Castelvecchio as Svengali—a powerful creation—the methods and slightly foreign accents of this artiste making her especially suited to the part. The rest of the company is highly spoken of.

The laughable scene in costume and with music from Mid-summer Night's Dream, entitled "Pyranus and Thisbe" completes and entertainment quite out of the ordinary.

New Market People Agitated.

A special meeting of the Borough Commissioners will be held at New Market this evening to take action in the matter of the breaking the public lamps and destruction of property on the night of the third of July.

It is well known the party numbered about nine and hailed from the adjoining borough of Dunellen. Seven of the names are known, and sufficient evidence is in hand to warrant a prosecution for malicious mischief unless the parties come forward with an apology and offer to pay the damage. But it is a question whether such a settlement should be made. It is thought that an example would be a preventative of such depredations in future.

TRAINED NURSE'S SUDDEN DEATH.

Mrs. Vail called Mr. Nischwitz, who was near, and started for Dr. Cooley. Marshall Goodwin was met and he learned of the sudden death and went to the house. Dr. Cooley came later and said death was caused by appoplexy.

Not the W. C. T. U.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—

Will you please correct the statement that the "W.C.T.U. have ordered barrels of ice water at various corners, for a supply of free ice water." It is not the W. C. T. U., but the Woman's Temperance Aid Society of Reform Hall who intend to give a "cup of cold water" to the thirsty on the Fourth. By giving space to the above correction in your columns, you will greatly oblige, Mrs. J. H. King,

A DRIZZLING FOURTH.

Rain Spoiled a Big Day for Plainfield.

A LARGE CROWD DISAPPOINTED.

The Morning Started Out Well, But the Rain Made a Fizzle of the Celebration—The Celebration Committee Worked Hard But Could Not Overcome Unforseen Obstacles—Elaborate Decoration of Private Houses and a Magnificent Parade.

From the Press of July 5.

The glorious Fourth started out to be a sizzler but ended by being a drizzler. But in all things it was not a fizzler.

When Farmer Dunn predicted bright skies without a drop of water, it simply showed that Farmer Dunn did not know what he was talking about.

At twilight yesterday morning the clouds looked dark and threatening. and as the morning went on it grew still more that way.

The small boy, the middle sized boy, the big boy, and the man who acted like the small boy, were up with the birds and some of them before the feathered songsters. They all had fire crackers and punk or matches. And they all were bent on making noise and they made it. Old Morpheus thereat simply went out of business for a day, and the rest of Plainfield's population got up and enjoyed the fun.

About the business section of the city the celebration commenced Wednesday evening. The city ordinances state that no fireworks shall be shot off before twelve o'clock the night previous to the Fourth. Like the faithful men they are the police tried to enforce the law. Now and then they would catch some youngster unawares who had touched off a cracker and threaten to incarcerate him in the rookery if he repeated the act before twelve o'clock. But it was to much for a half dozen coppers to try cope with a thousand patriotic people who were going to make the most of the first celebration Plainfield has enjoyed in two decades. So the officers simply quit and the cracker and punk reigned supreme, while the officers saw that no rash acts that would endanger life or property were committed.

During Wednesday evening North avenue seemed to be the most noisy place in the city. The incessant siss and bang of the cracker was heard from nine o'clock. Just at twelve o'clock when the steam gong, church bells and hundreds of ear ringing instruments belched forth volleys to celebrate the 119th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence, a dozen young men, headed by Patriots Rice and Miller, emerged from the dark recesses of nearby alleys loaded down with waste boxes, crates and other inflammable material. Puting them in a pyramid in the center of the street opposite the Hotel Grenada, Billy Moffett touched the match, and a little flickering flame blazed up which soon went heavenward to the height of twentyfive feet. Tony Lusardi generously opened up his cellar and for a half hour the bonfire was replenished with orange boxes, etc., much to the delight of the gathered multitude.

All the morning trains yesterday brouht in large delegations from outlying towns, while a constant stream of farmers' wagons journeyed in over the country roads.

The parade was remarkable in a great many things, one of the most novel of which was the promptness with which it was started after the scheduled time. The various divisions formed and marched over the streets as published in The Daily Press of Wednesday. They were reviewed by the executive committee, mayors and councils, and visitors at the Revere house.

The line had scarcely started when a mist began to fill the air which developed into a sprinkle, which continued to the end of the march, and which finally developed into a pelting rain which made lively scurrying among the assembled crowd to get under cover.

The rain spoiled the afternoon and evening, and every outgoing train after twelve o'clock carried away as many as the morning trains had brought in. This was a knocker-out for the merchants who had made big preparations to handle the crowd. The rain continued most of the afternoon and evening with slight let ups. The games at the Crescent oval and the exercises in the city park were necessarily abandoned. The display of fireworks at Martine's common was postponed to Tuesday evening.

THE DECORATIONS.

Private Homes and Business Blocks Were in Holiday Attire.

Plainfield commenced to put on her patriotic garb, on Wednesday morning, and from that time up to the time the parade started, the decorations appeared all over the city.

The residences of C. W. Burton and Dr. E. W. Hedges on Watchung avenue looked especially fine with red white and blue bunting, and American flags, large and small. Herbert L. Moody of Watchung avenue and Sixth street, had a novel sort of decoration, besides numerous flags and Chinese lanterns. His little girls were all dressed as little Liberty's and made a very pretty picture sitting together on the piazza.

The Revere House from whose veranda the parade was reviewed, had bunting all along the sides and post of the piazza. Ex-Mayor, George W. Rockfellow and O. T. Waring, of Park avenue, decorated their houses with flags and bunting. A very large flag was stretched over Mr. Waring's front lawn.

Julius E. Errickson's residence on West Eight street, was tastefully decorated with broad bands of bunting run from the top of the house to the piazza roof. Jacob Kirkner's and W. D. Wadsworth's home on West Eighth street, were also prettily decorated with an abundance of bunting.

Liberty street blossomed out in all its glory, almost every house was liberally decorated. St. Mary's school was especially fine; a shield was placed over the door and bunting fastened all over the front of the building. The C. Y. M. L. club house had bunting hanging from the piazza about the posts. The Gem Pharmacy and the grocery of F. Westphal & Son, opposite, were much admired, the side of Westphal's store having July 4th, in large letters of bunting, while a banner, "Welcome Red Men and Patriots" was stretched across the street.

On Park avenue, Tier's, the City Hotel and the Vanderbeek building were especially deserving of mention, although almost all the merchants decorated very prettily. Boice, Runyon & Co. had one of the best in the city. From the top of their long flag pole strings of small flags were run to several points about the building.

Hotel Grenada, under the ready hands of Walter Gibson and H. C. Greenwood, took on a holiday appearance that was a credit to the decorators. Blair's livery stable was also trimmed up with bunting and flags until it could hardly be recognized.

On Front street there were many handsome displays, notably the Y. M. C. A. building, which was decked from cellar to garret in a pleasing manner. Across the street, J. Fred MacDonald's home was beautified with the prevailing colors, and the porch was made very attractive.

The G. A. R. building, Caspar's Hotel, Marshall's laundry, Leggett's Pharmacy, and the Central Hotel were all shown off elaborately with a profusion of bunting and flags. Shaw's drug store, J. P. Laire, Hallock's hat store, I. Lederer and I. Boehm's dry goods stores were trimmed handsomely, as was also Charles Smith's building. At the latter place an arrangement of greens and ferns was pleasing in effect, together with the display of flags. Berkaw's shoe store, Smith's grocery, Voehl's, and L. W. Randolph's were gorgeously treated to the National colors. White's dry goods store, Sherwin's shoe store, Ulrich & Blatz's Rand's, and Liefke's were not not forgotten, and they presented additional features. Across Front street at Music Hall a banner was stretched which gave welcome to the Red Men, and so on through the main street every store was prettily decorated and also many private houses.

At the corner of Park place and Somerset street the tennis court of the Epworth League were novelly decorated with the flags of all nations. The places on Somerset street that were especially noteworthy were J. J. Stahl's, Boyce's Hotel, Gesang and Turn Verein Hall, H. N. Spencer's, Crescent Hotel, Blimm's Hotel and Thorn's block. Of course there were many other decorations, but it would be impossible to enumerate them all.

The executive committee float was very handsome, being prettily trimed. In the rear was the Goddess of Liberty, Miss Sadie Smith, who took the part with much grace and effect.

One of the most elaborate floats in the parade was that of the Odd Fellows. A number of the members were dressed in costumes representing the order in its various departments. The entire affair was one of beauty.

The Red Men turned out in full force and were well represented. Miantonomah Tribe prepared their float to represent William Penn making a treaty with the Indians, who were, by-the-way, very good braves for white men.

Paugh Caugh Naugh Sinque Tribe were ready for war. Several on horse back led the tribe, then came the trailers guarding the float. This was certainly a very good one and showed lots of thought and plenty of hard work in preparing it. A hollow tree occupied the principal place in the centre while in it, a big dog made to represent a brown bear lazily gazed at the passersby. Braves were grouped about in various attitudes with all their implments of war close by.

The Junior Order United American Mechanics fell into line with a float that did them honor. In front sat Virtue, a little girl dressed in white. High above in the centre sat Liberty, a young woman very prettily costumed, and in the rear stood Patriotism leaning on a rifle and dressed in the uniform of the United States Army.

L. W. Randolph's float consisted of a wagon with two large mirrors on each side and giving a display of perfumes and drugs. An immense graduating glass was a feature of the exhibit.

Next came the old fire bell, which was exhibited through the kindness of J. D. Runyon, as he furnished the horses, wagon and lumber. Those acting as an escort were George Mehl, Charles Johnson, J. E. Huntington, Alex. Manning, Geo. Studer. The drivers were Frank Fine, Fred Bechtle, and those leading the horses were Thomas Johnson and Theodore Smith. The bell which is twenty years old, was much admired. The names on the bell were E. R. Pope, president; J. C. Sutphen, tresurer; W. L. Force, secretary; J. W. Murray, Wallace Vail, J. Adams, and Chief W. H. Voorhees.

W. J. Tunnison gave an elaborate exhibition of flour and feed on a float. Several girls dressed in white added to the attractiveness.

Addis & Son's display was novel, showing the improved sanitary fixings that are now furnished the modern homes.

Patterson Bros. were represented by four wagons neatly trimmed, and F. W. Hand had two wagons with displays, and coal and wood.

George Tobin had an elaborate display of a bath tub, seated in which was a boy of dusky hue.

Woolston & Buckle, and Ivins & Co., joined in making a grand display of wall papers, and coal. The float was neatly trimmed throughout.

O. F. Pearson, with one wagon, had a choice display of bunting and flags.

An attractive display was that of J. P. Emmons, representing a chimney, with two small boys dressed to represent masons.

Fred Endress, the butcher, had three wagons very handsomely deorated.

L. B. Manning had a float, on which were men cutting marble and granite. It was well arranged.

The modern method of making bricks was an attractive display that R. A. Boyce gave on a float.

A. C. Rogers, the contractor, had an exceedingly pretty float. It showed a minature model house, and surrounding all was a pretty lawn with drives, etc.

Ulrich & Blatz's float contained a sausage machine.

D. T. Kenney exhibited one of the latest style bath tubs with running shower bath on his float.

A very pretty statue of a young girl carved in stone occupied J. E. Townsend's float underneath which were the words, "We did it with our little hatchet."

Edsall's float represented a section of the store, and on the counter lace, ribbons, neckties and a few of the other articles he has for sale. This was one of the best floats in line.

John Abbott turned out with a model house on his float which, with its yard and trees, looked quite realistic.

The World's Fair exhibition of the United States Express made a very pretty show with its two teams of dapple gray horses and gold mounted harness.

Harry Werner had a little cart drawn by two donkeys and driven by a clown.

The W. C. T. U. was represented in line by a float, decorated with bunting and the inscription "The Rum Traffic must be put down. Will you help us?" in large letters on the side.

W. L. and J. M. Smalley, the meat dealers, had a large steer as emblematic of their trade.

A wagon load of men, sewer pipe, and tools, represented Honan & Son, the sewer contractors.

A rustic scene was the float of the Manhattan Hotel, with bottles of liquors and wines, and kegs of beer artistically arranged.

Smalley Brothers float was the last in the procession, but not the least. In the front, one of their clerks cut and chopped meat in the most accomplished manner. Prettily dressed children were grouped in the centre, while a pen containing several sheep occupied the rear of the float.

The Crescent Wheelmen had a very pretty float with a large crescent, surrounded by two safeties and an old ordinary high wheel. William Van Sickel put his efforts on this float, instead of arranging one for himself.

HERE AND THERE.

Interesting Minor Incidents of the Day Picked Up at Different Points.

—Many of the citizens will long remember the Indians with the long name, Paugh-Caugh-Naugh-Sinque, whose float was admired by all, and the visiting band of Indians of Owaliga and Oliander tribes, of New Brunswick. They were without a doubt the life of the parade. The little pony, led by an Indian chief, was the pet of the children. The young bull saddled and ridden by an Indian was a feature. For one of the best equipped floats in the line credit must be given this tribe. The idea was entirely original with their four beautiful black horses, each horse led by an experienced colored coachman in full Continental livery, and the handsome Newfoundland dog, which many thought was a bear, weighing 200 pounds, and the gorgeous costumed Indians upon the float, was the admiration of all. It was so arranged that the colors of the order were unfurled to the pure American breeze. The designer of this handsome and original float was that popular Indian, John H. Carney. It was built by those ever-willing Indians, Messrs. Harris, Neal, and Clark; artistically decorated by the rising young decorator, J. Wm. Klein. Immediately after the parade the guests were escorted to their wigwam, where an elaborate spread was in waiting for them. The reception committee was Messrs. Conover, Van Arsdale, Serrell, Allen, L. K. Clark, and Elmer H. Neal.

—The dinner of the executive committee and their guests took place in the afternoon at one o'clock in the dining room of the Revere House. Those present were Vincent W. Nash, Mayor B. A. Hegeman, Jr., Major Z. K. Pangborn of Jersey City, Sheriff Kyte of Fanwood, James E. Martine, Councilmen Frazee, Westphal, Moore and Bird, Charles M. Ulrich, Louis G. Timpson, M. J. Cashen, F. A. Long, Eugene M. Laing, William T. Kirk and ex-Mayor George W. Rockafellow. After a most enjoyable dinner, the party adjorned to the wide veranda where Drake's Band discoursed sweet music until half past past three o'clock.

—The East End Hook and Ladder Company, of Somerville, came to Plainfield yesterday expecting to parade, but in driving over the heavy roads between Bound Brook and Dunellen the rear axle of the truck was sprung and so weakened that it was not possible to join in the parade. The company instead drew up in front of the City Park and allowed the parade to pass by them and then joined their brethren of this city. The Liberty Hose Company and the Washington Engine Company, both of New Brunswick, brought about twenty-five men to Plainfield, but did not parade. No apparatus was brought.

—The absense of Packer's beautiful furniture float in the parade was owing to an unfortunate accident. William Klein, the driver, was going up Richmond street to get in line of the La Grande avenue division, and when he neared the railroad bridge he thought that he would investigate as to whether or not the float would pass under the structure. He understood the man who investigated to say "come ahead." The result was that the top of the float came in contact with the bridge, wrecking the whole affair and badly injuring the display of costly inlaid furniture.

—A cranky rocket plunged up against the side of Mr. Brewster's barn on Wednesday evening, instead of going skyward. Mr. Brewster's coachman quickly had a stream on it from the cellar hose and prevented the building from taking fire.

—The Press is able to state that the grand stand erected on Park avenue to witness the fireworks is the enterprise of a private individual and not the work of the general committee on celebration. Admission to the stand will be 50 and 75 cents.

—Mr. Edsall is entitled to special praise inasmuch as he was the only house in his line represented in the parade, and he spared no pains or expense to contribute so liberally to the success of the celebration.

—The invited guests, besides the city and borough officials, that rode in the parade were James E. Martine, of this city, Major Z. K. Pangborn, of Jersey City, and Sheriff George Kyte, of Fanwood.

—B. R. Western's lawn on Washington avenue, was appropriately decorated yesterday with a large bust of President Cleveland, draped with the American flag.

—Mrs. Oscar Terry, of 321 West Front street, had her dress burned by firecrackers last night, and but for the timely entrance of Mrs. H. T. Bower, her next-door neighbor, it might have proved quite serious.

—The North Plainfield fire gong was very patriotic at twelve o'clock on the morning of the Fourth, with its long one minute blast.

—The free water barrals of the Woman's Temperance Aid Society was an appreciated feature of the day.

—Drake's band serenaded the Hotel Grenada yesterday afternoon before leaving for Elizabeth.

—The W. C. T. U. wants to thank the ice companies for the ice they furnished yesterday.

—The day was remarkably free of accidents.

Will Come to Plainfield.

A delegation of both tribes of Red Men will go to Plainfield on Fourth of July morning in coaches. They will take part in the big street parade at that place and will be bedecked in their feathers and war paint. While at Plainfield they will be the guests of of the tribe there.—New Brunswick Home News.

A STREAM OF LEAD.

THE MAXIM GUNS SHOOT 600 BULLETS A MINUTE.

The Outfit Weighs Forty-Five Pounds and Can Be Set Up in Fifty-Eight Seconds. Test by Uncle Sam, and Probable Adoption of the Guns for Our Army.

Hiram S. Maxim has invented a machine gun that can be carried around by a soldier, set up somewhere as a photograph camera and fired 600 times a minute. The muzzle can be moved like a garden hose and made to direct a stream of lead upon any point. It is claimed that the stand makes it much more accurate than any gun held to the shoulder.

It has exactly the same principle as the Maxim quick firing gun used for naval and artillery purposes, but it is a smaller edition, making the gun practicable for infantry use. Its calibre is .303. It has a range of 3,200 yards and sends a bullet at a velocity of 1,850 feet a second. A bullet from it will go through 40 inches of oak.

At a recent trial at Sandy Hook, the gun was set up at the end of a long row of heavy artillery, such as those 12-inch rifles which sent a goodly proportion of a ton of steel into the ranks of an enemy. It looked something like a brass telescope, with a pistol butt instead of a peep hole, the whole set upon a tripod. Uncle Sam's soldiers, used to handling enormous cannon, looked somewhat contemptuously at it as if it were only a toy.

MAXIM CAVALRY CUT.

James Huber, expert for the Maxim-Nordenfelt Gun Company, handled the gun. It is fed with cartridges from a sort of cartridge belt made of canvas, holding 100 shells.

First of all Mr. Huber fired fifty shots. This little feat occupied five and four-fifths seconds. The bullets flew through the air 150 feet apart, and there was a continuous stream of empty shells from an aperture under the barrel. Seven empty shells were in the air constantly on their way to the ground.

As the light gun is used by the infantry, it is important to ascertain how quickly it can be taken from the packing case and put into action.

Expert Huber hung it over his shoulder in marching order. At a word from Capt. Heath he was supposed to sight an enemy concealed in the bush ahead of him and immediately began to take out the gun. He put it together, unpacked his cartridges and fired his first shot fifty-eight seconds after the alarm was given.

Masters Twenty Languages.

Prof. H. Soerlin, of Chicago, says that a man who speaks seven languages is not remarkable on that account. This was drawn from him by an article printed relating to a young lawyer who could write briefs in that many languages. Prof. Soerin claims no ability at law pleading in any language, but he can teach singing in twenty. He says he is a master of the following twenty languages:

English, Hebrew, Sanscrit, ancient Greek, modern Greek, Latin, German, Low German, French, Italian, Spanish, Polish, Russian, Dutch, Swedish, Norwegian, Danish, Bohemian, Hugarian and Portuguese. He has acquired these languages as an amusement. His business is teaching of vocal music. He is tired of singing, however, and wants to be an interpreter.

Prof. Soerin talked the other day concerning his singular linguistic talents. He is a remarkably small man, 50 years old, with thin, black hair, wide mouth, spectacles, and apparently no eyes. He was friendly and voluble in conversation, and it was evident that he had some acquaintance with many languages. He was asked to write the words "God made the world" in all the languages he professed to know. He did so without a moment's hesitation, adding Chinese, Coptic, Syrian and Turkish to those already mentioned.

The correctness of his spelling in all those tongues is not certified. He apologized when he wrote the sentence in Chinese, saying "Joss" was the best translation for God the language afforded.

Mixing Salad.

When Polly, fair and deft of hand,
Prepares to make the salad dressing,
With fork and spoon I near her stand
Man like—my helplessness confessing.

Yet when I try to lend my aid
In manner meant to be quite pleasing,
She says to me—this cruel maid:
"The lemons, Tom—they need the squeezing."

THEIR WORK FINISHED.

General Fourth of July Committee Thank Other People and Adjourn.

The final meeting of the general Fourth of July celebration committee was held last night to settle up the affairs of which they had charge. All bills were presented and audited, after which it was found that there still remained $70 unexpended out of the subscribed fund. This balance, it was decided, to expend on the display of fireworks which will take place this evening on Martine's common.

Before adjourning the following resolution was adopted:

Resolved, That the thanks of the Citizens' Fourth of July Celebration Committee be tendered to the citizens of Plainfield and North Plainfield for the manner in which they decorated their homes and various places of business, and their generous donations toward defraying the expenses of this committee: to the business men and organizations for the interest they manifested in entering floats and other displays; to Mantonomo Tribe, No. 118, Improved Order of Red Men, for the gratuitous use of their rooms for meeting purposes, and to Alert Hose Company for the use of their parlors. We also desire to express our appreciation of the services rendered this organization by the newspapers of this city, and to the Hon. James E. Martine for the use of his property for the display of fireworks.

While the general committee adjourned sine die, the executive and finance committee were continued till Friday night, when they will prepare a detailed statement of the money received and expended.

Mrs. Chas. Milliken is entertaining company from Brooklyn.

Mrs. Edward Purser and son, Master Allie, of Brooklyn, are visiting Mr. and Mrs. Fred Nelson.

A Young Girl Missing.

Mrs. H. S. Buckley, of Elmer street, Westfield, has reported that her niece, Emma Pulido, a young woman, nineteen years of age, has disappeared from her home and no trace of her whereabouts can be ascertained. Miss Pulido left the house last Friday afternoon about five o'clock. She did not tell her aunt where she was going, but it was supposed that she had gone to the postoffice for the evening mail. She did not return nor has anything been heard from her since. The police of the neighboring towns have been requested to look for her. She is at times subject to fits of mild mental derangement, and her family fear that she may have wandered into the woods.

To Inspect Other Institutions.

The Reformatory Commission will go to Ohio and Illinois this week to inspect the various reformatories in those States, in order to obtain necessary information regarding the construction and management of such institutions. This information will be made use of in the construction of the reformatory on the Edgar property in Rahway. An inspection of the grounds has been made, and measurements taken preparatory to the work to be begun in September. Plans have already been drawn by order of the commission, and submitted for correction.

Funeral Procession Interrupted.

Trolley-car, No. 549, of Elizabeth, ran into one of the coaches of a funeral procession passing through Bond street, in that city, yesterday. The team of horses attached to the coach were knocked down by the collision, and badly cut about the legs and body. The harness was almost torn from the animals and the coach upset. Four women who were in the vehicle were badly frightened. They were somewhat bruised.

A Unique Performance.

The unique performance of the "Peck Sisters from Alaska," will be given this evening at the Parish House of the Heavenly Rest, Clinton avenue. The proceeds go towards the Sunday-school excursion.

Activity Would be the Best.

Every member of the Board of Trade is expected to be present at the meeting tomorrow evening. Something in the nature of a surprise will be enjoyed, so The Press is informed.

Kean Has a Rival in Rahway.

There is complaint by the citizens of Rahway over the fact that the city has been in darkness the past three dark, dismal, rainy nights. The city has for the past few years been using gas, but since John Kean, Jr., has purchased the controlling interest in the Rahway Gaslight Company and closed its works, furnishing gas from the Elizabeth works, the gas has been so bad that complaint was constantly made. The contract with the gas company expired July 1st, and the Board of Aldermen advertised a three years' contract. Manager Jackson Jaques, of the Rahway Electric Light and Power Company, sent in a bid for lighting the street with electricity. The contract was accepted by the Board of Aldermen, but there has not been time to get the city wired and lights placed.

A Westfield Highwayman.

About eleven o'clock Sunday night W. B. Wilson, who is stopping with his brother on Park street, Westfield, was accosted near the Presbyterian church by a man who asked him for a cigarette. Mr. Wilson told him that he did not have one, and the stranger turned and walked along with him. When they reached Broad street the man drew a revolver from his pocket and showed it to Mr. Wilson, again asking for a cigarette. By this time Mr. Wilson was thoroughly frightened and, again telling the man that he had no cigarettes, left him and crossed the street, but the man followed him, with his revolver in his hand. When near the depot Mr. Wilson dodged behind some bushes and then ran across the tracks. By dodging among the bushes in the depot park he eluded his pursuer and ran home.

Rev. Mr. Schenck Getting Well.

The many friends of Rev. Cornelius Schenck will rejoice with The Press in the fact that his hearing has been restored and he has so far recovered from his late illness as to be able to go to the seashore for a few weeks and then to the mountains where he will stay until September 1, when he will resume his pastoral duties in Trinity Reformed church. Tomorrow he and Mrs. Schenck go to the home of Mrs. Schenck's mother in Roxborough, a suburb of Philadelphia, and next week Mr. Schenck will go to Cape May and visit with Mrs. Schenck's brother who resides at that place, and about August 1, both Mr. and Mrs. Schenck will go to the Catskill mountains and remain there for the month.

The Forestry Association.

The New Jersey Forestry Association met at the State House, Trenton, the last of June. The idea of holding peripatetic forestry meetings and combining instructive excursions was discussed. It was decided to hold such a meeting in the autumn, and the middle and northern part of the State will probably be visited by the association. It may not be known that Prof. John Gifford, of May's Landing, is publishing an illustrative journal devoted to Forestery, called The Forester. This is the official organ of the New Jersey Forestry Association, and of the Association Summer School of Forestry.

The Cosmopolitan.

"'O, will he paint me the way I want,'
As bonny as a girlie,
Or will he paint me an ugly tyke,
And be d——d to Mr. Nerli.
But still and on and which ever it is,
He is a canty Kerlie.
The Lord protect the back and neck
Of honest Mr. Nerli."

This, one of the last verses ever written by Robert Louis Stevenson, is in reference to the portrait of himself, which is given to the public with his verse for the first time in the July Cosmopolitan. The lines might have come from the pen of Burns, and are inimitable in their way. The portrait was declared by Stevenson himself to be the best ever painted of him.

Parted By the Irate Papa.

The father of Mary Mack, of Westfield, the fifteen-year-old girl who secretly married Arthur Liggett, as told in The Press of yesterday, went Monday afternoon to the residence of Mrs. Hankins, where his daughter was stopping, and forcibly took her home with him. Liggett, hearing that his bride had been taken away by her parents, left town with his grip and did not state where he was going.

The Grocers' Attorney.

At the last meeting of the Grocers Protective Association Lawyer Clarence L. Murphy was appointed counsel for the association. This office was, until recently, held by City Judge W. A. Coddington. Mr. Murphy, although but recently admitted to the bar, is already making rapid progress to a successful legal career.

Mr. Nash's Good Work.

It has been suggested that the Fourth of July committee present Chairman V. W. Nash with an appropriate souvenir for his untiring efforts in making the affair the success it was.

That's What They Are Paid For.

The marshals in the borough are doing excellent work nowadays in keeping peace and quietude within its borders.

BY THE WAY.

—The condition of the roadbed on Park avenue from Front street to Fourth, is wretched.

—Willow and Washington avenues have just received a layer of crushed stone which has been badly needed for sometime.

—The Weston Electric Company is about to erect a large plant at Waverley, where fifty acres of land has been purchased. A number of dwelling houses will be built for the employes.

—Herbert Bogart, of West Second street, cut his foot so badly while in swiming last Saturday that it was necessary for a doctor to take several stitches in it. It will confined him to the house for several days.

—Phillip Swain has the thanks of the community, especially those who use his sidewalk in the winter season, for a fine bluestone sidewalk which he is about to lay. Now Mr. Swain do a little missionary work with your neighbor, and we'll vote for you for a councilman.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Willard Sutton, of Liberty street, is learning to ride a wheel, and succeeds admirably.

Dr. and Miss Fritts will ride their wheels to Asbury Park on Thursday and there attend the bicycle races.

Wren Townley expects to leave here on his wheel for Asbury Park tomorrow morning and attend the national race meet of the L. A. W. He will return Friday.

Harry L. McGee, of Orchard place, and George A. Horne, of Willow avenue, took a spin on their wheels to Newark yesterday afternoon where they spent part of the afternoon with with friends.

Not a few wheelmen and wheelwomen who take Sunday, holiday, and other daylight runs hereabouts strap a light hammock and the fixings to hang it with, to their weels and when they come to a cool and rest-inviting spot in the suburban districts the hammock is swung between two trees, the wheel put aside and a book or pipe and tobacco brought into play. There are a few more pleasant ways of spending an afteenoon.

"The Elbow" is the name of the wrinkle used to advantage in "queer riding." When the men are bunched closely toward the finish of a race the man near the pole is suddenly lifted in the direction of the grass by the rider to his right hoisting the pole man's handle bar up with the aid of his elbow. The unfortunate getting the "touch" is compelled to sit up and must therefore lose his position and incidentally the race. Judges and referees ake notice. — American Wheelman.

Last June Dick Crawford brought his twelve-months-old child, suffering from infantile diarrhœa, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and had always been sickly. I gave it the usual treatment in such cases but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25 cent size had been used a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared, and its father and myself believe the child's life was saved by this remedy. J. T. Marlow. M. D., Tamaroa, Ill. For sale by Reyuolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues, T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

W. H. Nelson, who is in the drug business at Kingville, Mo., has so much confidence in Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy that he warrants every bottle and offers to refund the money to any customer who is not satisfied after using it. Mr. Nelson takes no risk in doing this because the remedy is a certain cure for the diseases for which it is intended, and he knows it. It is for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

Chamberlain's is the best of all. Vincent S. Barkl, of Danbury, Iowa, has used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy whenever in need of a medicine for coughs and colds, for the past five years and says: "It always helps me out. If anyone asks me what kind of cough medicine I use, I reply, Chamberlain's, that is the best of all. 25 and 50c. bottles for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy. Park and North Avenues, T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

A horse kicked H. S. Shafer, of the Freemyer House, Middleburg, N. Y., on the knee, which laid him up in bed and caused the knee joint to become stiff. A friend recommended him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did, and in two days was able to be around. Mr. Shafer has recommended it to many others and says it is excellent for any kind of a bruise or sprain. This same remedy is also famous for its cures of rheumatism. For sale by Reynolds's Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

ANOTHER SEWER CONTRACT.

JOHN SIDDALL WILL PUT IN THE HOUSE CONNECTIONS.

Adjourned Meeting of Common Council—Petition For Enforcement of Sunday Ordinances—Minor Matters.

All the members of the City Council were present except Councilmen Erickson, Fisk and Bird at the adjourned meeting Monday evening.

After the minutes were read and approved Clerk MacMurray read a letter from Mrs. DeForest, of West Second street, stating that the memorial drinking fountain she desired to erect on New near Second streets, was 150 feet from the sewer line. The matter was referred to the street committee.

William Stillman, in a communication, asked that Council introduce an ordinance compelling all theatrical companies showing in Music Hall to pay the license fee instead of the owner of the hall. It was referred to the license committee.

A petition was read, signed by Barbers Decker, Kreitling, Maynard, Randolph, Laine, Fiering, Bamberger and others, asking that the Sunday closing law be enforced. It was referred to the laws and ordinances committee.

Clerk E. L. Hand, of Fanwood Township, communicated with the Council and stated that the township had adopted the ordinance in regard to placing four-inch tires on wagons carrying 1,500 pounds or over, and asked Council to assist them in its enforcement as far as possible.

Charles Herman applied for a peddler's license, and on Councilman Moore's motion it was granted.

Mr. Frost presented a resolution that John Siddall, of Trenton, be given the contract for making the house connections with the main sewer pipes, and that ten days be given him to file a bond and sureties for the faithful performance of the work. On Mr. Ginna's motion it was adopted.

Council then adjourned.

FAILED TO DRAW THE MONEY.

J. E. Ross Arrested, Charged With Impersonating a Fireman.

James E. Ross was arrested in Elizabeth Saturday charged with trying to impersonate a fireman on the Central railroad and draw his month's pay. Ross bears a marked resemblance to Fireman Dunham, of the Central railroad, who lives at Dunellen.

When the pay car stopped Saturday at Elizabeth Ross dressed himself in a jumper and overalls such as are worn by firemen and got into line with the other men who were awaiting their turn to get paid.

When he asked for the money one of the clerks, who knew fireman Dunham intimately, detected him and paymaster Hess called a special officer, who took Ross to Police Headquarters. He was arraigned yesterday in the Police Court and committed to the county jail in default of $500 bail.

The Plainfield boys are going to put a strong team in the field, so a lively game is expected. The nines will line up as follows:

Enough Doctors.

It is said that there are twenty-nine practicing physicians in Plainfield.

LAST TOUCHING TRIBUTE.

OBSEQUIES HELD OVER THE REMAINS OF THE LATE DR. FIELD.

Dr. Rodman Preaches the Funeral Sermon and Speaks Words of Testimony for a Life of Devotion and Sacrifice.

A more valuable testimonial could not have been shown any man than the one given the late Dr. C. M. Field Monday afternoon at the funeral services held at the home of his uncle, Isaac N. Field, 244 East Ninth street when a large assemblage of people, high and low, rich and poor, in this world's goods, gathered to look for the last time on the face of one who had been their friend.

Dr. Rodman, pastor of Grace P. E. church, officiated and gave rich testimony in memory of the departed. In part he said as follows:

The value in surgery of him who has passed away will never be known. His worth as a physician was incalculable. He was not only devoted to his profession, but to humanity. The poorest person received as much as the richest, his only thought and ambition being to alleviate pain. He reminded me a great deal of philanthropist Howard, who when asked if he ever gave any attention to religious subjects, replied: "Well, really, I am so busy, I cannot say that I have," and yet his whole life was filled with good deeds, and his answer was a veritable contradiction.

And so with our friend just gone. I know if he was living his desire would be that nothing be said, but I cannot permit this opportunity to pass without telling something of my friend. To poor suffering humanity he gave his life as a sacrifice. Hard study and work, no doubt, hastened his life on to the close, and it made no difference what the call was he would always respond, and cheerfully render the aid and assistance that it was in his power to give.

When those present for the last time looked on the face of their friend it was indeed touching.

There was a profusion of choice flowers, cut roses, wreaths, broken columns, and among the many was a beautiful wreath from Chauncey Field Runyon, given in loving memory to the one who had saved his life.

Many present were heard to remark that "it was Dr. Field who saved my life."

The bearers of the casket were: T. S. Armstrong, Francis Wood, Major Miller, Col. Sterling, William Brown, and Herbert B. Brooks.

Interment was in the family plot in the Bound Brook cemetery, where a large number of people were gathered to witness the burial.

Dr. Rodman conducted a short service at the grave.

How the Crops Are.

The weekly bulletin of the New Jersey Weather Service has the following reports from Union County:

Clark Township—The week has been more favorable for harvesting than its predecessor; oats look well but are badly lodged; corn making a rapid growth; considerable turnips being sown.

Westfield—Weather all that could be desired, except Saturday, which was showery; fine for gathering hay and grain; plenty of moisture has carried vegetation forward rapidly.

Plainfield—Crops for the week were very promising, especially corn and oats; those cutting grain and hay during the past week gained by it, as that cut in previous week was injured by rain. The hail, wind and rain on 13th damaged corn and oats in the districts passed over; corn, in many cases, had the leaves stripped from the stalks, and in others was broken and lodged; oats fared the same way; the hail ranged in size from a pea to that of a medium sized hen's egg.

Hung Up His Watch.

A tree is a rather funny place in which to lose a watch, but Mr. Evans, of East Front street, had that experience. He had been climbing the tall ash tree in the yard, sawing away some of the extra branches, and returned to terra firm again. He felt for his watch but it was missing. After a search on the ground beneath the tree, he happened to look up and there on a little twig swung his handsome gold watch without a scratch or injury of any kind. Mr. Evans says that this is the first time he ever "hung up" his watch.

It Beats the Flying Machine.

The successful flying machine has always been the dream of inventors and now Maxim appears to have solved the problem, but if you want to take a flying trip, go on the excursion of the Congregational, First Presbyterian, and Park Avenue Baptist Sunday-schools to Asbury Park tomorrow. The train leaves the North avenue station at 8 a. m. and a quick journey of an hour and a half brings the roar of the surf within hearing. Do not wait for Maxim and his flying machine but go tomorrow, you will have a better time.

ENDED WITH BROKEN LIMBS.

RETURNING FROM A DAY'S PLEASURE TWO PERSONS BADLY HURT.

Augustus M. Frazee and Miss Conrady Thrown Down an Embankment By a Frightened Horse.

A sad ending to a pleasure trip occurred Saturday afternoon about half past three at Port Richmond, when Miss Conrady, of Blue Point, N. Y., and Augustus M. Frazee, of this city, sustained severe injuries.

The accident happened while they were returning. They were driving through Port Richmond, and nearing a crossing the horse was frightened at a passing train. The animal did not run but the wagon upset, throwing its occupants down an embankment.

Miss Conrady went first and probably would have escaped had not Mr. Frazee been thrown with much force against her.

They were picked up by a man named Campbell, living nearby, and taken to a house. Dr. Harned, of Woodbridge, was sent for and took excellent care of the two patients. The fractures were banadaged and in a little while they were able to stand the ride to Plainfield. Mr. Campbell, assisted by a friend, brought them home in a large spring wagon, arriving here about nine o'clock.

Miss Conrady was able to walk, but it was found necessary to use a couch in transferring Mr. Frazee from the wagon to the house.

Doctors Jenkins and Hallock were called and set the fractured leg. It was found unnecessary to treat Miss Courody on her arrival here as her injuries had been taken care of at the scene of the accident.

It was thought best by the physician to remove Mr. Frazee to the hospital, which was done this afternoon, as his injuries require the attention of a trained nurse. It was found today that the fracture of Miss Conrady's arm was much swollen, and Dr. Hallock gave it proper treatment.

It was the intention of the Plainfield Cornet Band to serenade the couple on their return, and a sumptous repast had been ordered for the boys.

A QUIET WEDDING.

And a Farewell Greeting of Old Shoes and Rice.

Another Brooklyn young man captured one of Plainfield's fair daughters when William H. Gildersleeve, of the city of churches, and Miss Laura E. Force, of this city, were united in marriage at the home of the bride's father, Henry W. Force, of 117 New street. Rev. C. L. Goodrich performed the ceremony. The wedding was a very quiet home affair, only the near relatives of the bride and groom being present.

Charges Against Former Rioters.

Warrants are out for the arrest of Charles Starken and Herman Fischbacker, who have been released from State Prison about a month, having served their sentence for inciting a riot during the strike trouble in Paterson in the spring of 1894. The men are charged with an assault on Wm. Roheken, he having testified against them at their trial. About ten days ago, as alleged, they lay in wait for Roheken at the Wiedmann Dye Works, where he is employed. Starken held the man while Fischbacker beat him.

South Bound Brook Protests.

Twenty-six residents of South Bound Brook signed the following petition, which was presented to the Council at its last meeting: The undersigned, residents of South Bound Brook, respectfully protest against the location of the sewer tank and pump house where at present proposed, and ask that it be placed at the Port Reading embankment where at first intended.

Wind, Hail, and Mud.

"Teddy" Overton, Fred Overton, "Pete" Waring, "Fat" Peck, and a number of their friends went to Feltville, on their wheels Saturday afternoon, to take a swim in the mill pond there. The hail storm came up and the party started for home. The heavy wind and the beating of the hail almost upset some of the riders and when they at last reached Plainfield, they could not be recognized so covered were they with mud.

TRANSFERRED THE CHECKS.

A CLEVER FRAUD WORKED AT THE NORTH AVENUE STATION.

A Shyster Secures a Valuable Trunk By Shifting the Baggage Checks From a Worthless One.

A very clever game was worked at the baggage office of the North avenue station between Friday night and Saturday morning, which is puzzling those in charge at the station. Two trunks, one a large canvas-covered one, and the other smaller and made of iron, had been received at the baggage room. On the latter was several pasters which gave it the appearance of having traveled a considerable distance. Both arrived in Plainfield Friday night. Some time later a strange man, to whom the iron trunk belonged, was at the station. It is supposed that the baggage check from the latter was transferred to the canvas-covered one. He then held the duplicate check which called for the canvas-covered trunk.

Between five and six o'clock Saturday morning the man called at the baggage office and presented his check to the night man, James Wagner, and secured the trunk, leaving the old one at the station.

The large trunk belonged to a woman on West Seventh street and was filled with valuable jewelry, diamonds and clothing. Saturday morning she sent for the trunk when it was discovered to be missing. The old trunk was opened and found to contain a lot of old clothes and nothing of any value. The matter was at once placed in a detective's hands, but as yet not the slightest clew can be found of the man who was the perpetrator of the fraud.

RELIGIOUS PERSECUTION.

Tennessee Adventists Sentenced to the Chain Gang.

There is a case of persecution in Tennessee that will attract widespread attention. A dissolute fellow was denied credit at a store kept by a Seventh-Day Adventist, in Graysville, Tenn., and in a spirit of pure spite he swore out warrants against a score of the leading men, and professors of Graysville academy, for working on the Sunday contrary to the State law of Tennessee.

A telegram received Tuesday morning announces that these worthy people have been sentenced to the chain-gang, for terms varying from thirty to ninety days, for working on Sunday after having kept the Sabbath on the day before. That something is wrong in Tennessee is shown by the fact that these persons are punished for good works, while the saloons, railroads, and pleasure parties, constantly break the law without being molested. The very witnesses against these people were out hunting when they saw the law broken by the the keepers of the Seventh-day Sabbath.

No one pretended that these people disturbed others; in fact a ruling of the court was to the effect that it did not require that others were disturbed.

New Haven's Famous Elms.

The elm beetle is fast denuding New Haven's famous elm trees of their leaves. The noble arch of elms in Temple street, which has been the theme of poets, could now furnish little inspiration. Some of the overhanging branches are almost bare of foliage, and others are covered with a mass of withered, colorless leaves. The connition of the trees on the Yale campus is even more deplorable. In this vicinity some of the handsomest elms are ruined, for this season at least. The scientists at the Connecticut experiment station say that nothing can be done this year, and the members of the Board of Public Works say that energetic efforts will be made to stamp out the pest during the fall.

Rumpus Among Educators.

The Board of Education committee of Newark having charge of the purchase of supplies is not inclined to follow the instructions of the City Counsel in relation to the purchase of coal. The Counsel said that every purchase to cost more than $500 must be advertised and bids received therefore, and the contract given to the lowest bidder. Heretofore the committeee has distributed the orders for coal for the schools among twenty or twenty-five dealers.

WHAT THE TAXES WILL BE.

THE ASSESSORS COMPLETE THE APPORTIONMENT OF TAXES.

Rates to Be About the Same as Last Year, With the Increased Apportionment—The County Road Tax.

The County Board of Assessors have finished the work of computing the county and school taxes, and the proportionment of the county road tax to be levied on the seven cities and townships, says the Elizabeth Journal.

The total valuations in the county are: Real estate, $31,220,060; personal, $4,841,420; liabilities, $891,9[illegible]; grand total, $35,973,500.

The total school tax to be levied in the county is $98,192.61, and the total county tax $185,000.

The county tax rate will be a fraction lower than last year. The increased appropriations in Elizabeth will keep the tax rate the same as last year.

The county tax is proportioned as follows:

Clark, $1,810.82; Cranford, $4,345.69; Elizabeth, $84,667.57; Fanwood, $3,862.97; Linden, $4,874.7[illegible]; New Providence, $1,337.13; Plainfield, $371,141.14; Rahway, $15,543.70; Springfield, $1,705.32; Summit, $9,596.48; Union, $9,063.19; Westfield, $7,448.99; Roselle, $4,114.25.

MIDDLESEX IS FOR KEAN.

Republican Leaders Want to Show Their Gratitude.

There is every reason to believe that Middlesex county will give nearly all the votes it is entitled to, in the State Convention to John Kean. While there are friends and, in fact, relatives of Senator Foster M. Voorhees, and friends of John W. Griggs in the county, the majority of the prominent Republicans think it would be well for several reasons to give loyal support to Kean because he has been unusually generous for years to the Republicans of Middlesex. A sense of gratitude impels the party leaders to talk Kean first and last.

The Republicans of Middlesex realize that they have acquired some political prestige and power after many years of hard work, and that they were practically helpless and friendless until they found a friend in John Kean, and he has assisted them at all times. He has not only been a liberal giver to the county committee fund, but has given good counsel and advice.

At Keith's this Week.

The middle of July finds no diminuation in the quality or quantity of the continuous performance vaudeville at Mr. Keith's charming theatre, the New Union Square. The casual visitor frequently expresses amazement at the size of the audiences, but the fact remains that the house is always filled to its capacity, and that fact can hardly be wondered at in view of the excellent and careful entertainment that is constantly offered. A noted comedy star in the portly person of George W. Monroe, whose untious impersonation of "My Aunt Bridget" has won him hosts of friends everywhere.

Cranford's Annual Carnival.

The eighth annual carnival will take place on the Rahway river at Cranford on Saturday evening, August 3d, and extensive arrarrangements are progressing for the grand event. All roads will lead to Cranford on that occasion, and everybody and his cousin, as in previous years, will be welcome. More boats are expected to appear in line than on any previous occasion, and there will be more illuminations and more fireworks.

Warm Wave Coming.

You are making a big mistake if you think we are not going to have any hot weather. Farmer Dunn says so, too, but Tier makes it more delightful than cool weather by furnishing his delicious ice cream at forty cents a quart.

CYCLING COMMENT.

Walter B. Rittenhouse, of East Sixth street, one of Plainfield's best road riders, has just purchased a new nineteen-pound wheel. It is a Wolfe American Special and Mr. Rittenhouse claims it to be the best on the road.

Thomas Potter, of St. Louis, and Israel Jones, captain of the Victor Wheelmen, took a run to Bound Brook yesterday. Potter says that if the roads near St. Louis were like those of Union county, everybody would be a rider there.

Manager R. I. Tolles and Harry Vail, of the Union Beef Company, have been riding considerable on their wheels for a week past. Mr. Tolles has covered over 100 miles while Mr. Vail has also succeeded in reaching the century mark.

Charles Hall, of Reynolds' Pharmacy, was one of the many who rode to Asbury Park on Thursday. He was accompanied by John Rickert as far as Matawan where the former stopped to meet some friends who had ridden from Perth Amboy. They continued the journey. Charles rode back to Matawan and from there came home by train.

When it is stated under oath that a cycle manufacturing company in this vicinity has cleared $50,000 up to date this year on $100,000 capital stock, and that amount not all subscribed for, it looks as if our manufacturers will not have to forego their annual outing this summer. Before '95 is over this company should have made another $25,000 if the demand keeps up. This will encourage the new concerns that propose to make wheels for the '96 trade.—American Wheelman.

The livery stable proprietors would do well to get a supply of bicycles for hire instead of bolstering up their courage and trying to stem their receding earnings by saying the bicycle is only a temporary rage. Noah of old told the people to get in out of the wet for many days, but the warning did little good, so will it be with the livery men if they don't look out. The Sun in speaking editorially said: "Accordingly, the assumption of horse dealers that bicycle riding is a mere fad, an ephemeral hobby, does not seem to be justified. Evidently the machine has come to stay. It may be that its use simply for sport and recreation will diminish hereafter, something else coming up to replace it in the popular fancy, but before that deline sets in, if it does occur, the passion for bicycle riding will doubtless increase and extend greatly. Multitudes of people yet remain to be affected by it; but as a machine for various uses as a means of necessary transportation it must continue to be employed permanently by greater and greater numbers of people. Very many of them, it is true, have never been horse buyers, but the machine will enable thousands of people in all parts of the Union who have depended on horses to get along without them wholly or in part."—American Wheelman.

Signal Works Sold.

The Johnson Signal Works have been sold by Receiver Savage to the National Switch and Signal Company, of Easton, Pa., for $52,500. A previous offer of $65,000 was made by the Hall Switch and Signal Company, of Garwood, but with a stipulation that the mortgage of $50,000 would be accepted, which was unsatisfactory to the creditors. The sale was confirmed by the Chancellor, and H. T. Tatenall appointed superintendent. The works will remain in Rahway, and operations will be begun at once.

Tried to Rob a Hotel.

Another attempt was made to rob the Washington Hotel, at Washington, Thursday night. The thieves kindled a fire outside of the kitchen with the intention, it is thought, of getting the inmates out of the barroom to fight the flames and then rifle the safe. As soon as the fire was discovered robbery was suspected. This is the third attempt made to rob the place in a few weeks.

Westfield Man Hurt.

As Charles French was driving around the corner of Elm and Broad streets, Westfield, Thursday, he was thrown from his wagon and struck on his head. He was picked up unconscious and taken to the room over Gelby's store, where he was attended by Dr. Cooper. Upon his regaining consciousness he was removed to his home. It was impossible, the physician said, to state just how badly he was injured.

Mr. Bird Coming All Right.

Fred Bird is gradually improving from his severe shake-up at Long Branch on Thursday. Dr. Zaglio is in attendance and hopes to be able to bring his patient through all right. Mr. Bird carried an accident policy which he secured through the agency of W. V. Mundy, and is now drawing benefits therefrom.

A NOTED PHYSICIAN DEAD.

DR. CHAUNCEY M. FIELDS PASSES OVER THE GREAT RIVER.

A Man Admired and Loved By All—Democratic in Dispotition—An Extensive Traveller.

On Friday at half past nine o'clock in his apartments in the Hotel Grenada occurred the death of Dr. Chauncey Mitchell Fields, whose reputation as a skillful and successful physician and surgeon is world wide. For some time Dr. Fields has been suffering with an internal ailment, and Thursday morning he was found in an unconscious condition in his room by Wallace V. Miller, one of the proprietors of the hotel. Medical attendance in the person of Dr. Davis was immediately summoned. After making an examination Dr. Davis found that the condition of Mr. Fields was precarious and Dr. Keeney, who had attended him in his previous illness, was sent for. These two physicians immediately applied remedies to bring him to a conscious state, but their efforts at first seemed to have no effect. Drs. Woodhouse and Rushmore were also summoned later, and working at intervals, together with a number of relatives and friends of Dr. Fields, who had been apprised of his illness, he was finally brought out of the comatose state at about ten o'clock Thursday evening. From that time up to a short time before he died he seemed to gradually rally from his sudden prostration. Though he suffered intense pain continuously he conversed intelligently and gave orders to those attending as to the treatment they should give him.

About twenty five minutes after nine last night he commenced to again show signs of failing, and at half past nine he rose up in bed, uttered a few words and fell back and expired immediately.

The funeral services will be held Monday afternoon from the residence of his uncle, Isaac N. Field, 244 East Ninth street, at 2:30. He will be interred in the family plot at Bound Brook.

Chauncey Mitchell Field was born in Brooklyn, March 27th, 1850, and was the third son of Richard R. and Margaretta Field. His early life was spent in Brooklyn and when old enough, attended the public school at Clinton, New York State. After concluding his studies there he went to Lawrenceville, this State, where he took a preparatory course for college. He graduated with high honors and entered Princeton college.

While at Princeton he was very active in athletics and especially so in baseball events. In his studies he was quick to grasp and hold the many subjects which he took up and there, too, he graduated with honors, being among the first ten of the class of 1871. His ambition seemed to be in the direction of medicine and surgery and wishing to complete his studies he entered the college of Physicians and Surgeons in New York, where he again graduated with great credit. Upon the completion of the course he went to Bound Brook and assumed the practice of Dr. Smith, where he remained for a time. At this time he had a number of patients in Plainfield and later decided to move here which he did. His practice increased until his business was so great that his health was impaired.

He found it necessary to give up his work for a time, and traveled through Europe for the benefit of his health. From that time he never resumed his regular practice though he did not give it up entirely. He went to Europe three times and traveled extensively. Last fall he visited the West Indies and there he succeeded in reaching a peculiar tribe of natives that he had on several occasions desired to know about. On his return he visited his brothers in Florida, and from there he came to Plainfield, and rented apartments in the Hotel Grenada. He had a small practice and it was his intention of securing a house and resuming full practice. The number of delicate and difficult operations performed by Dr. Field will never be known. He performed operations that other physicians would not, and an old friend remarked today that he had known the doctor to successfully perform four or five delicate operations in one day.

The doctor had a thoroughly democratic disposition and was kind and affable to all alike, no matter what might be their condition or station in life.

There are hundreds of people today who owe their lives to him, and his many charitable acts and attentions exhibited to all with whom he came in contact will never be forgotten. If people called him in sickness and distress he always came, and it made no difference to him whether they were poor or rich, they would receive the best it was possible for him to give or prescribe.

Dr. Field leaves one of the finest records in surgery and medicine in the country. One of the last of his operations, and one which has been called the crowning one of his life, was performed in January, 1894, on the three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Runyon, who was named after the doctor.

The operation saved the little one's life, and his careful attention and peculiar interest in little Chauncey was indeed touching.

Dr. Field's mother died Nov. 25th, 1887, and his father, who was so well-known here for his Christian work, passed away March 18th, 1892.

There were five children, Chauncey M., Richard, Jacob, Albert and Florence. The first three were born in Brooklyn, Albert was born in St. Louis and Florence in Bound Brook. Richard and Albert are now in Florida, Jacob lives on North avenue in this city. Florence died several years ago.

Fatal Runaway.

A serious runaway accident took place Thursday afternoon about four o'clock, in which Mrs. F. S. Sarboneti, of Westfield township, was killed, and Miss Mary McConn, of Rahway, was dangerously injured by the running away of a horse attached to a vehicle in which they were riding. The horse became unmanageable, and both women were thrown out. Mrs. Sarboneti had her skull fractured, and died about an hour afterwards. Miss McConn is in a critical condition and her recovery is doubtful.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. William Smith, Miss Redman, of New York, Miss May McLoughlin, John G. McLoughlin, Robert Clark, Edward Clark, George W. DeMeza and William Kitchen.

Cured at the Hospital.

Harry Seymour, of the street railway, has now fully recovered from the operation which was performed at the hospital. Mr. Seymour wishes to state through The Daily Press columns his hearty appreciation of the treatment and services rendered to him by those in attendance at the hospital, as it was entirely due to them that he recovered.

Think the Plans Were Costly.

There is considerable talk among the contractors who bid on the new State Prison addition a few days ago over the price they were compelled to pay in order to secure a set of the plans and specifications. The contracts were awarded by the State Prison Commission last Monday and twenty-five bids were considered. Out of this number no less than twenty paid over to the commission the sum of $25 for a set to be used in estimating the cost of the work. For those who did not care to pay the sum mentioned a set of the plans were placed in the office at the State Prison and another set was placed in the office of the architect at Newark, and the bidders could go to either place and look them over. After the contract had been awarded the talk began. The out-of-town bidders freely denounced the whole transaction, but as there was nothing left to do but grin and bear it, it is supposed they are grinning and bearing it yet.

"La Belle Helene" at Terrace Garden.

"La Belle Helene," Offenbach's pretty operetta, succeeded "The Tyrolean" at Terrace Garden, in New York, last night. Manager Heumann was obliged to make this mid-week change in the bill in order to give some of his overworked artists a rest. The entire company has appeared almost nightly since the opening of the season, and this steady work is beginning to tell on some of the principals. Three nights of "La Belle Helene" will give an opportunity for Fraulein Englaender and Herr Monti to prepare themselves for the production of "Boccaccio" next Monday night.

Doane & Edsall Up to Date.

The latest bicycle invention is the bicycle ladder for use in shoe stores. Four wheels support the upper end and run on a circular rail and two wheels on the bottom run on the floor. By this the salesman is enabled to move himself the whole length of the store and still reach the top rows without trouble. Doane & Edsall, the ever-progressive shoe dealers, have just placed two of these very handy ladders in their store.

A Parish Loss.

Scotch Plains Episcopal parish is about to suffer a heavy loss in the removal of Frank W. Quereau and family to New York city. Mr. Quereau's services as organist and Miss Quereau's as the leading soprano of the choir, have been highly appreciated by the rector and his entire congregation, and the best wishes of all the parish will follow them to their new home.

Clerks Will Sue.

Papers are being prepared in a suit to be brought against Newark, for one month's salary by several of the clerks or assessors in the tax office, who were removed by resolution of the Tax Board on June 8th last. James R. Nugent has been retained by the men who propose to sue, and a summons will likely be served on the city tomorrow.

Purple and White Against Blue and Gold.

In the field day, which takes place in the latter part of August, between the athletes of the Monroe Avenue and Hope chapels, the Monroe Avenue boys will wear purple and white as their colors, while blue and gold will designate the Hope chapel supporters.

RUN DOWN BY A ROAD HOG.

FRED BIRD KNOCKED OFF HIS BICYCLE AND HURT.

Was One of the Crescent Wheelmen Party to Asbury Park—Accident Occurred at Long Branch.

A serious accident happened to Fred W. Bird Thursday in riding his wheel to Asbury Park. In the party were G. O. Stevens, M. A. Havens, Frank Havens, W. J. Stephenson, F. A. Pope, T. J. Carey, Arthur Mumford, Charles Lister, J. F. Buckle and F. W. Bird.

They were riding through Long Branch on the asphalt pavement which had just been sprinkled. There was a strip of the roadway about twelve feet from the curb on the right hand side that had not been touched by the water, and the wheelmen rode single file so as to escape the wet part of the street. Mr. Bird was riding behind George O. Stevens when Frank Tilton, of West Long Branch, came from the opposite direction with a horse and wagon driving on the left hand side of the road.

The wheelmen ahead escaped, but Mr. Bird was forced to the curb and at the same time was thrown, not being quick enough to get out. He fell under the wagon wheels and received severe injuries which proved worse than at first was thought.

Policeman Charles Hathaway, of Long Branch, assisted Mr. Bird to a hotel nearby, where in a little while he regained consciousness.

After he revived he insisted on riding to Asbury Park, a distance of six miles, which he pluckily did with one foot.

At the Park his injuries became very painful and he was taken to the Hotel Vendome, where he remained till last night, coming home on the Baptist excursion.

Those who saw the accident at Long Branch were much incensed at the action of Tilton, and the Crescent Wheelmen are determined to push the case against the driver and make him pay all damages. The matter will be placed in the hands of the L. A. W. The names of several witnesses are in their possession, and they will be used in the case.

George O. Stevens in the presence of a policeman measured the roadway which was forty feet wide, and the exact distance from the curb where Mr. Bird and the others were riding, was twelve feet.

Rahway Groping in Darkness.

Mayor Daly of Rahway has sent a communication to the Common Council recommending that the contract given to Jackson Jaques of the Electric Light and Power Company be annulled. He states that ten days have elaped since the city was to have been lighted by electricity, and little progress has been made, that the citizens are making complaint, and that, although the company has been to some expense preparing to carry out its agreement to have the seventy-two arc lights in operation by July 1st, it is not the duty of the council to overlook the failure of the company to fulfil its agreement. The matter was referred back to the lamp and police committee.

Private Theatricals.

The barn of Samuel Q. Lawson, 752 West Seventh street, is going to be a lively place Saturday evening, when a number of the young girls of West Seventh street will give a little play entitled "Full Back." Those taking part in it are the Misses Cassie Lawson, Amy Burt, Florence Taylor, Marian Egan, Ada Woodruff, and Marion Woodcock. The admittance will be ten cents, and the money raised will be used for the benefit of the Fresh Air Fund. Mr. Lawson has very kindly built a stage and furnished the scenery.

Appealed to a Higher Court.

The case of Julia Pendleton vs. the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, on contract, which was tried before Justice Mosher on June 28th, has been appealed by the defendent's counsel, J. C. Connelly, city attorney of Elizabeth, to the Court of Common Pleas of Union county. S. S. Swackhamer, of the Babcock building, represented Julia Pendleton.

Final Purchase to be Made.

It is expected that the deed for the sewage bed property will be signed today by those who have charge of that part of the work. The heaviest portion of the sewer work will be commenced today by John Marsden on Grant avenue. It is not likely that the city will start work on the sewage beds before spring, as there is considerable in detail to do before that time.

A Busy Place.

One of the busiest places in town these days is White's. He is always offering good, desirable goods at prices that will always make business. His advertisement tells of many good things.

To Open In Albany.

George Thatcher's minstrel company will rehearse in Albany for the coming next season, opening in that city August 5th.

PUNCHED THE CONSTABLE.

A New York Coachman Resisted Arrest by a Country Constable.

Two New York coachmen drove into Westfield Tuesday morning. Each had charge of two horses and behind each team were hitched two empty coaches. The men were on their way from New York to Somerville.

When they reached the square one of the horses dropped in the traces and died a few minutes later. It had suffered a sunstroke. The animal was emaciated and William Earl wanted the driver arrested for cruelty to animals. Constable Picken started to make the arrest and forgot to display his badge. The driver didn't intend to let a common citizen interfere with his liberty and punched the constable several times before he learned his captor was an officer. Then he submitted and was taken before Justice Collins.

The other driver had a fit during the interim, which was caused by the sun, but nobody thought of having him arrested for cruelty to himself.

When he had learned the facts of the case, Justice Collins discharged his prisoner, and the two men hitched the four coaches to the three remaining horses, climbed on the box of one of the vehicles and drove triumphantly out of town.—Elizabeth Journal.

New Jersey Crop Prospects.

Secretary Franklin Dye, of the State Board of Agriculture, having received word that in Hunterdon county ninety-five per cent. of the peaches had fallen in the usual "June drop," determined to find out what the prospects for peaches and other crops in the State might be. He accordingly sent out letters of inquiry to reliable persons in all the counties of the State. The result of his information was that the outlook is not so black as he was led to suppose, even in Hunterdon county. According to reports received, peaches will be rather over half a crop. The June crop has been very heavy, the general opinion being that it was made so by the May frost, which weakened the trees. The reports of the other crops generally show a better condition.

To Investigate the Child's Death.

What is believed to be the suspicious death of the two-weeks-old infant of Lucy Bullock, an unmarried colored servant, is being investigated by the Bayonne police. About a month ago the woman was admitted to the Bayonne Hospital and Dispensary, and her child was born a fortnight later. She was discharged from the institution Tuesday afternoon. Then her child was apparently in good health. Late that night the woman entered Daniel Dempsey's undertaking establishment and said she was in trouble. She carried a parcel in her arms, and when she opened the wrappings she disclosed the dead body of her child. County Physician Converse refused to grant a burial permit until he could learn the circumstances of the baby's death. The woman professed to know nothing about her infant's sudden death.

Singular Coincident.

An interesting event is related by H. N. Spencer in regard to his mother, the late Mrs. Caroline Spencer. When a young girl she was an intimate friend of Alfred Bonnell, now living in the borough, and it was the desire of both that they witness each other's marriage. One day in December, 1828, Mr. Bonnell called on Mrs. Spencer and gave her an invitation to his wedding. She inquired the date, and he told her it was on the following Wednesday. She said she was very sorry, but it would be impossible for her to be present, as she was going to be married at the same time. It was the regret of both that they could not see each other married, and it was particularly strange that the same date should be chosen by them.

South Orange to Have a Dry Spell.

A special committee, composed of fifteen citizens, has been named to watch the liquor dealers in South Orange. Next Sunday the citizens will begin, and it is anticipated that the thirsty will be compelled to experience a full-fledged Roosevelt dry Sunday. Citizens accountable for the appointing of the committee of fifteen have also pledged themselves to endeavor to have the license fee for saloons and hotels increased from $150 to $500. In Vallsburg an effort is being made to have Sunday baseball playing in the Shooting Park stopped.

Moved Out in the Night.

For sometime past Hallet & Davis, the New York piano makers, have had a branch office in this city, but the company have had more or less trouble with their representatives.

Their place of business has lately been in A. D. Thomson's building on North avenue, but the patronage was not sufficient to warrant its continuance.

This morning about two o'clock a truck and four horses came out from New York and removed the stock of pianos to the city.

A man by the name of Hadley, who had charge of the branch, is still in town.

TRILBY HAS COME AND GONE.

A DRAMATIC ADAPTATION OF A FAMED NOVEL.

Hotel Netherwood Parlors Transformed Into a Model Play House in Which a Select Number Gather.

Trilby has been all the rage this year, and so it was that John Spitler, the genial proprietor of the Hotel Netherwood, secured Miss Catherine Lewis and her company of players to present an adaptation of that well known book.

The spacious parlors of the hotel, with their rich hangings and plate-glass mirrors, were Friday night transformed temporarily into a theatrical hall. One side was shut off by a velvet curtain, while in front of it easy chairs were arranged in rows. At half-past eight a small but select audience gathered there, composed mainly of the hotel guests, but with a few from nearby residences.

The evening's entertainment was of a very high class, and it seemed too bad that the parlors were not crowded, as it is not every day that Plainfield is enabled to hear and see such artists. The programme was as follows:

PERDITA (anonymous).
(A Poem in Costume).
The Countess of Castelvecchio.

Shakespeare's
PYRAMUS AND THISBE.

Prologue	Charles Marriott
Pyramus	Edgar Norton
Wall	L. M. B. Pratt
Moonshine	W. J. Romain
Lion	A. F. Stanford
AND
Thisbe	Miss Catherine Lewis

Svengali	Miss Oldcastle (Countess of Castelvecchio)
Taffy	L. M. B. Pratt
Sandy	Edgar Norton
Little Billie	W. J. Romain
Mrs. Bagot	Miss Ashcom
AND
Trilby	Miss Catherine Lewis

Of course, everybody wanted to see "Trilby," and that was the real attraction, but "Pyramus and Thisbe" was very amusing, and showed the result of careful thought. Several very pretty songs were introduced in the performance. The whole caste in "Trilby" played their parts to perfection; W. J. Romain, as "Little Billee," is certainly the right man in the right place, and Romain, Pratt, and Norton make a trio that are hard to beat. Miss Oldcastle played the difficult part of Svengali as DuMaurier must have meant it. J. Grahame Slee is the business manager of the company.

After the programme was concluded, the audience dispersed and strolled about the long halls and on the long veranda, for which the Hotel Netherwood is famed.

A MALICIOUS LIE.

The Courier-News Circulated a Slanderous Report About Mr. Riker.

Mrs. Ira F. Riker is deeply grieved over the statement made in the Courier-News that her husband, whose death occurred suddenly Wednesday morning, died by unnatural means. She says there was not the slightest foundation for printing the statement, and the bereaved relatives, together with the many friends of Mr. Riker, feel that it was a malicious slander on a man who had always had the respect of his fellow-men when alive, but whose sad demise is made the subject of a sensational story by the Courier-News. The very fact that County Physician O'Reilly gave a burial permit disproves the statement of poisoning.

Increased the Judgement.

Farmer John Edgworth, of Linden, was tried in a Rahway Justice's Court on action for damages for an assault upon Henry O'Rouke, a policeman in that city. O'Rouke and Edgworth had some difficulty over the purchase of some cows, out of which trouble the assault occured. A verdict of $50 was found against Edgworth, and through his lawyer, ex-Assemblyman Kelly, he appealed to the County Court. Judge McCormick read the opinion of the court. It sustained the result of the case in the lower court, and increased the verdict against Edgworth to $80.

Professor Watson Insane Again.

Professor J. Madison Watson, the well-known scientist and compiler of school books, who over a month ago was taken to the Morris Plains Asylum, was recently discharged as cured, and was at his country seat in the suburbs of Elizabeth Tuesday night, when he again became violently insane. Two policemen were sent to the house to protect his wife. At noon he was conveyed, securely bound in a coach, back to the asylum. His case is now regarded as hopeless.

But Little Difference.

For some time past Chief Doane has been closely watching the difference in time between that sent out by the Western Union and that at the Washington observatory, and he finds that they vary but about a quarter of a second.

TOURNAMENT CLOSED.

The Hillside Tennis Club's Finals Played Yesterday Afternoon.

The postponed tournament of the Hillside Tennis Club was brought to a close Thursday afternoon when the finals between Messrs. H. Ryder and F. K. Fish, Jr., were played off. Mr. Ryder won without difficulty owing to the listless playing of his opponent who apparently had no desire to win. The score was as follows: Final round, Ryder beat Fish 6-1, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4; the points were, first set, Ryder 28, Fish 13; second set, Fish 37, Ryder 26; third set, Ryder 28, Fish 11; fourth set, Ryder 38, Fish 26.

An invitation has been received and accepted from the South Orange Field Club to send four men to Orange on Saturday afternoon, July 20th, for an interclub match. The games will no doubt will be very interesting as it will be remembered that Holcombe Ward, of the South Orange Field Club, won the invitation tournament held by the Hillside Club on Decoration Day. On that occasion Hillside's strongest player, C. F. Walz, was compelled to default owing to the extreme heat. He is great form now and will be one of the players for Hillside at Orange. The others are Messrs. F. W. Walz, R. A. Beebe and C. Sherwood West.

MERRY WEST END.

Outing Club Hold a Picnic in Vail's Grove Last Night.

The fourth annual picnic given by the Plainfield Outing Club was held in Vail's grove on West Fourth street, Thursday. The grounds were very prettily decorated with Chinese lanterns and bunting, which made a very fine appearance. A large number of people were in attendance, and the large, extensive platform which had been erected for the occasion, was full with the merry crowd who tripped the light fantastic toe to the strains of O'Reilly's orchestra, composed of six pieces, until early this morning. Nothing happened during the entire evening to mar the pleasure of those present, the best of order being maintained. The committee deserve mention for the manner in which the affair was carried out.

A FAMILY REUNION.

H. O. Newman, of This City, Meets With His Brothers at Jersey City.

When a man has five grown-up sons, all prospering in business, as H. C. Newman, of Jersey City, has, he is a lucky man. Last evening at the home of Hiram Newman, of Jersey City, one of the sons, a family reunion took place. H. C. Newman the father of the family, now eighty-two years old, was present, and besides him were Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Newman, of West Fifth street, this city, Mrs. Geo. Newman, of Orange, Frank Newman and daughter, Miss Mabel Newman, of Falls Church, Va., and Edwin Newman, of Brooklyn. Hiram Newman, assisted by his hospitable wife, entertained the visitors. The evening was spent most enjoyably, music taking a prominent part. This is the first reunion for many years, but the brothers hope not to let as many years pass before they all come together again.

Dogs Attack Deliverymen.

A vicious dog on Manning avenue bit Frank Sheppard, a young boy employed on Rogers' delivery wagon, this morning. The boy was delivering a package into a house, when the dog attacked on the stoop. Deliverymen for local merchants say that they are troubled a great deal with bad tempered dogs, whose owners say they will not bite, but nevertheless when the men attempt to enter the house, they are frequently attacked by the dogs.

Took His Vacation.

Yesterday morning when Walter L. Hetfield, Jr., of East Second street, went to look after his pony, he found that during the night the animal had "vamoosed the ranch." The door was found wide open, but as it had not been locked the pony could have easily pushed it open, but the one suspicious circumstance was that the halter was not broken but untied.

One of the neighbors reported having seen the pony running down the street at full gallop at about half-past five yesterday morning.

So far nothing has been heard of the missing animal.

Cranford People Hurt.

At Westfield as George Ely, of Cranford, was getting into his carriage the horse took fright and started to run away. Mr. Ely was thrown to the ground and Mrs. Ely, who was also in the carriage, was thrown out and her arm broken. She was also badly cut about the head. After her injuries were attended to by a physician, she was taken to her home. Mr. Ely was not injured.

A Race Meet for Boys.

Frank Talmadge, of Netherwood, assisted by some of his friends, is planning for a boys' race meet at the Crescent oval, next week.

BOSS CROKER IN SOCIETY.

His Houses Suggest the Question, "Where Did He Get Them?"

Ex-Boss Croker of Tammany Hall is now in dear old London and dispatches say he is devoting much time to society. He gives numerous dinner parties and has a box at the opera.

The spacious house which he has rented for the London season must naturally take rank henceforth among the historic residences of the British capital.

The house is pointed out to sightseers from all quarters of the globe as the erstwhile home of the great Duke of Wellington; 139 Piccadilly is reverently gazed at as the scene of Byronic revels, and Thomas Carlyle's house in Cheyne row is the object of devout pilgrimage. London boasts a society which undertakes the duty of placing commemorative tablets on houses with which any notable man in politics, literature or art has been prominently associated. An irreverent Englishman suggests that when in due time R. Richard Croker has

Richard Croker
during the summer of 1895 while he transferred the Tammany boodle
to the British bookmaker.

The house and its surroundings are marked by an elegance and exclusiveness which must appeal strongly to the eclectic tastes of Mr. Croker. If he were anxious to patronize mere fashionable society and to throw himself into the giddy world of London frivolity he might have pitched his wigwam in Belgravia or Mayfair. But Kensington, while being select in a social sense, has always possessed a special attraction for the elite of the artistic and literary world, and the vicinity of Palace Gate bears in an especial manner the hallmark of culture.

Immediately opposite No. 9 stands the mansion of Sir John Millais, Baronet, England's greatest living portrait painter; a few doors down Herbert Spencer, of philosophic fame, resides when he is in London; around the corner Henry James's London house is situated; while several eminent members of the British civil service, retired viceroys and other congenial spirits dwell in the immediate neighborhood.

Palace Gate is a broad, quiet thoroughfare, leading to Kensington Gardens, and it derives its first name from Kensington Palace, which is close by. Its houses were built by Cubitt—London's most noted domestic architect of the Victorian era—and they are of a large, substantial pattern, faced with stone. Their rent, unfurnished, would be about £600 ($3,000) a year, but, as Mr. Croker has taken No. 9 furnished, it must cost him between £30 ($150) and £40 ($200) a week.

Considerable curiosity has been aroused here over an advertisement which has just appeared in the newspapers of this city over the signature of a prominent real estate firm. It says:

"Wealthy American wishes to purchase a historical, residential estate with a Tudor or Elizabethan mansion, having twenty bedrooms, five reception rooms and 800 to 1,000 acres of land. Would pay about £50,000 ($250,000).

PRETTY COTTAGE FOR $1,800.

(Copyright 1895 by the Co-operative Building Plan Association, N. Y.)

If there is one thing more than another for which Americans are noted it is that they are practicable. It is not that they are lacking in the finer qualities, but the country is young, and for years they have been forced to wage a constant struggle with the realities of existence. The wilderness and the desert have been conquered and "made to blossom like the rose," and problems are to be met every day that long ago were settled by older countries. Scores of cities can be pointed out that were barren prairies but a few years ago. In all of our settlements there is restless growth and ceaseless activity.

Despite their devotion to business, Americans are finding time for brief sojourns in the mountains and by the seashore. The annual vacation period is increasing in length and Americans are learning to enjoy outdoor life. Hundreds of city dwellers of moderate means have found it possible to build comfortable homes for the summer months away from the heat and bustle of the crowded streets.

What could be more homelike than the cottage pictured here, with its broad veranda, its pleasing effect of roof construction, vieing in artistic appearance with surrounding nature herself? The cost of the house, as shown by the perspective view and the two floor plans, is $1,800, not including mantels and range, which are generally selected after the owner's own taste. The estimate is based on New York prices for materials and labor, and in many sections of the country the cost would be less.

Its general dimensions are: Extreme width, 50 feet 6 inches; depth, including veranda and porch, 48 feet 6 inches; first story, 9 feet high; second story, 8 feet. Exterior materials: Foundations, stone piers; walls of first story, gables, and roof, shingles. Interior finish: Two coats plaster, hard white finish; soft wood flooring and trim; staircase, ash; chair rail in kitchen and dining-room. All interior woodwork finished in hard oil. These general dimensions and materials may be changed, and as to colors, would offer a suggestion: Shingles on first story and gables, pearl gray; trim including water table, corner boards, casings, bands, etc., white; sashes and shingle roofs, dark green; veranda, floor and ceiling oiled.

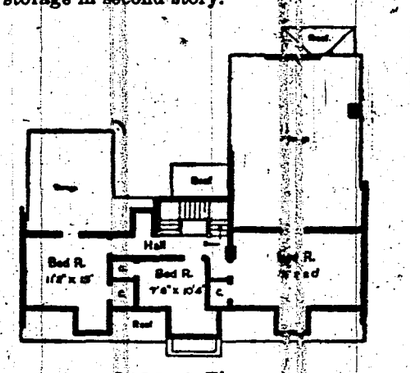
The principal rooms, their sizes, closets, etc., are shown by the floor plans. No cellar or blinds. Open fireplaces in first story hall, making a cheerful and attractive room in itself. Portiere opening between parlor and hall; servant's bedroom off kitchen; good sized room for storage in second story.



Second Floor

This design is capable of many feasible modifications. A cellar may be put under a whole or a portion of the house with inside and outside entrances and concrete floor; bath room could be introduced in second story, with full or partial set of plumbing. Open fireplaces may be introduced in parlor and dining room. A brick set range may be placed in the kitchen. This design also presents a very attractive appearance if it is run up a half story more, with a mansard roof. Let it be by the seaside or on the slopes of the mountain, with broad veranda inviting repose; everything around is restful, and a man gains rest and strength in peaceful enjoyment.

Not quite so sarcastic and not quite so knowing, if you please. Plainfield has two governments — city and borough—owing to the dividing line of Union and Somerset counties running through her midways. With the city and borough Plainfield has 18,000 population.

The increase of valuation in Union county, and particularly in Plainfield, as shown by the reports of assessors, published elsewhere, is very gratifying to those who take a pride in their home. And more than all it is pleasant to know that the taxpayers will have $3,000 less to raise for county purposes, owing to the carefulness with which county affairs have been administered by the Board of Freeholders.

The Essex Trades Council meeting at Newark have passed a resolution instructing its delegates to the Anti-Contract League to vote against any plan that may bring hardship upon union workingmen of any nationality. Elias A. Ward is a candidate for the Republican nomination of Governor. Mr. Ward resides in Newark and is a railway magnate. The gentleman is not quite so optimistic of Republican prospects as some other G. O. P. followers, for he says in reference to his party electing their candidate: "I don't think it is going to be as easy as rolling off a log, as some of the boasters would say." If Mr. Ward is not a practical candidate, he is, at least, a practical advisor.

Sir Wilfred Lawson, the English temperance advocate, once accosted a laborer who was walking along with a black bottle, and lectured him on the wickedness of intemperance. The man seemed to be impressed and emptied the contents of the bottle on the road, whereupon Sir Wilfred, highly pleased, gave him a sixpence, with the remark, "Take that, it will buy you something better." A few minutes afterward Sir Wilfred saw the man go into a public house and spend the money in beer. He had been carrying a bottle of tea.

There will be 809 delegates to the next Republican State Convention says the Elizabeth Journal. The successful nominee will have to get at least 405 of these. The number to come from the different counties is herewith given, so that statisticians and politicians may figure out the winners according to their own foreknowledge:

Success to the Defender. But no worse luck than defeat to the Valkyrie, III.

Editor Boyd of the New Brunswick Home News, writing from Ireland calls it "dear old New Brunswick." Distance lends enchantment, so they say.

It is estimated that the completion of the New York and New Jersey Bridge will save the Government $400,000 in transporting mail across the Hudson.

While Elizabeth people are getting in trouble with the trolley car with great frequency Plainfielders are wonderfully free from such encounters. Let us be thankful that such a careful and faithful set of motormen are employed.

The new Chicago directory, just out, contains such queer names as Deathdew, Uppercrust, Naggar, Windyman, Dustdry, Gracebucket, a clergyman; Chargehigh, a dressmaker; Blunderboggun, Schwekenbracken, Blatherskelter, Braushgmutter, Blaumeisterskut and Eleaver Eisconsimeon.

At a meeting of the provisional committee of the Essex County Democracy, in Newark, a resolution was offered providing for the appointment of a committee of five to confer with Democrats in the various counties in the State on the question of nominating a candidate for Governor by petition.

Never was the old adage, that "little knowledge is a dangerous thing," better illustrated than by the Courier-News in its attempt to wrestle with financial problems. The editor of that paper evidently does not know the difference between loans payable on call or demand, and those having a stated time to run. He looks over the money article in some newspaper and sees call money quoted at one and a half or two per cent. and immediately jumps at the conclusion that the city ought to borrow money for forty years at these rates. Let him take a Government bond and step into one of the city banks and try to borrow one thousand dollars for a year. He will learn more about rates of interest in five minutes in that way, than by all his efforts in any other direction.

Two facts of importance are brought into prominence by the report of the Union County Board of Assessors, printed yesterday in The Journal exclusively. The first is, that during the past year the townships have been growing more rapidly in proportion than the large cities. The second is, that the famous roads in Union county are exerting their beneficent influence in increasing the county's wealth, and that this influence is not decreasing in any degree whatever, but is more powerful today than when the new system of roads was completed. Every day affords new evidence of the marvelous effects of these roads. In a single year the county of Union has increased its tax valuations a million and a-quarter, and the striking feature of this increase is the fact that by far the greatest appreciation of values is right along the stone roads. They cost, it will be remembered, $350,000. It was thought to be an enormous sum for forty miles of good roads, but they have paid for themselves ten times over. The appreciation of Union county property, outside the large cities, is more gratifying this year than ever before. It proves that wealth, better times, greater developments and marked improvements are coming this way in full tide.—Elizabeth Journal.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destored forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness, caused by catarrh, that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

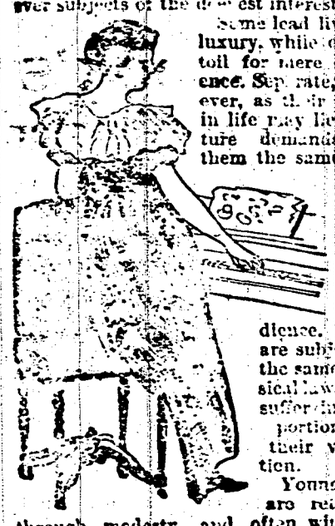
YOUNG GIRLS.

INTERESTING CONCLUSIONS.

Mothers Agree on One Vital Subject.

[SPECIAL TO OUR DAILY READERS.]

Young girls, to the thinking mind, are ever subjects of the deepest interest.



Some lead lives of luxury, while others toil for mere existence. Separate, however, as their paths in life may lie, Nature demands of them the same obedience. All are subject to the same physical laws, and suffer in proportion to their violation.

Young girls are reticent through modesty, and often withhold what ought to be told.

Yet they are not to blame, for information on such subjects has been withheld from them owing to the false interpretation of a mother's duty.

In such cases they should do as thousands of young ladies are doing every day: write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., giving as nearly as possible their symptoms, and receive her freely given advice and kindly aid.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the young girl's most trusty friend. It can be obtained of any druggist, and speedily relieves and cures irregularities, suspension, retention, and all derangements of the womb and ovaries.

It banishes promptly all pains, headache, backache, faintness, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholia, etc. Young girls must know that self-preservation is the first law of nature.

RAILROAD IS AHEAD.

Lays Tracks in West Orange Despite the Committee.

The West Orange Township Committee and the South Orange and Maplewood Street Railway Company had an encounter yesterday and the railroad company came out ahead. Some time ago the company applied for a franchise to cross Tremont avenue, Union and Nassau streets, and an ordinance granting the permission was to have been introduced at the next meeting of the Township Committee.

The Township Committee has postponed introducing this ordinance until ordinanances accepting Tremont avenue and Nassau street as public thoroughfares could be introduced and passed. Until the passage of these ordinances the streets were private property.

Yesterday morning the work of laying tracks at Tremont avenue was started, and the entire width of the street was laid before the police knew anything about it. The tracks were spiked to the ties and the excavation all filled in. Even if the company proves its right to cross Tremont avenue it may not reach its next street, Union street, and the franchise may now be denied.

Trolley Road Troubles.

Work on the trolley road from New Brunswick to Milltown was continued all Saturday night and Sunday. When the North Brunswick Commissioners granted the trolley company the right of way on Saturday afternoon, the 200 men who were at work in the borough of Milltown were transferred to Berdine's corner and the road was continued towards Milltown. The traction company has been hastening the work because it was feared that Samuel Gordon, a wealthy property owner, would get an injunction against it. The company will not be able to enter New Brunsick until the writ of certiorari which has been granted against it is vacated. Horse cars will be run on the road until the power-house is finished.

At Proctor's This Week.

Everybody may not be able to seek summer recreation at mountain and seaside, but anybody can secure merry entertainment—combined with solid comfort—at Proctor's the ideal cool and cosy playhouse. The performances are just as novel, high class, and admirable in July as they are at Christmas time. This week's bill is full of merry and melodious features. An attraction must possess exceptional strength to be retained at Proctor's more than one week, where the policy is to keep the vaudeville kaleidoscope revolving.

New Jersey's State Camp.

The second day's routine work of the Fourth Regiment at the New Jersey State camp, at Sea Girt, was begun this morning. The weather was wet and dreary, and the men hurried through the morning drills. Rigid discipline is being maintained in the camp. A new United States ambulance has been mustered into service for the use of the brigade hospital. The field hospital is in charge of Col Meyers, brigade surgeon, and he has twenty men from Gen. McGill's ambulance corps. The health of the camp continues good. Lieut. Melvin W. Roswell, of the U. S. army, is there as an instructor in guard duty and military courtesy.

FOR THE FRESH AIR FUND.

Private Theatricals Increase the Funds of This Worthy Cause.

The Fresh Air Fund has just gained over $6 and the young people of West Seventh street have had lots of fun and, perhaps, gained some experience. The cause of these advantages for both was the private theatricals and tableaux held in the barn of Samuel Q. Lawson on the corner of Grant avenue and West Seventh street, Saturday evening.

The principal part of the programme was the play, "Pull Back." The characters were played by the following: Mrs. Oldstyle, Miss Marion Egan; Henrietta Pride, Miss Amy Burt; Lulu Pride, Miss Marion Woodcock; Gertrude Plain, Miss Florence Taylor; Lu, the waitress, Miss Cassie Lawson; the housekeeper, Miss Ada Woodruff. The plot was the old story of the rich but unknown aunt who is abused by the proud nieces. Then followed the tableaux. The first was "Faith and Hope," and Miss Amy Burt and Miss Marion Egan made a pretty picture together. "Grandma's Story" was well acted by the Misses Cassie Lawson, Marion Woodcock, Blanche Woodruff and Florence Taylor. Miss Ada Woodruff and Miss Cassie Lawson formed a beautiful tableax. The next was "Blacking Shoes" by Miss Florence Taylor. "A Train of the Nineteenth Century" was not the kind that runs upon rails but was represented by Miss Marion Egan in a dress with a very long train. "Trilby" was a large shoe in the centre of the stage. The last scene was a very pretty group entitled "America, Peace and Plenty," and the parts were respectively taken by Miss Amy Burt, Miss Marion Egan and Miss Ada Woodruff. It was a fitting close to a most enjoyable evening.

At the conclusion of the entertainment, on a motion by William C. Burt, the audience passed a unanimous vote of thanks to Mr. Lawson for his great kindness to the young people in furnishing the barn, stage, scenery, curtains, and all the necessary arrangements. Miss Edith Burt acted as stage manager and assisted generally behind the scenes. Lester Woodruff announced the names of the tableaux, and James Taylor made a very efficient doorkeeper.

GASOLINE STOVE EXPLOSION.

The screams of a woman, apparently in distress, were heard on North avenue Saturday afternoon about 4:30. A little later Whitfield Frazee was seen running down the avenue towards Park avenue, at the same time calling to Sergeant Kiely to pull box 13. All the above was sufficient to draw a large crowd, when it was learned that there was a fire on the top floor of the building occupied by Lawrence Paoli, the fruit dealer. Wm. Addis, Jr., rushed into the building and discovered that Mrs. Kinnell had lighted the gasoline stove and the blaze had frightened her. She then tried to extinguish the flames with a bed quilt, and not succeeding, her husband attempted to put them out by stamping a five-gallon can of gasoline over the stove. Mr. Addis wrapped the stove in the quilt and threw it out the window and the gasoline can soon followed. By this time the department responded and two lines of hose were laid to the building but the water was not needed, though it was turned on.

ONE RACE ONLY.

A large crowd of people met at the gentlemen's driving park Saturday to witness the horse races. On account of the storm only one race was run off, but that was a close and exciting one. Those who entered were J. B. Brown, of Rahway, with Roy B; C. B. Demarest, of Woodbridge, with Golddust; F. F. Anness, of Woodbridge, with General Benhem; and B. Carpenter, of Woodbridge, with Prince Milks.

After scoring several times they finally got off, each horse holding his place, but when about half way around the track General Benhem got the pole and held it as far as the quarter-mile post when Golddust pulled in ahead of him and won the first lap easily. In the second lap General Benhem again made a spurt ahead, but Golddust held his own and won the race by a length, General Benhem coming in second while, Prince Milks got third with Roy B a poor fourth. The time was 2:36 ¼.

Just as the second race was about to be started the storm came on and the horses were quickly taken to shelter.

Sudden Death of a Little One.

The sudden death of Leslie G. Pope, the nine-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Pope, occurred at Asbury Park Saturday night at 11:30, where they had taken him for the benefit of his health. The grief-stricken parents returned last night with the lifeless little body.

Trilby has been to Plainfield and not a toe was shown.

INCREASE OF VALUATIONS.

BOARD OF ASSESSORS MEET TO FIX STATE AND SCHOOL TAXES.

Plainfield's Total Increase Almost as Large as Elizabeth—Benefits of County Roads Evident.

The County Board of Assessors met at Elizabeth on Monday morning to make up the valuation and to fix the State and school tax, says the Journal. The meeting was held in the court room and all the wards and townships were represented.

William Eckerson of the Ninth ward of Elizabeth was chosen chairman, and John J. McGrath of the Comptroller's office, was elected secretary. J. A. Hubbard, the Plainfield assessor, who has attended the meetings of the board for many years, was absent owing to illness, and that city was represented by his son.

Among others who were present were County Collector Wood, County Attorney Coddington, Director Hubbard and Comptroller Carlton. The committee who examined the books were John M. C. Marsh of Westfield, John McGrath of Elizabeth, and J. B. Evarts of Rahway.

The valuations reported show considerable increase over last year. Elizabeth reported an increase of $254,000. Large increases were reported from Plainfield, Westfield, Summit and other sections of the county. The Westfield increased valuation is nearly equal to Elizabeth's, a total of $225,000.

These increases are attributed to the county road system. Plainfield's total increase is almost as large as Elizabeth. The largest increase of valuation is reported by Major Hicks, the new assessor in Summit. He advances Summit valuations over $400,000.

The total increase in the county is about one and a quarter million. This will make the county tax, it is estimated, nearly one per cent. lower than last year. There is $6,000 more school tax to levy, and only about $3,000 more county tax. The assessors also reported the census enumerations. The total population of the county is 85,831, an increase over the census of 1890 of 13,364.

The population in each of the townships and cities was reported as follows:

Clark, 384; Cranford, 2,145; Elizabeth, 43,765; Fanwood, 1,600; Linden, 1,061; New Providence, 934; Plainfield, 13,639; Rahway, 7,948; Roselle, 1,367; Springfield, 930; Summit, 4,819; Union, 3,412; Westfield, 3,753.

HAIL SWEPT PLAINFIELD.

SATURDAY'S STORM THE MOST SEVERE KNOWN IN YEARS.

Great Amount of Damage Done All Through This Section—Hail Stones as Big as Hens Eggs Fell With Great Force.

Plainfield was storm swept Saturday afternoon in a manner that not even the "oldest resident" can ever remember having witnessed before. About three o'clock in the afternoon big black clouds gathered in the north and west, and ten minutes after hail the size of kernels of corn began to play a tatter on roofs, awnings, walks, etc. It continued coming harder and bigger and in less than a minute hail stones as large as hens eggs were falling with such force as to create havoc with every frail thing with which they came in contact.

Almost every inhabitant witnessed some damage little or great, and everyone was more or less frightened.

From all over the city came reports of runaway horses, broken glasses, etc.

At Geo. Moore's store on East Front street, the hail made a hole in the roof through which poured a stream of water.

On North avenue there was a panic among the horses and the drivers were obliged to take them from the wagon, and lead them under shelter.

Albert Demarest, while trying to cover a horse with a blanket on North avenue, was hit on the hand with a stone with such force as to bring blood.

The stones penetrated wagon tops and umbrellas, leaving largh holes as souvenirs. An amusing incident was witnessed on Park avenue, where a dog was seen running down the street, and thinking that someone was throwing stones at him, kept up a continual howl.

There were several runaways on Front street, and one very exciting was a young girl alone in a wagon and the horse running at a rapid gait through the street. The girl kept hold of the reins though she could not stop. Joseph Gavett saw the affair and heroically ran out and caught the frightened animal.

Fred Dunn, the grocer, had a half dozen eggs in a box in his wagon in front of his store and they were broken.

At Miles's greenhouse on Somerset street, 1000 double panes of glass were broken and at Peterson's the florist, his loss of glasses number 1,200.

In a large number of private yards, vegetables and flowers were completely destroyed.

Charles Wilson, the contractor, was working at the home of Mrs. Wm. Lowe on Park avenue, and Mrs. Lowe picked up a hail stone which Mr. Wilson measured and it was 1¾ inches long and ⅞ inches thick.

At a West Seventh street residence a number of chickens started for cover as soon as soon as the storm commenced, but before all could reach it, a large stone fell and struck a chicken on the topknot with the result of killing it instantly.

Denton's greenhouse on Prospect Hill did not escape, and almost every glass was shattered.

Several runaway horses made a most exciting time on Somerset street as they were seen running in different directions, some with drivers and some without, but luckily in all cases there was no serious damage.

At C. W. McCutchen's greenhouse the majority of the glasses were broken, and being larger ones than is usually used the loss is much greater.

Langhorn, Monfort, and Thorn's photograph galleries all suffered from the hail storm, and in each case the glasses in the skylights were almost a total loss. Langhorn's loss was $150 and Thorn's $100.

Two delivery wagons belonging to George W. Rockfellow were standing before his store when the first hail stone arrived. A succeeding one struck one horse and he started to run and was soon joined by the other. Mr. Rockfellow grabbed one of the frightened animals by the head and the clerks secured the other and all remained there until the hail storm was over and the rain had come.

A. M. Griffin lost nearly 200 panes of glass in his building on Front street from the effects of the storm.

Hail smashed 135 lights of glass in Roberts' stables.

The horses of the hackmen at the North Avenue station held a dance of their own when the hail came, but none ran away. Many of the tops of the carriages were punctured by hail stones. Among those who suffered in this way were Henry Hansen, the top in whose carriage will have to be replaced, Wm. Callahan, Patrick Keeley and Patrick Lynch.

A horse and wagon from the bakery of Stephen Giles, the successor of Compton, ran away on Somerset street and returned to the stable, where he stopped.

Mrs. A. M. Vanderbeek, of Duer street, was caught out doors in the storm, and before she could get under shelter on Somerset street, two holes were cut through the rim of the sailor hat she wore.

The tin-type gallery on Somerset street was badly wrecked by the storm.

The hail did one good deed at any rate for it furnished enough ice for Tier to freeze an eight-quart can of ice cream with it.

Frazee's horse was standing in front of the store when an immense hail stone struck him on the back. He reared and then ran to his stable on Chatham street.

Six panes of glass was the total of Justice Newcorn's loss in his store on West Front street.

SEYMOUR SMITH'S DEATH.

He Was Shot Through the Heart Causing Instant Death.

The Otsego Farmer of Cooperstown contains the following accurate account of Seymour Smith's sad death:

Our quiet town was terribly shocked on Monday of this week about five o'clock p. m., by the occurrence of a very sad and fatal accident, in which Seymour, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Seymour G. Smith, of Plainfield, N. J., lost his life. He with a friend of his from the city, was here for the summer, having arrived only a few days ago. While the two boys were in swimming with a number of other lads, Fred Sternberg, with a Winchester repeating rifle, stopped on the bank of the creek. One of the bathers wanted to see how the cartridge was brought into position for firing, and in showing this the gun was accidentally discharged. The bullet of 38 calibre struck near the left arm, passing through the heart and coming out through the right shoulder blade, killing him almost instantly. Mr. and Mrs. Smith were at once notified by wire, and reached Hartwick Tuesday afternoon.

Coroner T. S. Blodgett, of Cooperstown, impaneled the following jury Monday evening: H. O. Branch, J. M. Bush, R. W. Gardner, E. N. Higbie, George McC. Augur, G. W. Porter, F. F. Harrington and H. S. Bradley. H. O. Branch was appointed foreman. They viewed the body and adjourned to nine a. m. Tuesday. Witnesses sworn were Fred Sternberg, George Bowler, Dr. J. M. McClellan, Lester Baldwin and Leon Porter. After hearing the evidence the jury rendered a verdict of accidental shooting.

Young Smith was sixteen years of age, an exceptionally bright boy and of good habits. His parents and two older brothers are stricken with grief; and the whole village is in sadness over the terribly sudden sorrow. Another sad lesson for boys, to be careful with firearms.

The funeral services and interment were held at Hartwick on July 11th.

The Buchanan Execution in Wax.

A strikingly weird group has just been placed on exhibition in the Chamber of Horrors at Eden Musee. It represents the death chamber at Sing Sing prison and the execution of Dr. Buchanan, the wife murderer, who was electrocuted last Monday. Every detail has been reproduced with accuracy. In the chair sits Dr. Buchanan and the electrodes are in position. By his side ready to give the signal for the deadly current stands Warden Sage. The keepers, guards, physicians and reporters are all there waiting for the execution. In an adjoining recess can be seen the switchboard with its lights, and the electrician is just about to close the switch which will send 1700 volts of electricity through the condemned man. In the distance can be heard the whirr of the dynamo and the whole effect of the group is weird but it teaches a great moral lesson.

THE TRENTON INDICTMENTS.

Trenton, July 15.—Judge Conover, in the Mercer County Court, this morning over-ruled the motion to quash the indictments against John L. Kuoer, Otto Heinz, Charles S. Robinson, and Emil Krauetler, charged with conspiracy against the State in connection with the contracts for printing State documents in the German language.

Judge Beasley of defendants' counsel took an exception to the ruiling. Lawyer Dennis for Charles S. Robinson asked for a postponement of the trial of his client because of R. V. Lindabury's inability to be present at the time fixed, July 24th. It was decided by the court that the trial of Kuser, Robinson, Heinz and Krautler, who are indicted jointly, should take place on September 23d.

Plainfield has had enough of hail storms to last her for all time to come.

SERVICE OF SONG.

First Baptist Church Attendants Enjoy Sweet Music.

The evening song service at the First Baptist church on Sunday was largely attended and thoroughly enjoyed.

The choir was increased in numbers for the occasion and under the efficient direction of organist E. J. Fitzburgh gave an admirable rendition of the entire programe, the features of which was the contralto solo by Miss Krymer of Brooklyn, in Mendelssohn's Anthem from thirteenth Psalm, and the soprano solo by Miss F. May Grant, entitled "Hear My Prayer;" Miss Krymer also sang "Eye hath not seen from the Holy City by Gaul," as an offertory, in a very pleasing manner.

Those in the choir were:

Mrs. Harold Serrell, and the Misses Swain, Krymer, Thompson, Spear, Grace Bonny, Bertha Needham, Florence Kline, Nancy Randolph, Gussie Runyon, F. May Grant, Flora Petrie, Bessie Blair, Emma Case, and Mr. Smith, Edward Ryder, L. H. Biglow Jr., C. W. McCutchen, B. T. Barnes, Wm. Holmes, Stacy Raynolds, Nelson Hull, and George Snediker.

Telephone Companies as Rivals.

The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company have served notice on the Mutual Telephone Company, of Elizabeth, that its charter is invalid because it was not obtained under the right law, and that the work of erecting its poles in Elizabeth, which has just been commenced, must be stopped or an injunction would be sought from the courts. The notice was served by Frank Bergen, the lawyer for the old telephone company, on William H. Rankin, president of the Mutual Company. The old company claims that one-third of the capital of the new company, or $10,000, should be paid on deposit before it begins to build its plant, and alleges that this has not been done.

Chamberlain's is the best of all. Vincent S. Barkl, of Danbury, Iowa, has used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy whenever in need of a medicine for coughs and colds, for the past five years and says: "It always helps me out. If anyone asks me what kind of cough medicine I use, I reply, Chamberlain's, that is the best of all. 25 and 50c. bottles for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues, T. S. Last June Dick Crawford brought his twelve-months-old child, suffering from infantile diarrhœa, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and had always been sickly. I gave it the usual treatment in such cases but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25 cent size had been used a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared, and its father and myself believe the child's life was saved by this remedy. J. T. Marlow, M. D., Tamaroa, Ill. A horse kicked H. S. Shafer, of the Freemyer House, Middleburg, N. Y., on the knee, which laid him up in bed and caused the knee joint to become stiff. A friend recommended him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did, and in two days was able to be around. Mr. Shafer has recommended it to many others and says it is excellent for any kind of a bruise or sprain. This same remedy is also famous for its cures of rheumatism. For sale by Reynolds's Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

W. H. Nelson, who is in the drug business at Kingville, Mo., has so much confidence in Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy that he warrants every bottle and offers to refund the money to any customer who is not satisfied after using it. Mr. Nelson takes no risk in doing this because the remedy is a certain cure for the diseases for which it is intended and he knows it. It is for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues. T. PECULIARLY SAD DEATH.

PREPARING FOR HER WEDDING MISS VAN WINKLE STRICKEN DOWN.

Sad indeed were the hearts of the people of Plainfield Sunday morning, when they learned of the death of Miss Susan R. Van Winkle, only daughter of Jacob R. and Edith R. Van Winkle, of Elm place, which occurred from a nervous attack and shock, caused by the severe hail storm Saturday afternoon.

Previous to the storm Miss Van Winkle was as well as usual, and nothing was noticed to indicate illness.

Leonard Smith, her fiance, had arrived from New York just ahead of the storm, which fact had pleased Miss Van Winkle. He had brought envelopes with him with which they intended to send out the announcement of their marriage after the event had taken place. They were seated at a table addressing them when the severe hail storm came. It affected Miss Van Winkle very perceptibly, and she was seized with nervousness about the open windows up stairs. Mr. Smith wanted to go through the house and close the windows, but she objected to being left alone. They both then went to the upper part of the house, and Mr. Smith closed the windows. They returned to the front part of the house and looking out of the window witnessed Joseph Blimm's delivery horse, driven by Will Swick, attempting to runaway, owing to its fright at the storm.

During the fractious actions of the animal Miss Van Winkle was hysterical, and Mr. Smith had difficulty in pacifying her. She kept saying that the man would be killed, and nothing seemed to quiet her. To add to the fright she had already experienced by the runaway horse and the terrible noise of the falling hail on the tin roof of the piazza, Mr. Smith attempted to draw down the window shade in order to cut off the view outdoors, when the roller gave way from its fastening, and shade and roller came crashing down to the floor at her feet. The result was that she fainted, and Dr. Jenkins was sent for, but not being at his office, Dr. Hallock answered the call. After an examination he decided that she would recover, but soon after he left she gradually grew weaker, until two o'clock yesterday morning, when Dr. Jenkins was summoned. He prescribed for her, and felt confident that she would rally from the shock. The doctor remained at the house for some time before going home. By her bedside sat her father, mother, brother, and Mr. Smith watching tenderly and anxiously over the young lady. About 4:30 she became worse, and asked that her head be raised and that someone fan her. In a few minutes it was noticed that her eyes were set. Mr. Smith at once hastened for Dr. Jenkins, and by the time he arrived she had expired.

Miss Van Winkle had grieved and mourned over the death of litttle Edith, her brother's child, who died recently, and that undoubtedly had much to do with her death.

She was engaged to Mr. Smith, and was to have been married quietly on Thursday afternoon next. It was their intention to spend the honeymoon with Mrs. E. T. Van Winkle and Mrs. E. H. Bird in the Adirondack Mountains, at the same time giving them a surprise, as they knew nothing of their plans.

Miss Van Winkle was a faithful member of Trinity Reformed church and Sunday-school, the Christian Endeavor society, and also the Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters, and her death leaves a vacancy that will be felt by church workers.

Her intended is heartbroken, and words cannot express the affliction that so suddenly blighted his prospects. Mr. and Mrs. Van Winkle are bowed down with grief over their loss.

They all have the deep and sincere sympathy of the people of Plainfield.

During Saturday's hail storm a resident of Franklin place stood out in the storm and held an umbrella over the vase on the front lawn to protect the plants in it from the hail.

CUPID INVADES A HOME.

AND A CHARMING NUPTIAL EVENT IS THE RESULT.

Marriage of Miss Sophia McGinnis to Harry M. Cooke—The Somerset Street Home Prettily Trimmed.

A charming wedding took place Wednesday afternoon at five o'clock when Miss Sophia McGinnis, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. McGinnis was married to Harry M. Cooke, an employe of the Central Railroad of New Jersey at their Jersey City office.

The rooms were beautifed with roses, ferns and dasies. A large horseshoe of dasies hung gracefully in the alcove where the nuptial knot was consummated. The very pretty decorations was the work of Miss Hattie Powelson, an intimate friend of the bride, and the artistic effect was pleasing.

Miss Katy Bassert, of Philadelphia, played Lohengrins wedding march as the bridal party entered the room, where they were met by Rev. Cornelius Schenck, who performed the ceremony.

The bride was gowned in white French null and carried a bouquet of white roses.

The maid of honor, Miss Nellie McGinnis, sister of the bride, wore a gown of pink and carried sweet peas. The best man was David Bodine. After the ceremony those present extended hearty congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Cooke. Refreshments were then served. Mr. and Mrs. Cooke left the house amid showers of rice, and as the coach passed through Somerset street an old shoe could be seen hanging in the rear. They left on the 6:40 p. m. train for New York, and from whence no one knows where they are going. It is expected they will return the first of the week and take up their residence on Summit avenue, where a furnished house is awaiting them.

The ushers were Lambert B. Bodine and William Cooke.

A large number of handsome and useful presents were received. The employes in the office where Mr. Cooke works gave a very pretty dinner set, and the bride received two checks. Two choice presents were received from relatives in Kansas and Nebraska.

The guests present to witness the happy event included:

Miss Sophia Bossert, Miss Katy Bossert, Phiadelphia; Miss Christy Coddington, Mt. Horeb; Mayor J. B. Coddington, Bound Brook; Mrs. T. L. Littell, Elizabeth; Miss M. Hitchcock, New York; Mrs. A. Gillman, Newark; Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Wooley, Westfield; Mr. and Mrs. Casper Bolsterle, the Misses Emma, Minnie and Dolly Bolsterle, Mrs. Joseph Bolsterle, Miss N. Kreitling, Miss Eva Lance, Mrs. J. Hedden, Mrs. Geo. Angleman, Rev. and Mrs. Cornelius Schenck, Mrs. John Cory, Miss Emma Cory, Miss Maggie Cory, Miss Hattie Powilson, Miss Etta Thorn, Miss May Mills, Miss Mattie Cooke, Mrs. E. Cooke. Wm. Cooke, Edward Smith, David Bodine, and Lambert Bodine.

WEDDED AT MT. OLIVE.

A Happy Event Witnessed by Congratulating Friends.

The Mt. Olive Baptist church was well filled with people Wednesday when Miss Anna Bonner was united in marriage to Thomas G. Hines.

The bridal party were punctual and exactly at eight o'clock the ceremony was performed. The bride entered on the left, gowned in white, wearing a tulle veil. She carried a bouquet of white bridal roses. Close behind her was the maid of honor, Miss Mary Jones, also gowned in white. On the right was the groom and best man, Wm. Burden.

The party met in front of the church where the pastor, Rev. P. H. Gibson, performed the impressive ceremony, after which they were taken to the North avenue station and left for New York on the 8:31 train. They went to the home of the groom's mother, where a reception was given them. Mr. and Mrs. Hines will live in Plainfield.

New Depot at Cranford.

At the last meeting of the Cranford Township Committee the committee appointed to confer with the Central Railroad officials reported that Superintendent Peddle informed them that the company had plans out for a depot, to be erected on the south side of the track, and that the company proposed to tunnel under the tracks at Union avenue, the improvement contemplated to cost about $75,000.

An Up-to-Date Party.

There is lots of enjoyment in a cycling party, as a numbet of young people of this city and the borough will testify after their experience yesterday. Those who participated in this up-to-date enjoyment were:

Miss Emma Buckle, Miss Bertha Thorne, Miss Mary Collier, John VanWinkle, Jr., Henry B. Drake, and E. Maxwell Honeyman. Metuchen was their destination.

PIE LORE.

All the Puritans ate pie held in their fingers. The Pilgrims, an inferior people, who landed on the south shore of Massachusetts Bay, acquired the habit of eating pies from the Puritans, who imported the first seeds for pie fruits into this country, as may be seen by the manifest of the first ship sent out by the Governor and Company of the Massachusetts Bay Colony.

The original manifest is in the archives at the State House in Boston; and it shows that "64 pye platters and 300 pyrs of Irish woolen stockings" were packed in one box set in a case of apple, cherry and other seeds. After the Puritans and Pilgrims intermarried, the custom of eating pie with knives was introduced for indoor meals, but for fishing excursions, clambakes and militia musters the good old custom of taking pie in the hand continues from Newburyport even unto the far end of Cape Cod.

All sorts of juicy fruit pies are eaten on Cape Cod in this way. The cuts are carried to the mouth by the right hand; the left hand is held underneath the right as a reservoir for the juice. The true art of eating fruit pies is only understood by Cape Cod girls, who never spill a drop of berry juice on their gowns, nor drope a flake of pie crust on their chins.

When the custom of eating pie with knives was introduced by the Anglomaniacs of the eighteenth century, many accidents befell the knife users, who became scarred all about their mouths by cuts from the sharp scimetar pattern steel knives made in England. After a time dull knives were introduced; then an inventor made a knife with a straight blade and rounded point; next came the fashion of silver plating the dulled knives, and for forty years 99 per cent. of the table knives used in this Commonwealth have been as dull as hoes; all on account of the necessity of catering to pie eaters.

Steel knives with sharp blades are never seen hereabouts, except in fashionable clubs, the mansions of cultivated persons, and in hotels patronized by New Yorkers, Westerners and Southerners.

Pie has been banished from seven clubs and four hotels in Boston. The consumption thereof has declined 50 to 75 per cent. in the past decade in three famous downtown hotels in the city of Boston.

"Parker's," in the days when Daniel Webster taught Harvey Parker how to make fish chowder and Bunker Hill punch, used to list twenty kinds of pie on its bill of fare. In those days a cook was judged on the goodness of his pork and beans, chowder, fried scrod, cream of tartar biscuits and pies.

Nowadays the chef finds no place on his menu for those toothsome delicacies of long ago, except at Parker's or Young's where nine kinds of pie and two kinds of chowder are made. But if old Daniel Webster could rise from the dead and see the pie and chowder of to-day, he would groan in heaviness of spirit.

PASSING OF THE BAD MAN.

The Courier-Journal says: That far Western character known as the "bad man" is rapidly passing away. Here and there one still lives, flourishing modestly—and harmlessly—on the capital he acquired when laws were without form and void; here and there one makes occasional abortive attempts to retrace his steps, and dance the gay flings of his youth, but the times and the marshals are against him. Somehow he cannot always understand it—the things that used to ennoble a man above all other achievements are more lightly esteemed than they used to be. To his intense disgust, if his heart be yet turbulent, he finds that filling up with wild liquor has become disreputable and the killing of a man unsafe.

From 1855 to 1870 was about the limit of the "bad man" era, and his country was anywhere from the Missouri river to the Pacific coast. Since the latter time no man has enjoyed a long career as a "killer." Even in the newest mining camps and the wildest cattle towns the force of the lawful man has been so early felt that after one or two indulgences in murder, however strong the provocation, the "bad man" has usually "sloped" and left his little reputation to grow up by itself; whereas in the old days he would have steadfastly remained in the region of its birth, cultivating it, and adding to it whenever—well, whenever a safe occasion arose.

Lawsuits Fewer in England.

The millennium seems to be at hand in England. Law cases, which have been steadily diminishing in number of late years, were so few at the Easter term of courts that in the Queen's Bench, though three of the Judges were withdrawn for other duties, it was likely that the others would be left with nothing to do before the end of the term, and in the Court of Appeal the Judges could easily keep abreast of their work, sitting only five days in the week.

The Superior Courts give decisions in many instances in from three to five weeks, which is quicker than was possible two years ago, and sooner than a decision can be obtained in the County Courts. In the Equity Court, if cases do not proceed so fast, matters are in such a condition that it is hard to believe there could be a time when the business before the Judges would occupy them "for at least three years to come, though no fresh business were to come before them."

In all the Courts, save the Probate and Divorce Court, there is a penury of suits. There is less to do and it is done more quickly, and the number of applicants for admission to the bar has never been so small.

A POINTED PERFORMANCE.

FAMILIAR CINDERILLA ACTED BY PRETTY YOUNG GIRLS.

Novel Entertainment at the Parish House of Church of Heavenly Rest — Committee of Arrangements Deserve Credit.

The glimmering light from numerous Chinese lanterns, which were swinging in the cool evening breezes, danced over a merry throng as they came to attend the entertainment given in the Church of the Heavenly Rest for the benefit of the excursion fund, last Friday. The parish house was well filled even before the curtain rose, and before the entertainment closed every seat in the room was taken.

A dramatic version of that old familiar story of Cinderilla was given after a duet "You Can't Play in My Yard," by the Misses Lizzie Hendry and Bertha Schunk. The characters were taken by the following: Cinderilla, Miss Viola Lievers; her sisters, Miss Libbie Dennick and Miss Carrie Howard; the god-mother, Miss Sallie Emery; Prince, Walter Sherwin.

The story is too well known to be told and it only need be said that all did their best to make a success of the play and succeeded admirably.

After a recitation by Miss Doty Smalley, the Peek Sisters of Alaska, were introduced. All were dressed alike in long gray gowns with long peaked paper caps which fell over almost at the wrong moment

Miss Sandford, of New York, represented the chaperone of the party, while the parts of her very modest and retiring sisters were taken by the Misses Etta Yaeger, Libbie Dennick, Alma Jackson, Rachael Schunk, Mary Grace, Viola Lievers, Mary Porter, Maggie Porter, Sadie Emory, Linnie Emory, Carrie Howard, and Ida Utzinger. Miss Sandford then gave a speech that the coming representative of the coming state of Alaska is going to make if he is elected. It a was a general mix-up of large words and wrong meanings that sent the audience into roars of laughter.

The other sisters were then introduced individually and sang, or played on some musical instrmment, some of which selections were very amusing.

After the Alaskan visitors had departed, four little boys, Albert Yeager, Tom DeMeza, Everett Sherwin, and Robert Sherwin, gave a vocal selection in a very pleasing manner.

Another little play entitled, "The Aunt's Visit," ended the evening's enjoyment.

Miss Linnie Emory and Miss Minnie Martin, two society girls, are about to have a party when they learn that their old aunt, Miss Peabody, represented by Miss Maggie Porter, is coming to visit them. Their school friend, Miss Elma Jackson is with them and she counsels kindness, but the girls persist in their rude course when their aunt arrives. She in due time makes life weary for them at their party by suddenly appearing in her old clothes. The school friend comes to the rescue and leads the aunt away.

The most abused and yet, by far, the most important part of an entertainment is the committee of arrangements, and the committee who so energetly arranged and carried out the programme without a hitch, certainly deserve great credit. It consisted of Miss Etta Yaeger, Miss Mary Graves, Mrs. C. Lewis, and Miss Sandford.

THE PRESIDENT TO MR. MARSH.

Mr. Cleveland Receives the Gift of Mr. Marsh's Piscatorial Outfit.

President Cleveland is a busy man nowadays who is confronted with a condition and not a theory. But Mr. Cleveland is not so busy but that he can write letters, or, at least, instruct other people to write them.

A few days ago he received the fishing pole which was made by Andrew F. Marsh, of this city, and, though no precise report has been received, it is supposed that the President immediately donned his angling togs, and with a tomato can of angle worms, started for the fishing pools of Buzzards Boy. The news reports of Wednesday state that the President went fishing, and doubtless he fished with the rod made in Plainfield, from the fact that Mr. Marsh received the following letter yesterday:

My Dear Sir: The President directs me to acknowledge the receipt of the hickory trout pole which you were kind enough to send him, and to thank you heartily for it. The President prizes this gift highly and wishes me to assure you that he is especially pleased with it as an evidence of your thoughtfulness and regard.

Very Truly Yours,
Henry F. Thurber,
Private Secretary.

Andrew F. Marsh, Esq.,
Plainfield, N. J.

To Report the Convention.

On their return from Boston the Misses Emily Coriell and Alice Woodland will furnish interesting reports of the convention which is being held in that city this week, which will be read at the First Baptist church.

A YOUNG HERO.

Bound Brook Boy Prevents a Disastrous Railroad Accident.

Tuesday evening as Herbert Henry, who lives about a mile west of Bound Brook, says the Elizabeth Journal, was doing some chores about the barn he noticed that some empty coal cars, standing upon the side track of the P. & R. Railroad, were somewhat nearer the main track and switch than is usual. To satisfy his doubts as to the matter he climbed the fence and upon reaching the cars saw that his fears were confirmed, for one car was wholly upon the main track, and another partly so.

Knowing a through train to be nearly due, and that a serious wreck would most certainly occur, did he not stop the train, he without a moment's hesitation hastened to the house and procured a lantern, tying some red flannel around it. He then stationed himself several hundred yards down the track, just at a curve in the road which would have prevented the engineer of the train from seeing either the coal cars or the regular danger signal.

The train which soon approached, was a fast train leaving New York at 7:30 and due at Bound Brook at 8:33, and being behind time was running at a high rate of speed.

As it came around the curve young Henry swung the lantern to and fro, and was seen by the engineer, who hastily brought the train to a stop, but not until it was within a few yards of the coal cars on the main track.

This is the third time young Henry has prevented a wreck while living near the track, and it is certain the passengers feel that there is no one more worthy of recognition by the company than this young man.

SCOTCH PLAINS PENCILINGS.

Many Terse and Newsy Items Gathered in Plainfield's Suburb.

A large caravan of gypsies passed through town Thursday on their way to Newark. They had a good assortment of wagons and horses; also plenty of dugs and chickens.

The Pastime Athletic Association will play against the Scotch Plains team Saturday afternoon.

The Episcopal church on Park avenue looks very fine in its new coat of paint.

Strangers passing along Park avenue yesterday afternoon were very much amused to see little Buela Cole driving a team of horses to a large hay rake.

Mr. Miller, of New York, who is occupying the house of Mr. Briggs for the summer, has purchased a fine new team of trotters and a new light wagon.

Mr. Bartlett and family, of Park avenue, will shortly take up their residence in New York.

Mr. Douglass, of Park avenue, is the proud owner of a fine new team of bay horses, purchased at Newark last week.

Mrs. Sisser and family, formerly of Scotch Plains, and now of Yonkers, are staying at Emery's Hotel.

Mr. Quereau and family will leave shortly for New York, where they will make their future residence.

The Dog Shot.

A vicious dog belonging to Mrs. Kiss, of East Third street, bit Warren Seaman, of that street, last Sunday, inflicting a painful wound on the leg. Warren was playing with a cousin who had the dog, when the latter snapped at him, his teeth catching the flesh on the leg. Mrs. Kiss was willing that the dog should be shot, and Mrs. Seaman asked Sergeant Kiely if he would attend to it. The canine was shot today. The boy had the wound cauterized by a physician.

Red Men Raised.

District Deputy Great Sachem Charles M. Ulrich visited the wigwam of Paugh-Caugh-Naugh-Sinque Tribe, I. O. R. M., last evening, and raised to the various stumss the following chiefs: Sachem, Charles Conover; Senior Sagamore, William J. Allen; Junior Sagamore, Charles Stephens; Prophet, Charles I. Young; Chief of Records, Charles M. Ulrich; C. of W., Thomas Osment; First Sannap, John H. Carney; Second Sannap, Harry C. Runyon; G. of W., E. H. Neal; G. of F., L. K. Clark. The meeting was made exceedingly lively by remarks from the Deputy and his staff, and the newly raised chiefs.

Another Stolen Wheel.

Fred Beebe, of New York, who is visiting his aunt, Mrs. S. C. Pearson, of Watchung avenue, had his wheel stolen Tuesday night. It seems that young Beebe left his wheel in the front of Mr. Pearson's yard in his haste to go and see the fireworks and when he returned the bicycle was gone. The wheel was a last year Premier.

Private Theatricals.

SPAN ACROSS THE BROOK.

JOINT MEETING OF FREEHOLDERS AWARD A CONTRACT.

W. T. Kirk, of Plainfield, to Build the Clinton Avenue Bridge—Talk About a Watchung Avenue Bridge.

That the members of the Union and Somerset County Boards of Chosen Freeholders are well chosen goes without saying.

Thursday afternoon was the time set for giving out the contract for building the iron bridge over Green brook at Clinton avenue. The bridge committee from the Union County board, consisting of Director J. F. Hubbard, chairman J. H. Tier, A. S. Clark, Dr. Westcott, J. C. Ogden and J. M. Roll, were present, as were also the following members from the Somerset County board: J. C. Staats, Director, Andrew Lutkins, J. E. Ballentine, L. E. Barkalew, Robt. Zergiebel, and W. J. Logan.

They met in executive session at three o'clock at Tier's lake house, and received the bids offered. They were only a few minutes getting at the figures.

The companies bidding and the men representing them are as follows:

Groton Bridge Co,, New York, F. W. Sage, $1,897; Dean & Westbrook Bridge Co., F. R. Long, $1,920; Havana Bridge Co., New York, F. H. Buck, $1,940; Toledo Bridge Co., Toledo, Ohio, H. E. Beecher, $1,895; Wrought Iron Bridge Co., Canton, Ohio, W. B. La Chicotte, $2,100; Owego Bridge Co., N. Y., W. J. Barnett, $1,997; Horseheads Bridge Co., N. Y., F. A. Case, $2,040; Berlin Bridge Co., East Berlin, Conn., J. R. Watt, $1,960; Penn Bridge Co., Beaver Falls, Pa., S. White, $1,843; Massillon Bridge Co., Massillon, Ohio, F. A. Lyte, $2,000; W. T. Kirk, Plainfield, $1,789.

The last named was the lowest bidder and therefore received the contract, which was signed by Directors J. F. Hubbard, J. C. Statts, and W. T. Kirk.

The bridge when completed will be a handsome one, and a credit to the counties.

After the business all were served with Tier's celebrated ice cream, and a general social time was enjoyed.

The freeholders talked a little about the possibility of a bridge being built over the brook in connection with the extension of Watchung avenue, and all thought it would only be a short time before such a structure would have to be built.

GIRLS AS NEGRO MINSTRELS.

A Church Show at Metuchen Which Surprised Some of the Audience.

A dozen young women, whose families make their summer home in Metuchen, gave a negro minstrel performance for the benefit of St. Agnes Guild, of St. Luke's Episcopal church, on Monday night in Robin's hall. The best families in town were represented.

People were turned away for lack of room. The girls were made up by a professional. The curtain went up on a semi-circle of well-blacked performers. The men were in burlesque negro attire, and the young women wore red bandannas, basques of calico or gingham, and skirts of wonderful hues that hung just far enough from the floor to show pretty ankles encased in hosiery of lurid stripes.

Pretty soon sensitive people began to fidget under the jokes. There was no evidence that the rector of St. Luke's had exercised a censorship over the jokes that flew about the circle. Then, when three very proper young women stepped out and did a song and tambourine dance, there were exclamations of surprise from some of the more staid ladies of the guild.

The audience as a whole was immensely tickled and applauded wildly. The show came to a close with a rattling cake walk, in which there was a lively dance.

David Shafer, manager and trainer of Sanger, Tuesday called on A. G. Spalding, and discussed the future of the professional portion of his racing team. No arrangements could be made, and, at Shafer's request, Mr. Spalding released both him and Sanger. Shafer believes that there is a bright future for Sanger in the professional ranks, and thinks that will now become the leading class.

A Summer Camp.

H. D. Brewster and family, of Washington avenue, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Sandford, Jr., of West Seventh street, and Mr. and Mrs. Burt Tilney, of Boston, have left for the Maine woods where they will enjoy camp life on the shores of one of those beautiful little inland lakes.

Where They Slaughter.

Chief Marshal VanHorn has succeeded in establishing the dogpound in a building in the rear of Boyce's Hotel, and yesterday the paraphernelia was moved from the old pound to the new one by Dogcatcher Frisbie. One dog was disposed of through the use of the gun.

ALIMONY AND COUNSEL FEES.

Mrs. Elizabeth Keller, of Elizabeth, Makes Application for a Divorce.

Senator Voorhees and Judge Gilhooley, of Elizabeth, were opposing counsel in an application for alimony and counsel fees heard before Vice-Chancellor Emery Wednesday morning. Judge Gilhooley represented Mrs. Elizabeth Keller, of Elizabeth, who has instituted divorce proceedings against her husband, Louis Keller, on statutory grounds. The plaintiff asked that an order be granted compelling her husband to support her pending the trial of the suit.

In her affidavit the wife sets forth that she married Keller in 1873, and that she has four children, the eldest of whom is married. Since 1883 the couple have not lived together.

A general denial of the charge made was entered by Mr. Voorhees for the defendant. The husband claimed his wife left him in 1883, and that he never refused to support her. It was shown that two of the children were able to support themselves, and the Vice-Chancellor granted an order giving the wife $7 a week alimony and $25 counsel fees.

Wanted on a Charge of Embezzlement.

The police of Elizabeth are searching for James H. Dougherty, a well-known amateur actor and law student, who is wanted on a charge of embezzlement. The complaint against him is made by Justice Charles Jacobs, who charges the young man with defrauding him out of considerable money. Two officers went to Dougherty's home on Florida street yesterday to arrest him, but the young man had disappeared, and is said to have left the city. He was studying in the office of Lawyer Allen Benny, of Bayonne.

Many handsome presents in gold were received by the bride and groom of fifty years and many notes of congratulation were received during the day.

An Editor's Opinion.

Senator Voorhees's friends are working quietly, but energetically, to capture the delegates from Rahway to the Gabernatorial convention for the Elizabeth statesman. Editor Rollinson, of the Rahway Advocate, claims that Mr. Voorhees will have a solid delegation from Rahway—Newark News.

MOST REMARKABLE WOMAN.

MRS. SPENCER LIVED EIGHTY-SEVEN YEARS OF USEFULNESS.

She Was of Patriotic Ancestry—Generous to a Fault—Was a Thorough Business Woman.

There was laid at rest Thursday all that was mortal of one of the remarkable of the many women born in the early part of the present century, in the burial of the remains of Caroline B. Spencer, widow of the late James Lyman Spencer. Mrs. Spencer was born in New Providence, Essex county, (now Union) N. J., July 17th, 1808, and was a daughter of John and Sallie Wilcox. Four brothers and two sisters survive her. Isaac lives in Kansas, Henry, Edward, and John M., in New Providence, Mrs. Abbie Jimmerson, in Illinois, and Mrs. Louisa Tuthill, of Orange county, N. Y.

She was of patriotic ancestry, her great-grandfathers, on both her father's and mother's side, having served with distinction in the Continental army in its great struggle for American independence, both having been promoted from the ranks to captaincies while in the service, and it is not therefore at all strange that this same lady was such an enthusiastic American. A more remarkable person with such a retentive memory did not live.

When the late war between the north and the south was raging there were none more loyal than her. She was a member of the Patriotic Society that met in Alberti's block, Front street, this city, (where Griffen's store now is) and assisted in manufacturing underclothing, sheets, lint, bandages and supplies, for field and hospital service, for the brave boys who were fighting their country's battles, and where she had a son, Captain Craig Spencer. in active duty. Frequently during the war she would send by express boxes and trunks containing necessary articles of clothing and delicacies, not obtainable in the army, to the brave defenders of the old flag.

Born and reared on a farm she always took a deep interest in agricultural matters. She was generous to a fault, more for others than for herself. She never turned a needy person empty handed from her door and would divide her last cent with anyone in want. The early settlers in this locality remember her in their trials of sickness. During the first two years of her residence in North Plainfield she sat up fifty nights with the different sick, the rich and the poor—they were all alike to her when in trouble. A more active business woman could not be found. Shreud and careful in real-estate investments, never making injudicious ventures it is not strange that today realty in which she was interested is paying thirty-five per cent. yearly. A saying of her's was that a piece of land was like a figure, its value depended upon the position it occupied.

She was a great reader and a person that kept papers containing any valuable or notable events that have transpired during the last half century. Among her relics was a British officers coat, red on one side and blue on the other, (turn coat,) which was captured with a British soldier by her greatgrandfather, Captain William Line, at the battle of Princeton.

She moved to North Plainfield in 1861 where she resided nearly all the time since and where the evening of her active life was passed among those whom she loved.

She was the mother of the late John L. Spencer, of Scotch Plains, Captain Craig Spencer, of California, Mrs. Elias Allen, of Washington Valley, Mrs. Alonzo Regur, of Delavan, Illinois, W. F. and Collector H. N. Spencer, of North Plainfield.

The remains were interred alongside those of her late husband in the Presbyterian cemetery, on Chatham street, yesterday. The bearers were her grandchildren Alexander Gibby Spencer, Harry L. Spencer, (sons of H. N. Spencer) Samuel Spencer, son of W. F. Spencer, Louis Schutt and George Demler, Jr., and Charles Blume, the two later husbands of grandchildren. Louis Schutt was a great grandchild of deceased.

The removal of the cranks from a bicycle is one of the most delicate of operations; to do it successfully the crank key should be driven tightly into place by striking its head and then driven out from the end, which is much reduced in size and threaded, and should be done with but one blow of the hammer. If the threaded end of the crank projects beyond the nut, loosen the nut until key and nut are exactly flush, otherwise remove nut entirely. Whatever is held against the opposite side must be heavy, so as to absorb the momentum of the hammer without injury to the shaft or bearing.

Out for the Summer.

Mrs. W. H. Roome, mother of W. J. Roome, of North Plainfield, and Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Harbow, of West Fifthy-seventh street, New York, are summering at the Revere House. They bring with them their horses and carriages.

DID HE CARESS OR SLAP?

At Any Rate Will Smith's Horses Started on a Wild Run.

Front street seemed to be a great place for runaways, Thursday. Another occured about half past two o'clock in the afternoon. Will Smith's splendid team of horses, with a surrey attached, were going down Front street under the guidance of young Arthur Smith, who started to turn into Somerset street. One of the electric cars had just stopped to allow the conductor to turn the switch when the team passed by. The conductor of the car either patted the horse as a caress or struck him, which caused them to rear and then run. Arthur saw he could not pull into Somerset street so he pluckily held on to the reins and kept the team, both of which were running now, on the right side of the road. Will Smith was talking with George Moore in front of the latter's store, when he saw the horses run and immediately started in pursuit. Mr. Love, the grocer, kindly lent the use of one of his delivery wagons for the pursuers. But before they could catch the runaway, Arthur Smith had by careful management brought them down to a trot.

JUMPED FROM THE CAR.

To steal a ride on the electric cars long been the joy of numbers of youngsters on Somerset street, but now little Myer Moledezky, the son of Harman Moledezky, the shoe dealer, will not try it again for a while. The lad, who is about eight years old, jumped on the back platform of a Somerset street car last evening as the conductor went to the front part of the car to collect fares. When he returned the car was spinning along at a high rate of speed. He discovered Myer crouched close in the corner, but before he had a chance to say a word the lad sprang backwards, striking his head on the roadbed. He was unconscious for a few moments, and was carried into R. G. Shaw's drug store. After he regained his senses, Fred Denecklau kindly carried him home, as the poor boy was too weak and dizzy to walk.

The Dunellen and Westfield teams had a tame game of ball Thursday at Westfield. The Dunellenites walked all over the Westfield boys, and at the close of the ninth inning the score stood twenty-seven to eleven in favor of the Dunellenites. The men on the two nines where placed as follows: Westfield, Williams, pitcher; Howe, catcher; Kimball, first base; Richardson, second base; Brainard, third base; Alben, short stop; Brown, left field; Kitchen, centre field; Embleton, right field. Dunellen, Churchill, left field; Keller, catcher; Atchison, pitcher; Dellinan, centre field; Bellur, short stop; Peters, third base; Bogart, first base; Coriell, second base. A special feature of the game was the pitching by Sam Atchison and the catching by C. Kellar. The Dunellen team is doing fine work these days.

A close and exciting game was played yesterday between the Fanwood and the Scotch Plains nines, with the result of the Scotch Plains boys beating the Fanwooders by the score of nine to thirteen. The men lined up as follows: Fanwood, Johansen, S., left field; Douglass. B., second base; Quereau, N., catcher; Bartlett, O., third base; Bartlett, H., centre field; Briggs, R., short stop; Davie, G., pitcher; Collins, F., right field; Allen, G., first base. Scotch Plains, Macanly, U., right field; Flanery, H., short stop; Macanly, B., second base; Haskard, B., third base; Marsh, E., pitcher; Chapin, A.; catcher; Reich, S., left field; Day, R., first base; Fitzgerald, R., centre field. The game was a close one up to the eighth inning when the Scotch Plains boys began to gain and from then to the close of the ninth inning the boys on the both teams worked hard. Tomorrow the same teams will meet again to decide which are the champions. Edward Hand umpired.

Reckless Celebrators.

On the Fourth of July Adam Miller, of Picton, had his Jersey cow tied to a post in the field opposite the Picton Depot. When he went to get the animal at night he found that it could use but three legs. Thinking that his son had been beating the cow, the farmer gave the boy a sound thrashing, though he protested his innocence. Later, when the cow's injury was closely examined, however, five bullet holes were found in her leg.

Miss Scribner and Miss Newton expect to continue the Kindergarten with their school, as will be seen by their adverrtisement in another column, although a report to the contrary has been circulated.

AN EDITOR'S IGNORANCE.

CRITICISES SOMETHING HE KNOWS NOTHING ABOUT.

The Courier-News Rants About the Sewer Bonds Without the Slightest Intelligence of the Facts.

The Courier-News editor waxed warm Friday in his sheet, the type on which is set by three-dollar-a-week compositors, about the action of the common council and mayor in reference to their action in making arrangements to pay the sewer indebtedness which is now being incurred by the city. He devoted a half column in berating the city officials by arguments so full of errors, and so absurd, that they were ridiculous. A sample of his harum-scarum statements is the one that the city is to pay five per cent, when as a matter of fact the interest mentioned for the proposed loan is four per cent. But a little matter of one per cent out of the way cuts no figure with the collegiate editor. Letting the rest of his statements stand on a par with the above, which for veracity, they do, the fact is the city has no bonds to offer for sale, or invite bids for, at the present time. Not a bond can be issued until the sewers are completed and the commissioners appointed to assess benefits, and their report approved and finally confirmed by the Common Council. Until this is done the amount of bonds to be issued cannot be determined upon. Under the most favorable circumstances this cannot be done under a year, and it may be eighteen months and possibly two years. The effort of the finance commitee has been to take advantage of the present low rates for money to negotiate the bonds to be issued, without risking the changes that may occur in the money market during the next year or two. In the meantime the city has to borrow the money on its notes, having a year to run, to complete the sewers. These notes have been offered to a number of institutions in this city and New York, and four and a half per cent is the best rate of interest that any of them have been willing to take them at. Banks, trust companies and banking houses were applied to but no offer better than four and one half could be obtained, until Messrs. Fisk & Sons sent in their proposition to loan the city what money it needs, up to one hundred thousand dollars, to complete the sewers and take the city notes at four per cent., and to receive payment for them in cash or in the four per cent. bonds of the city when issued, be it sooner or later. The acceptance of this proposition gives to the city all the money that it will be compelled to borrow at four per cent, and guarantees the sale of its bonds when issued on the same basis. That this is a very favorable negotiation for the city no one competent to judge will deny, and The Courier editor who argues to the contrary, only exposes his ignorance.

Very few municipal bonds are negotiated on a four per cent basis, and then only in States where savings bank and other trust investments are restricted by law, and are consequently very scarce, and where municipal bonds are made available for such purposes.

The city is certainly to be congratulated on the outcome of this negotiation, notwithstanding the foolish attempts of The Courier to have people believe that something is wrong.

A DAY IN THE WOODS.

Keyser's Woods the Scene of a Grand Family Picnic, Yesterday.

One of the advantages of living in suburbs is that of going picnicing at any time, and yesterday several East Sixth street families took advantage of their opportunities and held a picnic in Keyser's woods, at the corner of Webster place and Putnam avenue. The day was spent most enjoyably in games and other outdoor amusements while the always ready refreshments took the most of the noon hour.

Those who enjoyed this pleasant outing were:

Mrs. Frank S. Templin, of East Sixth street, her mother-in-law, Mrs. Templin, her sister Mrs. Gonegan, Molly Templin, Edmund Templin, Emily Templin, Mrs. Mary B. Hill, of East Sixth street, Oliver Hill, Florence Hill, Juliet Hill, Mrs. Alonzo W. Weseman, of East Sixth street, Margaret Weseman, Edwin Weseman, Elmer Weseman, Ethel Weseman, Mrs. Willard M. Miner, of Ease Sixth street, Beatrice Miner, Vincent Miner, Mrs. Herbert D. Templin, of North avenue, Arthur and Anna Templin.

A Penny Saved

is not always a penny earned, for though you may at first save a penny purchasing a pair of glasses at a cheap-John or a general merchandise establishment, the investment will surely cause you increased trouble and expense later on. It will be money in your pocket to have your eyes supplied with glasses that are scientifically adjusted to their requirements, and at Collier's, 103 Park avenue, you will have a gurantee of securing this result.

TIE FOR FIRST PLACE.

The Progress of the Tennis Tournament on Henry Ryder's Courts.

Walz defeated G. Ryder, 6-3, 6-4; C. Walz defeated C. Morgan, 6-1, 6-2; C. Walz defeated A. Hartley, 6-4, 6-1.

G. Ryder	1	1
F. Fish	1	1
F. Goddard	1	1
C. Morgan	1	2
A. Hartley	0	3
R. Simpson	0	2
T. Smith	0	1

It will be hardly possible to complete the tournament by today so it will probably extend into next week.

A Freak of Nature.

Dr. Branin, of Blackwood, had a most remarkable case of childbirth in his practice a few days ago. He was called in to attend a farmer's wife who was one of his regular patients, and the outcome of the case was a child on the Siamese twins order. There were two perfect heads, two bodies joined together at the side, and four arms, all of which were apparently perfect. There were three legs, one of which was only partly formed, having no foot but ending in a great toe and an ordinary nail. The arms on the side of the bodies that were joined were crossed over the back, and looked as though they would have been useless in further development. The child was born alive, but died in a few minutes. It was photographed and then properly interred. The mother is doing well.

Mayor Rankin to Move.

Since the Ninth Ward of Elizabeth has got to be too Democratic for Mayor Rankin he has decided to remove to the Twelfth, which is the aristocratic portion of the city. The Mayor has lived in the Ninth ward since he came to Elizabeth, nearly a quarter of a century ago. It was there he gained his first political success. He was called the Boss of the ward for years or until the Democrats by adding a slice of the Third ward upset the Mayor's supremacy. He has purchased the Graves or Kellogg property on the Newark Boulevard. His present residence is now for sale.

J. W. Pitman's Body Found.

The body of James W. Pitman, of 214 Franklin street, Elizabeth, has been found floating in Newark Bay. Pitman was sixty-one years of age, and a ropemaker by trade. He leaves two daughters and a sister, who is the mother of Dr. Fisk, of 258 West Fifty-seventh street, New York. County Physician Converse has refused to grant a permit for burial pending an examination. Suicide is suspected. Pitman had not been seen by his relatives since last Sunday, when he visited his sister.

Secured An Engagement.

Thomas Schaffer, of Somerset street, has secured an engagement with Bentley's old-fashioned one ring circus, which is exhibiting at Seventy-ninth street in New York, to give his club juggling and baton throwing act for two weeks. After this he will go to Asbury Park, where, under the management of Walter S. Gibson, he will perform for the summer season.

Nothing But the Best.

Thomas Parker, who is managing the place kept by the late James Conneely, is an old resident of Somerville and well known throughout Somerset County. Mr. Parker has kept a wholesale liquor store in Somerville for the past twenty years, and comes to this city well recommended. His experience in this line of trade will guarantee the public that none but the best of goods will be dispensed by him.

Compliment to Daily Press Work.

A member of the Monday Afternoon Club writing to a friend out of town says: "The new calendar is out. It is neatly gotten up, on good paper, and good type, with a corduroy cover that looks both strong and handsome. It is a credit to the club and the printer." The calendar was published by The Daily Press.

Liable to Revoke the Charter.

Unless some communication is received ftom John Kean, who owns the Morris Avenue Railroad franchise in Elizabeth, which has been in operation for the last twenty-five years, the city council will revoke the charter at its next meeting.

PUSHING THE TROLLEY ROAD.

Managers Anxious to Get Through Milltown—Gordon's Suit.

A writ of certiorari was issued by Chief Justice Beasley Thursday against the New Brunswick Traction Company. The writ was obtained by Alan Strong, one of the counsel for Mrs. Lydia Gordon, a property-owner of Milltown. The purpose of the writ is to test the validity of the ordinance passed by the Commissioners of the borough of Milltown which gave the Traction Company the right of the road. The justice distinctly states in the writ that it is not to act as a stay. The case will not come up for argument until November.

The work of constructing the road was continued yesterday. Contractor Thomas Murray had over two hundred men at work. Another property owner along the proposed route has raised objections to the trolley. This spurred on the Traction men and the force of workmen was enlarged. Men were brought out from Newark to string the wires. It is the intention of the company to finish the road through the borough of Milltown at once.

The Raritan River Railroad is said to be at the back of the opposition to the trolley.

A GIRL ON THE HANDLE-BARS.

Miss Rollin's Novel Seat on a Bicycle Not Built for Two.

Miss Abbie Rollins was a member of a party of cyclists who rode from New Brunswick to Plainfield on Thursday night. When within five miles of her destination the pneumatic tire of her wheel burst and refused to be mended with chewing-gum, the only material available.

George K. Parsell, in whose office the young woman is employed as a stenographer, offered her a seat on the handle-bars of his machine. She accepted and climbed up on the bars, which she said made a comfortable perch. In that way they rode into the city, and the novel sight took the town by storm.

New Parks at Newark.

The Essex Park Commission, which is to spend $2,500,000 in establishing public parks, has made its first move by formally requesting the Board of Works to transfer to the Commission a tract of land formerly belonging to the old Aqueduct Board, which was set aside some years ago for park purposes. The land will be conveyed to the Commission, and it will probably be added to by adjoining lands, and be the first improvement made by the Commission.

Too Much of a Celebrator.

Formal charges have been preferred against Lewis H. Halsey, assistant foreman of the Hose Company at Cranford. The complaint states that on July 4th he caused the fire alarm to be rung without authority, and admitted to the fire house a crowd of intoxicated persons who broke a hole in the roof and did other damage. These charges are being investigated by the fire committee.

Anxious to Keep the Sabbath.

A petition is in circulation among the tonsorial artists of this city asking the Common Council to close up the barber shops on Sunday. The pioneer of the movement of Sunday closing was P. M. Decker, who adopted the plan without consulting others.

RUSSELL SAGE TALKS

There is so much advice given to the young man about to start out in business that one feels as though the scriptural admonition of the evil of "too many counselors" were dangerously near being his portion. But in all this great bulk of advice there is, singularly enough, little or no mention at all of the greatest element to be found in any life, business or otherwise—the element of Providence itself.

When a young man starts out in business he has a stout heart, a little capital, good wishes and the world before him. The other possessions that belong to him, but which he does not always claim, are honesty, industry and real worth. With these three factors united to those that he had before, his chances for success are a thousand fold greater.

To be more explicit. Suppose a young man starts out in business for himself. Everybody wants to give him a helping hand. No one offers him charity, but if he is in trade people drop in to see him, willing to leave their dollars with him in return for something good, and business men smile upon him more indulgently at first, and offer him more privileges than they would accord those longer in business.

This is Providence! The Lord plans matters in such a way that those who walk uprightly find all the "plums" of the earth, and those who walk the wrong path pick up the stones and thorns. Occasionally something good will appear to fall to the lot of those who are dishonest, but mark my words!—the words of a man who has fought the world and walked in the world the best part of a century—this success is as ephemeral as the brightness of the spring leaves, or the coldness of the snowfall. All will fade away before another season has visited it!

It is commonly supposed that to make money in this world a man must be one of two things. Either he must be a genius or a dishonest man. He must make his money by sparkling brilliancy that few can imitate, or he must steal it so slyly that none can see him.

An examination of the great fortunes that have been made will show this to be absolutely false. Was the first Rothschild to carve his name upon the world of finance a genius? Did he "coin" money in his laboratory or flash it forth by electricity or cause the wheels of newly discovered patents to grind it out?

No! He was a hard, steady worker. A man to whom after you had intrusted $100, you would go again with another hundred. And again! And again! He kept his friends in finance. He gave them a good return for their money, and if by hard study he discovered and planned ways for investing that money so that his percentage as caretaker was worth his while, why so much the better for him, and the whole world, too.

To particularize. Suppose you take, for example, some struggling Western city. Nothing moves in it except the people. They are working early and late for a pittance. Their horses are drawn to the bone and their animals are thin from poor food and weather hardships. It is walk, walk, walk! work, work, work! drive, drive, drive!

In that city lives one man, a real man! He says to himself:

"We should have steam power here! We should have cars that run themselves! We should have mills to grind our corn! We should have power for little factories to keep our girls and women busy. Their money now goes away from us when they want dresses. It is pay out and pay out! Nobody buys anything of us! Oh, Providence, show me a way!"

With all his saved capital—not very much—with all the money he can borrow—and oh, what interest they ask him—he gets a few thousands together. He builds a little railroad. He puts up a small factory. He starts numberless little home industries. The hum of the wheel is heard in the town and there are people going quickly and cheerily from one place to another—there is business in this town!

But, the man who planned it all! He has worked and worried. He has seen the sun rise over the hills many a night before he has sought sleep. He has seen himself beggared and dishonored a thousand times. But now success is his. His little investments are paying him money. He has paid back what he owed. He has drawn others in the business with him. He has made "capitalists" of men who never thought to own a dollar unhampered by thoughts of the morrow. He is the rich man of the town! Now who, who of all those who have watched him, will be so rude as to judge him one iota of his rest? But back of all this is the man himself sees a Providence! He sees Providence as certainly as he sees the fruit of his works.

Without having had this Providence to guide him he would have floundered at some point in the race. The temptation to step aside from the right path, when dollars in plenty lay to the left of it, would have been too great for him without Providence. This, then, is Providence in business.

If I had to take my choice of beginning again either with a million dollars or with Providence I should choose the latter. The million would last not much longer than a ten cent piece, but with Providence to look out for me and suggest ways and means, I should soon be able to look a roll of money squarely in the face.

RUSSELL SAGE.

A good husband always dies. At least such is the opinion of a gentleman of our acquaintance who has married a series of widows.—Boston Transcript.

MISS VANWINKLE'S FUNERAL.

LARGE ATTENDANCE OF FRIENDS AT THE SERVICE.

Rev. Mr. McKelvey Preached an Excellent Sermon—Many Floral Tributes From Friends.

A touching tribute to the memory of a loving friend was the very large assemblage of persons attending the funeral of the late Miss Susan R. Van Winkle at the home of her parents on Elm place Tuesday afternoon at 2:30. Members of the Christian Endeavor society and Whatsoever Circle of King's Daughters, of Trinity Reformed church, were present in numbers.

The Scripture lesson was read by Rev. Joseph O. McKelvey, after which Rev. Mr. Peeke, of the Reformed church, of East Millstone, offered prayer. A heartfelt hymn, "Fading away," was impressively sung by E. E. Runyon. Rev. Mr. McKelvey then spoke in part as follows:

I would like to call your attention to the fact that there are many divisions in the human family, different groups of nations, all having different callings, business and trades, and then there are divisions in individuals, all having separate interests and different motives. And yet throughout all there is one thing common. Like a magnificent musical production there is one strain through it all, and so there is one thing common, sorrow.

Tennyson's beautiful poem, "In Memoriam," has much for us:

That loss is common would not make
My own less bitter, rather more
Too common, never morning wore
To evening, but some heart did break.

This note of sorrow has been struck in this household.

Not many months ago the dear little granddaughter, daughter and niece was called to play with other children in the streets of the New Jerusalem, and now only day before yesterday as the day dawned and the shadows fled away, and as the sun rose from the eastern horizon to illuminate for a few short hours the world in which we live, the face of her whom we all loved so well was seen for the first time in the Eternal City, which has no need of the sun to shine in it, for the glory of God doth lighten it, and the Lamb is the light thereof.

There is a mystery connected with this death, but "God moves in a mysterious way His wonders to perform."

We see youth, health and happiness, and when we think that she was well and happy, and that the storm terrified her, we may be inclined to rebel against the workings of God.

At this time we need help. The human heart in the valley of sorrow cries out for more than human sympathy, and this we find in God and his revelations of the Bible.

At one time Eli, the priest of old, told his family they would be destroyed, and in answer to little Samuel who revealed it to him he said, "It is the Lord, let Him do what seemith Him good."

In the first place we see help, faith in God, and the language of truth. There is nothing by chance. Causes are not self-efficient. God is in all and over all, and we are told that not a sparrow escapes His notice, and that even the hairs of our head are numbered.

Let us be patient! These severe afflictions
Not from the ground arise,
But oftentimes celestial benedictions
Assume this dark disguise.

Then there is the language of acquiesence, "Let Him do what seemeth good." It is all right, He doeth all things well.

And again, there is the language of hope, comfort and help, "What I do thou knowest not now, but will know hereafter." "Come unto Me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest."

God never places more on us than we are able to bear, for he has said, "My grace is sufficient for thee."

Like the father teaching his child to walk, he is ever present to help in case we fall.

We have the assurance of her happiness. This occasion is particularly sad, for the dear one was about to be wedded. The church is called the bride of Christ, she was a member of the visible church and the invisible, and was Christ's bride.

She lives in memory, although lost to sight, and she may be to memory dear for her kindness and her unselfishness.

The hope of meeting again is a pleasant one. She reached her destination a little sooner than was expected, and can better be expressed in the following words of poetry:

Over the river they beckon to me.
Loved ones who've crossed to the farther side:
The gleam of their snowy robes I see,
But their voices are lost in the dashing tide.

For none return from those quiet shores,
Who cross with the boatman cold and pale;
We hear the dip of the golden oars,
And catch a gleam of the snowy sail.

And lo! they have passed from our yearning hearts,
They cross the stream and are gone for aye.
We may not sunder the veil apart
That hides from our vision the gates of day.

We only know that their barks no more
May sail with us o'er life's stormy sea;
Yet somewhere, I know, on the unseen shore,
They watch, and beckon, and wait for me.

And I sit and think, when the sunset's gold
Is flushing river and hill and shore,
I shall one day stand by the water cold
And list for the sound of the boatman's oar.

I shall watch for a gleam of the flapping sail,
I shall hear the boat as it gains the stand,
I shall pass from sight with the boatman pale
To the better shore of the Spirit land.

I shall know the loved who have gone before,
And joyfully sweet will the meeting be;
When over the river, the peaceful river,
The angel of death shall carry me.

May we live in the faith of Him whom she loved, so that when the call for us to go over the river we may do so with the words of the late Laureate:

Sunset and evening star,
One clear call for me!
And may there be no moaning of the bar,
When I put out to sea.

Twilight and evening bell,
And after that the dark!
And may there be no sadness of farewell,
When I embark

For though from out our borne of time and place,
The flood may bear me far;
I hope to see my Pilot, face to face,
When I have crossed the bar.

The decedent rested peacefully in a white casket, just as though she was sleeping. Surrounding the casket was a profusion of the choicest flowers, consists of wreaths, a cross, and a very large handsome pillow of roses, greens, and lillies, tied with white satin ribbon. A beautiful tribute was a Maltese cross from the King's Daughters bearing the initials, "T. H. N." and a large wreath from the Sunday-school class in Trinity Reformed church, of which Van Winkle was a member.

A large pillow was given by the firm of H. W. Peabody & Co., New York, for whom Mr. Smith works. It was presented in place of the wedding present they had expected to give.

Interment was in the North Plainfield cemetery where Rev. Mr. McKelvey read a selection from the Scriptures, and Rev. Mr. Peeke offered prayer.

The bearers were, Messrs. L. A. Smith, G. F. Canfield, and E. G. Blot, of New York, and J. Fred MacDonald, Elias H. Bird, and John H. Van Winkle, Jr.

Proceedings of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of Union County.

[OFFICIAL.]

Regular session of the Board of Chosen Freeholders of the county of Union held on Wednesday, July 3, 1895, at 2:30 p. m.

The following members were present, viz: Director Hubbard, Freeholders Clark, Ehrlich, Haliday, Farrell, Hulskamper, Krause, Littell, Miller, Morrell, Ogden, Roll, Swain, Westcott, Woodruff—15.

Absent—Freeholders Badgley and Tier.—2.

The minutes of the previous meeting were on motion, (reading of bills excepted) approved as read.

COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

Plainfield, N. J., June 14th, 1895.

J. F. Hubbard, Esq., Director of the Board of Freeholders:

Dear Sir—The Township of Westfield have begun to build a system of sewers in the different streets and avenues of the town, and we desire the Honorable Board of Freeholders of Union County to grant us permission to build sewers in the following streets and avenues which are controlled by the county and which are part of the county road system as follows: South avenue from Westfield avenue, westerly to Walnut street, and on Westfield avenue from South avenue to North avenue, and on North avenue from Westfield avenue to Picton street and on Picton street from North avenue to North Elmer street, and on North Elmer street from Picton street to North avenue, and on North avenue from North Elmer street about five hundred feet easterly.

We have already begun work and are anxious to complete the same as soon as possible; and if your honorable body will advise what day after Wednesday of next week your committee can visit Westfield, if you think it necessary, and view the proposed improvement, I will be pleased to meet you there and give you all the information that lays in my power.

We hope that you can take action in this matter soon and that you will grant us permission to build the sewers in the streets named as soon as possible.

The specifications call for the streets being left in good condition, and I propose to see that it is done, as personally, I am very anxious to have the county roads look well.

Yours very truly,
F. A. Dunham,
Engineer in Charge.

J. F. Hubbard, Director of the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Dear Sir—I find that it is absolutely necessary to make an outlet for our Westfield sewer into North and Westfield avenues, and from thence to the bank. I had hoped that we would not be compelled to open up the county road until after the meeting of your honorable body on Wednesday, but on account of the amount of water that we have to contend with in Westfield, especially in the lower district of the village, we find that it will be impossible to wait until that time without great injury to the work already done and great loss to the contractors.

We shall extend the sewer already being built in Prospect street across North avenue to the southerly side of the macadam, probably four feet from the edge of the same until we strike Westfield avenue which is also county road. We will follow the easterly side of said Westfield avenue keeping away from the macadam till we strike the trench already opened near South avenue; crossing South avenue we continue along the center line of Westfield avenue, which is not a county road, to First street and the brook, which is the outlet for our underdrain system. Where we find it necessary to cross the macadam and in fact in any part of the county road, we will use the utmost care in putting the material back in a first class condition.

I hope the committee will forgive our apparent discourtesy in going ahead and opening through the county roads without the official permission of the board, but I think the above explanation will explain the matter fully to your satisfaction. The majority of the Township Committee coincides with the views that I have expressed in this letter and asked me to communicate with you at once.

(Signed) Yours very truly,
F. A. Dunham.

After some discussion, on motion of Freeholder Clark, the two following communications were received and placed on file.

From E. L. Hand, Clerk, Fanwood Township, as follows:

Board of Freeholders, Union County.

Gentlemen—By resolution of the Township Committee of Fanwood Township, I was instructed to notify you that the County road (Springfield avenue) in Fanwood Township is in a very bad condition, and many accidents have been caused thereby, therefore the Town Committee would respectfully ask that some action be taken in the matter by the Freeholders.

(Signed) Yours truly,
Edward L. Hand,
Town Clerk.

Freeholder Roll said that he did not think the said road was in as bad condition as claimed, and that but a small section of the road was in need of immediate attention. On his motion the communication was received and laid on the table.

From the Board of Health, of Union Township calling attention to the alleged unsanitary condition under a bridge on Westerfield avenue at Aldene, and to certain obstructions placed at the outlet of said bridge.

In the opinion of the said Board of Health, in matter complained of is a menance to the public health.

From A. McKoun, Fanwood, N. J., as follows:

To the Honorable, the Roard of Chosen Freeholders of Union County, N. J.

Gentlemen—I wish to call your immediate attention to the condition of County Roads on account of the manner in which they are used by carters, who cart crushed stone from Fanwood to various places in this vicinity, as I use these roads daily, I can personally vouch for the statements contained herein. In the first place, these people load their trucks so much above the side and end boards, that the stone is continually falling off, and remains on the hard surface to bruise and possibly ruin a horse's foot, should he happen to step on the sharp point of one of them. In the second place they load from 60 to 70 hundred on the trucks, all of which are narrow-tired, and by so doing they cut the roads to such an extent that in dry weather these originally fine roads are but little, if any more free from dust, than the ordinary dirt roads and in wet weather they cut them much more than in dry. I therefore submit to your Honorable Body the question whether you will permit such wholesale and unnecessary destruction to continue, and this nuisance to annoy the driving public. The remedy is simple; compel carters and crushers to use higher side and end boards, and wide tires, four inches or over; all of which is respectfully submitted for your candid consideration.

(Signed) Yours truly,
A. McKoun.

A short debate ensued, during which it was shown that the evils complained of occurred almost entirely on township roads over which the County exercises no control, and on motion of Freeholder Roll, the communication was received and laid on the table.

From Louis Quien, County Engineer as follows:

To the Honorable Board of Chosen Freeholders, Union County, N. J.

Gentlenien — The undersigned respectfully reports to your honorable body that he has examined Newark avenue from North Broad street to the city line of the City of Elizabeth, as to what repairs are necessary to be made before the contractor can be paid the remaining ten per cent on this work. I have notified Mr. John F. Shanley, the contractor, as to these same repairs, he replying that he would attend to the matter.

The undersigned has also examined Springfield avenue from Morris avenue in Springfield to the Essex County line, and finds some repairs necessary, before the contractor can be paid the remaining ten per cent for said work, and also notified the contractor as to said repairs.

The undersigned has also examined Morris avenue from Hobarts Gap to the Passaic River, and finds the road in first-class condition excepting a short piece at the summit near the Passaic River, where the bottom is soft and the pavement has gone down, which in the opinion of the undersigned is not the fault of the contractor who has done said work.

The undersigned would respectfully recommend that the said defective pavement be loosened on top, and then covered with new stones, and properly rolled to grade, and not take up entire pavement and put new foundation under it, as that would only loosen the bottom more, and now it is probably down to where it will stay.

(Signed)
Respectfully submitted,
Louis Quien, C. E.

On motion of Freeholder Haliday, received and placed on file.

Reports of Committees.

Elizabeth, July 3rd, 1895.

To the Board of Chosen Freeholders:

Gentlemen—Your committee on widening Grand street bridge at Rahway would respectfully report that they have awarded the contract to William T. Kirk, at his bid of $1,755. being the lowest bid.

(Signed) John Farrell.
Chairman.

On motion of Freeholder Morrell, the report was read and placed on file.

Police Salaries in Elizabeth.

The City Council of Elizabeth met Monday night, when the bonds of the newly elected City Clerk James I. Manning and City Attorney E. S. Atwater, were referred to the law committee. The Mayor sent back unsigned the ordinance compelling bicycle riders to carry lamps. The ordinance did not include all other vehicles. A resolution was offered by Councilman Paterson to make the police salaries as follows: Lieutenant, $1,000 per year; detectives and sergeants $2.75 a day; patrolmen who have been on the force more than five years, $2.63 per day; patrolmen, $2.25; all new appointees, $2 a day.

Morris Wilson Paroled.

The Court of Pardons held a meeting at Sea Girt Monday, and among the prisoners paroled or pardoned was Morris Wilson of Linden, who was sent to State Prison for one year in November last. The charge against Wilson was an alleged assult on Constable Samuel Morgan. Wilson has a family of several children, and they were almost destitute without his support. Much sympathy had been aroused in his behalf.

ROBBED BY AID OF DRUGS.

A DARING DEPREDATION COMMITTED EARLY YESTERDAY MORNING.

The Store and Home of K. Rothberg Entered and Several Articles Stolen —Police Working on the Case.

The most daring robbery reported in this city since the vault of the First National Bank was looted occurred about two o'clock Monday morning when the drygoods and grocery store of K. Rothburg at 505 West Third street was entered by a man who helped himself. He broke a window in the rear of the store through which he entered, and then took four gold watches, a ring and a box of cigars.

The robber then went up stairs and chloroformed Mr. Rothberg who was sleeping alone in a room. Going through the pockets of his trousers he found two pocketbooks in which was about $30. This he took and put in his own pocket.

From there he went to where Mrs. Rothberg was sleeping with evil intent. He had a bottle of chloroform in his hand and on entering the room found Mrs. Rothberg awake. Thinking he could quiet her he sprinkled the drug over the bed clothes. He then picked up a blanket with which, no doubt, he intended to strangle her, but she screamed and that frightened the marauder away, and he ran down stairs post-haste.

By this time Mr. Rothberg had about revived from the influence of the drug and both he and his wife went to the window, and called for the police. Michael Welsh and Tom King, who happened to be near, heard the screams and went to the house, but were unable to do anything as the man had disappeared. In a few minutes Policeman Vanderweg appeared, but he also could find no trace of the thief except a pair of shoes which the man left near Sullivan's saloon and a coat left hanging on the fence near the scene of the robbery. Mrs. Rothberg describes the man as being very tall and stout, a full red beard, and wearing a cowboy hat pulled down over his face. He was also barefooted.

The matter was placed in Chief Grant's hands and he is today working up the case. He has the pair of shoes and coat and feels assured that the man can be detected and caught.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Rothberg are weak and prostrated today and the former feels the effects of the drug very much.

Policeman Vanderweg passed the place about fifteen minutes before the man committed his depredations, and it is thought that the former was watched till he had reached another part of his beat, so he would run no chance of being caught.

HIGH SCHOOL CHANGES.

Repairs and Improvements to be Made During the Summer.

When September comes and the High school reopens for the winter, it will hardly be recognized by the pupils, for a number of changes are to be made. The assembly hall will probably look the least like its old self. The present platform is to be removed, and another one placed on the south side of the building. Instead of the long benches, there will be a number of seats and desks, so that the room can be used for study after morning exercises. The rows of seats will be placed at right angles to their old position. New floors will also be put in throughout the building. The fire escapes are expected to arrive some time this week, and will be immediately put up.

One of the large elm trees in the girls yard has been cut down, on account of the worms on it which are pests to all the neighbors, and the other elm will soon join its brother.

The flag pole on the Franklin building, that was struck by lightning, is to be removed, and a large one set up in the middle of the girls yard.

The buildings are now receiving a thorough renovating, and will soon be ready either to close until September or to begin work on.

Contracts Filed.

Charles W. McCutchen with Wm. Tallamy, mason; house, Madison avenue, near Stelle avenue, $848.

A. D. Thompson with the Standard Electric Equipment Co., house, Netherwood, to be erected, $374.

A Summer Festival.

The Victor Wheelmen will give a festival in T. A. B. Hall on the evening of the first Thursday in August.

AN ADMINISTRATOR REMOVED.

Ancillary Letters Issued to W. K. McClure as Administrator of Pooler Estate.

On the petition of Counsellor William K. McClure, administrator of the Pooler estate, and upon filing an exemplified copy of the proceedings of the Orphan's Court of the county of Union at Elizabeth for the removal of Auguste Saltzman as executor of Eliza Pooler, deceased, together with the order for his removal signed by the judges of said court, the Surrogate of the city of New York last week revoked the ancillary letters issued by said surrogate to Auguste Saltzman, executor, etc., before his removal by the Orphans' Court of this county, and issued ancillary letters to William K. McClure, the present administrator.

This move was made because of the assumption of said Saltman that he was still executor in New York, notwithstanding his removal here, for cause, his ancillary letters taken out in New York not having been revoked.

The present admistrator when he received his appointment, to save expense to the estate, did not have the ancillary letters issued to Saltzman revoked, and ancillary letters issued to him, as it was not necessary to do so, but Saltzman's assumption compelled such action, and put the estate to an expense that could easily have been avoided.

DRAGS DOWN HIS COUSIN.

Young Phair Is Drowned, and Mr. Brown Saves His Son.

Charles Phair, of Summit, went fishing with his uncle, Albert Brown, and a twelve-year-old cousin, in a small stream near Bound Brook Tuesday afternoon. Young Phair fell from the embankment into twelve feet of water. He was alone at the time and could not swim. His cries for help were heared by his companions, but when they reached him he had gone down. Both jumped into the stream to rescue him.

Young Brown was caught about the legs by the drowning youth and pulled under the water. Then began a desperate struggle. The older Brown made frantic efforts to rescue both boys, but was unsuccessful. The struggles of young Phair finally ceased and young Brown came to the surface and was rescued by his father.

Phair's body was taken from the water an hour later and removed to his parents' home in Summit. Phair had been spending his vacation at the home of his uncle in South Bound Brook.

SYMPATHY FOR GENTLE WILLIE.

He Is Sprinkling Paris Green Instead of Playing Ball.

City Missionary Swan visited the Brooklyn jail in Windham County, Conn., the other day and saw "Gentle Willie" Murphy, the well-known ball player, who is incarcerated there. "Gentle Willie" was industriously sprinkling Paris green on potato vines in the jail enclosure.

Mr. Swan shouted out to him "play ball" and "Gentle Willie" was so startled by the familiar sound that he dropped upon a hill of potatoes with the same convulsive momentum that made his base-sliding such a feature in old-time Norwich ball games.

There is a movement on foot to raise money to pay Murphy's fine so that he may be released. He has plenty of admirers among the baseball enthusiasts in Norwich.—Norwich, (Conn.,) Bulletin.

TEMPERANCE MEN IN SESSION.

The quarterly session of the Grand Division, Sons of Temperance, of New Jersey, convened Wednesday at ten o'clock in Reform Hall. There were about sixty delegates present from various parts of the State.

Grand Worthy Patriarch Ross Slack, of Trenton, is the presiding officer; Past Grand Worthy Patriarchs A. G. VanAken, grand scribe, J. H. Hoagland, grand treasurer, Mrs. M. S. Vickery, of New Brunswick, chaplain, A. P. Sutphen, of Somerville, and E. Coxen, of Jersey City, as sentinals. Several candidates were initiated in the Grand Division.

The morning's session was devoted chiefly to the hearing of the officer's reports. An interesting feature was the report given by Grand Worthy Patriarch Ross Slack of the late session of the National Division held at Cleveland, Ohio, setting forth that the order is being thoroughly awakened in the necessities of the hour in the cause of temperance. The afternoon session is being devoted to business transacted during the past three months.

AN EVENT OF REAL PLEASURE

FIRST ANNIVERSARY OF MINERVA TEMPLE, RATHBONE SISTERS.

A Large Number of Friends Gather in Knight of Pythias Hall and Enjoy a Splendid Programme.

An event of real pleasure was the celebration of the first anniversary of Minerva Temple, No. 4, Rathbone Sisters, which was held on Tuesday in K. of P. hall on West Second street. Mrs. Andrew Cox presided in her usual excellent manner and after the singing of the opening ode by the members of the Temple, Past Chief Mrs. Benjamin Moore in a few well chosen words welcomed the very large audience to the happy event in the history of the Temple.

Mrs. Wyckoff then gave an amusing recitation. A vocal selection, "Hush Thee My Baby," by Mrs. Westphal, Miss Maggie Page, H. J. Martin and Bert Tallamy, were heartily encored. Mrs. Fred Canfield was the accompanist.

John Carney appeared and in his style, which is particularly his own, put the audience in very good humor with his German sayings. Jack is always a favorite and the person who is not always glad to hear him is scarce. A comical dialogue was then introduced. Miss Marsh was Cousin Pauline; Mrs. Edward Bowman, Melinda Jane Hopkins; Mrs. Cox, Aunty; Frank Splain, Cousin Timothy, and Mr. Higham, Alonzo, the Sparker.

The plot of the dialogue was that Cousin Pauline was trying to win the heart of Cousin Timothy, who was already pledged to Melinda Jane Hopkins, and failing in this she returned to her former lover, Alonzo, the Sparker. She was fault-finding, which the aunt did not like, and in consequence the $5,000 that was to be divided between Pauline and Melinda, was all given to the latter, and worse of all she also lost both suitors.

The parts were all well acted and thoroughly enjoyed.

A recitation was given by Mrs. Charles Steiner. Violet Hallard followed with a recitation that came in for a share of applause. District Deputy Mrs. Morrison, of Elizabeth, then gave a short sketch of the order, in which she said it was seven years old, and had a membership of 21,000. She spoke of the mottos of the order, purity, love, equality, and fidelity, and closed with an enthusiastic recitation on the knight.

A vocal solo by Mrs. Wm. Westphal was heartily received. Frank Splain was again introduced and recited a character recitation with the Irishman as the leading character. It was admirably given and well received. Recitations by Nellie Arthur, and Lillie Harberle, were also appreciated.

In conclusion a novel feature was presented. The members of the Temple, gowned in the colors of the orders, red, white, blue and pink, marched in the room and gave an excellent drill. Every movement was executed with precision and frequently hearty applause was given by those present, especially the Knights of Pythias. Mr. Higham was the accompanist.

At the conclusion Mrs. Cox thanked all for their attendence, and introduced the members who served ice cream and cake.

Previous to the anniversary exercises the officers-elect were installed by Supreme Deputy Mrs. Cox, of Minerva Temple, asssisted by Supreme Senior Mrs. A. D. Pope, and Supreme Manager Mrs. Mattis.

After the installation Mrs. Cox was presented with a past chief's jewel by member of the Temple.

ALL IS PEACEABLE IN THE BOROUGH.

There Will Be No Clashing Between Justice and Magistrate.

The appointment of W. E. Mattison as a justice of the peace in the borough will not cause any great trouble, as it was only made to fill one of the two vacancies made by S. Taynor and Fred Brown, who did not qualify. The borough is entitled to four justices, and they only have three at present.

Justice Crosley will continue his work as heretofore, and the fact that Mr. Mattison was appointed will not affect him any more than Justice Sperry does, and they have always lived peaceably in the borough.

They Reached Shore All Right.

The four young men who borrowed a boat from Thomas McNair at Elizabethport and were supposed to have been lost in the Kills during the squall Sunday night are safe. When they found the squall almost upon them they headed the boat for the Staten Island shore and reached it when the storm broke.

LIFE IN THE CITY TENEMENTS

AN ASSISTANT OF DR. PARKHURST TELLS OF HER WORK.

Miss Malken Engaged in a Work of Sacrifice Among the Poor and Down Trodden Classes of New York.

Life and work among the tenements in New York was the theme of Miss Nellie Malken's talk on Tuesday before the Christian Endeavor society of Warren chapel. The meeting was led by John Herman, president of the society.

In the early part of the meeting Miss Malken and Miss Paulsen, a volunteer worker, sang a duet, and later in the meeting there were two solos by Miss Malken.

She then gave a simple talk on the condition of the people in the tenement houses, and some of the different kinds of work that had to be done. She told how the houses are packed in together and the rooms in them small and without scarcely any sunshine or fresh air. Three to six families live on one floor and often five or six people in one room. The rooms are bare, containing nothing but the most necessary articles, and seldom a carpet is seen. These people obtain their clothes from peddlers of scraps at the street corners. The condition of the children was dreadful, she said, and told how they wander all over without any care, playing on the roofs or in the street, the only places for them, or going to the docks for fresh air. She then spoke of a mission started in a back room of a tenement, and how the little children came two and three hours before the time of meeting to wait for the doors to open. The older people, too, came after a time on Sunday afternoons. Miss Malken next described to her interested audience the house-to-house work and of the labor among the sick and suffering. The mothers' meeting is another way in which the poor women of the district are aided. The Sunday afternoon outdoor meeting was described, and she told how a band of workers with their little organ would gather on the steps and sing and testify; she also told of persecutions, of different articles thrown at them, and said "But we do not mind that, for we are only too glad of a chance to testify for the Lord."

Miss Malken is one of the workers in the Sea and Land church, which is under the care of Dr. Parkhurst, although his assistant, Mr. Denison, has the direct control of it at present.

A NEW BURGLAR ALARM.

A Resident Warned By His Dog of an Intended Robbery.

Householders would do well to see that all of the outside doors are kept locked during the evening as there appears to be a number of sneak thieves at work in the city.

William L. VanDeventer, of East Fifth street, was their next intended victim on Monday night. It was about nine o'clock in the evening and Mr. and Mrs. VanDeventer and their little daughter, Margaret, were sitting on the piazza when they heard their little pet dog bark, at which Mrs. VanDeventer walked around to the back of the house to see what was the matter. Just as she had almost reached the cellar door, a man who had been kneeling or sitting down, sprang to his feet, jumped over the side fence and run up Franklin place. She screamed and Mr. VanDeventer hurried back to see what was the matter. Mrs. VanDeventer was very much frightened, but investigation showed that the man had not been able to effect an entrance, thanks to the vigorous alarm that the dog gave.

Chief Doane at Asbury Park.

Among the distinguished visitors this week was Thaddeus Doane, Chief of the Plainfield Fire Department. He was a guest of Fire Chief Leggett. Mr. Doane was one of the witnesses of the fire yesterday, and he complimented Chief Leggett on the efficiency of the department. The Plainfield department is part paid and part volunteer. The amount of the appropriation is $21,000.—Asbury Park Journal.

THE FIRST FIRE FOR WEEKS.

Barns and Outbuildings of James McCarthy Destroyed.

The barn and outhouses belonging to James McCarthy on his property located at 1,322 West Front street were totally destroyed Wednesday morning at 11:40. An alarm was sent in from Box 48, but the first register was 21, the second 36, and the third time the right number was blown.

The fire department responded quickly and, though it was a two-mile run, they were at the scene of the fire in less than twenty minutes.

No. 2's engine was taken to the pond near Coriell's hat factory and a line of hose laid. A considerable amount of time was lost in getting water, as the facilities for that article in that part of town are very poor. The buildings were about destroyed when water was secured.

The only thing saved was a horse owned by Mr. McCarthy. The barn was filled with hay, three wagons and several other things, and the corn crib was filled with corn.

The fire was started by Mrs. Nolan's little six-year-old boy who was playing with matches, and was first discovered by neighbors, who alarmed Mrs. Nolan, who was watching the house for her father and mother, as the latter went on St. Mary's excursian to Glen Island today. The intense heat endangered nearby houses and barns, and it was only by the personal application of pails of water that they did not catch fire. The buildings were insured with J. C. Pope & Co., for $500. The loss is estimated at $2,000. It was an hour before the fire was extinguished, and the recall was sent in at 1:15.

West End Park Bought by Mr. Moore.

A big land deal was consummated a day or two ago when Councilman W. H. Moore, purchased the half interest of Charles E. Rocap in West End park. This plot consists of thirty fifty feet lots, finely situated at Grant avenue and West Front street. A number of substantial and pretty residences have already been built in the Park, and it is the intention of Mr. Moore to boom the property as a residential place.

A Question Often Asked.

The question is often asked, when should glasses be worn? To this answer should be, that as soon as discomfort arises for need of them, they should be adopted. If your eyes are causing you anxiety, or if the glasses you are wearing are not suited to your eyes, call on Leech, Stiles & Co's eye specialist, who will be at 107 East Front street, on Thursday from ten a. m. to 5 p. m. DIED FROM AN OPERATION.

REV. WILLIAM DAY EXPIRES AT HIS HOME IN RUTHERFORD.

Death Came Just as the Morning Service in His Church Ended—A Former Plainfield Pastor.

The Rev. William Day, pastor of the M. E. church at Rutherford, died at his home there at a few minutes after noon Sunday, as the result of an operation performed several days ago.

After considerable suffering Mr. Day went to Paterson, on July 10th and consulted a physician as to his trouble. The doctor suggested an operation on the spot, and Mr. Day consented. After the operation Mr. Day, unaccompanied, started back to Rutherford on an Erie train. On his arrival at the station, he walked half a mile to his home, and then succumbed. The seriousness of his condition was realized early in the week, although Mr. Day himself expected to recover.

Rev. William Day was one of the oldest and best-known Methodist ministers in New Jersey, having filled the pulpits of churches in most all of the important cities in the northern and central parts of the State. He was of English parentage, was about sixty-eight years of age, and had been engaged in active work in the ministry for about forty-four years. Although never a sensational preacher, his sermons were full of quiet eloquence, and his personal popularity was marked. A quarter of a century ago he was pastor of St. Paul's church, in Jersey City, and his other charges have included churches in Newark, Orange, this city, New Brunswick, Passaic and Dover. This was the second year of his pastorate at Rutherford. Mr. Day was twice married, and his second wife survives him.

Mr. Day came to this city in 1868, and for three years was pastor of the Methodist church, where his popularity as a preacher is well known among Plainfielders. After a pastorate in Nyack he was recalled to Plainfield in 1874, and was with the same church three years longer.

He had two children, Harry Day and Mrs. Winter Davis.

The funeral will be held at Rutherford on Wednesday afternoon. Interment Thursday morning.

COLORED CHRISTIAN ENDEAVORERS.

New Development In the Fillmore Avenue Baptist Church.

The second colored Christian Endeavor society in the city was organized last evening with twenty members in the Fillmore Avenue Baptist church. The society will meet again next Tuesday evening and it is expected that the membership will be largely increased. Application will be made to the Local Union for membership.

The Sunday school of that church, which has gone down very much since the departure of Rev. Mr. Mitchell, was entirely reorganized by J. W. Jeffress, the new pastor, with a membership of thirty. This number will also be greatly increased.

Since the arrival of Mr. Jeffress, the welfare of the church has been greatly better and the outlook, at the present time, is very bright. Vigorous efforts are being made to raise the $800 necessary to pay off the claim on the church. The entertainment on August 8th for that purpose, will consist of recitations, singing and instrumental music by local talent.

Crop Reports.

The weekly bulletin of the New Jersey weather service has the following reports from Union county:

Plainfield—All crops looking well; crops that were partially damaged by the storm of the 13th are recovering nicely; in some sections, where the hail was heaviest, accompanied by wind, there was a total loss of corn, oats, potatoes and tomatoes, they being cut clean to the ground. Rainfall, 1.37 inch.

Elizabeth—Hay mostly housed, crop an average one; oats ready to cut; corn very forward and likely to be a good crop; potatoes making good growth; extreme heat on 21st, followed by a heavy shower, was very beneficial to all growing crops. Rainfall, 2.50 inch.

Reports of the Boston Convention.

Miss Emily Coriell and Miss Alice Woodland, who attended the Christian Endeavor convention in Boston will make their reports at the meeting in the First Baptist church Friday evening.

Conference of Railroad Mgrnates.

B. A. Hegeman, of this city, traffic manager of the D. L. & W. R. R., is at Manhattan Beach in attendance at a conference of railroad officials representing the principal trunk lines east of the Mississippi river.

Three Days in a Sweat Box.

Walter Ingram, of Washington Valley, for being drunk add disorderly is spending three days in the borough lockup. He prefered this to paying a fine of $3.

SENATOR'S BRICE'S EARLY DAYS.

Time Was When He Could Make a Star as Easily as $2,000.

It was in Governor Foster's time as Chief Magistrate of Ohio when Senator Brice, a poor, hard up lawyer, managed to get into Foster's debt to the extent of about $2,000. One day Brice came to Foster and told him the law business did not pay, and asked to be appointed to a position where he might earn a living.

"Can't," said Foster. "You're a Democrat."

"But you'll never get your $2,000," said Brice. "You might as well ask me to make a star as to make that $2,000 with my law practice."

"I'll tell you what I'll do," said Foster, "I am all tangled up with Hocking Valley on the New York Stock Exchange, and I want somebody to go there and look after things. I'll send you if you'll go."

Brice jumped at the chance. Foster gave him $600 and a lot of directions, and impressed upon him solemnly the necessity of doing just what he was told. Now, Brice will not do what he is told, and never would. If Brice had been a waiter he would have taken your order and then brought you anything he liked. He would have used his judgment. That's what he did with Foster's Hocking Valley deal, but he made $40,000 profit, whereas if he had done as Foster told him he would have lost all. Foster was delighted, and, like the good old man in the story book, he gave the young hero $20,000. Then Brice went back to Wall street and plunged.

Brice's greatest play was building the Nickel Plate. He put in every dollar he could get, and from any source. Then came a time, too, when, to save himself from utter ruin, if not something worse, he had to sell. He went to Vanderbilt, whose road the Nickel Plate paralleled. Vanderbilt wouldn't buy the Nickel Plate. He said he could afford to wait the first mortgage foreclosure and buy it from a sheriff.

"If you don't buy it, Jay Gould will," said Brice.

"'Oh, no, he won't,' said Vanderbilt.

"Brice then went to Gould. He knew that he didn't want the Nickel Plate, but he had a beautiful scheme to propose. He knew Vanderbilt would buy the road before he would allow Gould to get it. Here came Brice's strategy. He told Gould that if he would sit silent and not contradict, neither affirm nor deny, any newspaper articles to the effect that he was going to buy the Nickel Plate, and after his clamlike silence had continued for a week, if he would then ride slowly over the Nickel Plate in an observation car, Vanderbilt would buy the road, and he would then give Gould $500,000.

"Gould didn't care for the money, but he was a jocose speculator, and it struck him that the whole thing would be a majestic joke on Vanderbilt. The papers said that Gould was going to buy the Nickel Plate. Gould, when questioned, looked wise. At the end of a week he meandered, snaillike, over the Nickel Plate in the rear end of an observation car, and had all the air of a man who was looking at a piece of property.

"Stories were wired about Gould's trip from every water tank and way station along the line, and before Gould had reached Chicago, Vanderbilt, in a fit of hysterics, wired Brice that he would take the Nickel Plate. Vanderbilt took the Nickel Plate and Brice was saved."

THESE FISH CARRIED LANTERNS

Dr. Borstleman's Surprising Discovery and the Simple Explanation of It.

Dr. Borstleman was at Lake Denmark, N. J., a few days ago studying the fauna and flora of that wild and beautiful section of Morris county. While strolling around the shallow shore of the lake on Sunday evening he discovered a marvelous thing which made his blood tingle with the hope that he was about to add to the ichthyological knowledge of the country.

He saw in the clear water near the shore some bright objects flashing with phosphorescent fire. The doctor knew of phosphorescent fish in salt water, and was aware also that nothing of the kind had ever been noted as inhabiting fresh water. Consequently he believed that he had discovered a new species, and he made haste to get his minnow net and capture one of the lively little creatures. It was no easy matter to do this, but after trying for an hour he succeeded in catching two of the fish in one scoop of the net.

He dissected one of the fish carefully, and then removed the lamp from the room. There was the phosporescent glow upon the card where he had placed the viscera of the little fish; moreover, they seemed to be imbued with life. Sticking a pin through the center of the glowing sac he brought the light back, and opening the sac disclosed four or five of the large fire-flies which abound at the mountain laks. Two of them were still alive.

The doctor's disappointment was keen, but he could not refrain from laughing at the simplicity of the solution of the matter. The glowing insects had been taken in by the lively little fish as they struggled upon the surface of the water, and their strong incandescence shone through the translucent sides of their captors.

Candid.

Mix—Does your wife ever play jokes on you?

Rix—She only played one and that nearly bankrupted me.

Mix—What was that?

Rix—She married me.

"I guess that young man who called to see you had a rather rough time of it in camp," said Ethel's mother.

"Yes," was the reply. "I'm sure he had. He hasn't had a chance to get shaved for over a week."—Washington Star.

COMPANIES TO CONSOLIDATE.

THE BOROUGH WILL PROBABLY BE LIGHTED FROM THE CITY PLANT.

No Definite Statement, But Indications Point to the Purchase and Abandonment of the Borough Plant.

It is understood that the organization of the Citizens Electric Light Company in this city is but a reorganization of the Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Company who propose to buy out the plant and franchise of the Edison Electric Light Company, of North Plainfield, abandon the plant in the borough, and furnish all illumination from the city plant.

For that purpose the present city plant is being greatly enlarged, both in capacity and quarters.

It is a well-known fact that the company have for a long time been anxious to gain a foothold in the borough, but as long as the Edison company was in operation this was impossible.

The city company have a few poles erected in the borough and two months ago they were ordered to remove them. The time limit in which they were to take them up expired yesterday, but the poles still remain where they have been set, and it is understood that that they will not be touched for some time in order to await the result of negotiations between the two companies.

The remarkable growth of cycling can be imagined from the fact that in 1885 there were less than a dozen cycle factories in the United States, while there are now over 125 establishments, turning out from ten to several hundred wheels a day. The entire output this year is estimated at 500,000 machines, and still many dealers find it hard work to secure wheels to fill all their orders. One-third of the cycles made this year are for women's use. Last year only five per cent of the machines sold were of the drop frame variety.

Two of our town sports disguised themselves in bloomers last Thursday, seized their bicycles and made tracks for old Coney. They had many exciting encounters on the way with bloodthirsty bull terriers, farmers with hay rakes, and were held up on the Brooklyn bridge by a punctured tire, but as they carried all the improved appliances for quieting pantatas, dogs and shot guns they at last reached the land of the wooden elephant, razzle-dazeles, red lemonade and variegated beauties, where they saw the sea serpent, mermaids, fat maids and living skeletons, blew in a few hours, several dollars, and started on their homeward voyage, arriving in the early hours, after several relays of limburger sandwiches and numerous draughts from the town pumps en route.—Bound Brook Democrat.

Riding the bicycle has ceased to be either undignified or conspicuous. Several years ago a bishop denounced the practice by women as immodest and therefore immoral. An immodest woman on a bicycle would surely be immodest still, the wheel not having any power to save her, but an immodest woman would be immodest walking in the street or sitting in church, or wherever she might be. The bicycle has nothing whatever to do with modesty or immodesty, with morality or with immorality; and when the pious bishop uttered his denunciation of the machine and its use his intellectuals must have been befuddled by too much pondering on subjects too hard or too easy for him. But his dictum has not counted for much, for the bicycle is growing in popularity every day, and the manufacturers, one of whom at least is turning out one hundred machines a day, have difficulty in filling the orders that are sent to them.—John Gilmer Speed, in August Lippincott's.

Was This The Man?

Detectives are still at work trying to get a clue to the man who took the trunk from the North Avenue station last Saturday, but as yet nothing tangible has been discovered, except that Mrs. Johnson, of Manning avenue, saw a man go through that avenue yesterday morning about three o'clock with a canvas covered trunk on a hand cart. The man went up Somerset street toward the mountains, but nothing has been seen of him since.

Its contents are full of practical suggestions and ideas that are of value to the wife and daughters who delight in making the home a cozy place that will be an attraction for them in their hours of rest and recreation. It well deserves the title of "A journal of domestic economy." It is published at Minneapolis, Minn.

Want a Schoolhouse.

The people of Garwood are making demands for a schoolhouse in that part of the township, claiming that it is so far to Westfield that the younger children cannot attend school there. TROUBLE AMONG THE JUNIORS.

A New Brunswick Secret Society Fighting Among Themselves.

Serious trouble has arisen since John Kinsey, a member of Goodwill Council, Junior Order of American Mechanics, of New Brunswick, attempted to organize another council in that city. Recently Mr. Kinsey, after securing more than fifty applicants to join the new organization, made application to Goodwill Council for a charter. At a meeting of Goodwill Council on Monday night resolutions were passed protesting against the formation of the new council on the ground that it would injure their council, because one could become a member upon paying a small initiation fee and without undergoing a medical examination. Goodwill Council will appoint a committee to present the matter before the board of officers of the State Council. Goodwill Council is the largest secret-society lodge in New Brunswick, having a membership of 500. It is also one of the most active in the order, having supplied many State and National officers out of its ranks. Mr. Kinsey says that he will go ahead with his scheme. He expects to have at least seventy-five applicants to the new organization.

E. R. Pope was seen by a Press reporter this morning, and when asked as to the plans and intentions of the new company, refused to divulge the nature of them.

Too Much Music.

For the past few days two Italians have been in town with a street piano. At night they would take it to the Metropolitan stables and some of the stablemen succeeded in arousing the indignation of nearby neighbors by grinding out music the biggest part of the night. Policeman Frederickson was complained to and soon put a stop to the nuisance.

The Somerset County Fair.

That is the name of an organization formed in Somerville; Lawyer Steele was chairman of the meeting and A. P. Sutphen, Secretary. A little over $1,000 has been subscribed by residents of the county, mostly business men of Somerville, and it has been decided to hire the grounds of the old association and hold a fair in September or October. Committee to draw up articles of incorporation, etc., and to nominate officers were appointed, and they are to report at a meeting.

OLD LADY BURNED TO DEATH.

MRS. CONGER IGNITED FURNISHINGS IN HER ROOM WITH A CANDLE.

Parts of Her Body Were Literally Roasted—Lingered in Agony for Three Hours—Respected and Well Known.

Mrs. Miner A. Conger, of Cranford, died Tuesday night at 12 o'clock from the results of horrible burns received earlier in the evening. She was a widow, and resided with her daughter, Mrs. John C. Denman.

Mrs Conger was fifty-six years of age, and one of her customs was to use a candle instead of a lamp. Tuesday night, about 9 o'clock, she lighted her candle and went to her room on the second floor. About ten minutes later the servants were alarmed by agonized cries for help that came from Mrs. Conger's room. They rushed up stairs and burst open the door.

They were horrified to find the room filled with smoke and flames. The bed clothing, curtains and number of the articles were burning, while in the middle of the room lay Mrs. Conger. Her clothing was blazing furiously and she was making feeble endeavors to extinguish the flames.

Mrs Conger was burned in a horrible manner. The flesh on some parts of her body was burned to a crisp, while in others it was literally roasted. Her sufferings must have been terrible before she was overcome by the extreme pain and became insensible.

Doctors MacConnell, Sr. and Jr., were summoned, and did all within the possibilities of medical science to relieve the suffering woman, but her injuries were so terrible that recovery was impossibe. Only once did Mrs. Conger speak, and then she asked for water. She lingered in agony until midnight, when death relieved her sufferings.

Mrs. Conger at one time was a resi of Westfield, though for some time she has resided with her daughter in Cranford. She was quite well known and was highly respected by a large circle of friends. The funeral will take place tomorrow. It will be private. The interment will take place in Greenwood Cemetery.—Elizabeth Journal.

MOONSHINERS CAUGHT.

Revenue Officers Surprise a Still in Montclair.

Hiram Sirkin and his two sons, Simon and Bernard, with Nathan Hinkel, were arrested Thursday at Montclair by United States Marshal Brooks and two revenue officers, with the assistance of the local police. They were charged with manufacturing contraband whiskey. For some time past Marshal Brooks has been trying to get on the trail of moonshiners, and, although the still was in that town, they always boarded and left the trains at Bloomfield, and time and again eluded the officers.

Yesterday morning the illicit distillery was found in a new house on Gray street, near the Bloomfield line, and preparations were made to capture the gang. The officers had very little trouble in getting into the house. In the cellar they found all in full blast. There were barrels of mash, the engine puffing away and whiskey pouring out. When the officers entered Sirkin and his two sons were hard at work. The outfit was complete and new in every detail.

Sirkin and his sons were locked up and about an hour later Hinkel was arrested. He was the buyer for the establishment. Bills for sugar, yeast and flavors purchased of Wilson & Gaddis, of Newark, were found on his person. In the cellar were thirty-two gallons of whiskey. Last Monday night eleven barrels were hauled into New York. The still has been at work two months, and it is estimated that thirty-five barrels of whiskey have been sent to Newark and New York.

Matthews Made President.

The new Elizabeth Board of Education was organized by the Republicans last night. They succeeded in electing their candidate for president, George P. Matthews, by a party vote, 7 to 5. There was a hitch over the secretaryship, some Republicans bolting the caucus nominee, Joseph D. Lowden, and voting blank. Three ballots were taken, each resulting: Lowden, 6; Ryan, 5; blank, 1. Further balloting was stopped, and William H. Ryan, the Democratic secretary, will for the present hold over.

Sale Again Deferred.

The Sherriff's sale of the Fowler Car Works at Elizabeth, which was to take place to day, was postponed a week. It may be again postponed, as President Searles, of the company, has got from the court a rule to show cause why the sale should not be further deferred. This writ was served on Judge Gilhooly, counsel for Henry H. Isham, of Brooklyn, who is selling the plant under foreclosure. Mr. Isham claims the plant owes him about $40,000. Its estimated value is over $100,000.

Good Appointment.

Dr. W. L. Mattison, of the borough, has just received his commission from the Secretary of State, as Justice of the Peace, for a term of five years.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children

MOTHERS, Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

A BIG PULLMAN RUMOR.

POSSIBILITY OF CAR SHOPS BEING BUILT IN UNION COUNTY.

A Tract of Real Estate Purchased Between Cranford and Elizabeth Gives Substance to the Report.

One of the largest real-estate transactions in this vicinity is the sale of the Benedict farm in Union and Cranford townships. The property, which was purchased by Charles W. Monahan, trustee, of East Orange, contains 105 acres. Its price was $21,100.

This deal lends a color of probability, says the Cranford Chronicle, to an article appearing in one of the Elizabeth papers on Saturday, and which is as follows:

"The big Pullman car-works, of Illinois, will before mid-winter be in full operation on a stretch of land a mile wide, which, for the past five months, has been bought up in small tracts by one of the prominent gentlemen farmers of Union county. The exact location of the big plant-proper cannot yet be divulged, but it will not be far from Cranford and the Central railroad. In the vicinity will be erected a young city of small houses for employes, including school houses, churches and other accessories to a young town. A trolley line will be constructed from Irvington to Cranford station, and is designed to tap the Elizabeth and Summit rapid transit road. Five million dollars will, it is said, be expended in constructing the cars, works, and the town.

"The purchased property on the south side extends very near to the Elizabeth city line and close to the plot known as Ursino Park."

BOROUGH OF MOUNTAINSIDE.

Locust Grove, Branch Mills and Baltusrol to Have a New Government.

The citizens in and around Locust Grove are determined to have a government separate from Westfield, of whom they are now a part. Tuesday evenig a meeting was held, and much enthusiasm manifested. A series of resolutions were introduced and passed in which it was asserted that the Westfield Township Committee have turned a deaf ear to strenuous protests against the injustice of compelling them to pay for improvements in the village remote from their section. They sanctioned and approved the action of the self-constituted committee who have thus far had the matter in charge, and resolved to proceed according to the statute made and provided, to organize a borough in the northern part of Westfield Township, to contain not more than four square miles, to include Locust Grove, Branch Mills and Baltusrol, said borough to be known as the "Borough of Mountainside."

A committee of three was appointed, representing Locust Grove, Branch Mills and Baltusrol, to caary the resolution into effect.

The following committee were appointed: Wm. Miller, chairman; Chas. Badgley, Joseph W. Cory.

TALK OF NIAGARA FALLS EXCURSION.

The Long Named Tribe May Journey to the Brink.

An interesting meeting was held in the wigwam of Paugh Caugh Naugh Sinque Tribe Friday. There was a large attendance and a great deal of important business was transacted.

The Fourth of July committee made their final report, showing that all bills were paid. The tribe showed their appreciation of the efforts of this committee by extending a vote of thanks, and praising them warmly for the fine showing they made in the parade.

A vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Geo. H. Babcock for the use of her magnificent black horses on the Fourth. These beautiful animals added greatly to the appearance of the float. They and the gigantic colored men in charge of them will long be remembered by Plainfielders, as one of the principal features of the parade.

A number of visitors were present, and gave very interesting talks on team work and Redmanship generally. There is considerable talk of an excursion to Niagara Falls in the near future.

Lucky to Escape.

While West Brokaw, of Vanderbeek and Sattels, was passing along West Fifth street Tuesday evening during the thunder storm, he received a shock from a vivid flash of lightning and for a short time was completely dazed. He feels the effect of it yet.

Knocked Out By Lightning.

Tuesday's thunder storm did do some damage after all. The chimney to the house in the rear of L. L. Manning's marble yard was struck by lightning and demolished. It was repaired yesterday.

More Hose to Be Bought.

Messrs. Peck, Smith and Valiant, the fire, water and lamps committee of the borough, met last night and considered bids for hose for the fire department.

A LITTLE TOT'S ABSENCE.

She Hid in the House and Frightened New Market.

An interesting story is told about Ellen Peterson, the exceedingly bright two-year old daughter of the Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Peterson, of New Market. A few days ago her father was busily engaged away from home while her mother was absent. She was left in charge of her grandfather and grandmother. Suddenly they missed her and were unable to account for her disappearance. They started to search for her, and looked all over the house, high and low, but not a trace could be found of the little tot. In a little while her father came home and when he heard the story he became alarmed and quickly joined in the search. They went through nearby fields and called on the neighbors, but still no tidings of her could be heard. The neigbors became anxious and they also began to look.

By this time the party had increased in numbers and dispersed in every direction, and at the same time calling the little girl by name, but there was no response, and an hour and a half had elapsed since she was missed.

Finally her father thought he would look through the house again. The grandfather and grandmother went with him, and as they entered the library they heard the little one saying, "Here I is, grandma," and there she was hid away from sight in a small opening in Mr. Peterson's secretary, with a newspaper covering her. It was a great relief to find her and after promising not to do so again, she was helped down and the household once more resumed its wonted quietude.

Moonshiners Caught in Bayonne.

Six United States Secret Service detectives, headed by Chief Brooks, made a raid on an illicit whiskey distillery in a house in Avenue A, between Twenty-first and Twenty-second streets, Bayonne, at an early hour yesterday morning. Samuel Goodman, who leased the premises two months ago, was not at home when the officers arrived. After a careful survey of the place the detectives loaded all the distilling apparatus, which included a fifty-gollon copper still, on a truck, and took it to Jersey City. Goodman, who was arrested later, gave bail to Commissioner Romaine in Jersey City for a hearing on a charge of distilling whiskey without a Federal permit. Goodman says the stuff was found in two rooms he had rented to two New York strangers about two weeks ago.

Where Fun Will Be Rampant.

A fine hotel with all the luxuries of life is a very nice place to spend a few weeks, but there is, perhaps, more real pleasure for a party of young men in a tent, and believing this, Walter Hetfield, Wyatt Barnes, Burt Wyckoff, Harry Fulper, Clarence Thorn, Frank Smalley, Harry Denecklau and Percy McVoy are going camping on the shores of Hank's Lake, a short distance from the village of New Foundland. The party will start at two o'clock on the morning of July 29th with two wagons to carry the campers and their outfit. Two tents will protect the party for their two weeks stay, and a royal good time is expected by all.

Rescue the Perishing.

There is a chance that there will be one less church in Plainfield unless some of the generous people of this city come to its aid. There is a claim of $600 on the property of the Fillmore Avenue Baptist church which must be paid before October and to raise that sum and save the church, a grand concert will be given there on the evening of Thursday, August 8th. The admission will be twenty-five cents, and refreshments will be sold. J. W. Jeffress, the pastor, is working hard for the success of the entertainment and the saving of his congregation.

The Harvest Home.

The great harvest home held last year on the large grounds of Israel J. Coon at Smalleytown drew hundreds of people and everyone was highly pleased. The committee are already making extensive preparations for their annual gathering to be held in the first week in August. Fine music, good speaking and a big supper will be among the attractions of the occasion.

The Difference.

Philadelphia, the city of Brotherly Love, is far behind Plainfield in civilization. In Philadelphia they still hang folks and wipe their gums on the door mat. But Plainfield hangs wall paper only by Brother Love, corner of North and Watchung avenues.

Following Good Advice.

Following the advice of The Daily Press the Street Railway Company is spreading crushed stone on East and West Front street and repairing the bad spots.

A Bird's Eye View.

John French has erected a substantial wooden tower on Johnston drive, as a lookout. The view to be obtained at this place is wonderful and well worth seeing.

WHERE THESPIANS WILL PLAY

MUSIC HALL WILL PRESENT AN INVITING APPEARANCE TO PATRONS.

Mr. Stillman Is Making Repairs that Ensure for Him and His Bookings a Successful Season.

That Plainfield's theatre-going people are to have an opportunity of enjoying a season of excellent attractions at Music Hall will be a source of much pleasure to them. William M. Stillman, who has secured the hall, has been to no little trouble and expense in arranging that everything necessary be done for the comfort and pleasure of the patrons of the theatre. For some time past men have been engaged at the hall thoroughly renovating it in every nook and corner.

On the stage and in the wings Woolston & Buckle's men are busily engaged repainting the scenery which has done service for many years. There will be several scenes new to Plainfielders, and that tired feeling, which has often been expressed over the monotonous and well-worn scenes will no doubt be obviated. One of the best improvements in the hall is the work done in the dressing rooms. Of course, patrons have nothing to do with this part of the business, but it is an important feature in securing the best class of attractions, and it is a great satisfaction to know that everything about the place is first-class. These rooms have been put in the best of condition, and the sanitary arrangements repaired in a manner that will no longer merit the condemnation of the profession.

It will seem like old times again to witness an excellent performance in this place with all the attending comforts that it is possible to furnish.

And then when the mercury is crowding zero no one need have any fears about the hall not being warm, for the perfect heating of it will be made a feature, and one will be able to take their overcoat off and enjoy the play. The management of the hall, as everyone knows, is of the best, and no further evidence is needed to assure Plainfield that it will be all that is desirable. Polite and courteous attention will be the rule of the season, and everyone who appreciates good treatment will find it.

W. R. Mattox will look after the minor details of the house and will see that everything in his charge is properly cared for. The performances will be meritorious ones as in evidenced by the partial list published in Thursday's issue of this paper.

Edward Nelson will again preside in the box office and in his usual business-like and courteous manner sell the best seats in the house to those coming first.

It is Mr. Stillman's idea to give the people of Plainfield an opportunity of witnessing the best companies on the road and they will, no doubt, appreciate his efforts in this direction by a liberal patronage.

The Daily Press predicts a season of success to Mr. Stillman and the hall.

BATHERS SEE A SHARK.

They Lose No Time Getting to Land at Boynton Beach.

The Methodist church, of Newark, sent its annual picnic to Boynton Beach yesterday. Almost a thousand persons were in the grove, says The World. Several hundred were in bathing when one of the employes of the grove ran down the pier, pointing out on the Sound and shouting: "Shark!" There was a wild scare and a general scamper for the shore. Women and children shrieked, and one woman, Mrs. Bartell, of Newark, fainted in the water and was carried ashore.

The fishing boats, of which there were thirty or forty, began rowing towards land. There was a general sigh of relief when the last reached the pier. By this time a man-eater more than eight feet in length could be plainly seen by those along the banks. During the afternoon the shark swam around, at one time within nearly a hundred feet of the pier.

Grain Thieves In Union.

Grain thieves are plentiful just now in Union township, Union county, and the farmers report numerous depredations. Their barns and granaries have been broken open and robbed. The latest raid was made Thursday night at Freeholder Noah Woodruff's place. The thieves stole oats, feed and corn. His corn-crib was broken open and about twenty-five bushels of corn were taken. Since May over 200 bushels of corn have been stolen from the Freeholder. The farmers are going to organize for mutual protection.

A Musical Evening.

A small social gathering took place at the country residence of Mr. Smith, in Union Village, one of the head electricians in the Edison Electric Company's Works. Music took up most of the evening. Among those present were: Miss May McLaughlin, Miss Jennie Simpson, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Clark, George W. DeMeza, Robert Clark, Jr., and Edward O. Clark.

CAN BUILD THE TROLLEY.

The Court Will Remove the Injunction in New Brunswick.

Chief Justice Mercer Beasley announced Friday that he will sign an order removing the power of an injunction from the writ of certiorari obtained against the Traction Company in June by Wm. B. VanNortwick and his daughter, Mary VanNortwick, of George street and Throop avenue, New Brunswick. This means that the company can go on with its work in that city. The next move will be for the Common Council to organize and grant the Traction Company permission to pass through the streets through which is wishes to extend its tracks. It is thought the ordinance is legal. This question will not be argued nntil a later term of the Supreme Court.

MRS. PARKHURST'S FALL.

The Mother of a Prominent Citizen Breaks Her Hip.

There was consternation at the home of George R. Musgrave, 101 Duer street, Thursday evening, when Mrs. N. E. Parkhurst, the mother of Mr. Musgrave, fell and broke her hip. She was in the room at the time with her son and started to walk over to the table, when sundenly she fell and the accident happened. Mr. Musgrave had his back to her at the time and knew nothing of it until she had fallen. Dr. Tomlinson was called and the injured woman put under his care. She is now doing nicely and no bad results are expected.

A Blunder of the Leaguers.

The Law Enforcement League of Rahway, it is claimed, has made a blunder in bringing a charge against Michael Whalen, proprietor of the First Ward Hotel, for alleged Sunday selling. Whalen was tried for this offence before the Court of Common Pleas at Elizabeth, his being made a test case. The Court acquitted him and directed that the other cases be taken before the Police Justice in Rahway, as the Common Pleas did not have any jurisdiction. Whalen being once acquitted cannot, it is said, be again tried for the same offence. With the other ten liquor dealers the case is different as they had no previous trial.

Snubs the Citizenship Union.

The Board of Excise of Elizabeth it is said snubbed the Christian Citizenship Union Thursday night at a meeting of the board by referring to the City Attorney a communication from the union relative to half a dozen saloon-keepers accused by the union of selling on Sunday. The union now threatens to go before the next Grand Jury and have the Excise Commissioners indicted for neglect of their sworn duty.

A Contractor in Trouble.

Charles S. Hogan, a contractor, formerly in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was arrested Thursday evening on a warrant issued by Police Justice Frazee at Rahway. The complainant is John Mundy, of Main street, who alleges that Hogan gave him a beating on Sunday night. Hogan is a big and powerful man, while Mundy is small and frail. Hogan was held by Justice Frazee in $200 bail to await the Grand Jury's action.

Trophy from Asbury Park.

It Runs in the Family.

Edward Stillman Randolph, nephew of L. Warren Randolph, the druggist, who was at one time a resident of Plainfield and attended the High School, is keeping a prosperous pharmacy in Asbury Park, and is doing very well there.

Will Make Tramps Work.

The Township Committee, of Woodbridge, passed a tramp ordinance at their meeting Thursday night similar to the one now in operation in Rahway. Tramps found within the township limits will be compelled to work twenty-four hours on the streets. Woodbridge has been pestered lately with tramps who stop pedestrians—even women—and ask alms.

Mr. Bird Out Again.

Fred Bird, who was injured while riding his wheel through Long Branch Thursday, July 11th, is able to be out again. It will be sometime before he can work.

The Best of All.

Maurice Higgins, sexton of St. Mary's church, after looking at the lawns surrounding other churches, says they are nowhere compared to the one under his charge.

For a St. Patrick's Alliance.

On Tuesday evening, July 30th, there will be an effort made to organize a branch of St. Patrick's Alliance in Plainfield.

THE ANGEL IN BLACK HERE.

HOSPITAL AMBULANCE ARRIVED IN TOWN THIS MORNING.

Is Splendidly Equipped for the Errands of Mercy Which It Will Perform—Made by Studebaker.

She came like a ghost in white, but now the white robes have been removed and her black sides and running-gear shine in the sun while the word "Ambulance" in red and white tells her mission to all. For the long-looked-for ambulance of the Muhlenberg Hospital came last night and is now ready to go on its errand of mercy. It arrived on a flatcar late in the evening and about eight o'clock on Saturday was unloaded and taken to Roberts' boarding stable, which will be its home in the future.

The outside of the wagon is very plain, black panels surrounded by narrow bands of gold with a small red cross and "Muhlenberg Hospital" in red and white on the forward panel and "Ambulance" in large lertters on the lower main panel. Strong springs make an apparently easy running wagon, inside of which is a wicker cot or stretcher and two seats for the attendants. There is a businesslike look about it that presages great things for the future and promises to fill its part with the many other aids for the sick and wounded. A gong like those used on the New York ambulances will clear the road for this angel in black. The ambulance was manufactured by Studebaker Brothers, the great carriage makers of Indiana. Its weight is about fourteen hundred pounds and can be pulled by either one or two horses, but only one horse, however, will be used in Plainfield.

RAHWAY'S POLITICAL SAGE.

New Jersey Advocate Comments on the Political Situation.

There is already talk about the Assembly nominations in this county. The general sentiment favors a nominee from each of the three cities—Elizabeth, Plainfield and Rahway. Freeholder Roll, of Springfield, is not unfavorable to being considered a candidate, and he would make a good one. Rahway Republicans would probably waive any claim they might have in his favor, as they know his sterling worth and remember with gratitude his labors to defeat the South Orange sewer bill. The only thing they want is for him to come out on the right side on the gubernatorial question and all will be well.

If Senator Voorhees is nominated for Governor, as now seems very likely, Plainfield will have a candidate for that position and there should not be the slightest opposition shown by the Republicans in any other part of the county in granting that honor to Plainfield. There's where Republican majorities flourish. Plainfield Republicans have never had the Senatorship, and this will be a good year to accord that recognition to them.

Different From the Rest.

Wednesday of next week is the date set for St. Mary's church excursion. Glen Island, one of the loveliest spots in the country, is the destination. There is a sail of nearly three hours on the Sound. The rest of five hours is at the shore. The music on board the boat, refreshments, etc., are attractions commending themselves to lovers of change from the ordinary railroad excursions.

"This."

The New York Evening World is always looking for novelties in newspaperdom. Plainfield has what the Bound Brook Democrat is pleased to call a freak, and it is feared that The Evening World is not advised of this fact. If The World wants to make a hit let them import the man who has set Plainfield people agog by appearing in knickerbockers as a business suit. The baloon reporter would not be in it with This.

For St. Mary's Altar.

Two statues of adoring angels from the celebrated establishment of Mayer, Murich, Bavaria, now ornament the altar of St. Mary's church.

Will Not Move.

P. M. Decker, the North avenue barber, will not move from the Hotel Grenada building to the opposite side of the avenue.

—J. W. VanSickle has just put in a large Marvin fire-proof safe.

—A neighborhood cottage meeting will be held at the Liberty Streut mission Monday evening at eight o'clock.

—Mrs. Kate H. Marsh has closed her business until September in order to make improvements in the house.

—The young women of the German Reformed church will conduct a pink and white tea in the church Monday and Tuesday evening of next week.

FARMERS MAKE MONEY.

They Don't Know It, but Secretary Morton Says So.

J. Sterling Morton, Secretary of Agriculture, believes that there is money in farming. He is a man of much wealth, and a great part of his fortune has come out of the soil. He is highly cultured and college bred, but he is as plain in his ways as was Abraham Lincoln and he has practical ideas of men and things.

"It is not half as bad as it is painted," said the secretary. "The farmers are making as much money as any other people in the United States. They don't make as much as they formerly did. No business is doing that. Why we used to get ten per cent. for money out West on gilt edged security. I have paid twelve per cent. myself, mortgaging the best of real estate to get it, and have made money out of it. You can now borrow all the money you want for six per cent. The people are now contented with small profits. It is the same in the mercantile business. The storekeepers used to growl when their profits were less than twenty-five per cent. They are now glad to get eight per cent. The truth is that the farmers' profits have fallen the least, and failures are proportionately less among them than among any other class of business men. Take this matter of mortgaged farms. These farmers are doing business on borrowed capital, and now and then one of them fails. The majority of merchants do their business the same way, and ninety per cent. fail at some time in their lives. I believe the percentage of failures in the dry goods business is fully as high as ninety-seven per cent. The majority of the farmers succeed. They pay their expenses and in the end own their farms."

"What do you think of the way our farmers live, Mr. Secretary? Would it not be better if they lived in villages and not on their farms?"

"In many respects, yes," was the reply. "The farmer's wife has a dreary lot. She is in most cases little better than a slave to her work and her house. She drags out a sad existence, scrubbing and cooking, with few resources outside of herself. I can't imagine anything much worse than her condition, and it seems to me that the European system of farm villages is better than ours. And still, the most of our farmers' wives are bright women. They are as a rule industrious and good business women, but they get little for it. I believe in making women to a large extent the business partners of their husbands. They are not so in the case of most men. Take, for instance, a story I heard the other day about the family of an old farmer in Indiana. The man and his wife had lived together for fifty years. Their children had grown up and left them, and now, at 70, the farmer found the burden of his work too much for him, and he decided to sell his farm and live off of the interest. It was worth $40,000, but when the deed came to be made the farmer's wife objected. She said she had helped to pay for the farm. She had worked all her life for it, and she was bound to have some of the money which it brought before she signed the deed. The lawyer and the husband were dumfounded. They had not anticipated such a complication, and at last one of them asked the old lady how much she thought she ought to have. She hesitated a moment, and then said that she believed she was really entitled to ask for as much as $2."

Died With His Chum.

In the reminiscences of Gen. Sir Evelyn Wood, himself a brave English soldier, a touching instance of courage and self-sacrifice is given. On June day in 1855 a detachment of English marines were crossing the Woronzow road under fire from the Russian batteries. All of them reached shelter in the trenches except a seaman, John Blewitt. As he was running a terrific roar was heard. His mates knew the voice of a huge cannon, the terror of the army, and yelled:

"Look out! It is Whistling Dick!"

But at the moment Blewitt was struck by the enormous mass of iron on the knees and thrown to the ground. He called to his especial chum:

"Oh, Welch! save me!"

The fuse was hissing, but Stephen Welch ran out of the trenches, and seizing the great shell tried to roll it off of his comrade.

It exploded with such terrific force that not an atom of the bodies of Blewitt or Welch was found. Even in that time when each hour had its excitement, this deed of heroism stirred the whole English Army. One of the officers searched out Welch's old mother in her poor home and undertook her support while she lived, and the story of his death helped his comrades to nobler conceptions of a soldier's duty.—Youth's Companion.

He Got Food for Reflection.

Tramp—Madam, I have had nothing to eat in four days, and I would thank you heartily for anything in the line of nourishment.

Madam—I would be glad to supply your need, good sir, but I have just read there is bacilli in everything we eat, and my humanity revolts against giving you anything that might endanger your salubrity.

Tramp—Thanks, madam; sincerest thanks! You have, at least, given me food for reflection.—New Orleans Picayune.

The Thoughtful Chauncey.

A good story is told on Chauncey Depew. He received a letter from a young married friend in Albany asking for a pass for his mother-in-law, who was coming to make him a visit, and closing with the delicate hint: "Don't forget to have the return coupon attached." Mr. Depew is nothing if not worldly wise and sympathetic, and in sending the pass he wrote: "I have not neglected the return coupon and have limited it to three days."—Minneapolis Journal.

When Mr. Roosevelt says that he proposes to enforce the law against soda water stands as well as saloons on Sunday, it demonstrates the fact that Mr. Roosevelt is altogether too officious.

"Barnes said he did not know the revolver was loaded." And his comrade was killed. The question of just what punishment should be meted out individuals of the Barnes stripe is a puzzling one.

The Somerset Democrat professes not to believe that "hen's egg hail" fell in Plainfield one week ago. And so does every one who was not in the sweep of the storm. But it fell just the same.

The Republican papers of the rabid partisan stripe are having a hard time in trying to make people believe that the present adminstration have not contributed anything to the movement towards better times.

A formidable movement is under way in New York to organize a national association of merchants whose object will be protection from bad debts. The organization will endeavor to influence legislation in States and in Congress in favor of greater uniformity of laws referring to credits and collections, and especially bankruptcy legislation.

Judging from Senator Morgan's thrusts at Senator Hill in his speech on the money question at Atlanta yesterday, the Georgia statesman must still remember the keen and pointed remarks the New York man directed at him in the Senate two years ago, when Mr. Morgan was feared as the cock robbin debator of the National arena.

With the bicycle and the trolley the horse is not getting along as well as he might. It is estimated that the latter has displaced 500,000 horses.

The Summit Record is severely criticising Assessor Hicks for adding $416,000 to the assessed valuations of the township, whereby, The Record asserts, Summit will be compelled to pay $3,300 additional to the county without any increased benefits.

The overloading of steamboats running out of New York to seaside resorts, as was the case last Sunday, is a violation of navigation laws that should receive a searching investigation and severe penalties by the authorities. To put the lives of 2,000 people in jeopardy of a watery grave is not something to be passed over by a mere reprimand.

The very odd report comes from Denver, Colorado, that it is feared that a party of Princeton students, who were hunting for geological specimens in the Bad Lands, have been captured by a band of Bannock Indians. The correspondent who sent that report is evidently not acquainted with the Princeton student. If there has been any capturing, it is the red skins who are the captives.

A Newark woman had seventy dollars stolen from under her pillow. She avers that her husband committed the theft and therefore had him arrested. The law says that theft cannot be committed between husband and wife, and the husband was discharged. Then she implored a friend to swear that a portion of the cash belonged to him. The Newark woman evidently believes that "where there is a will there is a way."

A man and wife who keep a small shop in London have avoided paying taxes for fourteen years. The husband goes to jail every year to serve out the legal term for unpaid taxes, while the wife takes charge of the shop. —Tribune.

If the London authorities really desire to have this man pay his taxes let them send to Plainfield and get a plan of the city rookery. Then build after the plans and there will be but little question but what the miser will pay his taxes.

The trouble which has sent the business of the New York and Philadelphia Traction Company into the courts is an apt exemplification of "flying high and lighting low." The company assumed too much to start with on a limited capital, and the result has been inevitable. The outcome of the affair will be of more than ordinary interest to Plainfielders, inasmuch as this is the company who proposed to connect with the local corporation in completing their trunk line.

The verdict of murder in the second degree rendered in the case of John Collins who was charged with the murder of Frederick Ohl, the Princeton college student seems to have been as severe as the circumstances demanded. There is no question but what college students, when out for a lark, are aggravating to the extreme to the man whom they may seek to "jolly," and especially to a man of Collins's mental calibre. Their trouble is generally of their own seeking. In this particular case, however, the young man who was killed was not a member of the party that precipitated the trouble.

Below is an extract of an editorial published in The Daily Press. Alongside of it is an extract of an editorial published in The Courier-News. The Courier-News editor is said to be a college graduate:

DAILY PRESS.	COURIER-NEWS.
The Daily Press desires to make a correction in justice to The Courier-News editor. It is $3.50 instead of $3 a week that he pays his compositors, less the holidays and lost time for funerals and sickness. The compositors on The Daily Press are paid from $13 to $20 a week.	In regular backwoods, wild and woolley style. The Press broke out yesterday in the most surprising diatribe. Plainfield has rarely witnessed such evidences of raw provincialism. But what can one expect? How much better it would have been to have quietly stated the facts, instead of launching out in an Arizona Kicker specimen of western Yahoo English, as did the North avenue paper yesterday.

A year and a half ago Jesse Warren, a nine-year-old Jersey City boy, threw a stone which struck and ultimately killed another boy. Young Warren was tried and convicted, and a short time ago was sentenced to a long term in the Reform School. It was one of the cases where law does not recognize youth as a mitigator of an act laid down as a punishable crime in the statutes. But withal this the act was one of youthful indiscretion rather than of maliciousness, and such as every man has committed in boyhood, though possibly not with such fatal result. The Jersey City News, as soon as sentence was passed, immediately began agitating the justness of urging the Board of Pardons to release the boy from his judicial punishment. The case will be brought before the Board and a favorable action is looked for. The intent of the law under which the Board of Pardons exists is doubtless to reach and remedy such morally innocent and only technically guilty cases as this one.

It is said that ex-Congressman George Hires, of Mercer county, is a candidate for Governor in the interest of John Kean's candidacy. There are so many things said, though, now-a-days anent this question that it is hard to tell what is true.

In the Horr-Harvey money debate at Chicago, Mr. Harvey defined bimetallism as follows:

(1) Free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver; these two metals to constitute the primary or redemption money of the Government.

(2) That the silver dollar of 371¼ grains of pure silver (with us) is to be the unit of value, and gold to be coined into money at a ratio to be changed if necessary from time to time, if the commercial parity to the legal ratio shall be affected by the action of foreign countries.

(3) The money coined from both metals to be legal tender in the payment of all debts.

(4) The option as to which of the two moneys is to be paid in the liquidation of the debt to rest with the debtor, and the Government also to exercise that option when desirable in paying out redemption money.

NOT A KILKENNY FIGHT YET.

GOSSIP ABOUT THE REPUBLICAN SITUATION IN UNION COUNTY.

Some Think that Kean Has the Best of the Fight So Far as Elizabeth and Plainfield Are Concerned.

The Newark Advertiser published the following on Saturday:

It is not a Kilkenny fight yet in Union county. There are still two candidates, but they are on good terms, and their friends have not started to eat each other up. The fight is on in earnest. Mayor John Rankin is going to humor his intense hatred of John Kean by doing all he can to get the Elizabeth delegates for Senator Foster M. Voorhees. Mayor Rankin broke out two weeks ago in a manner that was so intensely aggressive that some of the disinterested lookers on thought it was "all day" with Br'er Voorhees, and, if the truth be known, the "Deacon" himself felt like saying "Save me from my friends."

John Kean was mad clean through, and he grit his teeth and made a formal declaration of war. He has, however, modified it, for he kept his knife in his girdle and Union County goes along without any disturbing feature. Some of Senator Voorhees' friends have sat up with the belligerent mayor and reasoned a bit with him, and he is going to temper his speech with moderation, and his acts are to be more neighborly. There are some who believe that Mayor Rankin is so thirsty for the gore of John Kean that he would sacrifice Voorhees or any other friend to get square with him.

As far as Voorhees and Kean themselves are concerned, they are willing to let it drift along until the primaries are held, and let the people make an expression, and both to abide by the result; to urge the people to attend the primaries, but go no further. While this may be agreeable to the two principals, it is thought that there are some of "the boys" on both sides who will force things a little. Some think that Kean has the best of the fight so far as Elizabeth and Plainfield are concerned, but that Voorhees has the most strength outside of the cities. The fight is bound to be close. There are only forty delegates from Union county, and as it stands now, they are about equally divided between the two candidates. The principal fight will be made in the cities. Voorhees's friends claims the delegates from Rahway.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destored forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness, caused by catarrh, that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

The hospital must be notified in every case before the ambulance leaves the stable.

For other than hospital cases the charge will be for any time less than an hour, two dollars; for one hour, or longer, at the rate of two dollars an hour.

Payments for use of the ambulance must be made to the superintendent at the hospital or to the treasurer of the hospital.

An Officer's Opinion.

A Daily Press reporter in conversation with Policeman Giese Saturday learned that on Sunday morning, July 14th, he saw two Italians or Hebrews—he could not tell which—pass through Elm place in the early morning carrying a large trunk. They were going toward the mountain, but Mr. Giese had heard nothing of the missing trunk and in consequence thought nothing particularly strange of it. However, he is of the opinion that the trunk is in North Plainfield and not far away.

In the Arms of Morpheus.

The Courier-News must have had a long sleep. In their Saturday issue they say there is need of a pound in the borough. There is one already in the borough and another one would be an unnecessary tax on the people.

YOUNG GIRLS.

INTERESTING CONCLUSIONS.

Mothers Agree on One Vital Subject.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Young girls, to the thinking mind, are ever subjects of the deepest interest.

Some lead lives of luxury, while others toil for mere existence. Separate, however, as their paths in life may lie, Nature demands of them the same obedience. All are subject to the same physical laws, and suffer in proportion to their violation.

Young girls are reticent through modesty, and often withhold what ought to be told.

Yet they are not to blame, for information on such subjects has been withheld from them, owing to the false interpretation of a mother's duty.

In such cases they should do as thousands of young ladies are doing every day: write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., giving as nearly as possible their symptoms, and receive her freely given advice and timely aid.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the young girl's most trusty friend. It can be obtained of any druggist, and speedily relieves and cures irregularities, suspension, retention, and all derangements of the womb and ovaries.

It banishes promptly all pains, headache, backache, faintness, nervousness, sleeplessness, melancholia, etc. Young girls must know that self-preservation is the first law of nature.

CHRISTIAN ATHLETES.

Events to Be Contested for By Hope and Monroe Avenue Chapels.

The Monroe Avenue Chapel Athletic Association met Friday night and received George Firstbrook, Geo. Gray, A. Muir and W. Stewart, of the Hope Chapel Association. Those receiving them were B. Randolph, W. Arthurs, H. Apgar and E. Morgan. The committees talked over the field day events, and planned them as follows: 100-yards dash; one-quarter mile run; pole vault; running high jump; 220-yards run; running broad jump; one, two and three mile bicycle races; throwing twelve-pound hammer; 120-yards hurdle race; tug-of-war; hop, step and jump; standing broad jump; three mile run. The affair will take place at Maltby's, Saturday, August 31st.

Rev. G. Kennedy Newell was chosen referee, and the other officials will be chosen later.

The committee from Hope Chapel then retired, after which members were elected as follows: Louis Fulton, Wm. Morgan and B. King.

The committee will meet again about August 15th.

TWO BOOKS AT A TIME.

Another Library Convenience for Plainfield Readers.

For the convenience of users of the Free Public Library, who frequently want more than one book at a time, a system known as the "two-book system" has been adopted.

To any holder of a card making application an extra card, called a "non-fiction card," will be issued. On this may be drawn any circulating book, not a book of fiction. The ordinary card can be used as at present for any book, thus allowing the borrower one book of light reading, and one of heavier, or if desired two books not fiction.

From the frequent inquiries made as to whether more than one book can be taken at a time by one person, it is believed that this arrangement will prove a very popular one. As the system is already in running order, applications may be made at any time.

Summit Boy Drowned.

A lad named Charles Fair, who came from Summit last Saturday to spend a few days with his friend, Harry Baker, was drowned in the Raritan River at noon yesterday while fishing. He lost his foothold on the bank and slipped. Young Baker tried to save him by jumping into the water, but was unable to do so.

NOT WHAT THE NAME IMPLIES

TEA OF GERMAN REFORMED CHURCH NOT SO WARM AFTER ALL.

Delightful Midsummer Event, the Outcome of Which is the Formation of a Church Society of Young People.

A tea usually suggests something warm to drink, but at the pink and white tea held in the church parlors of the German Reformed church Monday evening, the cold delicacies took the lead. The tea was arranged by the young women of the church to assist in securing funds for a parsonage. Although there is no regular society, a temporary organization was formed and Miss Sadie Blimm elected president, Miss Josie Fritz, secretary, and Miss Lizzie Scheeline, treasurer. These young women worked their hardest to make the tea a success, and last evening showed that their efforts had been signally rewarded.

The room was prettily draped in pink and white bunting, while all the booths were decorated with an artistic combination of ferns, greens and bunting. The decorating was done by Miss Sadie Blimm, Miss Josie Fritz, Miss Lizzie Scheeline, Miss Kate Blimm, Miss Nettie Kreitling, John Utzinger, Fred Vanderweg and Rev. G. Hauser.

The tea table was under the care of Miss Sadie Blimm, assisted by Miss Etta Blatz and Miss Carrie Fritz. The aids in charge of the cake table were Miss Josie Fritz and Miss Jeanette Simpson. The lemonade well was cared for by Miss Catherine Blimm, assisted by Miss Lottie Fritz. Miss Nettie Kreitling, assisted by Miss Nellie McGinnis, sold the home-made candies. The chief of the refreshments was Mrs. Utzinger. The waitresses were the Misses Bessie Trambelith, Lillie Zeisz and Annie Doeringer. John Utzinger received the tickets at the door, while Fred Vanderweg took in the money.

During the evening there were instrumental solos by Miss Nettie Kreitling, Miss Bach, of New York, and Miss Lillie Zeisz. Robert Clark, Jr., gave a vocal solo entitled "Sunset Memories." A most delightful evening was enjoyed, and by no means the least delightful was the ice cream furnished by Tier.

The tea will be continued this afternoon and evening.

LIGHTNING STRIKES AND FIRES.

Bad Conflagrations at South Bound Brook and Somerville.

Last night about ten o'clock lightning struck the grocery and post office building at South Bound Brook in charge of D. D. Hoffman, who conducts the grocery business and is also postmaster.

In a very few minutes the building was one mass of flames. With some effort two lines of hose were laid and water was thrown on the building. Although the building is not a total loss, the damage is heavy and considerable mail matter was destroyed. A house six feet away, was saved.

A large fire occurred at Somerville. Just as the storm was at its height the lightning struck the barn of Mr. Wilson, near the ridge pole, with the result of igniting the structure, and also the sheds near it. The flames spread so fast that before the engines could reach the scene it had reached the barns on both sides. The buildings and contents, with the exception of horses and cattle, were destroyed.

HARD TO BEAT THE UMPIRE.

THAT IS WHAT THE Y. M. C. A. TEAM HAD TO DO SATURDAY.

But Plainfield Also Put in an Umpire and Then the Perth Amboy Boys Got Tired and Quit.

It is rather hard for nine men to defeat ten men in baseball, especially if the tenth man happens to be the umpire, but that was what the Y. M. C. A. nine tried to do Saturday afternoon when they played a team from South Amboy. They succeeded, too, but not as exactly as they wished, for after three inning had been played, the visitors gathered up their bats and set sail for home. It was not a fight though that caused their departure. Five of the team worked in the evening, and as they preferred to lose the game rather than their job, they forfeited it to the home club.

The umpire who started the game was the manager of the South Amboys, and he appeared to be either blind or cross-eyed. In the first inning, when Skimmons tried to steal second, Townley got the ball to Schenck who touched him out, and then when he slid clear past the base, touched him reapeatedly, but the umpire could not see, as he remarked, and declared the man safe. The The Y. M. C. A. boys were slightly discouraged at this, and five more runs resulted from the umpire's little pleasantry. And then a ball went two feet over Townley's head, and the dear man from the Raritan river remarked "one strike." That was too much, but he managed to call a few more of the same kind on equally tough balls, then Walter Freeman consented to assist him in trying to umpire, and after that, Plainfield had some show on the bases.

Burt was hit rather heavily and so was Petty. The rather mixed-up arrangement of the home team had much to do with the large number of runs made, although only two errors were made, but one of them, a dropped fly by Neal, allowed the visitors to make three runs that they never should have had. Schenck put up his usual good game at second, and knocked the longest hit made in the field for a long time, sending it down to the far turn of the bicycle track, and bringing in a man on first and one on second, and running to second himself, and was almost good for three bags.

Townley was at his best in throwing to second, catching every man that tried to steal second including the umpire's favorite. Where the score would have gone to had the full nine innings been played is a question, but it is likely that, with a fair minded umpire, the Plainfield nine would put up a hard fight.

Petty was a fairly good pitcher but he had one trick of going through all the motions preparatory to delivering the ball and then delivering it to one of the bases instead. It came rather near a fight at one time, for any one except an idiot or a very partial minded umpire could see that it was a balk, but the manager-umpire had something the matter with his eyesight again and said there was nothing the matter. When Freeman acted as umpire it is significant to remark that the pitcher did not try his trick.

The score by innings was as follows:

Y. M. C. A.	3	2	4	-- 9
South Amboy	6	0	6	-- 0

ARLINGTONS BEAT DUNELLEN.

Fifteen to Nine is the Score the Plainfield Boys Made.

The Arlington Athletic Club, of this city, went to Dunellen Saturday and played a game with the Athletic Club of that place, and defeated them by a score of 15 to 9. The Dunellens were planning all the week for this game and as a result they had out their very best players, including the star battery. The Arlingtons took kindly to the Dunellen pitcher by knocking his curves all over the field and earning seven of their fifteen runs, while, the Dunellens could not hit the pitching of Sutphen to any extent. The Arlington did not play the same clean game as in their last game; their fielding was very loose, this accounting for Dunellens nine runs.

The Arlingtons had the misfortune of having three of their best players badly injured, while their opponents also had some misfortune in having their pitcher sunstruck. Aside from this the game was very interesting.

The game was characterized by the heavy hitting of the Arlingtons who hit the ball in all directions. The features of the contest was the pitching of Sutphen, the batting of Mumford, Sprowl, Dupue and Bogart, and the playing of M. Sutphen, Carpenter, Fletcher and Mumford. The umpiring was very good, considering the kind of game that was played. Following is the detail of the game:

STEALS AND GETS MARRIED.

Young Wilkinson Confesses and Is Anxious to Be Punished.

Freehold, July 22.—Wilbur A. Wilkinson, a young man, is in the county jail, charged with robbing Misses Melissa and Bessie Hoffman, daughters of the landlady of the house in which he boarded. Saturday morning he went away, saying he was going to Manasquan for Sunday. Instead, with a Miss Reid, who was visiting here, he went to her home in New Egypt, where they were married that night.

In the evening members of the Hoffman family found that three pocketbooks in a bureau drawer in the bedroom had been rifled of nearly $45. Justice Hulse issued a warrant, and Wilkinson was arrested Sunday morning at his bride's home, New Egypt, and brought here that afternoon. He admitted his guilt and restored a part of the money taken.

MILLIONS GREET HIM

TRIUMPHAL RETURN OF JAPAN'S EMPEROR FROM THE WAR.

Scenes Along the Road from Yokohama to the Capital. Masters of the Art of Decorative Displays. Friendly to Americans.

A Tokio dispatch of the Chicago Record says the Emperor of Japan returned to Tokio yesterday, and more than 2,000,000 of loyal subjects were here to greet him. Last September, when the Japanese army embarked for China, he went to Hiroshima, one of the most easterly ports of the inland sea, so that he might be 700 miles nearer the seat of war and communicate more conveniently with his officers.

There is an impression among the people, which is not shared, however, by all the foreigners, that his Majesty took personal direction of the movements of the army, and that he had at one time an intention of exposing his sacred person to the hardships and dangers of the field.

But, however, this may be, he has been at Hiroshima ever since last September, and now comes back to the capital in the midst of a great demonstration, in which all parties and factions and all classes of people join with equal enthusiasm.

The Japanese are masters of the decorative art, and their taste and skill was most lavishly displayed in adornment, not only on the buildings and streets of the cities, but in the fields and farms and paddy fields along the line of the railway.

The distance from Yokohama, the principal seaport, to Tokio, the capital, is eighteen miles, and almost the entire distance, on both sides of the track, was a continuous display of bunting and garlands of green. The railway stations, the switch houses, and the telegraph poles, were laden with color, and where the highways cross the track arches of cryptomeria—a sort of soft leaved fir—were erected and inscribed with white designs presenting the Emperor's initials; the chrysanthemum, which is his crest, words of welcome and pledges of loyalty. In the bunting only the national colors were used—red and white—but there were a great many large white flags bearing inscriptions in Japanese characters, which are very decorative of themselves.

And from one city to the other the entire population were gathered along the hedges and fences that separate the railway right of way from the little toy farms, so that his Majesty actually passed between two solid walls of his subjects for at least eighteen miles. And he was received with absolute silence, which seemed strange to us Westerners, but until recently the Emperor has never been cheered.

This people, who do almost everything in a manner the opposite to what we are accustomed, have always considered silence the highest form of respect. But after his train had passed out of hearing their pent up emotions found relief in shouts and caperings, the waving of handkerchiefs and the flaunting of flags.

When he reached Tokio, however, where the people have acquired modern ideas, there was a shout of welcome that came from 100,000 throats. It was the single word "Banzai," which means literally "ten thousand years," and is used as an equivalent for the old salute that you read in the Scriptures, when subjects shouted to their sovereign: "Oh, king, live forever!"

Nor is it proper to look down upon the sacred person of the Mikado. You must always look up to him. Therefore the upper windows of the houses on the streets through which he passed were closed and curtained. There might have been some peeking from behind, but it was the height of disrespect.

The expense of the decoration was met by popular subscriptions. Each person who paid one dollar was given a medal of brass bearing the Emperor's name, the date and a description denoting the occasion.

Only those who wore such medals were admitted to the enclosure to witness the ceremony, and the natives could procure them at the City Hall upon the payment of the subscription. Those who wanted to pay a little more could get medals of silver, and those who were very liberal could get them of gold. Foreigners were not invited to participate, and several Europeans were refused medals. But any American citizen could get one.

The antipathy of the people towards Europeans is illustrated by a little incident. A gentleman stopping at the Grand Hotel, went down to the headquarters of the committee at the City Hall, and throwing down his dollar asked for a medal, which was refused him.

"No foreigner; no Englishman; he can'it come." said the man in charge. "Only Japanese."

"I am not an Englishman," was the reply, "I am an American."

"Oh! Melican, he all light," and he handed out one of the souvenirs.

Property for Children.

Mr. Ruskin has written a letter in reply to the question, ought parents to leave a fortune to their children? He says parents ought to educate and maintain their children until they reach maturity. "Moderation," he adds, "eats its children young. When they are strong throw them out of the nest, but let the nest be always open to them. No guilt should ever stand between child and parent. The doors should be always open to a daughter who is a harlot or a son who is a thief, if they return, but no fortune should be left to them."

PROF. HUXLEY'S LIFE

HIS OWN ESTIMATE OF HIS ACCOMPLISHMENTS IN SCIENCE.

His Visit to America. There Were No Honors in the Gift of Nations to Men of Science Which Did Not Come to Him.

Americans heard Professor Huxley lecture in New York when he was in all the brightness of his honors.

He was unrivaled as a lecturer on scientific subjects, and one who was a good judge of eloqnence said that he was, "next to John Bright, the best orator in England." This he was, undoubtedly, in exposition and in power of elucidating a complex subject before a popular audience. He spoke clearly, deliberately, and with much force. How he acquired this talent and how he reached his knowledge, which embraced physics, chemistry, botany, and zoology to an extraordinary degree, was perhaps a miracle to him.

He says in his autobiography, which is the slightest but the most interesting record which may be made of his life, that "physically and mentally I am the son of my mother so completely that I can hardly find trace of my father in myself, except an inborn faculty for drawing, which, unfortunately in my case, has never been cultivated." He says:

"I have next to nothing to say about my childhood. In later years my mother, looking at me almost reproachfully, would sometimes say:

"'Ah! you were such a pretty boy!' whence I had no difficulty in concluding that I had not fulfilled my early promise in the matter of looks.

"My regular school training was of the briefest, perhaps fortunately, for though my way of life has made me acquainted with all sorts and conditions of men, from the highest to the lowest, I deliberately affirm that the society I fell into at school was the worst I have ever came across.

"We boys were average lads, with much the same inherent capacity for good and evil as any others; but the people who were set over us cared about as much for our intellectual and moral welfare as if they were baby farmers. We were left to the operation of a struggle for existence among ourselves, and bullying was the least of the ill-practices current among us.

PROF. HUXLEY.

"As I grew older my great desire was to be a mechanical engineer, but the fates were against this, and while very young I commenced the study of medicine under a medical brother-in-law.

"I am now occasionally horrified to think how very little I cared about medicine as the art of healing. The only part of my professional course that really and deeply interested me was physiology, which is the mechanical engineering of living machines; and, notwithstanding that natural science has been my proper business, I am afraid there is very little of the genuine naturalist in me.

"I never collected anything, and specie work was always a burden to me; I cared more for the architectural and engineering part of the business, the working out of the wonderful unity of plan in the thousands and thousands of diverse living constructions and modifications of similar apparatuses to serve diverse ends. The extraordinary attraction I felt toward the studies of the intricacies of living structure nearly proved fatal to me at the outset.

"I am sorry to say that I do not think that any account of my doings as a student would tend to edification. In fact, I should distinctly warn ingenious youth to avoid imitating my example. I labored extremely hard when it pleased me, and when it did not—which very often was the case—I was extremely idle, unless making caricatures of one's pastors and masters is to be called a branch of industry, or else wasted my energies in the wrong direction. I read everything I could lay my hands upon, including novels, and took up all sorts of pursuits, to drop them again quite as speedily. No doubt it was largely my own fault, but the only instruction from which I obtained the proper effect of education was that which I received from Mr. Wharton Jones, the lecturer on physiology at the Charing Cross School of Medicine.

The extent and preciseness of his knowledge impressed me greatly, and the severe exactness of his method of lecturing was quite to my taste. I do not know that I have ever felt so much respect for anybody as a teacher before or since. I worked hard to obtain his approbation, and he was extremely kind and helpful to the youngster, who, I am afraid, took up more of his time than he had any right to do.

The last thing it would be proper for me to do would be to speak of the work of my life, or to say at the end of the day whether I think I have earned my salary or not. Men are said to be partial judges of themselves. Young men may be; I doubt if old men are. Life seems terribly foreshortened when they look back and the mountain they set themselves to climb in youth turns out to be a mere spur of immeasurably higher ranges, when, with a failing breath, they reach the top.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destored forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness, caused by catarrh, that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

THE PRESS WAS RIGHT.

Golf Course to Be Laid Out Between Central and Plainfield Avenues.

The proposed golf club, in connection with the Hillside Tennis club, which was exclusively announced in The Daily Press of a month ago, appears to be a recognized fact.

A committee from the Hillside Tennis club, consisting of Howard Beebe, Carl Pfeifer, and George P. Mellick, have been working among the young men of Plainfield, and their efforts are meeting with great success, and it is very probable that a golf club will soon be formed. The location of the links has not been definitely decided, but, despite the erroneous statements of the Courier-News, the committee are much in favor of locating them in the fields between Central and Plainfield avenues, just back of F. A. Barnaby's residence and extending out towards Road's End, the country home of Mr. Corlies. The country in that direction is very beautiful, and answers the requirements of the course.

SPILLED OUT BUT NOT HURT.

An Exciting Runaway on Leland Avenue Last Night.

Miss Maude Lord, of Netherwood, together with two lady friends, were out riding on Leland avenue Friday night about six o'clock when they met with a serious accident. Further down the road a man named Lewald was seated in a tea wagon, belonging to an out-of-town firm, who was delivering goods. The horse has the reputation of being a runaway, and without any warning started off at a break-neck speed. The animal had the best of Lewald, and the latter was unable to get control of him.

Just ahead was Miss Lord and her friends. They did not apprehend any danger till the runaway horse and wagon collided. One of the women jumped, while the other two remained in the wagon. One of their front wheels was smashed and the horse was thrown down, and received several scratches and cuts. Fortunately none of the party were injured. The runaway horse kept right on, and apparently would not stop for anything. It is not known where he brought up.

Policeman Frederickson who lives near the scene of the accident came out and helped the other steed to his feet. He then secured his own horse and wagon and took the women home.

L. D. Cabanne, who was injured at Asbury Park, is in worse shape than was at first supposed. He telegraphed to New York yesterday for a pair of crutches, and it may be some time before he will be seen on the racetrack again.

The gate receipts during the national bicycle meet at Asbury Park foot up about $10,000. This is hardly as much as was expected by the Asbury Park wheelmen, but it gives a fair profit to the association. The cost is not supposed to exceed $6,000, including the prizes.

Among the sights of the Oranges is a young woman of East Orange, who, on almost every fair day, can be seen taking her daily spin on her wheel in knickerbockers, with a pug dog comfortably seated on the baby carrier in the front of the machine. The turnout attracts a great deal of attention.

The project of building a bicycle path from Trenton across the State to Asbury Park is meeting with much favor. It is proposed that the path shall be five feet wide and uniform in construction. The route would take in several places which have large numbers of riders, and it is thought that the needed $50,000 can easily be secured from the wheelmen, even if the State refuses to aid in the work. The distance is fifty-four miles.

The wheelmen of Elizabeth are not by any means satisfied with the new bicycle ordinance which Mayor Rankin wants the city council to adopt, and intend to use every means in their power to defeat its passage. The ordinance submitted by the Mayor is an exact copy of the one now in force in Paterson. It limits the speed at which bicycles shall be run to six miles an hour on the principal streets, eight miles an hour on less crowded thoroughfares within the fire limits, and ten miles outside the fire limits. There is a penalty imposed for riding on the sidewalk, and also for not carrying on the bicycle a lighted headlight after dark. There are not many wheelmen who know just where the fire limits are, and it is said by the cyclists that the proposed ordinance discriminates against them even more than the one just vetoed by the Mayor. They now want the city council to let the whole matter severely alone, and say if this is done the thing will finally regulate itself.

—At the last meeting of the Westfield Fire Department the matter of the standing of J. H. Cash was laid before them. The department ordered that Mr. Cash be received into the Hook and Ladder Company, and accorded all the privileges of a member and subject to the same orders. This was a complete victory for Mr. Cash and his friends.

IS IT GAIN OR PRINCIPLE.

An Interesting Discussion of the Barbers' Sunday Closing Movement.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—

Last evening's Courier-News publishes an interview with a barber who out of personal avarice offers a compromise to the principle underlying the barbers' Sunday closing movement. It is not a matter of law with the barber, neither can the law be construed as it is in said article. Sunday is the legal holiday of the week in New Jersey, but the law allows any person having conscience in regard to the day to keep another. This law is somewhat abused in Plainfield at present.

The barber complaining in regard to being unable to keep shop if he is obliged to close up Sunday, makes a very poor point. He acknowledges that on Saturday he has not got the return for his time he ought to have. This movement desires to give him the work on Saturday that he now does on Sunday, reducing our working hours from ninety to about eighty hours a week. Keeping Sunday as a day of rest a barber may be benefited morally and physically, and his family will also derive benefit. I, for one, have no doubt that the barbers will have the moral support of everybody in Plainfield. All mechanics know that today they work for the same wages, doing about the same amount of work in ten hours, that they formerly did in twelve.

Col. Van Cleef's Trial.

The trial of Col. John T. Van Cleef for the alleged defrauding of the state in connection with the purchase of maps for the State Board of Assessors, will open at Mercer Court on Monday before Judge Conover, of Monmouth county, who will sit in all the trials of indicted State House officials and those connected therewith. Counsel for both the State and Col. Van Cleef are ready, and it is expected that the trial will be finished in two days. The trial of Mrs. Prieth, of Newark, has been postponed until Sept. 23d.

Plasterers and Hodcarriers Quit.

Five plasterers and two hodcarriers employed on the new High School at Short Hills have quit work because they claimed that they had received no wages since they commenced the job, over a week ago. They were in the employ of Wm. Meeker, of Elizabeth, who had a sub-contract. Meeker failed to show up and the contract was annulled.

ANXIOUS FOR A RECEIVER.

CENTRAL JERSEY TRACTION COMPANY ALLEGED TO BE INSOLVENT.

A Temporary Injunction Granted—The Proposed Trunk Line of the Company Was to Go Through Plainfield.

Ex-State Senator Lemuel E. Miller has filed a bill in Chancery against the Central Jersey Traction Company, of which ex-Mayor Frank A. Magowan, of Trenton, is president, alleging the company to be insolvent. He asks that a receiver be appointed and declares the company's liabilities to be $225,000, with no assets other than on a contract with the New York and Philadelphia Traction Company to construct and equip an electric railway, which contract has no present market value.

Vice-Chancellor Pitney has granted a rule directed to President Magowan and Manager Reall, citing the company to show cause at Newark on July 23d why a receiver should not be appointed, and has also granted a temporary injunction restraining the company from contracting any debt or mortgaging or disposing of any of its property until the case shall have been heard.

The ex-Senator's claim against the company is for constructing a branch road between Raritan and Bound Brook. The scheme of the Central Jersey Traction Company is to build an electric trolley line across New Jersey and they have secured franchises from several counties.

The history of the Central Jersey Traction Company, as given in the bill, is of more than ordinary interest. On April 12, 1894, Jeptha Baldwin, John H. Tingley and George C. Crosby became the Central Jersey Traction Company under the railroad act of 1875. Their charter has the power to build, buy or sell railways or almost anything else in the counties of Essex, Morris, Mercer, Somerset, Middlesex, Union, Burlington and Camden and to run electric power plants. They proposed to build a trolley road across New Jersey and carry passengers and freight from New York to Philadelphia and to build branch railways between the several towns along the main stem.

The capital stock was placed at $150.000, the bill says, divided into 1,500 shares at $100 each.

On December 13th, 1894, the capital stock was increased to the par value of $1,000,000, and the full amount subscribed for and actually issued. Then the company opened an office in Trenton and entered upon the business of making contracts with railroad corporations for the building and equipping of railroads, and continued making the contracts up to January 14th, 1895. About this time the Central Jersey Traction Company entered into a contract with Lemuel E. Miller, who files the bill, to build and equip an electric railway between Raritan and Bound Brook, which road was to have been completed, according to plans and specifications accompanying the bill, April 1st last. The contract price of the branch road was to be $35,600, payable as the work proceeded.

Mr. Miller swears that he proceeded with the work and did erect and complete a portion of the electric railway in accordance with the terms of his contract, continuing the work until he had actually earned about $25,000 of his contract price, but he received no money. On March 23d last the company gave Mr. Miller a promissory note, payable in thirty days, for $2,500 on account, but upon maturity the note was allowed to go to protest.

The bill goes on to say that the complainant believes "that the liabilities of the said Central Jersey Traction Company amount to over $225,000, of which $200,000 is represented by bonds of the said company, and the $25,000 is the indebtedness so due." Mr. Miller adds: "That the company has no assets, except a certain contract made with the New York and Philadelphia Traction Company for the construction of a road across the State." Mr. Miller charges that the Central Jersey Traction Company is insolvent and prays that a receiver may be appointed.

ISOLATED BY SEWER TRENCHES.

Contractors Should Fill In as Fast as the Pipe Is Laid.

The slowness with which the sewer contractors are completing the work they start is causing much complaint. The trenches are excavated and the pipe placed but in many sections the contractors seem to take their time in refilling. An instance at present is the inconvenient access to Orchard place. Open trenches extend from West Second street through Liberty street to Orchard place, and through Orchard place to New street and then back to West Second street. Under the present condition of affairs Orchard place residents, who desire to get to their homes, are obliged to perform acrobatic feats in crossing the numerous open trenches.

AGAINST SUNDAY OUTING.

Father Mulligan Says the Use of Liquor Is Against All Law.

Rev. Father B. J. Mulligan, of the Church of the Sacred Heart, of New Brunswick, has awakened wide interest among Catholics by his opposition in the pulpit and out of it to Sunday excursions. He said Thursday that he had received a communication from Division No. 3, Ancient Order of Hibernians, of America, in which the society refuted the report that it intended to conduct a Sunday excursion. By request the priest made the denial, and said that he did it with much pleasure. He said also that he was pleased to be able to declare that no society affiliated with his church would have Sunday outings this year. It was by his own request that one of them had abandoned the idea, and the others did so of their own accord. The priest said:

"I am not opposed to legitimate Sunday enjoyment, even to a sail down the river to some summer resort, provided the excursionists attend church before they go. But there is a distinction in excursions. While we commend a man for seeking health and recreation by this means on the Lord's day, we must disapprove of the abuse of such health and recreation when kegs of liquor are introduced into the 'enjoyment' and a grand carousel ensues. Such orgies are violently in opposition to the principles, teachings and laws of the church. Besides this they are against all human and common law.

"Unfortunately, in these modern days, the beer that is consumed is far stronger than the beer of olden times. Time was when in this country, like in European lands, where mild beers and light wines are national beverages, one could allay thirst with impunity and feel no evil effects from the potation. But it seems that modern America has a more heated temperament. Either that, or the liquor is worse. In view of these facts, suspicious beverages should be left severely alone."

AN EVENING WITH LEMONS.

A Novel But Delightful Gathering of Borough Young People.

When a lemon party is given, it does not always signify that those invited are too sweet, but the lemon party that Miss Fannie Western, of Washington avenue, gave her friends was certainly not a sour affair. The invitations came in the shape of lemons, tied with lemon-colored ribbon.

After the guests had all arrived, each one was handed a lemon and told to guess the number of seeds within. Miss Hattie Loundsbery was the wisest among her sex, while Charles Hazeltine gussed the best among the gentlemen. After several other games, dance cards, cut in the shape of a lemon were passed, and the rest of the evening spent in dancing. Dainty refreshments, and there was something besides lemons now, were served at the close. Then in the wee small hours of the morning the party broke up and bid their gracious hostess goodbye.

The feminine consolation prize was won by Miss Eveline Hall, and the men's consolation prize by William Western.

Among those who were present at this novel form of gathering were: Miss Ethel Marsh of Harlem, Miss Hattie Loundsbery of Harlem, Miss Gertrude Hazeltine, Miss Ada Bartling, Charles Hazeltine, Henry B. Drake, John H. VanWinkle, Jr., Clarence L. Murphy and Carlos C. Gallup, Miss Emiline Hall, Mrs. T. H. Buckinghaim, William H. Western and Charles Western.

Raritan Looses the Blacksmith.

Bayard Morton, the blacksmith, of Raritan Landing, has gone from town for good, if he is to be believed. Morton told his wife that he was going away, and although she protested he was not turned from his purpose. He made no concealment of his affection for a Bound Brook widow and she recently moved to New Brunswick and lived in a house on Sandford street. A few days ago Morton told his wife that he was going to Newark to live and now Mrs. Morton is left with her two children. Once White Caps posted a warning to Morton.

HOW TO EXERCISE A VOTE.

MOST IMPORTANT POINTS OF THE NEW ELECTION LAW.

Duties of County Board of Election—Authority Vested in Other Officials—Timely Ideas.

The new election law is rather a long measure, and it is doubtless if the average newspaper reader has had the patience to go through it. A few of the points contained in the new election law are found below.

The board of Freeholders shall provide a suitable office in the Court House or in a building near there. The County Board of Election shall meet on the first Tuesday in August at 10 o'clock, or, as they may agree upon, within the first ten days in August to organize. Boards of Registry and Election shall be appointed during the first ten days in September.

TROLLEY TALK.

Traction Company Troubles Give Rise to Seemingly Probabilities.

The announcement that an application had been made for the appointment of a receiver for the Central Jersey Traction Company was received with considerable interest and comment in this city. The trunk line which the Traction Company had mapped out to build from New York to Philadelphia passed through Plainfield. The line was to enter at the city limits in Netherwood and down North avenue and out Plainfield avenue to Metuchen and so on to New Brunswick. By some it was thought that if the plans of the company ever materialized the local corporation would be bought out, as it would be impossible to get through the city without using their tracks. The only towns in this vicinity that had granted them franchises were Westfield and Fanwood.

This morning it was talked as quite probable that the Consolidated Traction Company, who operate the line between Elizabeth and Newark, would endeavor to extend their lines to this city.

Can Spend a Pleasant Day There.

John French has spent a considerable amount of money and time in improving a section of Johnston's Drive, and he very kindly invites people to use the grounds for picnics or camping purposes. Those who have visited the place know that it is a rare place well worth going miles to see, as an excellent view can be obtained of the Brooklyn Bridge and various other points of interest. A day or even more can be spent very profitably at this place.

Troublesome Italians.

One difficulty has arose between Honan & Sons, the sewer contractors, and the boss Italian who furnishes the men for work. It appears that the latter wants more money from the men for board and that he wants Honan & Sons to stand more of the expense, while the contractors think that the man is getting all he deserves. The matter will be settled in court.

New Census for Newark.

The New Jersey State Board of Education has ordered a new census for Newark, as the local Board of Education is displeased with the result of the last census, which showed a falling off in the population of school children of 3,663. Should the new enumeration be the same as the last, an investigation into the census of 1894 will be made, as it will then seem as if fraud was practiced. The police of Newark will assist the State enumerators.

A NIGHT OF FESTIVITIES.

UNDAUNTED BY RAIN RAILWAY EMPLOYES PROVIDE A GOOD TIME.

A Warm Evening Brings Out a Multitude of Pleasure Seeking People, Giving Profit to the Picnic.

Nothing could daunt the Street Railway Employes in making their annual picnic a success, and in consequence a large crowd gathered Friday night in Vail's Grove and fully enjoyed the affair that was so hastily broken up the night before on account of rain.

The grove was handsomely decorated with red, white and blue bunting and this, together with a profusion of flags and Chinese lanterns well arranged, made the scene one of charm to all who witnessed it.

The refreshment stand did a big business for it was just the kind of a night when everyone felt like patronizing that sort of an article.

On the dancing pavilion there was a jolly set of dancers and the light fantastic toe was a delight to all who indulged to the excellent music furnished by Nathan Guttman.

That the affair was a success goes without saying, and as each succeeding year rolls around those who attended last night will anxiously await the enjoyable occasion.

Those who managed the picnic were Harry Martin, James McCormick and Michael Higgins, and much credit is due them for the success attained.

The dancing platform was in charge of M. Nevins, M. Higgins and D. Angerbar. The promoters of the picnic cleared $150.

The electric cars were run till the small hours of the morning to accommodate the many uptown people who attended.

Old Coal Wharves Sold.

Charles Meyer, of Elizabethport, has purchased the four big coal wharves used by the D. L. and W. Company for many years, and afterwards by the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company. Mr. Meyer has begun tearing down the docks and selling the timber for kindling wood. He expects to make a big profit. The wharves have been built more than a quarter of a century. The docks have not been used since the Reading Company abandoned them several years ago.

Bloomfield Ambitious, Too.

The issue of the local campaign for the incorporation of Bloomfield as a third-class city is whether or not the city can legally include the borough of Glen Ridge within its boundaries, and thus effecually prevent the establishment of a separate government in Glen Ridge. Legal opinions obtained by the Bloomfield officials are to the effect that the city will take in the borough, and the latter as a separate corporation will pass out of existence.

Metropolitan in Every Way.

Metropolitan in all appointments will be the gents furnishing store on East Front street which H. M. Jacquett will open the middle of next month. The interior of the store will be one of the pettiest in the city, and will be filled with as fashionable a line of goods as can be found in the metropolis. Mr. Jacquett is a man of experience in this line of trade, and will doubtless build up a substantial business.

Small Sized Flood.

A fact worthy of note is that one million and three quarter gallons of water is now being pumped daily into the stand pipe at the water works. Of this amount the city of Plainfield uses about two thirds and the other one-third goes down the road towards Elizabeth, supplying the different towns.

Brilliancy Wanted, Not Capacity.

Rahway has the distinction of having one of the largest installations of alternating arc lamps on multiple circuit for street lighting in the United States. It is the Thompson arc lamp. The contract for putting in seventy-one arc lights has been fulfilled, and the full number have been put into service, and give general satisfaction.

Nearing Completion.

The frame-work of Chapot & Sons glove factory at Evona was completed yesterday, and today the work of enclosing it was commenced. The large chimney, which is seventy feet high, is completed. It is expected that there will be a building boom in houses at that section at an early date.

To Camp Out.

Percy McVoy, Arthur McVoy, Wyatt Barnes, W. Thorn and a few others, are preparing for their annual outing at New Foundland, Morris county. They will leave Monday, July 29th, and be absent two weeks. They go by wagon and will take tent, cooking utensils, and everything necessary in a camping outfit.

Purchased on Central Avenue.

T. J. Mumford, of East Ninth street, has purchased through the agency of Joseph T. Vail, the Langdon property, owned by the Mutual Life Insurance Company, and located near the end of Central avenue.

CUBA'S CAUSE IN EUROPE.

A Demand From France that Uncle Sam Shou'd Free the Island.

We believe that none of Cuba's previous struggles for liberty has excited any particular attention in Europe, certainly never of the serious and politically emancipated sort now bestowed upon it in France. M. Henri Rochefort expresses himself with his accustomed feeling in his newspaper, L'Intransigeant:

"Cuba is for Spain a magnificent milch cow. What astonishes us is that the United States continue to look with coldness upon the struggle heroically sustained against the Peninsular Government by the brave patriots resolved upon their independence. For years since, by its geographical position and the origin of its inhabitants, of whom many call themselves descendants of the comrades of Christopher Columbus, Cuba should have been part of the United States of America. The actual situation of this beautiful island is that which Calais occupied for more than two hundred years after the siege in which it fell into the hands of Edouard III. The Duke of Guise retook it from the English, and America, to which it belongs, will one day take Cuba from the Spaniards? We demand that this should be done immediately."

Le Temps speaks to the same effect: "Proud though the Cuban be even of his descent, he has no more love for the mother country than have the Spanish colonies of the three Americas. Nor does he maintain its institutions. Upon the ground of the new world, peopled by emigrants from ours, the monarchical tradition has not taken root. As we saw the Virginia Royalists in the second generation repudiate the loyalty of their fathers and arm themselves against England to obtain their independence, in the same way the Spanish-Americans have denied the political faith of their ancesters and shed their blood to free themselves from the yoke of the Spanish Capital. In speech, in religion and race this land is a Spanish land. It has ceased to be so in heart, and its interests cause it to revolve around a pole of irresistible attraction, that of the great American republic. Against this attraction nothing can prevail."

Spain, still ruling Cuba, sucking her blood to fatten herself, keeping the flag of a trans-oceanic monarchy flying on the republican Western shore of the Atlantic, almost within signaling distance of the Stars and Stripes, is an anomaly which not only France, but all Europe, must now repudiate, with the exception of Spain.

QUEER FREIGHT FOR CHINA.

The Skeletons of Dead Chinese Shipped in Boxes Marked "Fish Bone."

A curious freight which is shipped exclusively from San Francisco to China is "fish bone," which pays $20 a ton. It is sent in large boxes consigned to the Tung Wah Hospital at Hong Kong, but the contents of the boxes are really the bodies of dead Chinamen sent home for burial. Most of the Chinamen who come to the United States are under the care of the Six Companies, who sign a contract guaranteeing to return the bones of the dead for burial with their ancestors in the celestial empire, and the Tung Wah Hospital acts as agent on this side in carrying out the agreement. They are shipped as "fish bones" in order to evade the rule of the steamship companies, who charge full first-class passenger rates for the dead.

Nearly every ship leaving San Francisco for China carries among the steerage passengers a number of invalids who hope to live until they reach their native country, but several usually die on every voyage. There is an agreement between the steamships and the Six Companies which forbids the burial of these bodies at sea, and the latter furnishes coffins of the peculiar Chinese pattern for use in such emergencies. They are made of slabs, the first cut of the log, so that the sides and bottom and top are rounded.—Chicago Record.

How Would It Look With Bloomers.

A feminine reformer wants a revival of the old fashioned sunbonnet.

"I do wish" she remarked "that I could get about twenty women to join me in bringing the sunbonnet into popularity again. Many women in this city do their own marketing, and how absurd they look togged out in flowers and ribbons, in silks and laces; how much more appropriate would be the old-fashioned sunbonnet.

"A pretty woman always looks prettier in a dainty white sunbonnet than in anything else, and what a picturesque feature of our markets it would become if our attractive society dames would return to the pretty sunbonnets of their grandmother's day.

"I would like to see school girls in pretty sunbonnets, too. If one wise woman would only 'make the break' how soon our streets would be filled with sweet, chattering schoolgirls in the sweet, old fashioned sunbonnet. The sunbonnet must have been a Southern invention. I wish Southern women would revive it."—Courier-Journal.

Dangerous Diet.

First Cannibal—I'm dying! Oh! oh!

Second Cannibal—What's the matter?

First Cannibal—I've just eaten that friend of the missionary's wife.

Second Cannibal—Good gracious, man! That woman's a member of Sewrosis. She never agreed with any man in her life.—Harper's Bazar.

The Senator's Way.

"A statesman's motto," said the earnest patriot, "should always be:

"'Be sure you're right, and then go ahead.'"

"Maybe so," replied Senator Sorghum, thoughtfully. "But that's not my platform."

"What is it?"

"Go right ahead and square it afterward."—Washington Star.

SWALLOWED HIS LITTLE BROTHER

Visitors to Glen Island on Sunday who happened to be near the Zoo late in the afternoon were attracted to the alligator pen, where one alligator was devouring another. For some time the alligators had been crawling about with wide-open mouths, as though seeking food. One, about three feet in length, apparently desperate, crawled slowly over to another that measured fully eighteen inches, closed in upon him, and prepared to make a meal. For a moment the hungry saurian sized up his victim, then grabbed him by the head. A quick gulp, and at least six inches of number two was out of sight. Neither emitted a sound, but a violent wriggling of the visible part of alligator number two evidenced his objections. Number one closed his jaws and waited about five minutes. By that time the wriggling became less vigorous. Raising his head well from the ground, the hungry reptile took several quick swallows and shortened the projecting extremity of his brother by about four inches.

Onlookers who, up to that time, had supposed that this sort of thing might be a pastime among alligators, and that the smaller one would of course be released, now began to regard the affair seriously, but no one interfered, and in ten minutes all but four or five inches of number two had disappeared. What could be seen of him showed no signs of life. But at this point came the tug of war. Further attempts to swallow were ineffectual, and alligator number one was evidently tired. He swayed his head rapidly from side to side, savagely closing his jaws as though trying to bite the tail of his prey in two. This was unavailing, and he laid back for another rest.

After a lapse of five or six minutes he resumed operations with renewed energy. But despite great exertion and the frequent twisting of his body in the efforts to swallow, he only succeeded in moving the load about an inch. Signs of internal dissentions now appeared. Number one, swollen to enormous size, seemed about to collapse. Appearances did not count, for in opportune gulps he swallowed the remainder at two or three minute intervals till all but the tip end of alligator number two was hidden from view. As though to further satisfy all hands that his performance was no illusion, Mr. Alligator now stretched his mouth to its widest proportions, and all that was left of number two disappeared forthwith. The muscular struggles of the conqueror were no longer apparent, and closing his eyes he settled back for a period of peaceful digestion.—N. Y. Sun.

UNCLE SAM ON THE NEW WOMAN.

The remarkable extent to which women are displacing men in all branches of labor is brought out very elaborately in the last bulletin from the United States Census Office.

It gives official confirmation from the United States Government of all the claims heretofore made by zealous advocates of the New Woman. It demonstrates beyond all doubt that the woman of to-day is engaging profitably in every branch of human activity. One of the most noticeable features of the Government publication is the disclosure that women are gradually leaving domestic pursuits and are engaging more extensively in manufacturing and mechanical industries, trade and transportation and in the professions.

Since the previous census was taken, the number of women engaged in profitable occupations has increased 47 per cent., while the increase among men is about 27 per cent.

That women are extending their service in the professions is shown by the remarkable increase of 75 per cent. in that branch. And while the numbers in professional service has almost doubled, those in domestic service has made but slight advance,

But it is in business occupations that women show the greatest advance. The increase reaches 363 per cent. in the subdivision of those engaged in trade and transportation, while the increase is 63 per cent. among those engaged in manufacturing and mechanical industries. These large percentages of increase are said to be due to the general introduction of typewriting machines, and the large demand for women as bookkeepers, clerks, stenographers, typewriters and saleswomen.

But the unique feature of this Government showing is in the diversity of occupations to which women now turn their hands. It is a singular fact that in the hundreds of occupations specified, women are enumerated as engaged in all but two, and these two are officers and soldiers of the United States Army.

There is even a woman pilot holding a license from the United States Government. There are four women railroad engineers and firemen. There are women blacksmiths, women architects, women roofers, women veterinary surgeons, women watchmen and detectives women molders, women coopers and butches.

It will bring joy to the advocates of the New Woman to dig into the details of this Government showing and see to just what extent her sisters are competing with the men.

What Robert Was Doing.

Husband comes later than usual from his club. To avoid disturbing his wife he takes off his boots and steals into the room on tiptoe. But vain precaution, his wife begins to yawn.

Quickly determined, he goes to the cradle of the first born and begins to rock it, singing slumber songs the while.

"Whatever are you doing, Robert?"

"I have been sitting here a couple of hours trying to get the baby to sleep."

"Why, Robert, I have him here in bed with me!"

BOYESEN'S OPINION.

The Chautauqua Movement in the Cosmopolitan for June.

In spite of a mistake in locating the present headquarters of the Chautauqua literary work in Plainfield and dubbing Plainfield an insignificant New Jersey town, the article on the Chautauquan movement in the Cosmopolitan for June, written by Hjalmar Hjorth Boyesen is a charming one.

Mr. Boyesen writes delightfully of most subjects to which he puts his pen, and he enters so thoroughly into the true spirit of the Chautauquan idea, confesses so honestly to prejudices overcome by what he sees, hears and knows there, and gives such unqualified praise to the noble men who originated the broad, world-encircling idea, that the article can interest all who take the time to read it. Being a foreigner, it is pleasant to know that in Mr. Boyesen's opinion we get the Scotch wish granted:

O wad some power the giftee gie us,
To see ourselves as others see us!

A WAR DANCE.

Red Men Raise Up Their Chiefs in Elizabeth.

The chiefs of the Omene Tribe, No. 107, I. O. R. Ms, at Elizabeth, were raised up in great shape last evening. District Deputy Great Sachem Charles F. Ulrich and his staff, John H. Carney, E. H. Neal, Wm. Newcorn, H. C. Runyon and Wm. A. Westphal, performed the ceremony and enjoyed themselves while there. After the raising up, an elaborate collation was served.

The plan had been to go to Rahway as stated in the Daily Press, but at the last moment it was decided to go to Elizabeth, as the Red Men there do not meet as often as those of Rahway, but did meet last evening.

Sea Power in History.

Captain Alfred T. Mahan, since the appearance of his "Sea Power in History, has been declared by European authorities the first among naval taticians. In the August Century he draws some "Lessons from the Yalu Fight, based upon an account of the battle appearing in the same number and written by Commander McGiffin, of the Chen Yuen. Captain Mahan's conclusions bear upon problems that confront the constructors of ironclads for every maritime power. He says that the battle proved that armor is actually a far better protection to vessels than is indicated by trials of the testing-ground, where, for purposes of extreme proof, all the off-chances are given to the gun.

Making Big Hits.

The club juggling and baton throwing act of George Schaefer, of this city, has made such a hit with the patrons of Bentley's old-fashioned one ring circus at Ninety-ninth street in New York, that he has been engaged for an additional two weeks. The bareback riding act of popular Bob Whitaker, also of this city, scores a great success with admirers of expert horsemanship. Several Plainfielders will visit the circus this week.

Caught Midway.

Janitor Scriven, of the Babcock building, got caught between heaven and earth, as the expression is. He was coming down in the elevator and was midway between the first and second floors when the fuse burned out and the electrical hoisting apparatus refused to work. After a short stay in this position he succeeded in reaching the ground and rapidly repaired the fault.

Wants to Be Pound-Keeper.

Amos Stites has applied for the position of pound-keeper in the new pound for horses and cattle which is about to be established in the borough, and its quite likely that he will get it. The new pound will probably be located on Grove street near Greenbrook road.

Alleged Moonshiner Gives Bail.

Samuel Goodman, on whose premises in Bayonne the United States Secret Service detectives discovered, several days ago, an illicit whiskey distillery, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Isaac Romaine, of Jersey City, on Saturday afternoon, and admitted to $1,000 bail for examination in September.

Marshals to Have Vacations.

The borough marshals soon commence their vacations. Marshal Doud has from August 1st to the 10th, Marshal Lines from the 11th to the 20th, and Chief Van Horn from the 21st to the end of the month.

WHAT WILL RATES BE?

New Electric Light Company Keeps the Boroughites Guessing.

The fact that there is a probability that the Citizens Electric Company, recently organized in Union county, has purchased the North Plainfield Electric Light Company's plant is causing considerable discussion in the borough among citizens who keep well posted in borough matters.

It is true, and even admitted by Dr. Cooley, that he has not the time to attend to the company's business as it should be.

The plant is said to be a paying one and can be made more so, which is no doubt realized by those whom it is thought have made the purchase.

Some are inclined to believe that the sale may make a difference in the contracts which are held by the borough when they expire, and that the rates may be higher to the individual consumer as well as to the borough. But, of course, this is only a supposition, and even should the rates be slightly increased to be uniform with the present city rate, the better service would be worth it.

The Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Co., are building extensively and adding room to their present building, which is assurance that they are going to increase their lighting facilities. In addition to the improvements heretofore mentioned in The Press, a powerful Corliss engine will be put in the plant.

Pulpit Supplies.

Pulpit supplies have been arranged as follows for the Crescent Avenue church during the vacation of Rev. Dr. Richards: July 28th.—Rev. R. J. Service, D. D., of Detroit; August 4th.—Rev. J. O. Murray, D. D., of Princeton; August 11th.—Rev. R. J. Service, D. D., of Detroit; August 18th.—Rev. James McLeod, D. D., of Scranton; August 25th.—Rev. James McLeod, D. D., of Scranton; September 1st.—Rev. George T. Purnes, D. D., of Princeton.

Last June Dick Crawford brought his twelve-months-old child, suffering from infantile diarrhœa, to me. It had been weaned at four months old and had always been sickly. I gave it the usual treatment in such cases but without benefit. The child kept growing thinner until it weighed but little more than when born, or perhaps ten pounds. I then started the father to giving Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. Before one bottle of the 25 cent size had been used a marked improvement was seen and its continued use cured the child. Its weakness and puny constitution disappeared, and its father and myself believe the child's life was saved by this remedy. J. T. Marlow, M. D., Tamaroa, Ill. For sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues, T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

Chamberlain's is the best of all. Vincent S. Barkl, of Danbury, Iowa, has used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy whenever in need of a medicine for coughs and colds, for the past five years and says: "It always helps me out. If anyone asks me what kind of cough medicine I use, I reply, Chamberlain's, that is the best of all. 25 and 50c. bottles for sale by Reynolds' Pharmacy, Park and North Avenues, T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

A horse kicked H. S. Shafer, of the Freehyer House, Middleburg, N. Y., on the knee, which laid him up in bed and caused the knee joint to become stiff. A friend recommended him to use Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did, and in two days was able to be around. Mr. Shafer has recommended it to many others and says it is excellent for any kind of a bruise or sprain. This same remedy is also famous for its cures of rheumatism. For sale by Reynolds's Pharmacy, Park and North avenues. T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

W. H. Nelson, who is in the drug business at Kingville, Mo., has so much confidence in Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy that he warrants every bottle and offers to refund the money to any customer who is not satisfied after using it. Go Down, Moses.

Moses Carey, of this city, when driving down hill near New Market in his carriage, had a little accident. For some unknown reason the spokes of one of the wheels gave way and the wheel collapsed.

Will Ask the Freeholders to Pay.

While Ernest Barrett was driving a valuable horse across the Clinton avenue bridge at Greenbrook last Friday, the animal caught one of her feet in a hole, caused by a broken plank, which resulted in a bad strain. The horse is unable to work. Mr. Barrett has called the attention of L. E. Barkalew, who represents the borough in the Somerset county Board of Freeholders, to the matter, and will ask them to pay the damages.

"Yield Not to Misfortune."

I was afflicted with catarrh last autumn. During the month of October I could neither taste or smell and could hear but little. Ely's Cream Balm cured it. Marcus Geo. Shautz, Rahway, N. J.

I suffered from catarrh of the worst kind ever since a boy, and I never hoped for cure, but Ely's Cream Balm seems to do even that. Many acquaintances have used it with excellent results. Oscar Ostrum, 45 Warren ave., Chicago, Ill. Cream Balm is agreeable.

AN AFTERNOON OF PLEASURE.

The Defender and the Vigilant Are Seen By a Party of Plainfielders.

There were numerous parties that went to see the yacht race for the cup given by the New York Yacht Club, Saturday afternoon, but of all those that went no party enjoyed themselves more than a number of men from Plainfield and North Plainfield who, through the kindness of Gibson Douglass, of Sycamore avenue, were permitted to enjoy a delightful sail down the bay and then see the yachts Defender and Vigilant on their return from the race. The party besides Gibson Douglass, consisted of Gibson Douglass, Jr., Walter Douglass, Edwin Hooley, Bertram Brooks, Harry H. Moore, Mr. Anthony, Nathan Lane, Jacob Kirkner, James Taylor, James Taylor, Jr., Allen Taylor, Colles T. Pond, W. A. Woodruff, Benjamin O. Bowers, Harry G. Bowers, C. G. Crawford, and several others from the office of the New York Central where Mr. Douglass is at the head of the transportation department. At about 1:30 they left Pier 5 on the New York Central tug Chauncey M. Depew and sailed down the bay. During the trip coffee and sandwiches were served to the guests.

After a sail of about ten miles outside Sandy Hook the party returned in time to take the five o'clock train for Plainfield. A most delightful time was enjoyed by all and the whole party heartily united in thanking Mr. Douglass for his great kindness.

WARNED BY A SHADOW.

Three Plainfield Young Men Have an Experience at New Market.

Three young men from Plainfield went swimming in New Market pond the other evening, and had quite an experience. They went down in a carriage and left their clothing in it. The night was dark, but one of them saw a form moving near the horse. They were then almost in the middle of the pond, but swam quickly to shore. An investigation showed that the suit of one of the young men had been searched, and forty-five cents in change stolen. The watch had been securely fastened to the coat, and the thief did not have time to break the chain. In the pockets of the clothes of one of the young men that was not searched there was over $15 in cash and a handsome gold watch.

This is not the first time this little accident has happened to swimmers, and some of the sufferers think they have a clue to the thief.

School of New Methods.

Miss Eleanor Demarest having completed the course of study of the most improved methods of teaching, under the direction of Madame M. Krans-Boelte, of New York, will open in September a kindergarten differing in some respects from any now existing. It is felt sure there are many who will be glad to avail themselves of this opportunity of giving to their children the advantages derived from pure kindergarten training.

ENGLAND AND AMERICA WED

ENGLISH GIRL AND PATERSON LAWYER JOINED IN WEDLOCK.

Married at the Church of the Redeemer in This City—A Reception Followed at the Home of Emil Woltmann.

The pretty little Church of the Redeemer in North Plainfield was the scene of a charming wedding Saturday afternoon at three o'clock when Rev. Jocelyn Johnstone united in marriage Miss Minnie Harriett W. Coke, daughter of Major M. and Mrs. Coke, of Kensington, London, and David J. Berry, a prominent lawyer of Paterson.

The bride entered the church on the arm of Emil Woltmann, and wore an exquisite gown of white satin trimmed with old Honidan lace, which was a gift from her mother. She was attended by Miss Nellie Berry, daughter of the groom, as maid of honor, and was gowned in white.

The groom and best man, Henry W. Gledhill, of Paterson, entered from the front at the right of the church and met the bridal party. E. A. Embury, organist, gave a perfect rendition of Lohengrin's wedding march as they entered and Mendelssohn's while they were leaving the church.

A reception to only a few friends and relatives followed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Emil Woltmann on West Seventh street.

Miss Coke is a cousin of Mrs. Woltmann and met Mr. Berry in London sometime ago. They had planned to be married at the home of Miss Coke's parents in London, but owing to Mr. Berry's health it was not thought advisable for him to cross the ocean.

Mr. Coke is a retired Major in the British Army and both he and his wife were very much disappointed in not seeing their daughter married.

Mr. Berry's mother was also unable to be present, owing to an illness which had turned to typhoid fever.

During the day cablegrams were received from Major and Mrs. Coke, and replies were sent by Mr. Woltmann.

Those present at the reception were: The Misses Smith, Mrs. R. J. Crouter, Mrs. Isabella VanRiper, Messrs. VanRiper, J. J. Blauvelt, Frank Gledhill, Congressman J. F. Stewart of the Fifth District, John B. Humphreys, W. H. Beery, J. D. Donnell, of Paterson. All of the above-named gentlemen, except Mr. VanRiper, are prominent lawyers and very intimate with Mr. Berry.

The guests from Plainfield included Rev. Dr. Jocelyn Johnstone, Miss Schipper, Frank Richards, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Woltmann and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Berry left on the 5:30 train for New York, and will spend three months traveling through New York State and Canada. On their return they will live at Paterson, and when Mr. Berry's health improves they will visit Major and Mrs. Coke in London.

The ushers at the church were Albert Woltmann and Frank Richards.

Mr. and Mrs. Berry received a very large number of costly and useful wedding presents.

Max Wiertz was the caterer, and the wedding supper was served in a faultless manner.

Frank Hedden looked after the carriages in his usual efficient manner.

THE GAME WAS OUT OF SIGHT.

But the Rain Was Not and It Soaked the Players.

Even with eleven men the Y. M. C. A. baseball nine could not defeat the Giants of Scotch Plains Saturday afternoon, for the simple reason that the rain would not give them a chance.

It began to grow cloudy at noon, so that most of the team went up in the stage from Plainfield. When about half way there they had the fun of seeing their comrades, who rode their wheels, scatter for shelter from the beginning shower. It kept raining every few minutes all the way to the grounds and then stopped, but the slightest mention of starting to play brought down a deluge and so it continued until both captains, Corey and Hand, gave up in disgust, and ordered their men home and then of course another torrent came to celebrate the decision.

No more attempts will be made to play ball until September, when the regular players are all back again. It is hoped that a game can be scheduled with the old Crescents for some time that month.

To Storm the Convention.

The Union County Endeavorers are preparing for the Atlantic City convention in October. They will go with a cry "Plainfield in '96." From this city there will be nearly 200 delegates, and large delegations are expected from other sections of the county. Morristown will also make an effort to get the '96 convention.

WORSE THAN THE BOWERY.

A HEBREW PEDDLER WILL NEVER GO TO THE BOROUGH AGAIN.

A Gang of Young Boys Make Miserable the Life of a Match Peddler—Danced for Their Pleasure.

Several weeks ago a Hebrew peddler named John Abrams called at a house on Somerset place occupied by a family named Keller, and sold a lot of matches. Yesterday afternoon he happened to be in North Plainfield and stopped at the same place. There were a number of boys around and among them was Charles Keller.

The Hebrew was told that his matches were no good. He said if they would return them he would refund their money, but they had been used and consequently the deal could not be made. The boys then began to torment the peddler. They took his package and played havoc with it. His hat was also taken and his coat torn. As a last resort they had the Hebrew dancing much to their own amusement.

The Hebrew was mad clean through and through, and after much difficulty succeeded in getting his goods together. He then went in search of a marshal, but not finding one proceeded on his journey, solemnly declaring that he would never go there any more.

NO SAFETY FOR THE CHICKEN.

Arthur Peck Has His Wheel Badly Damaged By a Collision.

A chicken was the innocent cause of a broken wheel and a sore boy Thursday afternoon, and Arthur Peck, of Myrtle avenue, was the boy. In company with several friends young Peck was riding home from New Market. When about half way between that place and Dunellen the unconscious cause of all the trouble appeared. Just as Peck's front wheel glided by the chicken woke up to the danger of the situation and fled for safety but it found the wrong kind of a safety and, getting caught between the spokes, brought the wheel to a sudden stop. Peck sailed over his handlebars while the chicken kicked his last. The front forks of the wheel were badly twisted and Peck was covered with sundry bruises.

DEATH FROM PARALYSIS.

Brought On By a Fractured Hip Two Weeks Ago.

The death of Mrs. Nancy E. Parkhurst in her seventy-first year occurred Monday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. George Musgrave, on Duer street.

About two weeks ago it will be remembered that Mrs. Parkhurst fell and fractured her hip and this accident brought on paralysis which was the cause of her death.

Mrs. Parkhurst was a thorough Christian woman and devoted to her religious duties. She will be greatly missed by those who knew her.

A short service will be held at the home on Duer street this evening at eight o'clock and tomorrow the body will be taken to her home at Brandon, N. Y., where the funeral service will be held. She leaves a husband and one daughter, Mrs. Musgrave.

Hurt His Knee.

While Bert Holly, of Netherwood, was riding his wheel along Park avenue, near Campbell's club house, early Sunday morning, he struck a very soft spot in the road. He was thrown off the wheel, injuring his right leg. He remained there for some time, as he was unable to move, and no one was around to assist him. A man happened along with a horse and wagon, and brought him to Dr. Endicott's office in this city. After an examination the doctor discovered that the fall had caused dropsy of the knee. It will be sometime before he will have the use of his leg again.

A Great Success.

The fair which recently took place in the German Reformed church for the benefit of the parsonage, proved very successful from a financial point of view. The young women who arranged the fair met at the home of Miss Nettie Krietling, of West Front street yesterday, when it was learned that the clear profits were about $26.

Plain Talk Very Soon.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—The attack on Mayor Gilbert in The Courier-News last night was most brutal. The time is soon coming when the inside history of the last campaign will see daylight. The plan then was to break up the Republican admisistration by a third ticket. It did not work as the Democratic party refused to make nominations. The plan this fall seems to be again working in that direction. Plain talk will soon be in order.

Behind the Scenes.

VAN NESS WENT THIS TIME.

ACCUSED LAWYER CARRIED FROM HIS BED BY OFFICERS.

Taken from This City to New York, Where He Has Thrice Forfeited His Bonds—Wanted for Forgery.

Lawyer John K. VanNess, of East Front street, and also of 261 Broadway, New York, who for a long time has evaded examination and trial on a charge of forgery in the second degree, and whose bail has thrice been forfeited, was taken to New York under arrest Sunday from his home in this city and lodged as a prisoner in Hudson Street Hospital. The complainants against VanNess are the executors of the estate of Cornelia Waldron, of 241 West Forty-fifth street. They say that without authority he added to a check for $1,000 on the Union Trust Company, which originally read "Pay to the order of James A. Waldron," the words "or John K. VanNess, attorney;" that he had the check cashed, and that he appropriated the money to his own use.

Van Ness was originally arrested on February 7th, 1893. He was held at the Tombs Court in $2,000 bail for examination. He failed to appear when the case was called and his bail bond was forfeited. Subsequently he was arrested on an indictment for the same offence and released in $3,000 bail.

A short time ago he was arrested on another complaint, and arraigned in the Jefferson Market Police Court. He was bailed in $1,500 pending examination, but did not appear when summoned, and that bond was forfeited.

When the forgery case came up for trial before Recorder Goff on July 8th Van Ness was not present, so the $3,000 bond was forfeited. Mrs. Mary Jones, one of his clients, 80 years old, was his surety in the forgery case both times, and judgment for $5,000 has been taken against her.

Though apparently in good health previous to the time that his case was called before Recorder Goff as soon as he was notified he was prostrated to his bed with sickness. Efforts were made to get him in New York but as he was in New Jersey the New York authorities were unable to get him without requisition papers. Steps were immediately taken in this direction, and pending its consummation a fugitive warrant was procured and served on him by Chief Grant. He was still in bed and to avoid any possible chance of his being spirited away Constable Mattox was detailed to watch him, which he has faithful done night and day for the past two weeks. For the last few days it was thought that he was feigning illness. City Physician Simpson was called in and after an examination certified that he could be moved without injury to his health. When Detective Trainor served the requisition papers on him and insisted on taking him to New York he protested, together with his wife, that he was not in a condition to be moved. The detective and another officer were compelled to carry him from the house to a cab in order to get him to a train. His wife accompanied him. Constable Mattox also went along. On their arrival in New York an ambulance took him to the hospital.

Mr. Mattox declares that VanNest is a sick man or else he is the best actor he ever saw.

VanNess says that the charges against him are trumped up because he was about to proceed against Mr. Waldron's brothers on behalf of another brother.

GOT OUT AND PUSHED.

The Camping Party that Left Plainfield Monday Came to Grief.

The camping party which started for Hank's pond early Monday morning have been having an exciting trip. When they reached Milburn a gray horse that they had hired in Plainfield to pull one of their wagons commenced to give out. The boys got out and pushed but the poor animal was not able to stand the strain and at Fairfield the expedition came to a halt. Another horse was hired from a man named Zeck who kept a livery stable in that town. The party proceeded on their journey, leaving the other horse at Fairfield, and succeeded in reaching their camping grounds safely.

Tried to Run Away.

He hadn't been reading about Nick Carter or Jesse James, but for some reason the ten-year-old son of Hugh H. Boyd, of Richmond street, wanted to run away. He left home at about eleven o'clock yesterday morning and nothing was seen of him until four o'clock this morning, when his father and his brother William, found him in a field the other side of Netherwood, headed straight for Scotch Plains. The would-be run away was taken home.

LAWYERS ARE HIS SUBJECTS.

SWEDE SHARPER TRIED TO GET MONEY IN ELIZABETH ALSO.

Told the Same Tale of Woe About the Death of His Wife and How He Had Money in a New England Bank.

It transpires that the sharper who gave his name as Charles Frank, Jr., and tried to work a Plainfield lawyer for a $15 loan, giving as security a bogus $50 check, exclusively reported in Saturday's Daily Press, also tried to work an Elizabeth lawyer the same afternoon. The Journal last night had the following about the sharper:

When the swindler reached this city, he changed his name to Charles Jones, and claimed that George Morris, the cabinet-maker, lived at Rahway. He also represented that he had money in the Lawrence, Mass., bank, and offered a check of $50 as a retaining fee.

He told the same sorrowful story of his wife's sudden death, and intimated that a loan of $7 would enable him to get to his home in order to bury her. He said he had tried to borrow this morning at one of the banks in this city, and that they had telegraphed to Lawrence, receiving answer that Charles Jones had money deposited there, but as he had no one to identify him the bank officials here refused to accept his check.

The lawyer was not so easily duped, however, and succeeded in getting rid of the sharper without parting with any cash. If he had known of the Plainfield incident, and it would have been possible at that time to find an officer, the lawyer would have turned the fellow over to the police.

The fellow is described as a large man, wearing light trousers, dark coat, straw hat, and had not been shaved in several days. He is a very smooth talker, and he cries well when he tells of the announcement of his wife's death.

A description of the sharper was promptly given to Chief Tenney when it became certain that the man was a swindler. It has been learned that there is no cabinet-maker neither in Rahway nor Somerville of the name of George Morris.

TO SELL THE SECURITIES.

SOMERSET BANK DIRECTORS MAY HAVE TO PAY STOCKHOLDERS.

Securities of J. N. Pidcock to be Disposed of for the Benefit of Creditors—Affairs Getting Tangled Up.

Chancellor McGill at Jersey City Tuesday morning signed an order in the case of William T. Johnson, receiver of the Somerset County Bank, and ex-Congressman James Nelson Pidcock, instructing United States Commissioner Linsley Rowe, of Jersey City, to sell $500,000 worth of securities belonging to Mr. Pidcock and to turn the money over to the First National Bank of Jersey City for advances made by the bank to Mr. Pidcock. Mr. Rowe will fix a day next week for the sale of the securities held by the bank and the proceeds of the sale will go toward satisfying judgments against the insolvent Somerset County Bank.

Another application to the Chancellor is to be made for the sale of other property belonging to Mr. Pidcock, and it is said that Receiver Johnson, who will prosecute J. N. Pidcock and other directors of the bank for mismanagement of the bank's affairs, promises to proceed against them in a civil manner and, if possible, make them disgorge for the benefit of the stockholders and creditors.

So far as Mr. Pidcock is concerned, the securities now to be sold will, it is said, cover all his indebtedness. They consist of railroad and corporation stock. Much of the railroad stock belonging to Mr. Pidcock was that of the Rockaway Valley Railroad Company. Mr. Rowe sold one section of that road, from White House to Peapack, a few days ago for $30,000. It was bought in by Messrs. J. N. and J. F. Pidcock, sons of the ex-Congressman. The remaining sections, from Peapack to Mendham and from Mendham to Morristown, will be sold in a few days.

Chancellor McGill's order relative to the bank stock and securities was handed to Colonel J. D. Bedle, counsel for the First National Bank, and a copy was sent to Linsley Rowe, who will proceed to advertise the sale at once.

CROP CONDITIONS.

The Weather Has Been Favorable for the Farmers.

Director E. W. McGann, of the New Jersey Weather Service, has the following crop report this week:

In the central counties the weather conditions have been favorable for the housing of upland hay, wheat and rye, and also for the growth and advancement of all field and garden crops. Corn has made a rapid growth and is coming into tassel. Lima beans, tomatoes, cucurbs and all garden vegetables never looked more promising. The second crop of clover is very promising and pasture plentiful. In the western portion of Monmouth county an all-day rain is needed, as grass is suffering for the want of it and pasture is getting short.

In the southern portion the general condition of all crops is fair, but rain is needed as the weather has been warm and dry. Oat crop all cut and housed and some threshed; the yield is very heavy both in grain and straw. Lice have infested the melon and tomato fields and are doing serious damage. During the week corn has made a remarkable growth and is now in a promising condition.

TROLLEY COMPETITION FELT.

Central Reported to Cut Fares Between Newark and Elizabeth.

It is reported in Elizabeth that tomorrow the Central railroad will reduce its fare between Newark and Elizabeth to 15 cents for an excursion ticket, instead of 25 cents as at present. The cause of this cut is said to be the competition of the trolley line, which is carrying people between the two cities for 20 cents a round trip.

Women who go from Elizabeth to Newark for shopping purposes or pleasure are taking the trolley. The steam railroad takes them only to its station in Newark or Elizabeth, and then they often have to pay extra fare on a trolley car to reach their destination.

It is said the Central railroad will reduce the rate of excursion tickets between Elizabeth and New York to 25 cents.

A Little Fellow Sick.

The bright little son of C. T. Nightingale, of Sandford avenue, is very ill at Mrs. Nightingale's summer home in the Delaware Water Gap, Pa., where Dr. Davis has been summoned to prescribe for him. Mrs. Charles K. Moore, of New York, a warm friend of Mr. and Mrs. Nightingale, is also present at the little fellow's bedside.

THE COUNT IN MORE TROUBLE

VAN NESS SAID TO BE ALSO MIXED UP IN A WILL CASE.

Dyckman Waldron Seeking to Establish a Lost Will, Which is Alleged to Have Been Drawn Up By the Sick Lawyer.

Count John K. VanNess, who was forcibly taken to New York Monday night by a detective, is in more trouble. It seems that a suit has been brought in the Supreme Court of New York by Dyckman Waldron, a brother of the late Alexander Waldron, against his brother James Waldron and his sister Mary B. Waldron, to recover part of the Waldron estate. Alexander Waldron died on June 30th, 1890, leaving valuable real estate. He had been a member of the firm of Bartholomeu & Co., manufacturers of plumbers' supplies in Marion street.

Dyckman Waldron seeks to establish a lost will, which it is alleged was drawn by VanNess, the Plainfield lawyer, now a prisoner on a charge of forgery made by the executors of the estate. In this lost will, it is alleged, Alexander Waldron, after providing that the income of his estate be given to his mother and his wife for life, directed that on their death the residue be equally divided among his brothers and sisters.

What became of this will is not known to the plaintiff, but it is said to have been in VanNess' possession. Justice O'Brien has appointed Frederick S. Walt referee to take testimony in the case.

EVERYTHING WAS DELIGHTFUL.

A Pleasant Social Gathering Held at Rockview Farm.

The beautiful weather made Monday evening a delightful one to all, but it was one of still greater enjoyment to those who attended the social gathering given by the Misses Mattie and Sadie Barrett, at their home at the Rockview Farm in Dunellen, in honor of their friends, the Misses Maude and Edith McArthur, of Passaic Bridge. The evening passed very pleasantly with dancing, games and singing, and all were sorry when the setting moon told that the time of departure had arrived. Those who were present were the Misses Grace Langdon, Nellie Langdon, Nettie Langdon, Maude McArthur, Edith McArthur, Jane Churchill, Sadie Barrett, Mattie Barrett, and Mrs. E. D. Barrett, and U. S. Thomas, of Asbury Park, Edward Hardingham, Ivan Hardingham, J. Hazelwood Craig, Duer Randolph, Daniel Richardson, Charles Langdon, Ernest Barrett, and Thomas Barrett.

PLAINFIELD'S SUMMER RESORT.

Camping Life at Washington Rock Is Again Brought Forward.

Washington Rock promises to be quite a summer resort for Plainfield people in another year. Taylor's boarding house, near the Rock, started the fashion, and Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis brought its delights before the public by camping out there and inviting his friends to come and see him. N. W. French was the next victim to the project, and his frame cottage is being erected as fast as possible, and he will be able to take possession in a few days.

Richard Stevens has decided to go, and there are several others who are considering the question. There has been some talk of a regular camping club, but nothing definite has been done in that direction.

September will be a fine month for camping, and the present colony will probably be enlarged by a number of arrivals.

Good Work Being Done.

Street Commissioner R. A. Meeker with his men are now engaged in doing work which will be greatly appreciated by those who use wagons and bicycles. The continuation of North avenue, which extends from the pumping station of the Water Supply Company to the county road at Fanwood, is being opened, graded and rolled. When completed it will be one of the best thoroughfares in this part of the county. Mr. Meeker deserves credit for his efforts in this direction.

New Market Man Hurt.

Abram Dunham, of New Market, had a serious mishap a few days ago. He lives about two blocks from the Seventh-Day Baptist church, and being anxious to see the church which is being renovated and repaired, thought he would attempt the walk, which was a long one for him as he is very feeble. He reached the church steps, when he felt ill and before he realized the trouble he fainted away, falling a considerable distance. Friends present picked him up and took him home. He was not seriously injured, though he is in a critical condition.

TROLLEY FROM ELIZABETH.

ELIZABETH JOURNAL VERIFIES THE DAILY PRESS PREDICTION.

Officers of the Consolidated Traction Company State They Will Run Cars to This City By December 1st.

At the time the application was made for a receiver of the New York and New Jersey Traction Company, The Daily Press exclusively stated that in all probability the Consolidated Traction Company now operating between Elizabeth and Newark would extend through to this city.

The Elizabeth Journal yesterday verified the prediction of The Daily Press by publishing the following:

And now it is promised that before the snow flies there will be trolley roads connecting this city with Plainfield and Summit and the pretty villages intervening on both routes.

The Consolidated Traction Company will build the road to Plainfield, and has already begun the steps toward securing the franchise. The route will be over the Morris avenue line, and, on leaving the city, possibly through Sayre street.

The work of construction will begin about August 1st, immediately upon the return of B. M. Shanley, the contractor, who is expected home from Europe on July 28th.

A representative of the Traction Company said this morning that a trolley road to Plainfield will be in operation by December 1st, and that cars will make the trip between Elizabeth and Plainfield in thirty-five minutes.

The success of the trolley in this city has been beyond the expectation of the Traction Company, and has given inspiration for extending the route through the country. These lines to the suburban towns will be important, not only in developing the country, by enhancing the value of property and increasing the population, but it is believed they will be of great advantage to this city.

The trolley is a progressive institution, and it is apparent in this city. In the few weeks since the electric cars have been running the city has seemingly advanced many years, and it is marvelous the changes that have taken place.

The opening up of the other sections of the county will be of still greater value to Elizabeth, as these suburban lines will tend to bring trade into the city. Every body realizes now what the trolley cars mean to a community, and the effort of the companies to extend their routes will meet with no opposition, but, it is belived, encouragement in all directions.

GREAT RELIGIOUS FORCE.

What the Christian Endeavorers Are Doing in the World.

The Christain Endeavor service at the First Baptist church last night was one of special interest. L. H. Biglow, Jr., was in charge, and conducted a fifteen-minute service of song, after which he read the first Psalm and gave a short talk on the subject of the meeting, "A Clean Life."

Miss Alice Woodland and Mis Emily Coriell then gave enthusiastic accounts of the Christian Endeavor convention at Boston. Statistics were given which showed that in the past ten years 40,000 societies were organized, and every country was represented in the 60,000 delegates at Boston, except Armenia. It has been thus far impossible to organize a society at that place because the natives fear upity. During the past twelve months there have been 1,800 conversions in the society.

CUT BY THE SCRAPER.

Thomas Dufficy Badly Injures His Hand While Repairing the Scraper.

The street scraper got into trouble yesterday afternoon when it was being repaired at J. E. Flannery's blacksmith shop on East Third street, near Church. Thomas Dufficy, one of Flannery's assistants, was tightening up a nut with his monkey-wrench when the wrench slipped and Dufficy's hand came against the sharp edge of the scraper. A deep gash was cut in the fleshy part of the left hand while the top of one of the fingers was almost severed. The injured man went immediately to Dr. Clawson, who dressed the wounds. Dufficy was to work this morning with his left hand bound up.

Particularly Sad Death.

A particularly sad death was that of James Henry Harold, brother of Miss Edith Harold, of this city, which occurred in Brooklyn Thursday night in the thirty-fifth year of his age. The young man has been ill for a year past. He was married a year and a half ago, and leaves a young wife twenty years of age. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from his late home in Brooklyn at two o'clock p. m.

Acting Chief Marshal.

During Chief Marshal VanHorn's vacation Marshal Mark Doud will be acting chief.

COULD NOT FOOL THIS MAN.

A SHARPER TRIES TO WORK A LAWYER FOR $15.

Claimed to Work at Somerville and Had a Sorrowful Tale to Relate—Skipped Before Detection.

A Swede giving the name of Charles Frank, Jr., came to town this morning and called on a lawyer. He said that he had been employed by George Morris, a cabinet-maker of Somerville, and that the latter owed him $315. Before leaving Somerville a telegram had been sent to him from Lowell, Mass., telling him that his wife was dead and wanting him to come at once. His employer received the telegram and destroyed it in his presence, whereupon Frank said that he hit him.

He then came to Plainfield and wanted the lawyer to take his case for him and sue for the $315, and at the same time loan him $15 to go to his home.

He stated that he had $5,500 in the First National Bank at Lowell, Mass., and he made out a check for $50 which he gave the lawyer in compensation.

The latter thought he had better make inquiries, so in company with Frank went to the telephone office on North avenue, and called up Lowell, and asked the bank officials if Frank had a bank accouunt. They stated that he did not, and also that they had a check in their possession which he had given a person at Long Branch, which was no good.

During the time the lawyer was talking to Lowell, Frank skipped out of the office and made his escape.

The lawyer at once started after him but could find no trace of the man. Chief Grant was informed of the transaction and he is at work hunting up the sharper. Although the lawyer did not let him have the money it cost him over two dollars for his experience in telephoning to Lowell.

Frank is a very large man, wearing light trousers, dark coat, straw hat and had not been shaved in several days. He is a very smooth talker and had a most sorrowful story to relate.

Inquiry was made at Somerville by The Daily Press as to whether there was such a person as George Morris, who was a cabinet-maker, and it was learned that there was a George Morris but he is not a cabinet-maker.

THROWN INTO CHANCERY.

Mrs. Sargent Has Applied For a Partition of the Frazee Estate.

There promises to be an exciting time over the estate of A. M. Frazee at the corner of Watchung avenue and East Second street.

The property was sold at auction some time ago by order of the court, and bought by Charles Gulberg for the heirs, Whitney Frazee, Mrs. Chas. Gulberg, George Frazee and Mrs. Esther K. Sargent. George Frazee afterwards sold his share to George W. DeMeza and, a few days ago, after a great deal of trouble, Charles H. Hand bought out the interest of Whitney Frazee and Mrs. Charles Gulberg, for which it is understood that $800 toward a house and lot on South avenue was given to each. The property was deeded to them and a mortgage given for the rest of its value.

Offers were made to Mrs. Sargent to sell out but she refused to do so except at an exorbitant price. She has now thrown the whole affair into the Court of Chancery and applied for a partition sale. Mr. Sargent, her husband, has been trying to induce her to sell out and he is also brought into court with the rest.

It has been the intention of Hand and DeMeza to tear down the old house and erect a large brick building on the site.

Try and See if We Are Not Right.

The greatest craze in Philadelphia is a trolley and ice cream party in which the frozen delicacies are served on the fast moving car. Such a plan would certainly be a great success if Tier furnished the ice cream. His peach and coffee ice cream are simply exquisite and must be tasted to be remembered. He also sells ice cream soda of all flavors for only five cents a glass. His large assortment of candies is a treat to anyone.

Mr. Rodman to Talk at Scotch Plains.

The surpliced choir of Grace church will give a choral service in All Saints church, Scotch Plains, on Sunday evening, July 28th, at eight o'clock. Rev. E. M. Rodman, rector of Grace church, will preach and the rector of All Saints will conduct the service.

The New Vault.

The First National Bank of this city, has given out the contract for the building of its new vaults to the Remington and Sherman Safe Company of which C. H. Monsell, of Evona, is the enterprising representative, through whom the contract was made.

PRETTY LAWN FESTIVAL.

First Church of Christ People Make Money.

The lawn at the corner of Liberty and Front streets presented a scene of beauty last night, made so through the earnest efforts of the members of the First Church of Christ Sunday-school, who conducted an ice cream festival for the benefit of the excursion fund.

At different points about the lawn were large American flags and these, together with an artistic arrangement of Japanese flowers, gave the scene one of decided brilliancy.

During the evening a large number of people stopped and partook of the excellent ice cream, cake, and home-made candy that was offered for sale.

One very choice display was a collection of beautiful cut flowers that had been donated, and they were quickly disposed of.

The Sunday-school members were assisted in the worthy cause by members of the Christian Endeavor society of the church, who did much toward making the affair the success it was.

Those who planned the festival and assisted were: Rev. Mr. and Mrs. B. W. Hand, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Staats, Henry Van Middlesworth, the Misses Mabel Wilson, Mabel Van-Middlesworth, Emma Herman, Kittie Jessup, Lillie Ackerman, Lillie Sutton, Emma Bittell, Gertrude Jones, Etta Staats, Jennie Randolph, Lillie Epner, Fred Hoagland, William Kilpatrick, Charles Lewis, and John Russ.

A DAY OF PLEASURE.

Trinity Church Excursionists Have a Hugh Time at the Park.

Fun and pleasure galore was enjoyed by the Trinity Reformed church excursionists at Asbury Park yesterday. The day was a beautiful one at the seashore, and only one incident occurred to mar the pleasure of anyone. Mrs. George W. Cole and little child, of West Second street, became separated in the crowd, and it was three hours before they found the little tot. However, as the excursionists arrived home in the evening, Mrs. John Yost and young son had a painful and narrow escape from severe injury. In getting off the train they walked off the depot platform near the United States Exress office and fell a distance of several feet. They received a severe jar, but after a few minutes rest were able to proceed home.

The manner in which Conductor Jackson handled the 600 pleasure seekers while on the train was commended on all sides.

The following is the committee who admirably managed the trip: Councilman E. H. Bird, W. F. Oliver, W. A. Woodruff, E. E. Anthony, H. W. Marshall, H. C. Van Emburgh, and E. J. Cooley.

The committee cleared enough money on the sale of tickets to pay all expenses and give each scholar and teacher a ticket free.

ARCANUM'S PROMPTNESS.

The Insurance of the Late Ira F Riker Paid Nine Days After Filing.

Treasurer D. W. Littell, of the Royal Arcanum, yesterday afternoon received a check of $3,000 from the department headquarters in payment of the insurance of the late Ira F. Riker. The claim was only mailed nine days ago, and this is said to be the quickest that a return has ever been made, and gives evidence of the promptitude and responsibility of the Arcanum as an insurance order.

Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, was instituted October 4th, 1892, and since that date until July 1st, 1895, its members have paid into the Widows' and Orphans' Fund the sum of $35,457.71. The amount paid by the treasurer of Plainfield Council to the Supreme Council, is $35,111.38. This shows the healthy and flourishing condition of the Council which stands second to none in the country.

Needs Another Light.

New electric lights have been put up on West Front street in front of Yaeger's furniture store, and on Madison avenue opposite the northern corner of the Babcock building. The lights are the result of a petition presented by West Front street residents asking that the dark space between Peck's and the corner of Madison avenue be illuminated. The signers of the petition think that one more light should be put directly in front of the dark territory.

Honors at Asbury Park.

The Asbury Park Evening Breeze publishes an account of a unique euchre party given at the Grand Central Monday evening, in which Mrs. W. A. Coddington captured the first ladies prize and Judge Coddington the second gentleman's prize.

No Immediate Hopes.

Park avenue which is in a wretched condition will probably not be repaired until after the sewer pipes are laid. Cyclists complain bitterly of the condition of this avenue.

WHERE ARE YOU GOING?

The Beautiful Hudson by Moonlight Accessible to All.

How sweet the moonlight sleeps upon the bank!
Here will we sit, and let the sounds of music
Creep in our ears; soft stillness and the night
Become the touches of sweet harmony.

When Shakespeare wrote that he must have been thinking of a trip up the Hudson some moonlight evening on one of the steamers of the People's Line, and what could be more enjoyable than sitting on the deck of one of those floating palaces, the Dean Richmond or the Drew, and watching the soft moonlight sparkle on the water, while on the left the mighty Highlands rear their majestic heads high above everything.

To the tourist bound for the Adirondacks or points on the D. & H. R. R., the N. Y. C. & H. R. R. R., or West Shore R. R., nothing can be more pleasant than leaving New York at six p. m., and arriving in Albany in time to connect with the through trains on those roads. Through tickets can be procured and baggage checked direct to any of the sumimer resorts in northern and western New York.

The boats themselves are veritable palaces, with electric lights and all modern conveniences to make them homelike and cheerful. Bountiful meals are served on the European plan in the grand dining saloon.

The people's Line is the only one on the river that has a Saturday night boat and it connects with all points north and west on the New York Central, the West Shore, and the Delaware & Hudson railroads.

Tickets are on sale at all the principle hotels and ticket offices or can be procured at Pier 41, (old No.), North River, foot of Canal street, and on the steamers.

Night lends an enchantment to scenery which on other times is anything but beautiful to the grand and historic scenery of the Hudson—well, go and see how it looks for yourself.

WING SHOTS SCORE HIGH.

Team Contest in the Series of the Trap Shooters League.

There was quite a gathering of crack wing shots at the grounds of the Union Hill Gun Club, Guttenberg, yesterday afternoon. It was the time fixed for holding the sixth monthly team contest in this year's series of the New Jersey Trap Shooters' League. The league is composed of the nine leading gun clubs located in different parts of the State. The conditions of the shoot are five men to a team, each to fire at twenty-five blue rocks, known traps, unknown angles, under the five-trap, rapid-firing system, while the rules of the American Shooting Association govern. The quintet from the Boiling Springs Fishing and Gun Club of Rutherford proved their superiority over seven rival teams, besides making a record score by breaking 115 out of a possible 125 blue rocks. The three remaining shoots of the series will be held respectively on the grounds of the Climax Gun Club at Plainfield, South Side Gun Club at Newark, and the Red Bank Gun Club. The scores:

Burt and several others from Clinton avenue, are going camping at Barnegat. Charles Randolph, Millington, Taylor and Pound go there Monday to get the camp ready and will be joined by the rest of the party during the week. They have hired several tents and secured a bountiful supply of provisions and fishing tackle. Most of the time will be spent in sailing and fishing and the young men expect to capture everytning in the line of fish in Barnegat bay. They expect to stay two weeks.

The Great Iam's Paper.

The insinuation in last nights issue of the Courier-News that L. B. Woolston could not move in his new house last Monday on account of the steam pipes not being tested is entirely false. The heating apparatus is being put in by D. W. Littell, and Mr. Woolston is not having steam put in his house, and besides the painters and paper hangers are not yet through with their work. He expects to take possession next Monday.

THE PROPOSED BOND ISSUE.

THE WORLD PUBLISHES AN ARTICLE FROM CHARLES BULLMAN.

Supplemented by a Number of Interviews With Citizens Who Are Not Fully Satisfied With the Deal.

The New York World of this morning publishes an article from the pen of Charles Bullman in reference to the proposed bond issue for the payment of the sewerage system now in course of construction in this city. The article is introduced in a tone of criticism of the same kind that the Courier-News editor has seen fit to use. The purposes for which it was written show plainly on the face when it is observed that none but unfavorable criticisms are published. As a matter of news The Press publishes the article, which is as follows:

The recent action of Plainfield's City Council in voting to issue $100,000 4 per cent. sewer bonds, payable in gold, has created a stir in the so-called "Colorada of the East." Many of the townsmen do not hesitate to denounce the Councilmen, and the two local newspapers are filled daily with bitter criticisms upon either side. The Courier-News, a Republican sheet, has repudiated the doings of the Republican Councilmen, while The Press as vehemently upholds the cause of "progress." Wealthy taxpayers are talking about getting up mass-meetings and there are rumors of injunctions and other legal proceedings.

That Plainfield needs sewers is generally admitted. Vigorous efforts were made to secure the signatures of the owners of two-thirds of the assessed valuations of the city to a petition that would enable the Common Council to build sewers under the Act of 1890. The committee having charge of the petition, however, failed in their task. The sewer scheme seemed likely to fall through, when a Plainfield official went to the rescue. He secured the passage by the Legislature, in April, 1894, of an amendment that reduced the required number of signers from two-thirds to one-half, and gave the Common Council a clear field when once the signers of one-half of the assessed valuations had been secured.

The petition was finally presented, and the work begun. Of course the people knew that this would require money, but the Council did not take the public into its confidence. This is what has caused the present trouble. There was a decided sensation when it was found that the Council had quietly agreed to sell $100,000 4 per cent. bonds to Harvey Fisk & Sons, bankers, of 24 Nassau street, New York. Charles Fisk, a reputed member of the firm, is also a member of the Common Council.

It was said that the Mutual Life Insurance Company had offered to lend the city money at 4½ per cent. provided it was given an option on the 4 per cent. bonds issued. Harvey Fisk & Sons offered to lend the city $100,000 at 4 per cent. provided the city's notes would be exchanged as soon as possible for 4 per cent. bonds. The resolution accepting the latter proposition was put through despite the votes of Councilman Frazee, the sole Democrat in the board, and Councilmen Moore and Westphal, Republicans.

"I believe that the action of the Council was precipitate," said Councilman Frazee. "There is no necessity of selling the bonds at present although they may not be delivered for a year or more. Mayor Alexander Gilbert was never authorized to arrange for the sale of the bonds, which are really worth more than par. I think, too, that the bonds should have been advertised and our own people given a chance to bid for the issue." Councilman Fisk was not present when the resolution was adopted, but I think it would have looked better if some other firm had taken the bonds.

Wilbur Fisk, another member of the family, obtained options on the two farms bought by the city for sewage filtration beds. These options were turned over to the city intact, but—well, it doesn't look well."

Several lawyers are of the opinion that the Council assumed undue risk in allotting the bonds to Fisk & Sons under the circumstances.

Postmaster Hetfield said: "The sale of bonds should have been advertised. I would have preferred to have had sewers constructed to tidewater, even if it would have cost more."

"I think our own people should have had a chance to bid for the bonds," said City Judge Coddington.

Counsellor Reed said he was opposed to the sewage filtration system, and believed it a backward step.

Mr. Angleman, lawyer, said he was opposed to secret or hidden action by the city's Common Council. He thought the bonds should have been advertised.

"I believe the bond transaction to be illegal," said Col. Sterling, "and proper action by the citizens will prevent its consummation. The filtration system is a humbug."

Editor F. W. Runyon, of the Courier-News, said: "The Council acted with unnecessary haste. The bonds would have brought a premium if thoroughly advertised."

Counsellor McClure denounced the unauthorized sale of the bonds as an outrage. Messrs. Laing, Kenney, Smith, Demarest and other merchants also expressed dissatisfaction with the course pursued by the Council in the disposal of the bonds.

Mayor Gilbert expressed regret that citizens had criticised acts they did not clearly understand. He claimed that the City Council was forced to borrow from New York parties. The City and First National Banks had asked about 5 per cent. upon a loan, and the Dime Savings Institution wanted 4½ per cent. The Mayor also said he had had thirty-eight years' experience in the banking business, and felt that Plainfield had made a wonderfully good bargain with Fisk & Sons.

TRACING GRAIN THIEVES.

Discovery of a Rig Believed to Belong to the Marauders.

The grain thieves who have been committing depredations on the farms throughout Union Township made their appearance again Monday night in the vicinity of Jonathan P. Miller's place. The thieves evidently intended to raid Mr. Miller's barn and grainery during the night.

His son happened to be on his way home across the fields at about eight o'clock, when he saw a horse and wagon partly concealed among some brushwood not far from the farm house.

Arming themselves with shotguns they sallied forth, and on reaching the spot where the rig had been standing found it had disappeared.

It was found in a small woods about an eighth of a mile from where the rig first was discovered. The horse was tied to a tree.

Young Miller drove to Elizabeth and notified County Detective Keron. Detective Keron took possession of the rig and took it to his stable in Elizabeth. Meanwhile a search was made for the owners, but no trace of them could be found.

WARM RECEPTION AWAITS THEM.

Chief Grant Has His Eye on a Gang of Suspicious Characters.

The police have been after a gang of suspicious characters in the eastern end of the city for some time but without much success until last evening when when Chief Grant discovered a gang of men in a clump of trees near Leland and North avenues. Although all alone he started to investigate and the five or six men who were there took to their heels as fast as possible.

A carriage was passing and getting in, Grant started in pursuit but they took to the fields where it was impossible to follow. A warm reception awaits the men when they appear again.

The Usual Way.

As is usual with the Courier-News when they try to tell a story, they mix it up generally. Last evening's paper stated that Assistant Chief Martin did not hear the alarm blown and consequently did not go to the fire. Mr. Martin went to the fire all right on the Alert Hose wagon, and after it was all over returned to his home and took a bath. Chief Doane was testing Box 13 after the fire was over, and for some reason the alarm in Mr. Martin's house was not shut off. Ding it went, and Martin did some pretty fast hustling and got over to the engine house, to find that his bath had been rudely stopped by a test, and not a fire.

Lost in the Wilds of Roselle.

Three charming young ladies of Plainfield and vicinity, who graduated from the High school, met with a provoking accident last Tuesday when they discovered, in their efforts to find Westfield, they had become lost. Although one of the number was well acquainted with Westfield, they got on the wrong road, and found themselves in Roselle. It was learned last evening that they had returned safely home, much to the joy of their friends and parents.

Wholesale Robberies.

Burglars entered the houses of Mrs. Stevens, O. P. Button, John R. Laggren and Mrs. Ande, in Elizabeth, on Monday night, and carried off about a wagonload of provisions. They also packed up the silverware in two houses preparatory to taking that also, but were frightened away before they could accomplish their purpose. The police knew nothing of the robberies until yesterday afternoon.

Best Batters in the League.

The batting averages of the players in the National Baseball League published yesterday show that the average of Keeler, of Baltimore, is 406, and Turner, of Philadelphia, 402. These are the only two in the league who average over 400. This is especially gratifying to Plainfielders, as they commenced their ball careers in this city.

Two By Two.

Frank L. C. Martin, the popular dealer in bicycles, has one of the bars by which two wheels are fastened together and run as one wheel, something like a tricycle.

IN MEMORIAM OF SEYMOUR F. SMITH.

DIED JULY 8TH, A. D., 1895. "JESU MERCY."

With loving sympathy to his sorrowing parents and brothers, from his cousin, Rev. Harry E. Gilchrist, Priest.

I. DESPAIR.

Dead, you say!
No, no, it cannot be!
That child of promise so young and fair,
A father's pride, a mother's joy,
To brothers dear, so loved by all,
Struck down at manhood's dawn,
Oh, no, we cannot spare
This darling one!

II. PERPLEXITY.

What does this mean?
What can it be?
Stretched cold and dead upon the bier,
But yesterday aglow with promise bright,
Today swept from earthly scenes.
The storms of grief do moan a requiem,
His pallid face washed by a tear?
O, God, explain!

III. INQUIRY.

What is this mystery,
Death—a twin to life?
Where shall we look for knowledge and for peace?
It seems so strange, so full of bitter pain,
To loving hearts, a dark cloud o'er the home,
A stone to give instead of bread;
Can this become a means of Grace?
Must we despair?

IV HOPE.

Human thought hath essayed,
Philosophy hath made its guess,
And still the mystic veil shuts out the light:
But one ray of light, we blinded fail to see:
From the Son Divine, in Holy Christ—in Holy Book,
It strikes upon the eye of faith:
And lo, in Paradise, 'mid angels bright,
Our child we see!

V. FAITH.

Ah now, we see!
Somewhat of this great mystery.
Our loved one was a loan from God;
His claim is higher than our own.
Back to his home, from whence he came,
To make a place for us he's gone.
He will welcome us where angels trod.
Our faith looks up to Thee.

POOR FIRE PROTECTION.

Clinton Avenue Has Not Adequate Water Supply for Fires.

The urgent need of an adequate water supply in the vicinity of Clinton avenue was never shown to better advantage than at the McCarthy fire yesterday. The citizens in that part of the city are obliged to pay their tax to the city and also a higher rate of insurance, simply because they have no water for fire protection. It was found necessary at yesterday's fire to lay 1,500 feet of hose from Cornell's pond to the burning barn, and then they were not able to get water until the buildings were destroyed. There are a large number of houses in that locality that would under most circumstances burn down before any quantity of water could be obtained to extinguish the flames.

The residents should apply at once to the City Council for fire hydrants before a more serious fire occurs and destroys a greater amount of property.

FELL OFF THE GANG-PLANK.

Miss Rose Tiquin Suffers An Accident on Her Return From the Island.

As the excursion boat which carried St. Mary's church, of this city, to Glen Island yesterday made her landing at the Jersey City pier last night the excursionists were all anxious to get off the boat and in their haste Miss Rose Tiquin, who lives at the home of Mrs. Daniel T. VanBuren at 810 Central avenue, was crowded off the gang-plank and fell in the water, owing to the absence of guard-rails as protection.

One of the deck hands and Committeeman Patrick Diver very quickly rescued her. She received a thorough drenching and several cuts and scratches. When Plainfield was reached a local physician took several stitches in a gash in her head caused by the fall. Although Miss Tiquin was very much frighted there were no serious injuries as a result.

A WALK TO THE ROCK.

A Party Bring Back Many Souvineirs of a Delightful Afternoon.

Washington Rock is a delightful point of observation as Washington himself discovered and so it is to be expected that the young people of this city and the borough should take advantage of it. And yesterday afternoon a party of North Plainfield young people enjoyed a delightful afternoon's outing in a walk to the Rock. The party started at about 2:30, and returned shortly after six, bringing with them many mementos of their trip. The gay party consisted of Miss Ethel Marsh and Miss Harriet Lounsbury, of Harlem, Miss Phyllis Gilmour, of Brooklyn, and Miss Josie E. Hall, Miss Fannie Western, Charles Hazeltine, Charles C. Western and Robert Turrill.

After the Count.

"Count" J. K. Van Ness is still confined to his home by illness, and Constable W. R. Mattox is keeping close watch as he has a warrant for his arrest, which will be served as soon as he is able to go out.

Plainfield's Experts.

Carl Walz and F. K. Fish, Jr., of the Hillside Tennis Club of this city, go to Westfield Saturday to contest in a match for doubles against the tennis experts of Westfield and Elizabeth.

ELECTRIC LIGHT CHANGES.

DR COOLEY TALKS FREELY ON THE CONSOLIDATION MATTER.

He Says the Edison Company Was Working Under Difficulties and Thought It Policy to Sell Out.

A Daily Press representative interviewed Dr. J. H. Cooley, of the borough, today, in regard to the sale of the North Plainfield Electric Light Company's plant, which was recorded in these columns last week. The Doctor talked freely and did not hesitate to tell the facts in the case. In part he said:

When the Brookside Sanitarium was completed I was very anxious that we should put in electric lights, as they would be much safer and more advantageous in every way. To that end I interested myself in the matter and together with Dr. Davis purchased stock in the company, and with Manning & Son, of Trenton, and Charles Sebring, who were already stockholders, we commenced to develop commercial lighting.

At Sebring's Mills there was a plant established and a considerable amount of the commercial lighting was done from there until various difficulties arose which necessitated the removing of their machinery to North Plainfield.

The members of the Council were not very friendly toward the company and instead of helping to make the service what it should be, were inclined to hinder its progress. Complaints were made that electric light globes were broken and that lights were out, and the company was severely scored, but the Council would not assist in the matter and in consequence we worked at a great disadvantage.

There was a profit in the business but it was small, owing to the limited amount of business. Application was made to the Plainfield Council for permission to do business in the city but the matter was tabled indefinitely.

During this time the Plainfield Electric Light Company were furnishing light to a number of borough residents which materially affected our business, and no steps were taken until recently to prevent them from doing business in the borough. Taking everything into consideration I decided that if the opportunity offered itself I would sell my stock, as I had other business which fully occupied my time, hence when the offer was made recently I accepted, as did also the other three members of the company, as Mr. Manning's son died last winter, leaving only four in the company.

The machinery which was brought from Sebring's Mills is now being taken back.

The transfer of the Edison property will probably be made about August 1st, but I am not prepared to say what the new company will do.

PROPOSED TROLLEY LINE.

Will Start from Trimbley and Connect With Trunk Lines.

A new trolley line is proposed in Union county. It will start from Trimbley, and, going across the county, touch Crawford and Linden, connecting at Cranford with the proposed trunk line of trolleys for Elizabeth and Plainfield, continuing across the county to Springfield and Summit. The line would thus connect with the following railroads: Long Branch division of the Central, Pennsylvania at Linden, Baltimore and Ohio, Lehigh Valley, and main line of the Central at Cranford, and the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western at Summit. By this course the county roads would not be used, but the right of way through farms, etc., would have to be purchased.

The Chief's New Brougham.

The Asbury Park Journal published the following about a well known man in Plainfield a few days ago:

Chief Leggett was in Ocean Grove last Friday when the alarm was rung for the fire on Main street and First avenue. He knew if he walked over to Asbury Park he would be late, and as for running all the way—well, the Chief couldn't stand it. Near by was a garbage wagon. He climbed on the seat and bribed the driver to bring him over to Asbury Park with all possible speed. The Chief was one of the early arrivals at the fire, but few knew how he had hustled, and under what difficulties he covered the ground.

Early Santa Claus Talk.

I. A. Neely, of Edsall's Commercial Palace, is arranging to start on his vacation to Niagara Falls and Canada, sailing across Lake Ontario, thence by rail to Lake Huron. On the return trip Mr. Neely will visit the large toy factories through the east and make extensive purchases for the holiday trade. He has already placed import orders for foreign goods. They intend making their big basement the home of Santa Claus this year. Mr. Neely claims that variety and low prices will keep all hands busy at the palace this holiday season.

Relics of the Red Men.

While working about his Highland farm a few days ago Henry Rogers found a Mohegan battle ax and spear head. They are now on exhibition in J. A. Smith's grocery storry.

TIME, TWENTY-EIGHT SECONDS.

The Kent Fire Extinguisher Shows Its Effectiveness in a Test.

It is said that 70 per cent. of fires in cities are extinguished by chemicals, so it is to be seen that a successful fire extinguisher is a most important factor in the fire protection of large buildings. Joseph Hubbard, executor of the Babcock estate, has had in his possession a Kent fire extinguisher, and this noon Mariner J. Kent, the inventor of it, and general manager of the Manhattan Fire Extinguisher Company, gave an exhibition of its workings in the open space back of Babcock building. The test was successful in every particular and all who saw it were enthusiastic in its praise. An oil barrel, open at both ends, was placed on bucks and filled with paper soaked with oil. The match was applied and in a moment the barrel was a mass of roaring flames.

The extinguisher did the work very effectively and quickly. Another trial was made, and an oil barrel filled with oil-soaked straw set on fire and allowed to burn several minutes. In just twenty-eight seconds after Mr. Kent started for the fire it was entirely out.

Like all the rest of its kind carbonic acid gas is formed, but in this case it is made instantly by reversing the can, by doing which the sulphuric acid, soda, and water are allowed to meet and the gas is formed. The advantage of the Kent extinguisher is that the gas is made instantly in that manner without any delay in uniting the chemicals which is done by a patent cap.

Among those that witnessed the test were: Assessor Joseph Hubbard, executor of the Babcock estate, Chief of the Fire Department Thaddeus Doane, Assistant Chief James A. Martin, J. Linn Edsall, J. P. Mosher, of the Sabbath Recorder, G. L. VanEmburgh, and S. G. Wrentmore.

A PLAINFIELDER'S PROGRESS.

Herbert Murphy Now a Prominent Citizen in a Georgia Town.

Last month the Waycross, (Ga.,) Herald issued a trades edition, and among the portraits and biographical sketches of prominent citizens published is one of Herbert Murphy, a former resident of this city. Through the courtesy of John Rowland, of East Second street, the Daily Press is permitted to clip the following:

He came as a stranger among strangers, but in a very short while he found himself a friend among friends. He was a member of the northern branch of the Methodist church, but he transferred the membership of himself and family to the southern Methodist church, and has, and still continues to occupy a prominent place in the church. Mr. Murphy, though differing in politics with many of his friends, has always acted in harmony with the people of this section in local affairs, and is much appreciated. He was appointed Sanitary and Water Works commissioner in December, 1889, and elected chairman each successive year since. To his untiring efforts is greatly due the completion of the Water Works System, which stands second to none in the South. He is always ready to aid with money or work in any laudable enterprise of the city. Mr. Murphy was elected president of the bank of Waycross early in 1895, and fills the post with honor to himself and satisfaction to all.

RAN AWAY WITH TWENTY-TWO.

Children Returning from a Picnic Dropped Along a Roadside.

Twenty-two children of Westfield who had been to Echo Lake picnic grounds were returning yesterday afternoon, when their horse ran away: Harold Tice, ten years old, was driver. The horse ran down a steep hill, throwing a child out of the wagon every ten feet, until most of them were out.

The plucky boy driver stood firm to his post. When he reached the business portion of the town the horse ran against a building and upset the wagon, throwing the rest of the children on the hard stone walk. They were carried into the nearby houses and physicians summoned.

Buela Lightfoot, ten years old, was found by the roadside unconscious, soon recovered.

Mabel Tice, the ten-year-old daughter of G. W. Tice, a New York banker, was badly hurt. It is feared some bones are broken.

The others escaped with only a few scratches.

Washingtonville Sociabilities.

Washingtonville was the scene of a merry party Wednesday evening, which took place at the home of Messrs. Davis and Will Robertson. The evening was spent very enjoyably with music and dancing.

Among those present were: Messrs. P. Williams, H. Baldwin, C. Baldwin, G. Baldwin, C. Meyers, G. Diehl, F. Titus, James Gunn, John Gunn, Geo. Kliener, Harry Kliener, L. Compton, J. Burnett, E. Burnett, Will Robertson, Davis Robertson, K. Frecse, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Drew, Mrs. T. Randolph, and the Misses Jennie Baldwin, Lizzie Giddis and Kate Burnett.

A new rule has been made at the Y. M. C. A. only allowing members the privileges of the gymnasium on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays, during August.

LIFE IN LIBERIA.

Bishop Turner Tells About the Black Colony Whence He Has Just Come.

Bishop H. M. Turner, one of the leading advocates of negro emigration to Africa, arrived recently after an absence of five months in Europe and Africa, a month of which he spent in Liberia, where he watched the progress of the 227 negro colonists who went to Liberia on the steamer Horsa, from Savannah, Ga., on March 12. In an interview Bishop Turner said:

"The Horsa reached Monrovia, the capital of Liberia, on March 29, after a smooth passage. The colonists stood the voyage splendidly. Only one death occurred in transit, and that was of a little child that died several hours before landing. After landing two old people died within ten days. It had been expected that one man would die during the voyage, but he prayed that his life might be spared until he reached Africa, and his prayer was granted.

"I remained Liberia eleven days after the Horsa had sailed on her homeward trip, and I remained there about a month. On landing, the colonists were divided into two settlements, one being sent to Johnsonville, about ten miles from Monrovia, and the other sent about fifteen miles from the coast. Each head of a family received twenty-five acres of good farming land from the government.

"The general health of the colonists was better than would have been expected, in consideration of their imprudence in eating the fruits of the country most lavishly, against the advice of the native Liberians, for newcomers should be very particular about eating African fruits until they become acclimated, as such indulgence brings on the fever prematurely, and in many instances makes it more severe than it would otherwise be.

"The natives welcomed the immigrants joyfully, and would welcome a million more. They have an abundance of territory and are anxious to build up a civilized country and spread intelligence and business thrift through their entire domain, which extends 370 miles along the seacoast and 200 miles interior forward. Those who have gone as colonists are much pleased with their situation because they are free, can aspire to any position, even the Presidency, and there are no papers in the land that are eternally berating the negro and charging upon him a thousand crimes of which he is not guilty. Immigrants are obliged to spend three years in the country before acquiring citizenship, but colored persons going from the United States have no naturalization process to go through. They are regarded as citizens the moment they land and say they have come to stay. They can vote or hold any position in the gift of the voters. This is not so with the West Indian or Brazilian black men.

"Immediately on their arrival the colonists began clearing their lands, building houses, planting garden vegetables, and setting out coffee trees, the chief article of commerce. Coffee is to Africa what cotton is to the South. Cotton will grow there to enormous proportions, as it needs to be planted but once in four years, instead of every year, as in this country. The Liberian coffee is regarded throughout Europe as the finest flavored and most nutritious of any in the world. Preparations are making for the raising of millions of tons of it.

"The Horsa did not bring back any cargo, for the reason that no one in Africa knew she was coming until she steamed into the harbor. She left in three days, before the farmers knew that she was there. The company alone would have sent 100,000 pounds of ginger over by her had it known she was coming in time to have had the ginger on the coast. The Liberians and Africans in general are anxious to do business with the United States, but they are not able to put steamships on the ocean, and the United States has none, nor will any of the business men establish a steamship line, but I think I have succeeded in getting a great steamship corporation in England to put a line between Boston and Africa. The ships will call at Charleston or Savannah for the benefit of such colored persons as desire to go to and fro and trade in African commerce.

"I think that it is to the best interests of the colored race to colonize Liberia, where they can exercise all their civil and political privileges without being regarded as a menace to the country. The native Africans want civilization and our missions are most prosperous. The kings hold the idea that the Christian God teaches how to make cannon, warships and guns, and they believe that by adopting the Christian religion they can overcome their enemies and add to their military strength. The white people of America are far more highly respected than the Europeans, and the missionaries of the former are not regarded with suspicion and distrust, as are those of the latter. It is thought by the natives that Europe wants to gobble up Africa, but they have no such feeling toward Americans. There are now a million negroes in this country ready and anxious to settle in Liberia, and the sentiment is growing stronger daily. I am not in favor of wholesale emigration to Africa on the part of the negroes.

"There are many American negroes who are not fit to go where they will have to assume personal responsibility. They are only fit to be waiters and scullions, or to move and to act at the bidding of others."

At the Soda Fountain.

"What will you have, dear?"
"I don't know what I want."
"I don't know either."
"What's yours?"
"Oh, don't mind me."
"Yes I will, too."
"No, dear, suit yourself."
"Yes, I know, but which do you prefer?"
"Oh, I don't know; give me chocolate."
"Dear me, I don't see how you can drink chocolate; give me vanilla, please."

A police shake-up is getting to be an everyday occurrence in New York.

The Westfield Leader figures that there is one physician to every 469 people in Plainfield.

Life would be easier if we only had the opportunity to rest after our days of rest.—Evening Sun.

There is a probability that the mails will be carried on the trolley cars between Elizabeth and Newark.

When President of the Common Council See goes on his vacation who will perform the judicial duties of the city?

Mr. Horr has finished talking on the money question with Mr. Harvey. There are just as many varying opinions now as there ever was.

The big New York Sun is having a lot of fun with the little Summit Record. Why doesn't The Sun take someone its size?

When the tailors strike in an effort to crush out sweat shop labor they have an object worthy of success. But the most worthy do not always succeed.

Already Mayor Strong's reform police magistrates and reform police commissioners are at loggerheads. And the Mayor has just returned from his black baths at Saratoga.

After invoking Legislative aid and going to every other extreme, all of which failed, the New Brunswick Republicans finally gained control of the Common Council by the Democrats falling into a state of inocuous desuetude. This is bad on the Democrats.

Why was it that Mayor Gilbert's interview prepared for The World story was cut down to a half dozen lines? It looks very much as though the Great Iam Courier-News editor had used his blue pencil to escape the ridicule which the Mayor's statements would have held him up to.

William H. Helm, who was elected president of the New Brunswick Common Council by a technicality, declares that he will not take the office by such means. It is said that he will have to resign and if he does the deadlock will continue. New Brunswick seems illfated. She suffers from good as well as bad men.

The trolley cars in Philadelphia have reduced taxable property to the extent of $1,000,000 worth of horses, but as the general net increase in the valuation for the year is $13,000,000 the city has no complaint to make. The figures are a fair illustration of the result of the introduction of improved machinery.—Paterson Press.

Frederick Green, who agreed to give the State a farm of 162 acres upon which to erect a home for the blind, has left the State but his generous offer still continues. The commission having charge of the feasibility of the matter will report to the Legislature next January. At present it costs the State $15,000 a year for the care of the blind in outside institutions.

A funny decision has just been rendered by the Treasury Depaptment at Washington. An old soldier went to Canada and procured a cork leg. When he attempted to return to the country where he lost his good leg the Custom House officials detained him, holding that the leg was dutiable for the sum of $15 as a manufactured article. The old soldier who lost a leg fighting for the country whose officer insisted on his paying a tax on an artifical member, appealed to Washington, with the result of a favorable decision.

In the August number of The Forum Justice H. B. Brown contributes an interesting article on "The Poor Not Growing Poorer." He takes an optomistic view and among other things says:

While it is entirely true that the business methods of the past thirty years have tended to increase enormously the fortunes of a few, and thus to widen the gulf between the very rich and the very poor, it is wholly untrue that the poor as a class are either absolutely or relatively poorer than before. Indeed, the number of small but comfortable homes in every part of the country as well as the reports of savings-banks and building and insurance associations, prove incontestably that the poor have shared in the prosperity of the rich, and that the average standard of comfort was never higher than at present. Indeed the average workingman of today lives better and possesses more of the comforts of life than the average noble of six hundred years ago. The sins of wealth, though many and grievous, have not generally been aimed directly at the opposition of the poor.

It cost $88,789 to collect the income tax that was not collected.

A Chicago man has just been sent to the penitentiary for a year for striking a woman voter and breaking her nose. Chicago justice is not as bad as is pictured.

New Jersey has plenty of Republican papers but very few have come out boldly to champion the canvass of any one man for the Gubernatorial nomination.

It is good news—that of the trolley extension from Elizabeth to Plainfield. But what Plainfield wants more than any thing else is extension of the local system.

The words of Mayor Gilbert on the bond issue published in the news columns of The Daily Press are clear and explicit enough. They will be read with interest.

It costs something to break a police officer in New York. Already the bills for the two trials of Inspector McLoughlin amount to $26,000 and still there are more to come.

Japan is not very modest in her demands on China. All that she wants for abandoning the Laiu Tung territory is $37,500,000 in addition to the sum already agreed to be paid.

The Newark fire commissioners are being criticised for cutting down the expense of shoeing the department horses and then spending $25 for gold badges for their own decorations.

Bloomers caused the discharge of a typewriter girl in Rochester a few days ago. But the meanness of the employer's act is somewhat mitigated when it is known that she is a Chicago girl.

Bread and water was the most effective argument the warden of the Passaic county jail could use when a number of prisoners went on a strike and refused to work on the county road. It is almost superfluous to say that they are working now.

Philadelphia is trying to float a $1,200,000 loan at three per cent., and so far has been unsuccessful. Bankers say they can do better with their money than to invest in bonds bearing such a low rate of interest. This is a pretty good sign of business activity. —New Brunswick Fredonian.

A new New York state law provides that overseers of the poor having charge in the several counties of the state, shall hereafter send to the Pasteur institute in the city of New York, all persons duly certified by regular physicians to have been bitten by rabid animals, or otherwise put in danger of infection with rabies.

Chief Counsul Potter, of the League of American Wheelmen, proposes to bring to an issue in the courts the matter of whether or not railroads can be compelled to check bicycles the same as trunks. The law classifies bicycles as vehicles, and under a strict application of the statute, the case would involve a delicate point for the courts to decide.

Judge Ross, of the United States District Court, has rendered a decision declaring the Wright irrigation law unconstitutional. Under the Wright act bonds have been issued to the extent of $50,000,000 and over, and they are held all over this country and Europe. The decision invalidates $25,000,000 of bonds in irrigation districts in which confirmation proceedings have not been taken.

Constable Brown, of Union Township, may not be a great detective, but he certainly had a great head when he conceived the idea of giving the captured horse of farm thieves the bit and letting him run down the culprits. The noble animal, it is said, went roundabout through highways, by-ways, etc., and finally brought up in a Newark stable where the keeper gave a description of the owner. And now the police are looking for the man. This sleuth-hound of a steed may fear not the inroads of the trolley. His domain is on the staff of Sheriff Tamsen, who would forthwith assign him to running down the escaped post office thieves.

Foster M. Voorhees' was described as a "summer girl" by an Essex politician last week. Just what this means is not clear, unless is be that engagements don't count.—Paterson Press.

Collins, the murderer of a Princeton student, received a sentence of twenty years in State Prison. College students should learn a lesson from this sad affair that is not taught them by professors.

It is well said that if Senator Rogers, the A. P. A. man, is nominated for Governor, he will stand on a crack instead of on a platform. His political views are so narrow he would be lost on a platform—Clinton Democrat.

Does the Courier-News editor really think that he can, in political parlance, "break" the present city administration because they perform their duty in a conscientious manner, satisfactory to all with the exception of a few like himself, who are not as big as they may feel.

Thomas Collier Platt has declared himself to be in favor of Levi Parsons Morton for the Presidential nomination on the Republican ticket. Mr. Morton has something else besides Mr. Platt's support, to prove that he is an extraordinary man. He has been Vice-President of the United States and is still in public life.

At the New Brunswick Common Council meeting last night Alderman Miller, Republican, and Alderman Mulvey, Democrat, tossed pennies to decide the deadlock which has existed since May 1 last. Miller won the toss and Mulvey had to vote for William H. Helm for president of the Council. This gives the Republicans control of the Board for the first time in fifteen years.

Ex-Congressman John Kean is telling what he will do if nominated for Governor on the Republican ticket. He says that the taxation system in the State is wrong, and believes that taxes upon railroads and other corporations should go to the municipalities in which their property is located. If there is to be a State tax on corporations, which is not to go to the muncipalities, it should be devoted to the schools, and then the regular State expenditures would be assessed upon the taxpayers, and they would see to it that there was no extravagance, says Mr. Kean.

The Newark Advertiser amusingly claims for Essex the honor of setting an example to the other counties in the matter of road building. It patronizingly speaks of Union as being second in order of merit. There is nothing like impudence. We had thought the claims of Union both as to priority and quality of roads was undisputed. It certainly is, outside of a Newark newspaper. Essex has some fair roads and one or two good ones; but she has also some of the most atrocious mud lanes in the State.—Jersey City News.

Fares to Be Reduced.

It is currently reported that the Central railroad will reduce their passenger excursion fares from Elizabeth to New York from 40 to 25 cents, from Elizabeth to Newark from 25 to 15 cents. To meet this, the directors of the Consolidated Traction Company met Thursday night, and decided, it is said, to reduce their excursion rate to Newark from 20 to 10 cents.—Contractor.

No Need to Worry.

The contractors who made deposits with their bids on the house connections with the sewers are somewhat disturbed about the return of their checks. It was understood that after the contract was signed with John Siddall they would be returned but they have so far failed to materialize.

CITY COURT IS KEPT BUSY WITH DELINQUENTS OF LAW.

Another Rider on the Sidewalk Caught —A Lively Time in the Lumber Yard on South Second Street—The Horse Case.

The city court was a lively place last Monday and the station house was crowded with the prisoners, their witnesses and a few listeners.

The first charge was against Herbert Moore for riding a bicycle on the sidewalk on West Seventh street. He pleaded guilty and paid the fine of $5 that was imposed.

John Kneeland and Edward Bray were the next before the Judge and were charged with being disorderly on South Second street and with quarreling and fighting. Bray, who is an employe at the Pond Tool Company's Works, said that he was going to Philadelphia and went over to Kneeland's to leave an order for his last week's wages but that Kneeland would not believe that he was going, and chased and pounded him all over the lumber yard on South Second street. Witnesses corroborated his statement and Kneeland was given his choice between a fine of $10 or thirty days in the county jail. He paid his fine.

Bray pleaded guilty of being drunk and paid a fine of $5 in preference to going to jail for twenty days.

The pugilistic propensities of Thomas Humble, William Waldron and William Laine, colored, appeared to have been too much for them, and they were charged with fighting. William R. Codington appeared as their counsel, and asked for an adjournment which was granted, and the prisoners put under $50 bail to appear in the city court next Monday morning at nine o'clock.

The last of the batch of charges was the one against James Dooley for fighting in the Metropolitan stables on Friday evening. George W. DeMeza acted as his counsel. The complaint was made by William M. Greenwood who, when asked what Dooley did, remarked: "He knocked me on the floor three times, and that is straight goods." But Dooley did not agree, and pleaded not guilty, although he owned up that he knocked Greenwood down once in self-defence.

Greenwood's horse is slowly dying of the lockjaw at the Metropolitan stables, and Greenwood has been taking care of him most of the time. Friday he was there as usual, and another man were sitting in a carriage outside, the stall. Some one asked Greenwood how his horse was, and he returned an insulting answer which brought on a war of words between Dooley and Greenwood. Then Greenwood stepped out and pulled Dooley out of the carriage and told him to get along. A row was imminent but a bystander separated the two, and Dooley started to leave when Greenwood struck him in the face. The peacemaker, having regard for his own face, got out of the way and told them to "go it if you want to" and they did, and Dooley left his opponent with a sorry looking face to remember the occasion by. As Dooley did not start the scrap, Judge Coddington discharged him.

FROM THE CONVENTION.

Enthusiastic Reports From the Great Gathering at Boston.

A glimpse of the recent Christian Endeavor Convention at Boston was given to the members of the Christian Endeavor Society of the Congregational church last evening. Miss Alice Woodland, one of the delegates of the Christian Endeavor Society of the First Baptist church, made a short address and told of her experiences at the convention and was very enthusiastic over the great event. An interesting letter from their own delegate, Miss Julia A. Butler, was read and also greatly enjoyed.

The meeting was conducted by Miss Julia Belknap, and closed with a short consecration service. The society does not meet again until the first Sunday in September on account of the closing of the church for repairs.

Pleasure at Asbury Park.

There is nothing which adds more to the pleasure of a trip to the seashore than good accommodations and first-class board at the hotel in which you are staying, and the Hotel Brandt, at 304 First avenue, Asbury Park, offers all those advantages besides being close to the beach. J. Wesley Cross, the energetic proprietor, has done all that he can for the comfort of his patrons and as a result has a first-class house.

CITY MADE A GOOD BARGAIN.

MAYOR GILBERT MAKES A PLAIN STATEMENT ON THE BOND ISSUE.

Those Who Are Opposed to the Action of the Council Do Not Understand the Conditions of the Money Market.

The following is an authorized interview with Mayor Gilbert on the proposed bond issue for the payment of the sewerage system now in course of construction. It is a plain statement, easily understood, which sets at rest all the erroneous and misleading statements made by the ignorance of Editor Runyon of the Courier-News:

"It is to be sincerely regretted," said the Mayor, "that the merchants of the city have not thoroughly understood the efforts the Financial Committee and myself have made to secure the best possible terms for the city, both in the matter of obtaining money on the city's notes, and in the future disposal of our bonds. The law passed in 1890, and amended in 1894, permits the Common Council to put in a system of sewerage when the owners of one half the assessed valuation of the city shall petition to that effect, but no bonds can be sold for such purpose until the sewers are completed and the assessments levied, the provisions of the law being that as soon as the sewers are installed and ready for work, commissioners shall be appointed to assess the benefits derived by each property holder, which must be paid by him. The balance of the cost including sums spent for the filtration beds and their preparation, for junctions, manholes, flush tanks, etc., must be paid for by the city, and it is for this only that we can issue bonds. You can see therefore that at present we have no bonds for sale and hence cannot advertise them; furthermore, until the Commissioners make their report, we do not know for how much bonds must be issued, although the sum estimated is between $60,000 and $70,000. Finally we cannot tell when the bonds can be issued, the time depending upon the assessment of benefits and the conclusion of any lawsuits which may result from the same.

"Possibly we may not be able to sell any bonds under eighteen months or two years, yet we must have money to carry on the work, and to pay the contractors. Not only that, we must provide as near as possible for the whole sum needed to complete the work. Recognizing this fact at the commencement of the work, we opened negotiations with the Plainfield banks. The City and the First National Banks offered to loan the city money on its notes at 5 per cent., but the Council deeming the rate of interest too high refusec to accept it. Then E. R. Pope, treasurer of the Dime Savings Institution offered us $25,000 at 4½ per cent., and this we did accept.

"Failing to obtain more money in Plainfield we approached a number of New York banks and financial institutions, but found none willing to loan on the city's notes under 4½ per cent., and only a few were willing to accept that rate. Noting the low rate of interest prevailing and being desirous of doing the best possible for the city, we were ambitious to obtain such money as we ne needed at 4 per cent. We also thought the present the best time to make arrangements for the future sale of a 4 per cent. bond. With these two aims in view, namely, obtaining money on notes at 4 per cent, and the future sale of an undetermined quantity of 4 per cent bonds, we again opened negotiation with New York banking houses. Under date of June 28th, the Mutual Life, Insurance Company replied, stating that the company would loan the city $100,000 on its notes at 4½ per cent. on condition that an option was given them to take the 4 per cent. bonds at par when they were issued. Harvey Fisk & Sons wrote on July 1st, that they would loan the city money at 4 per cent., the notes to be redeemed with 4 per cent, gold bonds. These two propositions were submitted by me to the financial committee and by it to the Council at its meeting on July 8th. The bid of Harvey Fisk & Sons being the best for the city, it was adopted by resolution, six out of the nine members of the Council present voting in its favor."

In reply to the question as to whether it would have been better for the city to borrow the money needed now at 4½ per cent, leaving the bonds unsold until they could be issued, and also as to the claim that bonds should bring a premium, the Mayor said:

"I have doubt that if we had bonds for sale, a small premium could be obtained for them, but we do not know that a 4 per cent bond could be sold at par one or two years hence. The rates for money are advancing, and one year from now it might be impossible to float our bonds at less than 4½ or 5 per cent. As I have already stated, the amount to be issued will be about $60,000. Would it be a good business transaction, in view of the possibility of being able to get a premium of from 3 to 5 per cent. on bonds to be issued a year or two hence, to take the risk of not being able to negotiate our bonds at a better rate than 4½ or 5 per cent., and thus subject the city to a possible loss of from three to five times as great as the premiums that might be obtained? Now, we have certainty; on the other hand there is nothing but uncertainty. New Jersey municipal bonds have not the fame of those of the New England states, as it is only within the last few years that a law has been passed relieving them from taxation, neither can we compare our bonds with those of the great cities of New York and Brooklyn which are bought for special reasons. Among recent sales of New Jersey municipal bonds I have noticed the following:

Bayonne, $48,000, 5 per cent. at 108; Atlantic City, $775,000, 5 per cent. at 104½; Belleville $65,000, 4 per cent. at par.

From this it will be seen that Plainfield has done better than Bayonne or Atlantic City, and as well as Belleville, which advertised extensively for bids, and whose entire bonded indebtness does not exceed $100,000. After thirty eight years experience in banks and banking, I do not hesitate in saying that our city has made a wonderfully good bargain."

Free Coinage of Words.

If Roswell G. Horr does not believe in the free coinage of silver, his debate with Harvey at Chicago shows that he believes in the free coinage of words. In his vigorous speech, he has the English language at command in a remarkale manner, and on Thursday he coined a word for the occasion. In reply to the question if the demonetization of gold would not greatly lower its price Mr. Horr said: "The questioner assumes that it is possible to demonetize gold, which is absolutely impossible. All the nations in existence could not demonetize gold. Do you think that all the laws of the world could 'debread' wheat?"

LAW FOR CYCLISTS.

Judge Gunster Declares That the Wheel Is Equal to the Wagon.

It may interest Plainfield bycl sts to know what is the legal status of the bicycle upon the road. The Philadelphia Press publishes the following:

Judge Gunster has defined in an elaborate opinion on the legal status of the bicycle in Pennsylvania. This opinion establishes the fact that the bicycle is a vehicle and has the same right on the highway as other vehicles. Its proper place is upon the street or driveway, and not on the sidewalk. If a bicycle rider has occasion to stop on his way he may leave his vehicle for a reasonable length of time on the side of the highway or street, placed in a proper manner so as not unduly to interfere with the rights of others while he is calling at the residence or place of business of an abutting owner or occupant, and the person who negligently injures a vehicle so left is liable for the full amount of the damages caused by negligence. This is national law, and when understood by the drivers of horses will relieve bicycle riders of much annoyance. The average driver considers the bicyclist as an intruder and a nuisance, having no rights to the road and no title to consideration. Many of them, so far from trying to avoid collision with a bicycle resting by the curb, will go out of their way to smash it. When they understand that fun of this character means the price of a new bicycle out of their own pockets, they will take a little pains to drive around and not over a resting bicycle. The bicyclemen and the horsemen have exactly the same rights on the street, and each must exercise these rights so as not to interfere with the others.

A DEPARTURE BY NIGHT.

Six Plainfield Boys Off For Camp on Hank's Lake.

These cool evenings are delightful for riding and now that the new moon is growing and lends its light to the scene, it is simply grand, and what could make it more romantic than to be starting out with a party of friends in a wagon for a grand camping spree. That is what the Norwood Athletic club boys did at half-past one yesterday morning. Just before they went Mrs. B. T. Barnes served them a supper or breakfast, which ever it was. The two wagons carried, beside the large load of camp equipage, the following young men: Burt Wyckoff, Clarence Thorne, Wyatt Barnes, Harry Fulper, Frank Smalley and Percy McVoy. Curtis M. Thorpe, of Norwood avenue, very kindly presented the campers with a hammock for which they were very grateful. Last, but not least, of the party was Jack, Percy McVoy's faithful dog. They camped on the road last night and expected to reach their camping grounds on the shores of Hank's Pond, near Newfoundland at noon today, the distance being fifty-two miles from here. There will be two weeks of solid enjoyment spent in camp during which time they will not starve judging from the large quantity of provisions that were purchased at Fulper's. David Smalley, the butcher, loaned one the horses and Mrs. Albert Wyckoff supplied the cooking utensils.

DEATH OF PATRICK DALEY.

TAKEN SUDDENLY ILL AND DIED IN A SHORT TIME.

Came to This Country When a Young Man and Soon Held Responsible Positions—Helped to Organize St. Mary's.

In the death of Patrick Daley which occurred at his home on Manning avenue, Saturday night, the community loses a valued and respected citizen. Mr. Daley had been in his usual good health and retired about nine o'clock. Shortly afterwards he complained of not feeling very well, but refused to have a physician, thinking he would be all right in a short time. He gradually grew worse until he expired. His son Charles went for a physician at a late hour, but life was extinct when he arrived. He gave the cause of death as apoplexy.

Patrick Daley was born in the County of Cork, Ireland, 68 years ago. At the age of eighteen, he came to this country and settled in New Haven, where he lived for two years, during which time he superintended the construction of one of the oldest railroads.

From there he came to Plainfield and secured the position as foreman of the construction of the old Central Railroad of New Jersey, which position he held for five years. At that time he met Miss Mary Harty, who lived in Plainfield, and was married to her in the Catholic church at Raritan, there being no church of that faith in Plainfield at that time. They lived at the corner of New and Second streets for several years. Mrs. Daley died about thirteen years ago.

Mr. Daley was actively engaged in business and was one of a few who assisted in organizing St. Mary's R. C. church.

He purchased a farm at Washington Valley about this time and remained there for nine years, after which he sold it and purchased a place on Chatham street, where he and his family lived for thirty years. Two years ago they moved to Manning avenue which is their present place of residence.

One sister living in New York, five sons and four daughters survive him. His mother came to this country several years ago and died in New York sometime later.

The Fault of a Flaw.

Through a flaw in his velocipede little Carl Schroder, of Watchung avenue, sustained a serious injury Saturday afternoon. He was riding along the sidewalk near his home when the velocipede gave way and the lad fell, striking a sharp projection which was run several inches into the flesh. Dr. Hedges was called and the wound sewed up. He is doing very nicely now.

How a Woman Works for Her Sex.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

Seated at her desk in the bureau of correspondence, this wonderful woman opens her letters from all parts of the world. A few extracts from their contents tell the story.—

FROM IOWA. "I am in a very bad condition. My courses have stopped from catching cold, and the pain is fearful. I am all bloated up; and the pain in lower part of my body is terrible. My back and head ache all the time. What shall I do for it?" Miss L——, Des Moines.

FROM NEW JERSEY. Mrs. Lizzie DeCline, 224 Grand Street, Jersey City, relates her miseries resulting from womb trouble, from which she was relieved and cured by the timely use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She ends her letter by saying, "I owe all to you."

FROM OHIO. Mrs. Newton Cobb, of Manchester, O., writes: "I used eight bottles of your Vegetable Compound, and I am happy to say it has cured me of painful menstruations and backache. My suffering every month was dreadful. The doctors gave me morphine to ease the pain; nothing to cure me. Oh, I want to tell every one what cured me! I wish every suffering woman would write and get your advice."

FROM ILLINOIS. Miss Jennie ——, Chicago, states that she is twenty-two years of age; occupation, saleswoman in large dry goods store. Constant standing has brought on womb trouble, the symptoms of which she describes fully. She says: "Help me if you can. There are several girls I know who have written to Mrs. Pinkham, and been cured by her advice and medicine."

FROM PENN'S'Y'A. Miss Mary Smylie, who resides at 2078 E. Susquehanna Avenue, Kensington, Phila., writes: "I am a working-girl, and must stand eleven hours every day. I have suffered terribly from painful menstruations and kidney trouble. At times my head was so dizzy I could hardly see. A friend recommended your Vegetable Compound. I am a different girl now: no more aches and pains. Oh, thank you, thank you!"

The above extracts from many hundred letters received daily by Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., go to show how easily ailing women can obtain advice and relief. Write to Mrs. Pinkham.

YOUNG GARFIELD.

SON OF THE LATE PRESIDENT TO ENTER POLITICS.

Young "Jim" Wants to Win on His Merits, Not by Reflected Glory. Has His Weather Eye on Congress. Coincidences with His Father's Public Career.

The nomination for State Senator of James R. Garfield, son of the murdered President, has aroused a great deal of political interest in Ohio. He is a candidate from the Portage Summit District, comrpising the same counties which, in 1859, elected his father in the same position.

The late James A. Garfield was 28 years old when chosen, and had been married to Lucretta Rudolph but one year. James R. Garfield is nominated at the same age, and he, too, has been married but little more than a year.

Another coincidence is that the nomination came to the younger Garfield on July 2, anniversary of the date on which his father, fourteen years ago, was shot down by Guiteau. There is, however, no coincidence in the financial condition of the father and son at the time of their respective nominations. The "Jim" Garfield of 1859 was poor. His wife was poor also, but both were well educated, and both brave in the battle of life.

The "Jim" Garfield who is entering politics in 1895 is really a rich man. The generosity of the nation made his mother one of the richest women of the Western Reserve, and young "Jim" married the daughter of a millionaire. Garfield the elder and Garfield the younger were both graduated from Williams College. Young "Jim" is also a graduate of the Columbia Law School, though he was admitted, by examination, to practice before the Supreme Court of Ohio.

JAMES R. GARFIELD.
(the son)
As State Senator in 1895.

There will be no doubt of his election, and from now on there will be another "Jim" Garfield in the politics of Ohio. He is a young man of ambitious tendencies and is very proud of his father's name.

He wishes to stand on his own merits and not to be held up for popular esteem simply because he is the son of his father. It is no secret that his ambition is to acquire legislative experience in the Ohio Senate, and then to take his father's old place in Congress from the same old Nineteenth District that gave Giddings, Wade and Garfield to the nation.

Indeed She Would Marry.

When an Indian girl was asked about her idea of marriage the other day she said calmly:

"Well, I don't know if I would marry for money alone; but if a man had plenty of money, allied to a sweet disposition and a mustache that curled at both ends, and his father was rich and his mother and sisters aristocratic, and he wanted to marry me, and he would promise to let me have my own way in everything and keep me liberally supplied with money, was liberal about diamonds and other gems, also about the milliner, never grumbling, and I really and truly loved him, I shouldn't consider marriage a drawback."

A Modified Statement.

It is related as characteristic of a certain professor at Harvard that he was lecturing to a Radcliffe class not very long ago and happened to say in the midst of his lecture: "It is the duty of women to be beautiful;" then he paused, looked his audience over thoughtfully, and added, "at least decently good looking!"—Boston Transcript.

A PLAUSIBLE DEFENSE.

A Novel Claim Will be Set Up to Save Freehill's Neck.

It is reported that a novel and yet seemingly effectual and common sense defense will be made by the counsel of Frank Freehill, the man charged with the murder of Special Officer Jewell, of Rahway, last March. It is well-known that in many of the small inland towns officers, and particularly special officers, are not uniformed and do not generally even display their badge when they desire to make an arrest, preferring to cow their man into submission by a degree of officiousness that is as aggravating as it is uncalled for.

But whether or not Jewell was possessed of this disposition when the raid was made on the hobos it is known that he appeared in citizens clothes. It will be maintained that when Freehill was being run down by the officer, for really no serious crime, he had no knowledge of Jewell being an officer, and fearing that he would receive injury from the man, if they came in contact, he turned and shot him in self defense.

WAR WITH BROOMSTICKS.

A Lively Time on Plainfield Avenue Between Colored Scrappers.

Assault and battery is the charge against David Hooper, colored, who Justice Nash held this morning for $500 bail to appear before the Grand Jury. The affair that caused all the trouble took place last Saturday evening at dusk. David Hooper came to the house of Mrs. Kline, colored, on Plainfield avenue, to borrow something. Mrs. Kline ordered him out of the house, and enforced her order by hurling a broomstick at his head, but the article did not come anywhere near his cranium, but it did arouse his ire, and, grasping it with both hands he returned and proceeded to pound the woman with it. But that was too tame so he dropped it and finished the job with his fists. At her complaint he was arrested and brought before Justice Nash who did as above stated.

Constable Moffett took him to the station house to allow him to remain until tomorrow before taking him to Elizabeth to let him secure bail if possible. So far he has not succeeded.

Rust should be guarded against, as it destroys the surfaces of nuts and cores, so that they will not fit perfectly, and this they must do to the hundredth part of an inch if perfect freedom is desired in the workings of the various parts of the wheel.

A decision of much importance to cyclists has been rendered by Judge Payne in Chicago, when he denied the petition of John H. Breckinridge to compel the Fort Dearborn building propietors to allow bicycles to be stored there by tenants. Breckinridge, who is an attorney, with offices in the Fort Dearborn sky-scraper, had attempted to leave his wheel in the basement during office hours, and upon permission being refused carried the matter to the courts. Judge Payne declared that bicycles are mere vehicles, and as much out of place inside a business block as a horse and buggy.

The Wheelwoman asks: "Why don't some firm or individual who is alive to the situation start in to make women's wheels? If only some one had been farsighted enough to have done this last winter and spring, there would not be so many women waiting for 'our next consignment,' and somebody might have made a fortune." Well, why "don't" some woman who is alive to the situation start in making women's wheels? Such a business would have the advantage of peculiar fitness, for it would be an enterprise of women, to or for women, and with, from, by or in women, and it would be a good chance to prove the prowess of the sex in business affairs.

To Show Cause.

Judge Rice, of Middlesex County, has ordered Prosecutor Adrain to show cause on Tuesday, July 30th, why John Rinber, a witness against George Stefanko, the alleged murderer of Stephen Nagy, should not be released from custody on his own recognizance. The witness has been confined since last January. He is not believed to be a very important witness. George Stefanko was one of the eight prisoners who escaped from the county jail a month ago, and has not been found.

UNCLE SAM'S MAN MARRIED.

QUIET WEDDING OF MISS STORR TO JAMES MULLEN.

The Ceremony Performed in Their Own Home, Surrounded By a Few Near Relatives—Congratulations.

A very quiet but pretty home wedding took place last evening at the home of the groom in Manning's flats on West Front street, when Miss Kate Storr was married to Letter-carrier James Mullen. The ceremony was performed at 7:45 by Rev. G. Kennedy Newell in the presence of a few relatives. The bride was becomingly attired in a gown of pearl gray, with bangle trimmings, while the bridesmaid, Mrs. Frank Storr, wore a gown of white dotted swiss. The best man was Frank Storr. After the ceremony supper was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Mullen received many handsome and useful presents from friends along Mr. Mullen's delivery route. His fellow-carriers gave him an elegant dining room set of furniture, and among the other gifts were a plush rocker, banquet lamp, silver ware, cut glass, a box of choice cut flowers and five-hundred pansies.

The happy couple will enjoy their bridal tour a little later when Mr. Mullen gets his vacation. He received many congratulations this morning as he left mail on his route.

THROWN FROM A WAGON.

The Turn was Too Sharp and Dunavan Dislocated His Shoulder.

It often happens that the most careless men escape from an accident without injury, while the careful man receives a serious injury and so it was with D. S. Dunavan, the tinner of East Front street. Yesterday he was riding in his wagon up East Third street and attempted to turn into Church street. The turn was sharp and the wheel passed under the body of the wagon but the load brought it very low and just at the wrong moment the wheel caught and the wagon was overturned. Dunavan, who is a very careful driver did not see what had happened until he felt himself shot into the air. He struck the ground heavily with part of the load on top of him and when he tried to move he found his shoulder had been dislocated.

The young boy who works in Dunavan's shop was in the wagon with him and was thrown out but sustained no serious injury. Dunavan was also badly bruised but he managed to walk to his home at the corner of East Second and Church streets. The horse ran but was caught after going a block. Dr. D. C. Adams was called and the injured man repaired as much as possible. He is now getting along very well.

Novel Sewer Test.

Constructing Engineer Gavett and assistants are this afternoon making a novel test of the Putnam avenue sewer main to find out whether it is clear of all obstructions and dirt. A hose is run into a manhole and the main filled with a heavy volume of water, and then a wooden ball six inches in diameter is dropped in. If carried through with the water to the next manhole, it proves the pipe to be clear. The mains throughout the city will be tested by that system.

An Old Sign.

The sign over the postoffice door at Bayonne is the same sign that hung for years over the door of the New York postoffice when the old Middle Dutch church in Nassau street was used by the government. The postmaster, Robert A. Ansart, of Bergen Point, secured it, and it has been regilded from time to time, and now swings, a well-preserved relic of old New York.

Work on the Trolley Commenced.

The Brunswick Traction Company began work on the trolley road in New Brunswick a day or two ago. Two hundred men were put at work on the extension which is to run from the steamboat dock and join the present line at George street. The company expects to have the extension in operation with horse-cars by next Sunday.

A Haymaker Delegate.

At the regular meeting of Paugh-Caugh-Naugh-Sinque Tribe, I.R.O.M., last evening a new team was appointed who will meet next Monday night for practice. The Haymakers Association met afterward and Deputy President John H. Carney installed the officers-elect. Charles I. Young was elected representative to the National Association of Haymakers which meets at Trenton in August.

A Costly Steal.

Dell Halliday, of Illinois, was stealing a ride on a coal train near Bound Brook, this morning when he fell off a car, with the result of his left foot getting in under the wheels and being crushed.

He was brought to Plainfield in the caboose, the ambulance was sent for and he was taken to the hospital. Dr. Long found it necessary to amputate several toes. He will soon be able to leave the institution.

LOOKED LIKE AN ELOPEMENT.

After Affidavits Were Made the Minister Performed the Ceremony.

Adolph Heiner, a barber of Woodbridge, came to Rahway Tuesday night in a coach accompanied by Anna L. Sinder, a pretty girl of seventeen. On the back of the coach in large letters were the words, "We are going to get married."

The vehicle was followed from Woodbridge by about twenty-five wheelmen as a bodyguard and the unique procession attracted much attention as it passed through Rahway to the residence of C. F. A. Klein, on Popular street, where the coach halted and the couple alighted and rang the door bell.

Rev. Mr. Klein, when informed of their mission, thought it a case of elopement, and at first refused to perform the ceremony. The prospective bride then showed the minister a note which she had from her legal guardian, Mrs. Phillip Lockhurst, of Woodbridge, giving her consent to the wedding. Still the clergyman doubted, and it was not until the couple made an affidavit that the signature on the note was genuine would he agree to marry them.

When the couple emerged, radiant with happiness, the cyclists greeted them with deafening cheers.

The procession was reformed and started back for Woodbridge. Many Rahway cyclists, whose attention had been attracted by the uproar, joined the turnout and helped to swell it to quite a demonstration. There was a big time at Woodbridge where a drum corps was in waiting to head the parade when it reached that place.

BREACH OF PROMISE CHARGED.

Mrs. Allen Says McInerney Agreed to Marry Her.

Patrick McInerney, aged twenty, was arrested in Passaic yesterday on a charge of breach of promise made by Susan Allen, a widow, of Summit. She went before Justice Jacobs, of Elizabeth, and swore the prisoner betrayed her under promise of marriage. She said she became acquainted with McInerney last May in Ireland, where she had gone on a visit, and paid his passage to this country.

He has two sisters living in Passaic, and when they heard, by a letter from their mother, that he had sailed for New York, they went to Ellis Island to inquire for him, and learned he had landed the day before and went away with his cousin. Then the sisters traced him to Summit. They persuaded him to accompany them to Passaic.

One of the sisters and her brother-in-law were in Elizabeth yesterday afternoon. They saw Justice Jacobs, who told them they would better consult a lawyer. They said Mrs. Allen was scheming to get a young husband, and they felt confident that their relative was the victim of a plot. They promised to return to Elizabeth today to secure his release.

The Battle of Bound Brook.

The Washington Camp Ground Association, which is to all intents and purposes the historical society of Somerset county, has recently published in pamphlet form the story of the Battle of Bound Brook, fought on the morning of April 13th, 1777. This battle, of which hitherto but little has been known, was one of the most destructive, to the American forces, waged on New Jersey soil. Rev. T. E. Davis, who prepared the article, spent much time and labor in visiting libraries in Massachusetts, New York and New Jersey, to collect the necessary material. The result is that for the first time readers now have a complete and authentic account of this engagement. A copy will be mailed post paid on receipt of 25 cents. Address The Chronicle, Bound Brook.

Open Barber Shops Boycotted.

The Journeymen Barbers' Association of North Hudson has decided to boycott all the barber shops in Union Hill adjacent towns that are open after eight o'clock in the evening. The barbers paraded the streets at night and distributed circulars calling upon the citizens to aid in the early closing movement. They intend to keep up the boycott against the shops that that refuse to close until they are successful.

The Baby Parade.

The baby parade at Asbury Park is scheduled for the first or second week in August. Last year the parade was in charge of Senator Bradley's niece. Who will manoeuvre the babies this year is still an open question. One thing, however, is practically agreed upon—the brick path instead of the board walk. This will enable the thousands to witness the procession without the use of the bleachers.

New Light From a Dark Face.

Hughey Dougherty, the black-face orator, is going to have something interesting to say about the recent reform movements during his engagement at Keith's Union Square theatre in New York two weeks hence. Mr. Dougherty's views are always unique and original. He may be expected to shed some new light on the subject.

TURMOIL OF EXCITEMENT.

PROMINENT CITIZENS INVOLVED IN THE SOMERSET BANK TROUBLE.

Subpœnas Served On Well-Known Men Who Were Members of the Board of Directors—Bitter Feeling Aroused.

(Special to The Daily Press.)

Somerville, N. J., July 25th.—Somerset county was thrown into a turmoil yesterday when Sheriff George A. Dilts served twenty of the most prominent men in the county with subpœnas. All the gentlemen served were members of the Board of Directors of the defunct Somerset County Bank, and the suit in Chancery was brought by Receiver Johnson for the benefit of the stockholders to recover monies, which the bill charges were lost by the illegal and fraudulent conduct of the directors. The bill charges also that the directors discounted notes of irresponsible parties in sums footing up to $50,000.

It is alleged that J. N. Pidcock, and the companies in which he was largely interested, were allowed to borow $60,000 from the bank upon paper of little value; and that the directors, as custodians of the stockholders money, are responsible for the losses. Most of the directors are men of unblemished reputation, and their friends claim that they were misled as to the worth of the endorsements, and that they have become involved in the present difficulty because of their confidence in a few of the directors who controlled the management of the bank affairs.

Among the defenders who were summoned today are Calvin Corle, a rich farmer of Neshanic, J. Nelson Pidcock, John B. Voorhees, Abraham S. Cox, Hon. John D. Bartine, Judge of the Common Pleas of Somerset county, ex-Congressman Alvah A. Clark, Alexander G. Anderson, a large lumber dealer of Somerville, Geo. S. VanArsdale, Stephen K. Large, James H. Wilson, James P. Major, Job C. Kenyon, owner of a big foundry at Raritan, August Miller, John V. Davis, William A. McMurtry, ex-Senator William J. Keys, Larue Vredenburgh, Jr., and Hugh K. Gaston, as administrators.

Owing to the prominence of the parties involved, the very bitter feeling now existing between the directors and the stockholders and the fact that many of the directors feel bitterly toward each other, the taking of testimony promises to be the most sensational in the history of this county.

DIDN'T LIKE THE MULE.

Trader Broxmeyer Flees From the Tribe of Angry Gypsies.

The nomads recently arrived in New York from Brazil and bound for California are encamped at New Brunswick. They number about one hundred; a set of swarthy, gayly dressed and filthy wanderers, with twenty-two tents, numerous wagons and many horses. The vagabonds are under the leadership of a chief, reported to be fabulously rich, who spends his gold freely, and since, like all his followers, he cannot understand the vernacular, he is often cheated.

A small riot started in camp over a dispute between the gypsy chief and John Broxmeyer, a horse-dealer, who had arranged to exchange a mule for a horse. When the mule arrived the chief refused to adhere to his agreement. Broxmeyer insisted and the chief expostulated with wild gestures. His people took a hand in the argument and the mule-owner fled for his life.

Two of the nomads attempted to steal the horse and carriage of Dr. Joseph Bradley, who caught up with the two men. They showed fight, but fled at the approach of the police.

Veteran Tourists.

Bright and early Tuesday morning J. Van Eps, of Park avenue, and B. R. Force, of East Front street, started out on their wheels for Asbury Park. At Matawan, the riders lost their way, and wandered about trying to find it again. At last they succeeded and reached the Park after seven hours of riding. They put up at the Ocean House and took in all the sights of the place that evening. Yesterday morning they began the return trip and came home by the way of Rahway and Westfield, after a very pleasant journey, without an accident to wheels or tires. Neither of them is any the worse for their little jaunt.

More Trouble for Kiernan.

It looks as if Sylvester J. Kiernan, the young insurance agent who was convicted of stealing thousands of dollars from insurance companies and was sentenced to five months in the Union County jail, was not yet out of his troubles. His brother today asked the Court to order the Prosecutor to deliver up Kiernan's private books, but the Prosecutor refused, as, he said, the books were to go before the October Grand Jury, which would indicate that a new charge is to be made. Kiernan's term will expire in a few days. The Court said it had no right to order the surrender of the books.

BONES AND TAMBO HERE.

An Excellent Entertainment Given by the Young Men's League of Hope Chapel.

Over two hundred and twenty paid their admission fee to the entertainment at Hope chapel last evening, and a very pleasant time was enjoyed by all. The entertainment was divided into two parts, a minstrel performance was the first, and music and recitations made up the second. The end-men were William Nicholson and David Thompson, and were very good in that position. Fred Wharton was the interlocutor and the rest on the stage were James Penny, C. Wallander, Betram Tallamy, John Coes, Walter Mague and Cornelius Ackerman.

Owing to the failure of several of the singers to appear, the chorus singing was not as good as it might have been had they been present, but altogether the whole entertainment was a most creditable performance.

The programme opened with the chorus, "The Silent Tide," after which James Penny gave a vocal solo entitled, "I Love You All." David Thompson, as bones, next told one of his funny stories about two bootblacks and sang "The Whistling Coon," the chorus to which was whistled by all. Another chorus "Quite by Chance" followed and then tambo, William Nicholson, tried to find out who he was, and at last figured up that he was his own grandfather. "Down By the River Side," was his solo. He was loudly encored, and after another story sang "The Soldier's Tear."

A vocal solo by Comerford opened second part, and then followed a duet by F. Wharton and T. Comerford, entitled: "The Minute Gun at Sea." A comic sketch, "Seeing Boston," was given by Mague and Thompson and George Lee recited "William Tell." A scene in a barber shop by Nicholson and Thompson brought the evening's entertainment to a close.

The last selection was a most amusing one.

The committee that arranged the entertainment consisted of Messrs. Wharton, Nicholson, Roseberry, Thompson, Penny, Davis and J. Randolph.

Gored By a Bull.

Wm. Beardsley, of Montgomery avenue, Belleville, had several of his rib broken and was gored in the chest by an infuriated bull, which he was endeavoring to lead to pasture Tuesday afternoon. He was rescued by the neighbors, who armed themselves with heavy fence rails, and belabored the beast until it could no longer see Beardsley, who was then drawn from under its feet. Beardsley, who is an extensive dairy farmer, is in a critical condition.

ASSAULT WITH INTENT TO KILL

GUSTAVE AMTHOR WILL HAVE TO ANSWER TO THE GRAND JURY.

Arraigned Before Justice Nash and Held in $500 Bail—The Boy Who He Shot on the Road to Recovery.

Gustave Amthor, of West Seventh street and Monroe avenue, was arrested last night by Sergeant Kiely on the charge of committing a felonious assault, with intent to kill, on Willie VanNest, the fifteen-year-old son of George VanNest, of Monroe avenue. Mr. Amthor appeared before Justice Nash and was held in $500 bail to await the action of the grand jury.

A. J. Woodruff, of West Seventh street, Mr. Amthor's partner in the custom house brokerage business, furnished the bonds.

The New York Sun this morning contained the following account of the affair:

Mr. Amthor is a Custom House broker at 19 Liberty street, this city, and is a son of the Treasurer of the German Savings Bank at Fourth avenue and Fourteenth street. He comes to town every morning and returns in the evening. On Tuesday he came to New York as usual. Before leaving he noticed Will VanNest, who is fifteen years old, and very small for his age, experimenting with a lawn sprinkling device which had recently been put in.

"You must not fool with that thing," Amthor said to the boy before leaving. "If you do you'll smash it first you know, and then you'll get yourself into trouble."

The boy dropped the machine and went out to the barn. There he helped his brother, who was at work, until Mr. Amthor had left, after which he returned to his experiments with the sprinkler. Presently the servant came out and told him to leave it alone.

"You know what you'll get if you don't," said she.

"Oh, you go to the devil," said the boy; "I know what I'm doing."

Much exasperated, the servant went in the house to tell Mrs. Amthor how she had been insulted. Mrs. Amthor came out and told the boy he must go away.

"You are making a lot of fuss over nothing," he replied. To hell with the old machine, anyway," and he threw down the hose attachment and turned away.

Mrs. Amthor says that he also called her a vile name. She is not in good health, and the matter so excited her that she became hysterical after she returned to tho house.

Mr. Amthor, on his return in the evening, noticed that she was in a very nervous condition. He asked her what was the matter, and she said that young Van Nest had insulted her. This was at dinner. Mr. Amthor had already dined in town, and felt more inclined to resent insults than to finish his meal. He immediately went upstairs, got his pistol, a 32-calibre revolver, and, without telling his wife where he was going, walked over to the Van Nest house to find Will. The boy was not at home, neither was his father, but Mrs. Van Nest was.

"Where is Willie?" asked Amthor, walking in with revolver in hand.

"What do you want him for?" asked Mrs. VanNest. Then, catching sight of the weapon, she cried:

"For Heaven's sake, Mr. Amthor, what are you going to do with that?"

"He's insulted my wife," shouted the visitor. "He called her a name that nobody can call my wife."

"Well, what did you call him once?" retorted Mrs. VanNest, with spirit. "Wasn't that just as hard on me as anything he could say about Mrs. Amthor?"

"I didn't mean any reflection on you, Mrs. VanNest," said the man, "but I want that little rascal. I'm going to find him, too. You're hiding him. You're trying to shelter him. Tell me where he is."

Amthor flourished his revolver about, and Mrs. VanNest says he pointed it at her. Much terrified, she disclaimed any knowledge of where her son was, and as she spoke she glanced out of the front window and saw Will at West Seventh street and Monroe avenue turning the trolley switch. He received a small compensation for doing this regularly. Involuntarily she gave a little exclamation of alarm, which caused Amthor to follow with his eye the direction of her gaze.

"There he is now!" he cried, and set out on a run, leaving the boy's mother powerless with fright.

A trolley car was coming down the track. Will had swung himself upon the car, which was occupied by one passenger, a young woman, and Conductor Nevin. None of them noticed Amthor until he was beside the car and shouted at the boy:

"Now I've got you, you little devil!"

Turning about, Will saw the pistol in his employer's hand. With a cry of terror he jumped from the further side and ran up the track calling:

"Don't let him shoot me. Help!"

Amthor also jumped from the car and fired. The boy shrieked, but it was only from fear, as the bullet missed him. An answering shriek came from the car, where the woman passenger had fallen back half fainting. Condutor Nevin ran to her, fearing that, in some way, the bullet had struck her. Again Amthor fired, and this time the young fugitive went down, rolling over and over. He stopped with outstretched limbs quivering.

"Oh, my God! I've killed him!" screamed Amthor, flinging his revolver to one side, and running up to the boy, he gathered him in his arms and ran back with him to the Amthor house, crying out upon his own deed. A messenger was sent for Dr. Jenkins, who found that the bullet had entered the right side of the abdomen and gone completely through, perforating the abdominal cavity in two places.

PLAINFIELD CAPITALISTS.

New Railroads In the South Being Built by Well-Known Men.

A new railroad 136 miles long which is now under construction and being built mostly by Plainfield capital, bids fair to be one of the important roads of the country. It will run from the West Virginia coal fields through Harrisonburg to the Chesapeake Bay.

The men now who are furnishing the capital are J. W. Reinhart, of Belvidere avenue, James Clark, of Seventh street and Central avenue, and E. C. Machen, of this city, and others. They calculate to have sixty miles completed by January 1, 1896, and the balance by July next.

There is also another line 100 miles long under construction for which charters have been granted, that will run from the Chesapeake Bay to Washington and connect with the B. & O. Railroad.

This will bring the city of Plainfield in direct communication with Chesapeake and that noted place, Fortress Monroe. That section of the country is one of great fertility and will no doubt reap large benefits to those locating there.

The officers of the company are:

President of the Railroad, J. W. Reinhart; President of Construction, Mr. Machen; Directors, James Clark, of Plainfield, Mr. Hodpyre, of Brooklyn, and ex-Secretary of Treasury Mr. Gillfilen, the latter being also the Vice-President.

A THIEF FOR A BEDFELLOW.

An Employe of Carl Kaerth Disappears With His Companion's Watch.

W. C. Stewart, who is employed by Carl Kaerth, had the unpleasant experience of waking up one night to find that his room-mate had skipped with his watch. Stewart and a man named Charles Davis, both of whom worked for Carl Kaerth, roomed together in Kaerth's house on East Second street, and last Friday evening Stewart retired rather early. When he woke up Davis was missing and so was his watch. Davis is a young man of middling height, smooth face, and walks rather lame. The police were immediately notified and measures were taken to capture the thief but up to this time no tidings of him have been received.

They Wish to Thank You.

The young women who gave the tea in the German Reformed church during the last week, wish to publicly thank those who so kindly assisted them by donations and in other equally kind ways.

LET THERE BE MORE LIGHT.

THAT IS THE EDICT OF THE CITY ELECTRIC LIGHT COMPANY.

Extensive Alterations Being Made at the Plant in Order to Provide for Increased Demands of Borough Lighting.

When the improvements which are now being made at the Plainfield Electric Light station are completed, the city will have one of the most complete and efficient plants in the State. For some time plans have been under consideration to increase the facilities for providing light for streets, houses, stores and power for motors, and the work is now progressing most favorably.

Two extensions are being built to the main building. One in the rear, twenty feet, and one on the side, fourteen feet. The whole will be thrown into one, as the rear and side walls to the present structure are being removed. Under the present system it is necessary to use two dynamos for the night work. This will be done away with and one dynamo, double the size of the present one, will perform the work. An entire new engine of the latest make and improvements will be a feature. One of the best changes, probably, will be a new switch board. The old one is not adequate to do the work as it should be done, and then besides it has reached the limit of its capacity, leaving no more room for additional circuits.

The new board will remedy in a great measure the difficulty complained of by consumers, that of the light blinking when a change from one switch to another is made.

A new 400-horse power boiler will be used to run the two dynamos, which will also give more power and better service.

The large dynamo and one of those at present used will do the work, and the others will be held in their present position as a reserve in case of an accident to the others.

Nearly all of the new machinery will be located in the new part of the building. The dimensions of the entire building, when the extensions are completed will be 100x80 feet, giving ample room for carrying on the business. Of course the additional machinery will give facilities much in advance of the present needs, but the company expect to increase their business, and the improvements are made to meet the increase, which will of necessity follow at an early date when they illumminate the borough.

The changes are being made under the direction of Superintendent W. A. McClurg and will be strictly first-class, both from a business and scientific point of view, it being the object to give the very best service possible.

SCHOONMAKER WANTS BIG MONEY

Has Brought Suits Against Many Big Papers for Libel.

Francis X. Schoonmaker, formerly of Putnam avenue in this city, is keeping busy in Chicago looking after his various suits for libel. One of the Chicago newspapers three months or more ago printed a story that Mr. Schoonmaker was a fugitive from justice. Mr. Schoonmaker is now suing every journal that reprinted the article. His latest suit is against the Sterling Gazette, Whiteside Co., Ill., from which he demands $10,000. The Gazette published the story as an editorial, in conection with comments on Mr. Schoonmaker's prominence as a debater and speaker on the gold side of the money question. Suit is brought in the U. S. Circuit Court. Mr. Schoonmaker still claiming to be a citizen of New Jersey.

The Cowardly Thief and the Beau Caller.

West Seventh street took the turn in having an attempted burglary last evening, and the thief chose the house of Mr. Dryden, at the corner of Madison avenue, as his objective point. Unluckily for the thief, it happened that the cook had company and the two were sitting out doors. While sitting there, they saw a colored man creeping along the piazza as if trying to gain admittance through the door or window. Of course a young man is always brave when his sweetheart is around, so the caller started for thief who immediately took to his heels and left not a trace behind.

Thousands Upon Thousands of men are dependent for their means of living upon occupations which would be lost to them if their eyesight should fail them. How necessary is it, therefore, that they should take every precaution to avert this affliction. The only way to know positively if your eyes have the germs of disease is to have them examined. Such examinations are free to all at Collier's, 103 Park avenue, where a skilled optician may be consulted on any business day of the week.

A Mecca for Plainfielders.

That Asbury Park is a mecca for Plainfield pilgrims is shown by the fact that, independent of the many thousands who go there on excursions, one-third of the recorded Plainfielders who leave town for change of air and scene, go to Asbury Park.

THE POLITICAL HOROSCOPE.

Poignant Comments From Bound Brook About Somerset County.

The Bound Brook Democrat publishes a half column of political gossip and among other things says:

August is the month generally when the political pot in Somerset begins to boil, but July appears to be hot. So many persons in both parties want the "loaves and fishes." Then there are men, like our old friend Ad. Hummer, who have got a "loaf," and do nothing for their party afterward. In fact, never did anything before the "loaf" was received, only "bottom chairs" at the polls on election day and receive from $50 to $100 for their services. Fact!

It is not generally known that our old friend Austin Moore was after the same position. In other words he wasn't after it, but he "was in the hands of his friends!" Now, Austin is XCongressman Alvah's errand boy, and he often jumps off his watery band wagon to give some bit of political information he thinks. Perfectly boy-like! But then Moore should remember that the XCongressman is out of politics (influence gone) or was until he promised support to XProsecutor Steele for the judgeship. But promises are not often fulfilled by some people, and Judge Bartine is still in the field and gingersnaps to doughnuts XJudge Williamson and XSheriff Ross will support him. But in the other party Louis H. Schenck looms up. Lou is a black Republican—honest, capable of filling the position, and there are scores of Democrats who will vote for him, and if a Kilkenny cat affair occurs between the Judge and the XProsecutor, Lou will slip into the office with a big majority.

But hold on! James L. Griggs, the attorney, wants the office also. Some people think he is better off in a Sunday-school than in a judge's chair, but there was a Sunday-school lawyer elected Senator in Essex county to succeed Col. Barrett. Griggs is smart. He wants the barber shops closed on Sunday and the Italian soda water and ice cream establishments kept open—they are such good places for the Sunday-school children to spend their missionary money.

"Newt" Spencer will receive the Republican nomination for Clerk. This is given him to keep him out of the race for Surrogate. Billy Long is booked for that office again, and—the more a man has the more he wants.

Gus VanDerveer, George Corle and Frank Bowman are mentioned as the Democratic candidates, but if Matt VanDerveer gives up the notion of raising beets and carrots—he can have the nomination and be elected also.

AFTER A PLAINFIELD PROFESSOR.

A Former High School Principal Excites a Big Newspaper's Ire.

The Chicago Daily News gave editorial space in a recent issue to an attack on the son of Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, of this city, who was Miss Bulkley's assistant in the management of the Plainfield High School. The News says that Professor Lewis delivered an address on "Our English, Good and Bad," and among other things said:

When a trained newspaper writer is wordy it is usually because he is necessarily pot boiling. When he is vulgar and sensational it is often because the proprietor of his paper is greedy for money. I lay at the door of the American newspaper owner a burden of guilt that he cannot successfully disown. Eight owners out of every ten know nothing of the English language and care nothing for it. The ninth knows something of the language, but willingly prostitutes the sacred English tongue to the desire for sensation. The tenth was William Cullen Bryant.

The News then goes for Prof. Lewis in true Porkoplis style, and says some mean things, among them being:

When Dr. Lewis represents to his auditors that the newspaper writer is a gifted but unfortunate creature held in cruel bondage by the ignorant and brutal publisher he is merely galvanizing an old figure which has been used many times by persons who either knew nothing of the actual conditions of newspaper work or had experimented with them just enough to find out their own incapacity. Dr. Lewis was speaking without a knowledge of the facts. He was merely cutting a caper before the audience to astonish it.

Miss Sallie Gray left yesterday for Lake Hopatcong.

Endeavor Rally.

A Christian Endeavor rally will be held in the Trinity Reformed church next Tuesday evening, which will be attended by all the societies in the local union. There will be a number of speakers who were in attendance at the Boston convention, and seven ministers will take part in the service which will commence at 7:45 followed by a fifteen-minute song service.

Outlook for Fall.

The prospects for a big fall trade were never better—says Mr. White. Prices on cotton and woollen goods of all kinds have advanced twenty per cent and manufacturers throughout the country are advancing wages at the same rate. It all denotes a better feeling and shows that the country is getting back to its old-time prosperity.

RATS CAUSE A CAVEIN.

A Peculiar Accident Caused on North Avenue By the Rodents.

A rather peculiar accident occurred on North avenue opposite the railroad station yesterday afternoon about 3 o'clock. It seems that a large number of rats have been living beneath the ground at that point and have succeeded in making large holes.

Yesterday afternoon John Emmons, the contractor, was driving past, and the ground gave way with the weight of the horse.

The animal was thrown down and luckily escaped without any broken limbs or injuries. James McFadden's son, who helps his father on the streets, was nearby and assisted Mr. Emmons in getting the animal to his feet. The hole was then filled in and repaired by McFadden.

AN EVENING OF TABLEAUX.

A Social Gathering at the Home of Mrs. McClay.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mrs. A. C. McClay last night, when the Misses Lilly McClay, Flossie McClay, Edith Jarvis and Jennie Douglass, with a few of their friends, entertained the rest with tableaux. Music was rendered between each of the tableaux by Miss Josephine Walker and Miss Ethel Marsh, of Washington Heights.

After the tableaux came to end and the hearty applause had quieted down, ice-cream and cake were served. After a vocal solo by John E. Douglass, the rest of the evening was devoted to dancing and the singing of college songs. The gay party broke up about midnight and all were sorry that such a delightful evening had come to an end.

THREE HUNDRED-MILE TRAMP.

Sangstad Will Take a Tour From Washington to Plainfield.

A tramp from Washington, D. C., to Plainfield is a novel form of outing, but that is what Olaf Sangstad, formerly connected with the Boys' Club is going to do. He left yesterday ane takes with him his camera, while a trunkful of plates goes in advance. Mr. Sangstad expects to get some very fine rural views.

While in Washington, Sangstad attended the photographic exhibition there but wrote home to his friends that the rooms were so dark that he could not see anything and therefore was not greatly impressed with it.

A Camp of Bicycles.

Eighteen members of Company G. Second Regiment, National Guard of New Jersey, Lieutenant George E. Wells, it is believed were the first military company to make camp while traveling with bicycles. On their way from Hackensack to attend the state camp at Sea Girt they went into camp at Metuchen at seven o'clock last night. They were in full uniform and had been since 6 a. m. on the road. They carried Springfield rifles, weighing nine pounds each, fastened to their wheels and on their shoulders carried a new style knapsack weighing 20 pounds, containing blanket, clothing, etc.

Need a New Ordinance.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—It seems to be very important for bicyclists to carry lights after dark, in order to avoid collisions. At the same time sewer men can leave great holes in the middle of the street, such as that at Park avenue and Fifth street, large enough to sink a barrel in, without any kind of a danger signal. I wonder if the City Council has made enough off of my brother bicyclists for not carrying lights, to pay for my wheel.

Bicyclist.

Can't Talk Through This Hat.

A. E. Hoagland journeyed to Lake Hopatcong yesterday to enjoy a vacation. He wore a straw hat. The hat came back this morning without Mr. Hoagland, and under rather unique circumstances. When it arrived at the North avenue station it was in care of a conductor who said that it had been left on the train at the Lake Hopatcong station. No word has been received from Mr. Hoagland, but it is supposed that he became so frustrated in leaving the cars that he forgot the headgear. The article was identified by a hat mark.

Narrow Escape From Lightning.

Mrs. J. P. Laire and daughter Miss Cora are at Berwick, Pa., visiting at the home of Mrs. Laire's sister. On Thursday afternoon lightning struck the house where they are visiting, entering the open front door and tearing out the rear of the house. Great consternation of course prevailed, and all seemed thankful that they were only frightened and not injured.

A Permanent Administrator.

George W. DeMeza, counsel for the Elliott estate, will make application before Judge Rice of New Brunswick, for the appointment of a permanent administrator, next Tuesday.

Mrs. Giles, of New Market, mother of Mifford Giles, of this city is very ill.

A LONG LINE OF DISTINGUISHED MEN.

Prominent Americans Related to Senator and General Sherman.

Senator Hoar says that the statement in some of the papers within the last few days that General and Senator Sherman are descendants of Capt. John Sherman, of Waterton, Mass., is a mistake. They are descended from the Hon. Samuel Sherman, who came to Watertown about 1630, and went away soon to Connecticut, where their branch of the family has always dwelt till Judge Sherman, father of the General and the Senator, emigrated to Ohio. Samuel Sherman was the brother of the Rev. John Sherman, the minister in Watertown, and a cousin of John Sherman, an early steward of Harvard College and an eminent civil engineer. Capt. John accompanied Winthrop and Dudley on the expedition to fix the northern boundary of Massachusetts, when the well known inscription was made on the rock at Weir's Landing, on Lake Winnepiseogee.

Capt. Sherman had a very large number of well-known descendants, including Roger Sherman, and his grandchildren, Senator Roger S. Baldwin, of Connecticut, Senator Evarts, of New York, Judge and Senator Hoar, Chauncey M. Depew, Roger Minot Sherman, perhaps the ablest lawyer Connecticut ever contained; Chief Justice Roger M. Greene, of Washington, and his brother, the present postmaster of Worcester; Judge Simeon E. Baldwin, of Connecticut, and a good many other well-known persons. Of the same stock came Earl Roseberry, the present Prime Minister of England, and the Marquis of Clanricarde.

Women as Political Delegates.

Colorado Republicans elected three women as delegates to the Republican League Convention at Cleveland, Ohio. There were also women delegates from Wyoming and other Western States and one from New York. In the West the women have shown themselves good politicians, wise legislators and good debaters. It is something of a novelty to have them as delegates to a national political convention, but Mrs. J. Ellen Foster has been an influential adviser at every League convention that has been held, and the ladies who went as delegates to Cleveland had an able and adroit politician of their own sex to advise them.

All Weathers Suited Dr. Johnson.

Dr. Johnson stoutly pooh-poohed the notion of the effect of weather on the mind.

"To temperance," he wrote, "every day is bright; and every hour is propitious to diligence."

Johnson, however, was little given to analyze the influences of nature, or any other influences, upon himself. And it may well be that this disposition on his part was in the spirit of the Stoics and in defiance of his own feelings, to which he disdained to give way. It seemed to him a sorry thing that "a being endowed with reason" should "resign his powers to the influences of the air and live in dependence on the weather and the wind."—Temple Bar.

The Cheapening of Magazines.

When Scribner's Magazine was started, the price of 25 cents, at which it was offered, was considered very cheap in comparison with that charged by the older monthlies. Then the proprietor of the Cosmopolitan reduced his periodical to 12 1-2 cents, subsequently raising it to 15, and Mr. Munsey, who had tried nearly everything in the way of daily, weekly and monthly publications, came down to 10 cents, and soon acquired a very large circulation. It is announced now that both the Cosmopolitan and McClure's will be reduced to 10 cents and a sharp competition may be looked for. This wholesale cutting in prices is rendered possible by the fact that the price of paper is to-day less than one-half what it was fifteen years ago, while the old fashioned and expensive wood engravings have been replaced by the cheaper, if less artistic, photo-engraving cuts which are now in universal use.

Keeping Everlastingly at It.

Genius is really the power of making continuous efforts. The line between failure and success is so fine that we scarcely know when we pass it—so fine that we are often on the line and do not know it. How many a man has thrown up his hands at a time when a little more effort, a little more patience, would have achieved success. As the tide goes clear out, so it comes clear in. In business, sometimes, prospects may seem darkest when really they are on the turn. A little more persistence, a little more effort, and what seemed hopeless failure may turn to glorious success. There is no failure except in no longer trying. There is no defeat except from within, no really insurmountable barrier save our own inherent weakness of purpose.—Electrical Review.

Destitute Settlers in Oklahoma.

The news that there is great want and suffering among the Oklahoma settlers is not surprising in view of the conditions that prevailed last year and the year before. These people entered the newly opened territory at precisely the worst point in the late financial depression. They were of an improvident class, and had gone there in the expectation of making big fortunes with small outlay or exertion. The result is quite what might have been expected. If reports are true, they have paid a sharper penalty than usually falls to the lot of folly, and are in a genuinely pitiable condition.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

An Old School.

It is certainly an unusual thing for a school in this country to be able to celebrate such an anniversary as the Roxbury Latin School celebrated in June. Two hundred and fifty years is indeed a goodly age for a school.—Boston Transcript.

SOLD FOR WASTE PAPER.

Part of the Hundred Tons of Jersey State Reports Cost $6 a Volume.

The State reports, aggregating a hundred tons of pamphlets, which have been accumulating in the State House cellars, were sold Tuesday by State House Custodian Bonnell to Nicholas Gebney, of Phillipsburg, who bid 5½ cents per hundred pounds for the lot. The State will thus realize over $1,000 for the rubbish which played so conspicuous a part in the work of the Senate investigating committee.

The committee had the pamphlets measured and weighed, and the revelation of their existence—some of which had been paid for by the State of $5 and $7 per volume—led more than anything else to the recent reform in the State printing law. The pamphlets embraced reports in German and Italian, as well as English.

TRACK FOOT DEEP WITH SAND.

Locomotive Bumps One Hundred Yards Along the Ties.

Passengers on the down train of the D. L. and W. Railroad due at Morristown at 1:15 o'clock Tuesday afternoon had a lively experience. Just before one o'clock there was a terrific rain storm. Sand over a foot deep was washed over the tracks in the cut opposite the residence of Eugene Higgins, just beyond the city limits. The train, when it came around the adjacent curve, dashed into it. The locomotive left the rails and bumped along on the ties for nearly one hundred yards. None of the cars left the rails. The train was delayed forty-five minutes while waiting for a wrecking crew to clear the track and get the locomotive back. No one was hurt.

VERDICT AFTER THREE TRIALS.

The Case of a Perth Amboy Saloon-Keeper Who Sold Liquor to a Child.

The case of the city of Perth Amboy against Geprge Kozusko, a saloon keeper, for alleged violation of the excise law in selling beer to a minor, came up yesterday in Perth Amboy for a third trial, the previous trials having resulted in disagreement of the jury. The jury, after having been out about fifteen minutes, returned a verdict of guilty. The fine is $100 and costs.

This decision gives general satisfaction in Perth Amboy, and will undoubtedly produce a wholesome effect upon law-breaking liquor dealers.

Chancellor McGill Off for Europe.

Chancellor Alexander T. McGill and wife sailed from Hoboken on the steamship Havel, of the North German Lloyd, for Europe Tuesday morning. He will remain away a month. On the dock Chancellor McGill said to friends: "I am going abroad in search of rest, and I intend to take it. I shall not allow politics or anything else to disturb me while abroad." He thought that he would be home before the Democratic State Convention was held. He refused to state whether he would accept the Democratic nomination for Governor if it was tendered to him. "I will say nothing more about it," he said.

Recovering From the Spider Bite.

William Hayes, the Roselle hackdriver who was bitten, as alleged, by a spider, has almost recovered. He was driving his hack as usual yesterday. Hayes is not certain he was bitten by a spider or stung by a wasp. He was asleep in a barn and was awakened by something crawling over his face. He undertook to brush off the insect and then felt a stinging sensation. For several days he suffered intense pain.

Central Sued for $10,000.

A suit for $10,000 damage was begun yesterday in the Union County Court, at Elizabeth, against the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey by the widow of Hiram W. Mott, an employee of the company, who was fatally hurt at Carteret about eight months ago. He made a statement before his death that the accident was due to the carelessness of the crew of the engine.

WESTFIELD'S MISSION.

The Poor Women and Children of New York Enjoy Country Life.

There has been a movement among the good people of Westfield lately to make such arrangements that the poor mothers of New York and their babies might enjoy a brief spell of life in the clear air of the country. The plan progressed, and now there is a large tent where, under the charge of two city missionaries, the mothers and their babes are given a chance to breathe the fresh air. A number of Westfield people have been assisting at the work, and one of them will come to Plainfield Friday evening to speak to the Christian Endeavor society of the Park Avenue Baptist church and tell something of the work. The funds to carry on the plan were mostly supplied by Westfield people, but a chance will be given to Plainfielders who wish to aid. Miss Alice Spangenberg, of Netherwood, has been greatly interested in the work, and has visited the mission.

The rainy weather of the last week has caused some suffering among the mission people, as sleeping on the damp ground has brought on many severe colds. Five Westfield men came to the rescue and furnished enough funds to start the construction of a building, twenty-eight by forty feet as sleeping quarters.

The generous men who supplied the necessary money were Arthur T. Pierson, H. J. Mooney, Mr. Cross, Mr. Blackburn and Mr. Ham. It is expected that the building will be finished by tomorrow, and Sunday a grand jollification will be held when the rest of the funds necessary to complete the structure will be raised.

Civil Service Reform.

The fourth-class postmasterships were looted more rapidly under the administration of President Harrison than under that of President Cleveland, and the consular service more rapidly under President Cleveland than under President Harrison; but the final result was the same in both cases. Indeed, I think that the brutality which accompanied the greater speed was in some ways of service to the country, for it directed attention to the iniquity and folly of the system, and emphasized, in the minds of decent citizens, the fact that appointments and removals for political reasons in places where the duties are wholly non-political cannot be defended by any man who looks at public affairs from the proper standpoint. —From "Six Years of Civil Service Reform," by Theodore Roosevelt, in the August (Fiction Number) of Scribner's.

America's Greatest.

Gaining Ground.

A perfect success is what the entertainment of the Fillmore Avenue Baptist church which takes place on August 8th, promises to be. Under the pastorate of Rev. J. W. Jeffress, the church has improved wonderfully in numbers so that the seats are all filled, and more will have to be secured.

Fishermen's Luck.

Clarence Teel, Charles C. Lister and Willliam Stevenson are at Lake Hopatcong, where they will spend several days and try their luck at fishing.

The man in the moon is a myth but the man who is an engineer on the Long Island railroad and took the moon for a headlight is not. That is the first time the moon was ever accused of holding up a train load of people. It is a good thing for the moon that it is so far away or the world might be groping in darkness, because holding up trains in this country is not tolerated.

If a wheel runs a trifle hard, the cause is usually found to be a cone that has run up or a tightened chain, and should be attended to at once. A chain should never be so tight as to touch the tubing of the rear forks of a bicycle, and should always be well oiled, the latter especially, as it will make it much easier for a rider to run over the dust after a long ride.

WHAT THE BILL ALLEGES.

Subpœnaed Somerset Bank Directors Have Until September 8th to Answer.

The subpœnas served on the defunct Somerset Bank officials are returnable on August 8th, and the defendants have until September 8th in which to make answer. When the answers are made it will probably be known definitely whether the ill feeling believed by some of the stockholders and citizens to exist between some of the directors, as well as between some stockholders and directors, does exist or not, for the answers will probably show whether some directors desire to throw the blame, if blame there be, off upon some of their fellows.

The bill sets forth that the business of the bank was in 1891-2-3 conducted in violation of the charter and by-laws, and that during 1891 notes given by irresponsible parties and aggregating $20,000 were discounted, and that similar notes to the amount of $30,000 in 1892 and $3,000 in 1893 were discounted. Notes to the amount of $12,000, discounted before 1891, remain unpaid. The notes are in the main those of Mr. Pidcock and of companies of which he was the head, and it is said that the certificates of incorporation of the companies heretofore named were never filed. The standing of these concerns is set forth, and it is alleged that an examination such as the directors of the bank were in law required to make would have demonstrated clearly that the advances to them should not have been made. The bill asks for an accounting and a decree that the moneys illegally advanced be returned for distribution among the creditors and stockholders of the bank.

The receiver has paid $150,000 to the depositors and $15,000 to the stockholders. The expenses of the receivership have been about $15,000 and there is $10,000 on hand, so the affairs of the bank since the failure have gone on pretty well.

THE CATERPILLAR PEST.

A Remedy That Is Said to be Fairly Successful.

The caterpillar pest is getting to be not only a nuisance but a danger, and at this time the following remedy has been suggested:

The true remedy is to prevent the caterpillar from ascending the tree and to destroy eggs and cocoons where they are corralled. I have seen attempts made to do this, but never saw it properly done. The tree should be circled by some material such as bird lime, which will remain sticky and actually prevent the ascent of the caterpillar. The circle should be about five feet from the ground. A tin trough filled with kerosene or tar, which would encircle the tree, would be better. The next step would be to handpick the caterpillars, cocoons and egg masses from the bark and burn them. Or if they are brushed from the tree a piece of canvas should be placed on the ground around the trunk, and the cocoons and egg masses brushed into the canvas with a stiff wire brush and the contents of the canvas burnt, or the result will be nil. The men who have charge of our squares could readily do this. I am sure two hours work each day in summer for a couple of seasons would exterminate these pests. The reason we have such things is owing to inattention and laziness and neglect of the authorities.

The men seem to be having almost as much trouble over their bicycling costumes as the women. There are hotels, it seems, that will not entertain men in knickerbobkers, and they are by no means as welcome in all places in their bicycle clothes as with trousers that flap about their ankles and modish shirts. It is largely to the consideration of clothes that the far-seeing look for the preservation of the horse and the continuance of some of the old-fashioned methods of conveyance. If men could live and move and transact their business in golf stockings and knickerbockers, and women in bloomers or short skirts, the bicycle's progress might be as sure as it has been swift. But as it is, the formalities of life, such as they are, militate gently but firmly against the bicycle, and though they are not effectual to hold it back, they do make a little for its restraint.—Harpers Weekly.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube be restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destored forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflammed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness, caused by catarrh, that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

FESTIVITIES ON THE WATER

CRANFORD BOATMEN AND CITIZENS HAVE A SPECTACULAR AFFAIR.

The Annaul Carnival of Boat Club Proves a Successful Affair, and is Witnessed by Multitudes of Admiring People.

"All roads lead to Rome" but Saturday evening they all seemed to lead to Cranford. A continual procession of stages, carriages and wheels poured into that place as soon as it began to grow dark and all came to attend the carnival of the Cranford Boating Association which was to be held on the Rahway river.

The carnival was a complete success, far outshining any of the former ones and reflected great credit on those in charge. And all Cranford did their best to aid the efforts of the committee, many of the private residences being handsomely decorated, of which, perhaps, those of Mrs. M. R. Bennett, Joseph Purcill, J. G. Moore and Louis A. Mather were the finest. Over a mile of the river was decorated, chiefly with Chinese lanterns, the vacant spaces being decorated by the committee and the rest by the residents along the banks. The night was a perfect one, while the pale light of the moon and the lanterns cast a delicate glow over the immense throng that lined the river bank for over a mile. The committee who arranged the entire affair, consisted of Committee G. Harvey Miller, Vice Commodore Edward Beadle, Secretary Willard N. Park, J. A. Hibson, R. T. Hibson, T. J. Clace, H. S. Sanderson, Lewis Sapher, E. K. Adams, Louis A. Mathey, George Morrison, J. P. M. Joseph, E. L. Helleker, E. W. Hale and D. H. Cardozo. The judges were ex-Freeholder Jasper C. Hunt, George F. Cram and Mr. Tree. A new paddle was the prize for the best decorated canoe, a pair of oars for the best float and another pair for the best decorated row boat.

About one hundred boats turned out, most of which were very prettily decorated. A Mississippi flat boat with a musical crew; a float with a pretty scene from "Midsummer Night's Dream" representing Titania, Bottom and Puck; an Indian with canoe and wigwam all combined were among those that attracted special attention.

The committee announced the following prize winners: Canoe prize—paddles, to Howard Cox; boat prize—spoon oars, to W. D. Faris; float prize—spoon oars, to J. P. M. Joseph; honorable mention canoes—Messrs. McIntyre and Madden.

CHASED BY A HIGHWAYMAN.

A Scotch Plains Woman Frightened on East Front Street.

While Mrs. Fitzgerald and her young brother, of Scotch Plains, were riding along East Front street last night near the Plains they were startled by the sudden appearance of a man in the gutter of the roadway near a woods.

The man said something which they did not hear. He then called again. This frightened the occupants of the wagon and the boy who was driving applied the whip to the horse, who started on a rapid gait. The highwayman started after them, running fully two blocks, but he was not able to catch the vehicle.

They stopped at the hotel which is run by Mrs. Fitzgerald's brother-in-law, Wm. Lee.

The latter and his hostler started out in search of the man but were unable to get any trace of him.

Mrs. Fitzgerald and her brother were thoroughly frightened over their narrow escape.

HUSBAND FINED; WIFE LET GO.

Nell Pickett's Mother Repented and Nell Went Free.

On the complaint of Nell Pickett's mother the latter was arrested by Marshal Wilson early Thursday morning for using abusive language and being disorderly.

When the hearing was held this morning before Justice Crosley no one was present to press the charge, so the justice dismissed her with a good talking.

Saturday night William Roantree, Nell's husband, was arrested by Marshal Wilson for being drunk and disorderly. As this was his second appearance within three days Justice Crosley fined him $10. He cheerfully paid it.

My boy was taken sick with a disease resembling bloody flux. The first thing I thought of was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Two doses of it settled the matter and cured him sound and well. I heartily recommend this remedy to all persons suffering from a like complaint. I will answer any inquiries regarding it when stamp is inclosed. I refer to any county official as to my reliability. Wm. Roach, J. P., Primroy, Campbell Co., Tenn. HOT WEATHER EDUCATION.

SCHOOL BOARD MEETS IN REGULAR MONTHLY SESSION.

Collector's Report Received—Bills Audited—School Repairs Are Nearly Completed—A Janitor Appointed.

A regular meeting of the Board of Education was held in the High School building last Monday, but there was little to do beside routine business. When the meeting was called to order those present were Messrs. Lovell, Finch and Lounsbury. Mr. Lovell was elected temporary chairman. The minutes of the meetings of July 1st and July 12th were read and approved. While they were being read Dr. Probasco arrived and took his position as presiding officer.

The following bills were then approved and ordered paid:

Oscar S. Teale, surveying	$ 25.00
Charles M. Wilson, carpenter work	163.07
Plainfield Gas and Eletric Light Co.	4.68
New York and New Jersey Tel. Co.	40.60
Spencerian Pen Co., pens	62.00
James Clawson, material for cleaning schools	6.95
Mundy, repairing flag	3.80
A. M. Runyon & Son	3.00
Wm. Hand & Son, removing trees	5.00
Courier-News, programmes and tickets	27.00
T. J. Clarkson	2.00
Jones & Co.	50.00
J. T. Vail, curb and flagging	99.03
Joseph Kingston	48.61
C. E. Harris, painting	13.00

The bill of A. M. Griffen for $38.27 was ordered to be paid if found correct.

The report of the collector John Johnson showed a total collection of $344.17 with interest amounting to $17.61. Checks of $325 and $600 were ordered to be drawn to pay interest due September 1st.

Mr. Lounsbury, as committee on repairs, reported that all the repairs had been practically finished with the exception of those in the High School building and that they were now under way and the fire escapes were partly up. He also spoke of the great improvement made to the Washington school by putting in the additional windows in the basement. The Board held an executive session to consider who should be the new janitor in the Washington building.

The resignation of W. V. Mundy was accepted and the following resolution passed by the Board:

Resolved, That the Board accept the resignation of Mr. W. V. Mundy with regret, and desire to express their appreciation of his long and faithful services extending over a period of more than twenty years as janitor of the Washington building.

The twenty-one applications for the position were considered and after due deliberation, Charles E. Harris was appointed janitor of the Washington building at a salary of $40 a month, to begin September 1st. His appointment was made subject to his being satisfactory to the Board.

AFRAID OF LIGHT.

W. W. Straton's Horse Injured by a Fall at Cranford

The carnival at Cranford Saturday evening, proved quite disastrous to one party of Plainfield people. The families of W. W. Straton and Justice V. W. Nash went down in Mr. Straton's carriage.

Just as Cranford was reached, the horse shied at an electric light just at the moment when several bicycles passed from behind. That was too much for him and down he fell on his side, breaking the harness badly. Will Nash was riding behind on his wheel and when the carriage came to a sudden stop his wheel shot under it and became wedged there and was only released by moving the carriage. Luckily Will was not injured.

The accident happened about eight o'clock and the party did not attend the carnival, but spent the time in recovering from the accident.

Another Big Block in Prospect.

Among the many improvements which the opening of Watchung avenue will bring to that section of the city is one contemplated by J. F. MacDonald, the Front street grocer. It is his intention as soon as the opening is completed to erect a handsome brick business building on the corner of East Front street and Watchung avenue, where his dwelling house now stands.

A Serious Charge.

A warrant was issued Saturday by Justice Mosher for Samuel E. Dennick on a serious charge, preferred by S. S. Swackhamer as counsel for Miss Louisa Sprigg. Dennick appeared before the justice this morning, and August 22d was set as the date for the trial. James P. Powers appeared for the defendant.

Never too Late to Learn.

Mr. Elias Hotchkiss, of Rockview avenue, who is nearly seventy years old, can be seen daily spinning along on a wheel as nimble as any boy.

REMINDER OF THE BLIZZARD.

DR. LOWRIE'S SUIT AGAINST CHAS. MC GINLEY TRIED.

Lots of Humidity, Witnesses and Tilts Between Lawyers Made it a Lively Case—The Jury Could Not Agree.

The famous old blizzard of 1888 was dragged out of obscurity Tuesday afternoon and into Justice Newcorn's court, for it was only a week after the great event that James McGinley was run over by a train and the wound made then was at the bottom of the suit brought by Dr. Henry H. Lowrie against Charles McGinley for $200 due for services rendered. The humidity was great and the twelve jurors and the witnesses wearily dragged themselves into the court room on the third floor of William Newcorn's building. Shortly after two o'clock the court was called to order and the followed jury impanelled:

C. M. Fine, Ira Hulbert, Robert Walker, Abram Angleman, Edward Bowman, William F. Trust, Julian Scott, James H. Sawyer, Alfred Baker, James Manchester, James Baker and William C. Apgar.

From the testimony of the different witnesses the following story was revealed: One week after the blizzard in 1888, James McGinley, son of Charles McGinley, was badly injured by being run over on the railroad. A number of physicians were hurriedly called, among whom were Drs. Hedges, Fritts, Murray and Lowrie. It seemed to be the general sentiment of the doctors that the limb could not be saved but Dr. Lowrie thought otherwise, and as family physician, took charge of the case.

According to the doctor's book, he attended the boy until February, 1889, and afterwards treated him in August of that same year. The McGinleys all swore that he never attended the lad after December 19th, 1888, and on that one point the real case rested. Harry C. Runyon acted as counsel for the plaintiff and S. S. Swackhamer represented the defendant, and a lively time it was between the two lawyers. The defendant claimed that the debt was outlawed, six years being up, but the other side said it was not until August. There was also a great deal of fighting over the ability of Dr. Lowrie. When Mr. Swackhamer was summing up, one of the perspiring jury started to ask questions and then attempted to argue with the counsel, but he received such a rebuke from the lawyer that nothing more was heard from him during the session.

When Justice Newcorn charged the jury he brought the case right down to a question of whose testimony was correct, that of Dr. Lowrie's book or that of the McGinley family. After about three hours of almost unbearable heat, the jury retired while the rest of the court scattered for the open air.

The jury remained in the room until seven o'clock after repeatedly sending down word that they could not agree. At seven o'clock they sent word that they could not agree if they stayed there a week, and Justice Newcorn allowed them to depart. The jury stood seven to five in favor of McGinley. The case will be tried over again with a new jury.

PILGRIMAGE TO BOSTON.

The Knights Templar Are Preparing For a Grand Time.

It is not the Knight Templars which played such a prominent part in Scott's "Ivanhoe" but a different society altogether which will hold their twenty-sixth Triennial Conclave at Boston on August 27th, 28th and 29th. It is the expectation of the committee that it is to be the largest of its kind ever held and great preparations are being made. The Trinity Commandery of Plainfield expect to send a party of forty who will join the New Jersey Sir Knights at Elizabeth, a special train being run for their benefit. The headquarters of the New Jersey Knights will be at the Hotel Victoria, while the Trinity Commandery will have its special headquarters at 537 Massachusetts avenue. It is expected that there will be 30,000 Sir Knights in line.

Verdict for Mr. Hand.

The case on contract of C. H. Hand against Mary R. and S. B. Merrill, of Dunellen, was tried before Justice Huff at the latter place last Friday. Judgment was rendered in favor of the plaintiff for $26. Lawyer H. C. Runyon appeared for the plaintiff.

AN INCIDENT OF YACHT RACING.

A Plainfielder's Experience in a Heavy Sound Storm.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—

We, (that is, Mr. Moore the owner, Dr. Sheppan, and I) went to New London today to see the the boats that are taking part in the cruise of the New York Yacht Club. We found most of the racers in preparation, including Defender and Vigilant. All the big fellows were there. W. K. Vanderbilt with his yacht Valiant, an immense thing, about three hundred feet long, a regular ocean liner; Mr. Goelet on the yacht Hermoine, chartered by him for the cruise, and flying the English flag; Mr. Austin, of the Durham Tobacco Company, with yacht Lagonda; Hanan, the shoe manufacturer, of New York, on the yacht Embla. There were dozens of other steam yachts, the names of which I do not know.

The Sound was very rough all day, and the wind blew great guns, from fifty to sixty miles an hour; "the sea stood right up on end," as the commodore expresses it, and it was enough to roll the insides out of an ox. Going towards New London, from Shelter Island and through Plum Gut, we had the sea behind us, and did not mind it; but coming back we had to face it. Well, to say it blew a gale, would be drawing it mildly, and we wallowed and pitched about in great shape. We met several yachts that were late getting into New London, reefed as close as they could reef, and some of them making very bad weather of it into the bargain. Meanwhile it was blowing, as it can blow at the end of the Sound, and Kanapaha was rolling as if she would roll her engines out. As we come through Plum Gut, and were entering Gardiner's Bay, I noticed a boat at anchor, fishing as I thought. When we got closer to her, I knew that I was mistaken, and that it was a yacht we were approaching. She had neither topmast, nor bow-sprit, and I mentioned the fact to Mr. Moore. As we passed her, a man on her deck held up his ensign union down. Then we knew he wanted help, so we stopped long enough to give him a line and towed him in. It turned out that she was the yacht Clara, a cutter owned by a Mr. Adams, of New York. He was racing with some of the other yachts, and after he had carried away his topmast, bow-sprit, and most of his standing and running rigging, he thought it about time to run into some harbor and refit. It was good for him that he did; for had he stayed out on the Sound much longer, he might have gone to the bottom with his wife who accompanied him.

We arrived safely at Shelter Island with our tow, and dropped anchor line at four o'clock in the afternoon; having made the run from New London in two hours, allowing half an hour for picking up the cutter, which was remarkable time against a head sea.

Very truly yours,
E. S. Simpson.

PUCK'S COMEDIANS

Ed. Marble and W. H. A. Cronkhite Launch Out Into the Reportorie.

"Puck's Comedians" is the name of a new organization in the dramatic field for next season, that promises to eclipse all previous efforts made by caterers for the popular price reportorie entertainments that have heretofore been presented. The company will be under the able management of W. H. A. Cronkhite, (so long and formerly known as George Thatcher's manager, and Ed. Marble whose productive skill in the dramatic world is well known. Both gentlemen are well remembered in Plainfield. The company will carry a band of sixteen instruments, twenty five people, and promise an unusally attractive and novel series of entertainments at emergency prices. Singing, dancing, and clean fun will be the object of "Puck's Comedians" and we wish them a season of prosperity. This can hardly fail to be realized, from the nature of the form of the entertainment, or the gentlemen who are interested in its welfare. This company will appear in this city during the coming season.

Kenneth Bazemore had the good fortune to receive a small bottle of Chamberlaim's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy when three members of his family were sick with dysentery. This one small bottle cured them all and he had some left which he gave to Geo. W. Baker, a prominent merchant of the place, Lewiston, N. C., and it cured him of of the same complaint. When troubled with dysentery, diarrhœa, colic or cholera morbus, give this remedy a trial and you will be more than pleased with the result. The praise that naturally follow its introduction and use has made it very popular. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale at Reynolds's Pharmacy, Park and North avenues; T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

THIS AWFUL WILD WEST PLAY

ANOTHER BOY ACCIDENTALLY SHOT YESTERDAY.

Sherman Haberle Shot in the Jaw While Playing With Careless Playmates—No Fatal Result is Expected.

Playing Wild West is a great amusement for the young boys of Somerset street, but all their fun came to a sudden end yesterday, and Sherman Haberle, the seven-year-old son of J. G. Haberle, of Harmony street, who keeps a cigar store on Somerset street, on the city side of the bridge, has a wound in the chin to remember it by. This morning the boys were to hold their grand Wild West show in Mr. Summers' yard, on Somerset street, opposite Voehl's bakery. George Summers, the fifteen-year-old son of Mrs. Summers, and George Baker were the cowboys, and they allowed little Sherman to come for nothing if he would be Indian with Charles Bird.

While they were playing in some way Summers pointed 22 calibre revolver at Sherman, and pulled the trigger. The pistol was loaded and the bullet struck young Haberle in the chin passing through the flesh and striking the jaw bone where it remains. The exact circumstances of the shooting cannot be learned, as all the boys were too badly frightened to tell a coherent story but the little victim said that Baker and Summers were trying to see who could shoot the fastest.

Baker pointed his at a box and Summers at the first thing that came handy which was young Haberle. The boys, it is supposed, either thought the revolvers were not loaded at all or only with blank cartridges. Another one of the lads said that they were cleaning them and the revolvers went off by accident.

However it happened, the deed was done, and the injured boy taken immediately to Dr. Mattison who probed for the bullet. He found it fast to the bone, but broke the probe.

He said that the boy should be taken to a practicing physician. Instead he was taken home, and there bandaged up.

Later he was taken to his father's store and then left with his father on the 2:30 train for Westfield, there to be treated by Dr. Cooper, who is a friend of the family.

Although the wound was quite painful, the little lad never uttered a complaint, even when the doctor was probing for the bullet. When The Press reporter saw him at his father's store about two hours after the accident, he talked and told the whole story and apparently did not mind the bullet in the least.

As it was, Sherman did not know he was hit until the rush of blood came from the wound.

IT WILL EQUAL NEW YORK.

Packer and Gavett to Occupy the Jackson Building Together.

Plainfield buyers are learning more and more that they do not need to go New York to do their shopping. Arrangements have now been definitely made for a new store that promises to equal any New York store of the kind. Two enterprising Plaining merchants, Garriet Q. Packer, the Park avenue furniture dealer, and Gavett & Co., dealers in china and glassware, have decided to occupy the ground floor and basement of the new J. W. Jackson building, which is to be erected at the corner of West Front street and Madison avenue. The two firms will occupy the floor together and will be able to make a much finer display by combining the two. The firms will remain entirely separate, however. It promises to be one of the finest buildings in the city.

Worried the Gypsies.

There is a camp of gypsies along the railroad near Benner's roadhouse at Netherwood. Monday night a party of young men bent on having some fun visited the camp and succeeded in stampeding the gypsies' horses into a pond nearby. One of the animals was nearly drowned.

No Trace of Tracey.

Bernard Tracey, for whom a warrant was issued charging him with obtaining meat under false pretences, as exclusively reported in The Daily Press yesterday has not yet been captured.

When moving into our present home I found a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm left by a former tenant. On the label I found the statement that it was good for cuts and burns. I can testify to the truth of this. Nothing in all my experience has found its equal for treating blisters or burns. F. E. Barrett, manager Le Sueur Sentinel, Le Sueur, Minn. Pain Balm is also a sure cure for rheumatism. For sale at Reynolds Pharmacy, Park and North avenues; T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

DREW BLOOD INSTEAD OF CASH

ITALIAN STABS A FELLOW COUNTRYMAN IN A FIT OF ANGER.

A Quarrel Over a Board Bill Which Resulted in Almost a Fatality—One Italian Arrested—After the Other.

Another brutal Italian stabbing affair is recorded and all over the sum of $6. Donardo Bunowone and his brother Frank live near Scotch Plains in a small house.

Another Italian named Dominick Lubruno, who works in the fur mill at that place, boards with them.

It seems that the latter owed $6 to the former for a week's board and when Lubruno returned from work last night he was asked for the money. He said that as soon as he washed his hands and face he would pay them. That didn't seem to satisfy the Italian boarding house keepers so Donardo went at him with a knife. Lubruno was stabbed seriously in the head, shoulder and side. Blood flowed profusely and in their anger it is said they were going to shoot Lubruno. The assailants then fled.

Constable Walpole was found and came to Plainfield with the injured man and his friend Joseph Record. Justice Newcorn issued warrants for the arrest of the brothers and gave them to Constable Rockafellow to serve.

After much searching he, with Constable Walpole, succeeded in finding Frank Bunowone, but could not find his brother who did the stabbing. Efforts will be made to capture him today. The arrested man was incarcerated in the station house.

Bunowone was taken before Justice Newcorn and given a hearing. He was released on $100 bail which was furnished by Bennett Britton.

Up to the time of going to press no trace of the one who did the stabbing could not be found.

A POET'S TRIBUTE.

A Kind Hearted Hospital Attendant Thanked in Rhyme.

Probably one of the most popular persons at the Muhlenberg Hospital is the kind hearted attendant, James. One of the patients who was in the Hospital for some time, dedicated the following poem to the obliging James, whose kindness he has often felt and seen:

In Plainfield Hospital, I knew a man
Who is ever willing to obey a command
From early morn until late at night
He does his work, with all his might.

He is honest, faithful, kind and true,
Famous for his good nature, too,
All the patients are well agreed
That James is truly a friend in need.

He brings them water, cuts them fee,
And often gives them good advice,
When he hears a gong or a woman's call
He rushes madly through the hall.

James has a vivid head of hair
Which would be pretty if it had care.
Other things can be mentioned too,
He does'nt drink, nor smoke, nor chew.

These excellent qualities all combine,
To make our James quite sublime,
God bless him!
May he live long in the Plainfield Hospital to answer the "gong."

FREEHOLDER IN A FIST FIGHT.

He Attacks a Man in New Brunswick Streets and Beats Him Badly.

Freeholder Abram Feible, one of the most prominent residents of New Brunswick, and John Zahn met in the street last night, and, to the surprise of many who thought them good friends, engaged in a fist fight. The Freeholder had the best of the battle, and whipped Zahn and bruised him fearfully. Not satisfied with that, he drew a knife and attempted to use it, but was prevented. Zahn escaped before the Freeholder could release himself from the hands of those who grappled with him when he drew his knife.

Bright Young Man Dead.

The death occurred Sunday of Warren E., son of Rev. and Mrs. E. H. Stewart, at his late home in Watsontown, Pa., aged 23 years. He was a grandson of John Stewart, of Plainfield avenue, this city, and a nephew of D. F. Stewart, of John street. He leaves two brothers to mourn his loss, one of whom is Horace N., a twin brother. His funeral was held this afternoon from his late home. His father was well known in this city, having on several occasions delivered temperance lectures here.

A Chance for a Gold Medal.

Preparations for the 150-mile run of August 10th are progressing very favorably. Quite a number of entries have been received, among which are some out-of-town riders. Ribbon badges, with the times at the various stops, will be given to each starter, and a gold medal to each rider that finishes.

ENDLESS CAR TRACKS

WELDING THE ENDS OF RAILS BY ELECTRICITY.

The Contraction and Expansion Caused by Cold and Heat Overcome by Artificial Compression of the Iron. A Description of the Process.

The Detroit Free Press says: Tom L. Johnson's welder began operation on the new Jefferson avenue track just east of Dequindre street at 8:30 o'clock the other evening, and a large crowd of people hovered around until a late hour watching the interesting process of making an endless rail. The machinery is carried on three cars, which, when seen from a little distance looks like a railroad wrecking train.

The first car, weighing eight tons, is the compressing machine by means of which contraction and expansion of the rails are overcome artificially. The patents covering the machine are owned by the Johnson company, and this is the first time the apparatus has been used in the electric welding of rails.

At the end of the car is a hydraulic jack, which is operated by a band and develops a pressure of about 100 tons. After the fish plates, which are temporarily put on the joints in order to hold the rails in position, have been removed the jack is placed over the joint. It is so arranged that one jaw seizes one rail and the other jaw takes hold of the adjoining rail. The pump is started, and the force compresses the rail sufficiently to overcome the contracting effects of cold temperature on iron.

Thus in cold weather the rails have no tendency to contract, and the possibility of a defective weld breaking is thus obviated. When the rails are made the ends are cut with a slight bevel to insure a tight fit on the top and bottom. After the rails have been artificially compressed the ends are forced apart from one-sixteenth to one-quarter of an inch, and a section of rail, fitting the opening, is inserted to prevent the rails from expanding again.

The third car is the welder proper. It weighs 32 tons, and contains a lot of electrical machinery. There are two large motor dynamos, one of which is used to increase the voltage of the current coming from the trolley, which varies on the trolley from 400 volts up to 500 volts. From this dynamo the current passes to the alternator, which changes the direct current of 500 volts to an alternating current of 330 volts, at the same time increasing the current from 300 to 500 amperes. The current then passes to the real welding apparatus, which consists of two transformers in multiple and is filled with copper jaws for applying pressure to the weld after heating the rails.

In these transformers the current is changed from 500 to aboue 30,000 amperes. This current is applied to the end of the rails, and heats them in from five to six minutes to a temperature of nearly 2,500 degrees Fahrenheit.

The only thing used in addition to the electric force is powdered borax, applied with a copper spoon, for the purpose of removing any dirt adhering to the rails and aiding fusion. The copper jars of the welder are kept cool by means of water pumped up from a tank underneath the car.

THRIFTY, THOUGH A BEGGAR.

Miss Gillespie Reads Warden Dunphy a Lecture on Economy.

In a batch of men and women received at the Workhouse on Blackwell's Island, was Miss Margaret Gillespie, aged 72, who was committed on a charge of vagrancy. She gave her address as No. 206 West Houston street, N.Y., a house in which she did not reside. When asked for an explanation of the discrepancy she declared that as she stood in front of that house to solicit alms more frequently than anywhere else she considered it her legal domicile.

When she was searched there was found in the folds of her dress a bag containing 20 pounds of pennies and $380 in bills. Warden Dunphy reproved her for begging when she was so well off, and the old woman became highly indignant.

"I am a beggar by profession," she exclaimed, "and I should not think that fact should prevent me from exercising habits of prudence. I have always heard that thrift was a virtue, and I do not see how it can be made a vice simply because it is exercised by a mendicant.

"Beside," she added, "I expect to grow old some day, and I do not want to become a charge on the community. I am surprised at a public official advising my indirection that I spend all my money on strong drink, like other beggars. If I came here without a cent I suppose you would pity me, and not say a word by way of reproof. Simply because I have provided an insurance fund against bad times and old age you denounce me severely.

"I do not think that such sentiments that you express should be held by a man who comes so much in contact with the indigent poor, and whose duty it is recommend them to learn habits of economy. When I get out I shall certainly report you to the Charity Commissioners."

This was a view of the case that had not occurred to Mr. Dunphy before, and he turned hurriedly and occupied himself with the pedigree of the next convict on the list.—N.Y. World.

FROM FUNERAL TO JAIL.

With a Constable Young Sheridan Sees His Grandfather Buried.

Lawrence Sheridan was arraigned before Justice Kelly yesterday afternoon, at Summit, charged with forging the name of D. C. Tingley to a mechanic's release for $370. He was arrested late Tuesday night after being releaseed from jail on bail, charged with having sold a bicycle upon which there was an unpaid cancelled mortgage.

Himself and his grandfather were the sole occupants of a house in Huntley, in which they conducted a beer saloon. The grandfather died on Monday night and the nephew attended the funeral yesterday forenoon from St. Rose of Lima's church, in Short Hills, in the custody of Constable McGrath.

Owing to failure of important witnesses and the Prosecutor of the Pleas to appear, Justice Kelly was compelled to adjourn the examination until three o'clock Monday afternoon. The defendant was taken to the county jail until that time by Constable McGrath yesterday afternoon.

His grandfather deeded his property to him two years ago, and recently discovered that his stepson had mortgaged it to the full value and had enlarged the saloon and purchased a costly bar, none of which he paid for, and within the past few days numerous suits were begun, which caused the aged grand father much uneasiness and perhaps hastened his death.

THEY LET HIM LIE HELPLESS.

VanArsdale, With Bones Broken, Beckoned in Vain for Help.

Jacob VanArsdale was driving a team attached to a heavy hay-wagon, on the old coach road near Finderne, Tuesday night, when his horses became frightened by what was apparently a flash of lightning from a clear sky. The horses gave a plunge and VanArsdale was pulled from his seat and fell to the ground.

The horses trampled upon him, and the wheels passed over his body. His ankle and several ribs were broken. He lay by the roadside so badly hurt that he was unable to utter a cry.

Several vehicles passed him, and he waved his hand feebly for help, but the passers thought he was drunk and refused him assistance. He was picked up late at night by Leopold Geissman and taken to Somerville.

Getting Into Line.

The Rahway politicians are beginning to bestir themselves, and the indications are that it will be a lively contest between the Kean and Voorhees men for the delegates from Rahway. Just now Editor Rollinson, of the Advocate, seems to be the leader of the Voorhees forces, while Mayor Daly will probably champion the cause of John Kean. County Clerk Howard is rather on the fence at present and is sizing up the situation. Ex-Senator Vail, another popular man in the Republican party, is likewise holding himself in reserve. In a couple of weeks more, however, all the leaders will have definitely ranged themselves on one side or the other.—Newark News.

A Reminder of Old Times.

John H. French, the miller, a short time since while loooking about in a second-hand furniture store in this city came across and purchased a very fine photograph of the late John Rosell, who a number of years ago kept a livery stable on Park avenue, corner Second street. Mr. Rosell was a prominent citizen in his time and was chief of the fire department. He died about twenty years ago.

Analyzed the Word.

"What does the demonetization of silver mean?" asked a farmer who had heard of the silver debate. The man in town, to whom the question was put and who never liked to confess ignorance, answered in a puzzled way: "Demonetization!—Demon—that means devil. I can't tell you exactly, but I know it means making the devil with silver somehow."

No Reduction of Fares.

The rumors that the railroad fares between Elizabeth, Newark, New York and intermediate points would be lowered have not been verified yet. It has been street talk for some days that the Central Railroad Company would begin the cut yesterday, August 1st, but the rate of fares to all points remain the same.

He did not see John Simpson who was directly behind him, and the consequence was the two came together with a crash. Neither of the riders were hurt, but the chain to Gould's wheel was broken and five spokes knocked out. Simms, however, rode the mile aright in 2:28.

A HARD EARNED VICTORY.

FISH AND WALZ WIN THE TENNIS CHAMPIONSHIP OF PLAINFIELD.

One of the Prettiest Exhibitions of Tennis Ever Played in Plainfield—Summaries of Two of the Closest Sets.

It was a fight to the finish and an exciting one until it came to an end, for the match for the double tennis championship of Plainfield came off Thursday afternoon at the Hillside Tennis Club courts, and as pretty an exhibition of playing has not been given in Plainfield for some time.

The match was Fred K. Fish, Jr., and Carl Walz against Henry V. Ryder and Thomas Smith, and two more evenly matched pairs could hardly be found. Fish and Walz finally won, but only by getting three sets out of five played, for Ryder and Smith played an admirable game and but for the sudden brace that the winners took in the last two games would have won the match. As it was they deserve great credit for their excellent playing, especially their team work which was better than that of their opponents.

The first two games Fish and Walz won and managed to hold the lead until the score stood 4-3 in their favor, when Ryder and Smith by their excellent placing took the last three without trouble, winning 6-4. The second set was a walkover for Fish and Walz who won 6-1, two of the games being love games and in three others their opponents only scored 15. They tried to get the third set the same way but it was only after the hardest kind of fighting that they won 7-5. In this set Smith began to use the smash at which he is an expert. He passed his opponents at the net repeatedly and in one case upset one of them. Walz also distinguished himself by his fine recoveries which materially aided in the victory. The next set was close up to the seventh game, when it stood 3-3, and then Fish and Walz lost their nerve and the set, 6-3.

All the players put out their best efforts for the last set and although it was long after six o'clock the few visitors were glad to remain. The playing was the best Plainfield courts have seen for many a day. After a bitter fight, at the end of the seventh game the score stood 4-3 in favor of Fish and Walz, and then everybody realized that the time had come. Back and forth the ball went first a drive then a lob, while "dewce" and advantage" followed in rapid succession. After one of the longest games of the day, Smith knocked a return out of court and the games stood 5-3 in favor of Fish and Walz. A supreme effort and Smith and Ryder took a game, but a ball into the net by Smith ended the afternoon's play giving Fish and Walz the match 4-6, 6-1, 7-5, 3-6, 6-4, and also the double championship of Plainfield.

The summary of the points made in the first set is as follows:

Points won by Fish and Walz—
- Aces on placed balls, by Fish 3; by Walz 3.
- Aces on nets, by Ryder 3; by Smith 6.
- Aces on outs, by Ryder 8; by Smith 7.
- Aces on double faults, by Ryder 0; by Smith 2.
- Total aces made, 32.

Points won by Ryder and Smith—
- Aces on placed balls, by Ryder 6; by Smith 0.
- Aces on nets, by Fish 5; by Walz 6.
- Aces on outs, by Fish 5; by Walz 5.
- Aces on double faults, by Fish 0; by Walz 0.
- Total aces made, 37.

The summary of the last set was:

Points won by Fish and Walz—
- Aces on placed balls, by Fish 2; by Walz 4.
- Aces on nets, by Ryder 5; by Smith 8.
- Aces on outs, by Ryder 4; by Smith 12.
- Aces on double faults, by Ryder 2; by Smith 1.
- Total aces made, 38.

Points won by Ryder and Smith—

- Aces on nets, by Fish 4; by Walz 11.
- Aces on outs, by Fish 3; by Walz 5.
- Aces on double faults, by Fish 0; by Walz 0.
- Total aces made, 32.

All rubber cements are held in solution by naphtha, kerosene, or benzine, which must be exposed to the air a few moments before the cement will stick well. No plug or patch should be applied to a tire until at least two minutes has elapsed after smearing them with cement; often five minutes should be allowed.

An item is going the rounds that "50,000 people derive incomes from the bicycle in some manner." "Some manner" is good, but the number is nearer 100,000. Fifty thousand derive incomes from the trade direct, and then there are the amateurs of different grades who get a slice in "some manner," not saying anything about the selling inducers encouraged by the retail trade. The professional racer, of course, is included in the trade direct.—American Wheelman.

A Young Child Dead.

Ida May, the two months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Mague, died this morning of cholera infantum. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon at 3:45 from the house at 319 Prescott place.

City and Borough Connected.

The linemen from the Plainfield Gas and Electric Light Company, are today running a feeder wire from the Plainfield station to the borough plant, which will be used for house lighting. They expect to have the connections made next week.

HE HAS AN INSANE TURN.

The Boy Rational When They Reach Somerville—Taken Home.

Peter Brockley, an insane youth, was brought to Somerville Thursday from Frankfort. He was bound with ropes and strapped to the bottom of a farm wagon, where he was guarded by A. D. Baird and V. B. Wyckoff, of Fankfort. Young Brockley, who is of unknown parentage, was taken from a charity institution at Kingston, N. Y., by Farmer Baird ten years ago. The past year he has been subject to fits of violent insanity. These outbreaks have been followed by periods of continuous sleep from seven to ten days. After awakening he was rational and remained so for months.

Tuesday night Brockley disappeared and was found this morning hiding in Mr. Wyckoff's barn. When approached by his captors, he acted like an enraged beast, tearing his clothes and the boards of the barn floor with his teeth. He was subdued after a desperate struggle. He fell asleep during his long journey here. When aroused near the jail yesterday afternoon he had regained his normal condition. Farmer Baird, who is greatly attached to the demented youth, changed his mind about having him committed to the insane asylum, and returned to his home with his charge last night. Young Brockley's case is puzzling the physicians.

BRIGHT YOUNG MAN DEAD.

Studying for the Law He Overworked Himself, Sickness Resulting.

In the death of William Randolph, of Basking Ridge, which occurred Tuesday night, his parents, brothers and sisters have the sympathy of all.

He was a law student at Carlisle, Pa., standing highest in a large class, and was to have been admitted to the bar in the fall. Hard study was the cause of his health breaking down and he returned to his home in Basking Ridge. A teacher in the school at that place was called away and prevailed upon Mr. Randolph to take the school, which he did, until his health was so bad that he was obliged to give up and the school disbanded. From that time he gradually grew worse until he died.

He was a particularly bright student and had planned much for the future. Mr. Randolph was engaged to be married to a most estimable young woman, who has been constantly in attendance at his bedside for the past four weeks, and has shared with the parents their anxiety, care and sorrow. He was twenty-two years old and a model Christian man. He leaves a father and mother, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Randolph, a sister, who lives at Basking Ridge, two brothers, one residing at Port Jervis, the other, Rev. Herbert Randolph, pastor of Grace M. E. church in North Plainfield.

Left For Good.

Plainfield is soon to lose a young man who promises to rise high in his profession. Oscar Campbell, of Netherwood avenue, leaves in a few days to spend his vacation near Livingston Manor, Sullivan County, New York, and will probably never return to Plainfield except perhaps to visit some of his friends. From there he will leave for West Virginia where he will take a year's course in the University of West Virginia, after which he will practice law in that State. Campbell was a graduate of the High School in '93, and while there one of the prominent members of the High School Lyceum. After graduating, he has been studying law with the prominent New York law firm of Wilcox, Barcley & Brodea, and has already won several cases.

Yes, They Become Laws.

The Daily Press has been asked to answer this question:

If the Governor of New York State does not sign or veto a bill within a certain length of time, does it become a law?

Yes, all bills passed by the Legislature, neither signed nor vetoed by the Governor within thirty days after the Legislature has adjourned, become laws without the Governor's signature.

The Approaching Golf Club.

The golf committee of the Hillside Tennis Club has begun their active work by sending out circulars to all those who are likely to assist in the formation of the golf club. Application blanks are inclosed with the request to return them at once. It is hoped that a large number will send an affirmative answer and that even those who cannot play will join to help the movement along.

But It Must Come Down.

The masons at work on the old First National Bank building find it is no easy job in tearing down the structure. At the time it was erected it was evidently put there to stay.

An Extended Tour.

Lawyer Charles A. Reed of the firm of Reed and Coddington, and family, will start Tuesday on a vacation. They will visit Nova Scotia, Quebec, Prince Edwards Islands, and various points of interest in that section of the country.

SEEING EUROPE BY SUNSHINE

A. V. D. HONEYMAN WRITES INTERESTINGLY FROM SWITZERLAND.

England Was "Bonnie," Giving the Touring Americans Much Beauty and Feast for Eyes and Soul.

The request of The Press for some letters from Europe concerning the '95 tour abroad, in which many of your readers are interested, has been unattended to, because time has not permitted. The single traveler among the party who can accomplish everything, from investigating a feudal structure on a mountain top to rummaging galleries of antiquities, and from tripping down the valleys, gathering flowers on the hills, riding a mule to glaziers, and writing until midnight, all in a single day, is Dr. Larrabee, and he is corresponding for other journals. The Plainfield dailies should have pre-empted his pen.

And yet I can report in a few words that on none of my three previous trips abroad has there been anything like the pleasure of this one, measured by the success of seeing Nature under unrivalled skies and in perpetual sunshine. Last year's English coaching party was delighted, because even in bad weather there is no way to see England comparable with a four-in-hand, visiting the wayside towns and inns, and passing through a garden of Hawthorn and flowers and oaks and castles, from, say Oxford to Nottingham. But it then rained. The weather was uncertain and the acme was not reached. This year not a drop of rain fell, nor was there a hot day, while we passed through Oxfordshire, Berkshire, Wiltshire, Hampshire, and the Isle of Wight; and now, in the most wonderful country on earth, we are having the same good fortune. There has been perhaps two hours' rainfall in Switzerland, harming no one, and the sky is as clear as opal and every mountain summit a perpetual poem.

England was "bonnie" and every minute of time there was enjoyed. Whether along the humble highway or in the cathedral we each praised God for permitting so much beauty to enter our eyes and feast our souls. Yet, of course, this free, great, little country, seen in sunny days, is to be compared with none other, and we are richer in thoughts and words today, and every day since we entered Geneva, than we could possibly be where man made the views before us.

I count it one of the rarest and most transcendent glories of existence to view the whole chain of the Alps, which have the Matter horn for their king, on a Sabbath day like this, when there is not a cloud in the sky, nor a tremor of haze in the air. Here it is this moment, still, and as we are about to leave it the eye lingers on at the prospect. It is indescribable. Prof. Tyndall must have felt this when he penned his numerous sketches of this giant stag (as its name implies) in so unimpassioned a way, he knew he could not do it justice.

I write this facing that ragged mass of rock and ice which Prof. Tyndall was so eager to ascend in years gone by and succeeded only at the third attempt. The Riffle step on which I am sittting at lunch with Dr. Larrabee at my side is 7,300 feet above the sea and the Matterhorn over 7000 feet still higher a mile and a quarter, that great peak is so lordly, so unique, in its defiant head and battlemented sides, that I do not wonder there is a craze to ascend it. But many a human life has been lost there, just at the point I am looking at. Only on Tuesday last a party were partially overthrown with an avalanche of small rocks, and one of them is now lying seriously ill from injuries at a house in Zermatt. Yet several of our party regret they cannot wait here long enough to make the ascent.

Hark! there was distant thunder! It was an avalanche. We have heard two, the one sound, long and clear, like the reverberation of cannon.

There are from three to four glaciers of high dimensions in plain sight and the sun glitters each with sheens of silver. It is a glorious day and as our panorama is superb, we hesitate to go down again to the valley, whence by a three hours climb, we have ascended. Zermatt is at our feet, a half-mile lower than we go, and we will walk to it through a profusion of larkspurs and rhododendrons radiant with bloom.

And Zermatt is the quaintest village you ever saw, it is the highest all-the-year round inhabited village in Europe, but our Mrs. Barry says it can only be likened to an oriental town like Damascus, which is over a thousand miles away. How came the resemblance?

Speaking of great scenes, we had one of rarest beaty and enchantment a few days ago, in a view of the Rhone valley in approaching Martigny over the Cal de Trient. We saw a transformation scene which none who witnessed can ever forget.

Here were clouds and a thunder shower, and hardly had the reverbreations among the glaciers and crags of the Aizuelle du Tour Alps ceased when, lo! a mile, almost, below us, and stretching far away was an Eden, with its trees of healing and river Euphrates, on which the sun shone in one mass of glory, and it seemed too heavenly to be a reality.

Every day in fact has opened up to us new delights in nature, since we left the gaieties of Paris, and we cry out even in our sleep: "Switzerland crowns all!"

I did think the Yosemite and some views in Scotland were masterpieces, but I had never been to Switzerland, except in the rain and fog. It must be confessed that these noble Swiss peasants, who for a thousand years have refused to be enslaved, have the most magnificent scenery on the civilized portion of the globe, and if for nothing else they are to be envied for the Jungfraus and the Matterhorns, and for Lakes Lucerne and Thun, and a hundred more peaks, glaciers, lakes and valleys, which are enough in the whole to make every State of our Union forever rich to painters and poets.

We carry the American flag wherever we go, and the white cross on the red field of Switzerland follows. Many an old lady bows her head, and many an aged man doffs his hat, as he sees the Star-Spangled Banner waved in the air, and thinks, perhaps, of their boy in far-off America. The free people of earth all respect our dear old Stars and Stripes.

Our party is a unit in feeling, and the first word of disaffection or disloyalty to one another has yet to be uttered. Each has been in perfect health and in fine spirits. The Plainfield teachers are bronzing and have the best of appetites, and will return home full of healthful zest and rich experiences. Miss Kellogg has done as much as twenty miles of mountain climbing in a single day.

Few American travelers come to Zermatt. It is off the beaten track. Yet the approach to it is through the most wild and picturesque scenery imaginable, and besides its proximity to six or eight Alpine summits and glaciers, it has an admirable hotel for 300 guests.

Tomorrow we go by carriages fifty miles to and past the Rhone Glacier and over the Furka Pass, and next day will stand on the great St. Gothard Pass and look over into Italy.

A MIDNIGHT VISIT.

Mrs. Jerry M. Cash's Wash Disappears When Left Out All Night.

Some of the residents of Netherwood have had the rather unpleasant experience of having their wash stolen. Mrs. Jerry M. Cash, of South avenue, who washes for a number of Netherwood people, had her clothes-lines full last Monday, and as they were not dry decided to leave them out all night. But, sorrowful to say, in the morning the lines were empty, for during the night a party of rag-pickers came along with a wagon, and as the exhibition was too tempting, they bundled up $45 worth of the garments, and took their departure as silently as they came. The police, thus far, have been unable to locate the thieves.

A Birthday Surprise.

A birthday and surprise party was given to Miss Emma Wycoff at her home in Washingtonville last night.

Those present included: W. H. Smith, F. R. Smith, William H. Smith, W. Wycoff, W. P. Wycoff, Charles Hewitt, John Gunn, J. Gunn, L. Compton, George Diehl, William Bicknell, D. Robison, R. Hohen, Albert Prudhon, H. M. Ackor, John Burnett, John Reed, Jacob Overland, T. Overbaugh, D. King, E. Linsley, F. Martin, George Kliner, Misses Emma Wycoff, B. Swam, N. Wycoff, K. Burnett, H. Wycoff. Mrs. John Y. Wycoff, Mrs. Jacob Overland, Mrs. V. McCord, Mrs. L. Gunn, Mrs. A. Kliner, Mrs. A. Diehl, Mrs. William Wycoff.

Miss Wycoff received many beautiful presents.

An African Misdonary.

Lestern Severn, a young man who worked at Scott's Printing Machine Works, two or three years ago, has become a convert to Christianity under the influence of the noted evangelist, Mrs. Whitmore, of the Door of Hope fame, and will shortly leave for Africa where he will engage in missionary work. During his residence in this city he was very quiet and unassuming, and his entering into this line of work will doubtless surprise his acquaintances.

Brick Factory at Westfield.

Theodore S. Bird is about to begin the erection of a brick factory on the lot that has been used as a pole yard near the Westfield station. The factory is to be used for the manufacture of electrical switches and small electrical hardware.

Another Tournament.

Arrangements are now being made for an open double tennis tournament to be held on Henry V. Ryder's courts some time in the latter part of August, so as to get the players in trim for the tournament in Orange, that takes place on Labor Day.

ANOTHER IMPOSING BLOCK.

J. W. JACKSON WILL BUILD ON WEST FRONT STREET.

The Manning Jennings Property Will Be the Location—To Be Used for Business and Residence.

The tenants in the old Manning Jennings property, situated on the corner of Madison avenue and West Front street, have vacated the building. J. W. Jackson, the owner, has decided to build a large and imposing brick structure on the lot, which will be used for business and residential purposes, the first floor to be used for stores and the rest of the building to flats.

The work of removing the old house which has stood on the land for many years will be commenced immediately.

The plans of the new building show that it will be imposing in architecture and substantial in construction. With its completion that section of Front street will have a building that will compare frvorable with the Babcock building.

LIGHTNING HITS OLD MAMMY.

Now She Is Paralyzed, and Old John Will Take Good Care of Her.

An aged colored woman, familiarly known in the hamlet of South Branch as "Mammy Jackson," was maimed for life during the thunder storm over that section last Saturday night. "Mammy," who is more than seventy years old and known the country around for her remarkable vitality, started in the evening, accompanied by her aged husband, John, to walk from the cabin to the village of Neshanic, a distance of six miles.

She left her husband in a saloon and started for home again. She struggled against the storm until she sank exhausted under a tree. Then a streak of lightning cut the tree in two and stretched "Mammy" prone upon the earth.

Old John reached home the next morning. All day he waited for "Mammy," but it was not until Monday morning that his anxiety induced him to make her absence known to the villagers. A searching party found her many miles from home still stretched upon the grround beneath the shattered tree.

Old "Mammy" is now in her cabin and is tenderly cared for by old John. Her arms are burned and paralyzed and she has lost the use of them forever. It is believed she will recover.

THE WHEELMEN'S FESTIVAL.

Large Attendance at One of the Social Gatherings of the Victor Wheelmen.

T. A. B. Hall was gay last evening with the festival of the Victor Wheelmen. The colored people of Plainfield turned out in force and the hall was thronged with the wheelmen and their friends. At eleven o'clock the wheelmen's march took place and the wheelmen with their friends paired off and promenaded about the room to the music of Prof. Peterson's string orchestra. There was no dancing and the evening was spent in social chat and enjoying the excellent refreshments which were for sale. The proceeds of the festival are to go for the benefit of the Mt. Zion Methodist church. The officers of the club and the committee in charge were as follows:

President, W. H. Jones; vice-president, Alfred Wilson; secretary, William Fisher; treasurer, Buel Gibson; captain, Israel Jones; committe of arrangements, Mrs. A. Wilson, Mrs. Hooper, Mrs. Marsh, Mrs. Johnson, S. Henry, Mrs. G. Cannon, Mrs. Dunham, John Raid, B. Harvey, Joel Bolden, W. Burton, James Welby, Nathaniel Pollard, Howark Binn, Cyrus Binn, A. Venable, Forest Jones, Tucker Johnson, Wm. Mayhew, Miss Anna Fisher, Miss Commodore, and Miss Mary Mills.

Joel Bolden was in charge of the ticket office while Bert Harvey took them at the door.

All the officers and the committee wore handsome badges provided for the occasion.

A Wonderful Cake.

On the shores of Lake Hopatcong there is a party of Plainfield young men encamped. They are Walter B. Rittenhouse, J. Vincent Rittenhouse, Everett J. Peck and George F. Rose, and have been there for almost two weeks. They are having a splendid time while their letters home are full of wonderful fish stories. Their camp is known as "Camp Plainfield" and that is what Mr. Franklin, of Waynewood place, one of their Plainfield friends, has had put on top of an immense cake that he has just sent them. The letters are made of frosting and the cake itself is delicious but in the centre of it there is a brierwood pipe, all wrapped in parafine paper, ready to be cut into or eaten.

A Schooner Cruise.

Will Cadmus and William Smalley, Jr., together with a number of friends from Brooklyn, will take a cruise in a schooner yacht the last of August. They will go from New York to Cape May and indulge in some fishing.

JUST TWO KINDS OF PEOPLE.

There are two kinds of people on earth today,
Just two kinds of people, no more, I say.

Not the sinner and saint, for 'tis well understood
The good are half bad, and the bad are half good.

Not the rich and the poor, for to count a man's wealth
You must first know the state of his conscience and health.

Not the humble and proud, for in life's little span
Who puts on vain airs is not counted a man.

Not the happy and sad, for the swift flying years
Bring each man his laughter and each man his tears.

No; the two kinds of people on earth I mean,
Are the people who lift and the people who lean.

Wherever you go, you will find the world's masses
Are always divided in just these two classes.

And oddly enough you will find, too, I ween,
There is one lifter to twenty who lean.

In which class are you? Are you easing the load
Of overtaxed lifters who toil down the road?

Or are you a leaner, who lets others bear
Your portion of labor and worry and care?

—Ella Wheeler Wilcox, in Harper's Weekly.

Where He Drew the Line.

It was on a ferryboat crossing to Windsor the other afternoon. A young and good looking chap sat beside a young and good looking girl, and they loved and loved.

When the boat reached midstream the girl was struck with a sudden thought and anxiously queried:

"George, if I should happen to fall overboard, what then?"

"I'd chuck you a life preserver," he calmly replied, as he glanced at a row of them overhead.

"But if I didn't catch it?"

"Then I'd chuck you a chair."

"But the chair might not fall within my reach," she persisted.

"Then I would chuck half a dozen over."

"George, I might be sinking, drowning, going down to my death in the cool limpid waters which are hurrying to the lake. If the chairs failed, if the life preservers failed, what then? Would you, George, would you chuck yourself overboard to—to——?"

She was testing him, and her whole future happiness hung upon his answer. He knew it, and yet he stretched out a leg to rest his foot upon an empty chair and placidly replied:

"No, dearest. I am no chucker from Chuckersville. I'd buy the boat and back her up to you!"

And then the river rolled on and on, and the girl sighed and sighed, and a gulf came between them which can never, never be bridged nor pontooned. —Detroit Free Press.

Do Flies Talk.

An ingenious inquirer, armed with a microphone, or sound magnifier, has been listening patiently through long hours to the curious noises made by house flies, and reports his belief that they have a language of their own.

The language does not consist of the buzzing sound we ordinarily hear, which is made by the rapid vibration of their wings in the air, but of a smaller, finer and more widely modulated series of sounds, audible to the human ear only by the aid of the microphone.

Probable this fly conversation is perfectly audible to the fly ears, which, as every schoolboy knows who has tried to move his hand slowly upon them, are very acute. The hope is expressed that, since the heretofore inaudible whispers of flies have been detected and recorded some inventor may construct a microphone which will enable us to make out the language of the microbes, and so surprise them in the horrible secret of their mode of operations.—London Public Opinion.

Found the Missing Word.

A hotel clerk told this story:

Three men from the country came in and registered for lodging, and a few minutes later two of them went out to see the town.

"I will stay here," said the third, "and look at things," and he took a seat near the door.

At 10 o'clock, a half hour later, the man who was left went up to the clerk.

"I want to remain," said he.

"All right, sir," answered the clerk.

The man stood and looked at the clerk and finally went back to his chair near the door.

He sat still another hour and returned to the desk.

"If you please, I'll remain," he said.

"That's all right, sir," was the response. "We hope you'll be with us some time."

The man hesitated and went back to his chair.

It was away after midnight when he went up to the clerk for the third time.

"I think I'll remain, sir," he said.

"We have no objections," answered the man behind the desk.

The guest did not go back to his chair, however, but stood still. Shortly afterward another guest came up and asked the clerk for his key, "and I'll retire——"

"Retire! Retire! That's the word I've been trying to think of for three hours. "For heaven's sake let me retire," interrupted the man who had so desired to remain, and he was at last happy.—Courier-Journal.

Six Thousand Carloads of Melons.

Georgia will have the average crop of watermelons this year—that is, so far as the size of the crop is concerned—while as to quality it is expected that they will be ahead of the average. There are 12,000 acres planted along the lines of one road in Georgia, and all in the southwestern section of the State. The melons average about a car to two acres, which means that Georgia will yield this year about 6,000 cars.—Sa-

A DEMOCRATIC WEEKLY.

PUBLISHED AT

PLAINFIELD, N. J.

Terms--$2.00 per year.

A. L. Force, Editor and Proprietor

Lightning is playing queer antics in Jersey this year.

Elizabeth has everything going from dirty streets to bold, bad river pirates.

Plainfield can never be thoroughly Roosevelted as long as hard cider is sold the way it is.

WANTED.—Any kind of an argument so long as the city officials are roasted. Apply at the Courier-News office.

If Mr. Westphal can emancipate the barbers from Sunday labor he will be as big a man in Plainfield as Roosevelt is in New York.

One of the disagreeable things that a rich man has to contemplate is that after his death he is liable to have several wives that he never heard of when he was alive.

The city taxpayers displayed a progressive spirit when only one objection was made to the extension of Watchung avenue at the Council meeting last night.

Plainfield is not as big as New York but she needs street signs just as much. Mr. Fisk's move in this direction at the council meeting last night is to be commended.

An invesitagating committee can convict a public official of wrong doing in double-quick time. But when the case goes into court it is quite a different thing.

The New Jersey Contractor of last Saturday publishes a picture of Foster Voorhees which makes him look like an actor. There are lots of actors, though, who are good men.

There is an indomitable perseverance about Frank Magowan in his endeavor to again get on his feet, figuratively speaking, in a business way, that one cannot help but wish him success.

Some of the Presidential boomers are now kept under glass, and some, like skeletons, are yet in the closet, but the one that is too carefully nursed is the more likely to come to an untimely end.—Boston Herald.

Reports to the Comptroller of the Currency of the condition of the National banks of New Jersey on July 11th, show total resources of $88,902,076; loans and discounts, $48,903,104; deposits, $53,206,397; reserve held, 30.55 per cent.

The New Brunswick Home News thinks that the announcement of Franklin Murphy that he will not be a Gubernatorial nominee clears the atmosphere in the Republican camp. It is still very hazy, though.

Congressman Kilborn has just returned from the Hawaii Islands, and after making a personal investigation into the governmental affairs of that country, states that in his opinion the time has not yet come for its annexation to the United States.

It is pretty well settled that Speaker Cross will be the Republican candidate for Judge, and that Assemblyman Codding would try for State Senator, if Senator Voorhees should get the nomination and he will try at the end of the Senator's term.—Newark Advertiser.

Ambassador Bayard has been talking to English scholars about diplomacy. He thinks that perfect frankness makes the best diplomacy and prevents or removes any misunderstanding, and with this idea carried out he believes that no serious difficulty would ever arise between English speaking countries.

Little has been heard lately of the New York and Philadelphia Traction Company, and recent legal proceedings and the Magowan collapse makes it improbable that this booming corporation will again appear. The company has been diligent in seeking franchises and has fulfilled a useful purpose, in spite of itself, for in its efforts to get the favor of townships it has made opposing companies offer fairly liberal terms, and has abated the recklessness of officials who were prepared to give away public rights without public consideration. The time for obtaining great concessions for the benefit of a few railroad capitalists has, we hope, quite passed. The public sentiment is against it, and where street railroads are really needed, a franchise for a ten-year term, or municipal ownership of the road, should be the limit of public generosity.—Newark Call.

And he that lives to live forever never fears dying.—Penn.

Governor McKinley publicly announces that he is not a member of the A. P. A.

"Another Holmes Victim." That is getting to be a daily heading in the newspapers.

The striking tailors are winning, which is good evidence that better times are here.

The Republican committee will name the date for the State convention next Monday.

The Bound Brook Democrat declares for A. G. Cutler for the Democratic nomination for Governor.

The Defender is what her name implies. That's good as far as it goes. But will she win in the most interesting question?

The Jersey City News still maintains that the main honor for the good roads movement in New Jersey belongs to Union county.

As a model interior weekly newspaper the Washington (N. J.) Star is the best that comes to the exchange desk of The Daily Press.

Union county needs all the trolley cars it can get.—New Jersey Contractor.

Whoop 'er up. That's the way to get them. The Daily Press is with you.

Since his arrival from Europe Senator Sewell is not saying much in a political way. But he looks pleasant whenever John Kean's name is mentioned.

The County Board of Election must organize by August 20th. The chairman of the County Committee of the political parties may nominate registry officers for each election district.

There is a friend of the human race in Conyers, Ga., who recently offered to pay the license fee for any man in Rockdale who should marry within ninety days. He didn't throw in a house and lot.—Exchange.

It begins to look as though the school census of Jersey City and Newark was either padded a year ago or else poorly enumerated this year. Of the two evils the first is to be condemned in emphatic terms.

This is a record breaking year in the weather line. Wednesday was the coldest thirty-first of July in twenty-three years, and now the weather bureau reports that yesterday was the coldest first of August in twenty-five years.

The Courier-News editor says that he has been criticising Republican city officials for un-Republican acts. Really, it was not thought that he would carry jokes into the arguments which he uses to bolster up the ridiculous position he has got himself into.

The Jamesburg Reform School paper thinks that if school vacations were limited to two weeks instead of ten, there would be fewer boys in the Reform School. That looks as if the Reform School inmates were just a little jealous. Well, you can't blame them.

Mrs. Frances Willard has been accused of hedging on the anti-lynching question. Some go so far as to say that her utterances show that she looks upon lynching as a necessary evil. This is hard to believe to those who are acquainted with the outspoken words of Mrs. Willard on the temperance question.

The New Jersey Advocate says the next Republican candidate for Governor will be chosen at the primaries, and suggestively wants to know if Union county Republicans recognize this fact? It looks as though the Advocate thought there was a nigger in the fence somewhere.

The revival of the project to connect Plainfield and Elizabeth by a trolley line which will, of course, pass through Cranford, is of vital interest to the people of this town. Concerning the effect that the existence of the line will have upon the business interests of this community opinions differ, but it is certain that the majority of our residents will welcome a convenient, cheap and pleasant means of communication with adjacent cities.

There is one condition that it is the duty of every citizen to demand. That is the preservation of the county road from car tracks. The Consolidated Traction Company is rich enough to buy its own right of way.

Any proposal to gridiron the splendid stone road which the people have built at great expense should be vetoed by a public sentiment which the great corporation must respect.—Cranford Chronicle.

Bland secured control of the Democratic State convention of Missouri and free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1 is the battle-cry of the platform.

The Journal thinks "that if the garbage and litter and goats, etc., including dogs, could be eliminated," Elizabeth would be quite a city. So think all of us.

The man who got a family bible from an instalment house on a forged order must have been anxious to construct a table of ancestors, says the Evening Sun.

At last good news has permeated from New Brunswick. The morning papers announce that the factories of that city are running full time and increasing wages.

Colonel Waring has cleaned the streets of New York, but the city will have to issue bonds to meet the deficit which the letter-writing Colonel has created in his business.

The Westfield Leader has an item this week that you do not often read. It says:

The editor wants to sell the house where he lives. Call and see it.

No better evidence is needed of the fizzle of the Horr-Harvey money debate than the fact that the Tribune devotes only a few inches to the final review of the two debaters.

New Brunswick officials seem to be afflicted with pugilistic mania. The altercation which Freeholder Feible indulged in yesterday on the public streets of that city was most discreditable.

Fifty per cent. more pig iron has been produced during the first six months of 1895 than in the corresponding period of 1894, yet the stock on hand on June 30th was considerably less.

The Tribune thinks that New York has too many hotels whose names are foreign. There are other things besides hotels that need reform in this direction, as, for instance, too many pretty and accomplished American girls.

Mr. Secretary Morton has been reorganizing the weather service bureau. It is recorded that yesterday the Secretary was caught in a severe rain storm and he murmured not a word of protest against getting soaked, because his newly-organized department had predicted the storm. If this be so, didn't the Secretary show a little bit of bad faith by going out at all without his umbrella.

Improved land in New Jersey is already higher in value than in any other State of the Union. Last year the total product of our farmers and dairymen brought $28,997,349, representing an average value per acre of improved land constituting 75-100 per cent. of the total area of the State, including mountain, salt meadow, pine barrens and sand dunes. The total average value per farm in New Jersey is $5,913, and there are 30,828 farms, of which 24,412 are worked by their owners.—New Brunswick Times.

The Newark Daily Advertiser takes exception to the statement of the Jersey City News that it was Union and not Essex county that was the pioneer in the matter of county road building. The Advertiser quotes Public Roads Commissioner Edward Borrough in his last annual report as follows:

"The first practical operations for improved stone roadways in New Jersey began in Essex county," and "inspired by the example of Essex county * * * the adjoining county of Union procured the passage of a general law allowing counties to issue bonds for road purposes" under which was built "a complete system of telford and macadam roads." The State Commissioner also testifies in his report to the fact that Essex county "has built more than 200 miles of fine telford and macadam roads, many of them boulevards."

The Advertiser adds that the Essex road system was constructed under a special law, passed prior to the constitutional amendment of 1875 prohibiting special legislation, while the Union county system was begun under a general law, known as the "Union county law," which was enacted long after the constitutional amendment was adopted.

$100 Reward, $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

SCOTCH PLAINS WAS DUPED.

AN OLD, OLD GAME WORKED BY A BOLD AND SLICK FAKIR.

Jewelry Scattered Broad Cast in the Streets—How the Village Was Victimized by "Goldentine Kit."

About seven o'clock on Saturday night a stout young man, dressed in disguise of a cow boy, seated in a two-seat open surrey, drawn by a spirited horse, which was partially covered with a red blanket, gorgeously lettered on both sides, "Golden Kit," drove about the streets of Scotch Plains loudly proclaiming that in about fifteen minutes he would give a show on the corner near the hotel. He stated that it would consist of clog dancing, sentimental songs, etc. Shortly after a crowd gathered at the place, when the young man mounted his wagon and introduced himself as representing western jewelry manufacturers who employed two hundred and fifty men and seventy-five girls in manufacturing Goldentine, which, he said, had proved to be equal to gold in every respect, excepting that it was a trifle lighter. He said he was under a salary of eight dollars per day to introduce the jewelry and consequently could not sell, but would distribute a sample of it with a few of the representative citizens, after which he would make arrangements with some of the merchants to dispose of it by legitimate trade. His first move toward distributing it, was to promiscuously throw out a handful of "Goldentine" rings, which were greedily gathered up by the crowd. He then wanted to distribute eight or ten cards of "shirt studs" and in order to test the nerves of the spectators said he would accept twenty-five cents a card for them, and give each purchaser a present that would be satisfactory to them. The result was that the ten cards were readily taken, the buyers being agreeably surprised to receive their money back. His next was ten pair of cuff buttons, which he would accept fifty cents a pair for, and make a handsome present to each buyer as before, for, as he put it, what benefit was it to him; he was under salary employed to introduce, and not to sell. The cuff buttons went rapidly, and the price was just as promptly refunded. Next he said he would put out a limited number of watch chains. These he said were solid one hundred and fifteen linked Goldentine chains, the retail price being $8. To again test the nerves of his listeners he would except one dollar each for the chains, with presents returned as before. Several chains were taken. Then just for a joke he would tie a knot in a chain and let it go for $2 and when he tied two knots in a chain three dollars was handed up, for what difference did it make, as all were sure of getting their money back. Finally, he became more liberal than ever, and changed his tactics by attaching a "Goldentine" hunting case watch to each chain, declaring that he would make the watch a present to every person who had nerve enough to part with one dollar for an eight dollar chain. The watches went lively, each one being carefully placed in an envelope and sealed with the buyers name written thereon. They were not to be opened until close of sale, lest he should make no mistake and give presents to wrong persons. After gathering in about all the hard earned dollars the bystanders had to spare, instead of returning the money as before he made each buyer the promised present in the shape of a very diminutive package of what he said was Doctor Brown's "Great Brain Restorer." Then whipping out a mammoth bull dog revolver volunteered to show the spectators how he could shoot, but they did not seem as anxious to know how to shoot as they did how to get their dollars back.

It was then discovered that "Kit" had with him two confederates, who jumped on the front seat, and, saying good night to all, drove away with "Goldentine Kit," cooly sitting on the back seat brandishing the bull-dog revolver. After the crowd had regained their temper a consultation was had, and on opening the envelopes and examining the so-called watches, they were found to be brass boxes filled with putty. The brain restorer was common soap. It is thought the fakirs gathered in about $75, leaving behind them brass worth less than 50 cents.

The three fakirs were in this city early Saturday afternoon, but after an interview with Sergeant Kiely, who laid down the law to them, they journeyed on to Scotch Plains and worked their game there as told above.

Crabbing at Boynton Beach.

The crabbing season has commenced again and Walter E. Probasco, Arthur B. Crane and S. Clinton Crane rode down to Boynton Beach on their wheels yesterday to try it. Although only out only two hours they caught over forty and brought them home in a bag slung over their backs.

Just as the party left Plainfield, Probasco punctured his tire and they stopped to repair it. The patch held all right until the return when they had to blow it up five times in the sixteen miles to Plainfield.

NEW JERSEY'S INVESTIGATION.

Jersey City and Newark to Be Hauled Over the Coals Next.

Senator Ketcham, of New Jersey, is back from his travels and at his home in Newark. He says that the Senate investigation of affairs in Jersey City and Newark will be begun soon, and that Jersey City will receive the attention of the committee first. Senators Herbert and Daly have been assigned to prepare for the investigation. In Newark this duty has been assigned Senators Voorhees and Ketcham, and some of the work has been done, but Senator Ketcham says that it is not of much account.

It is understood that the Senate Committee will look into the work of the last Board of Chosen Freeholders, the purchase of the water supply by the Common Council, and some acts of the last Street and Water Board, as well as the general conduct of city affairs.

LAST SAD RITES.

Funeral of the Late Jacob VanDyke on Saturday Evening.

The funeral services of the late Jacob VanDyke were held Saturday evening at eight o'clock from the residence of his son, John C. VanDyke, on East Front street. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends. Rev. Mr. Livermore officiated and spoke appropriate and comforting words to the sorrowing hearts. Mr. and Mrs. P. P. VanArsdale, who were close friends of the departed, sang very effectively "Jesus, Saviour, Pilot Me," and "Lead Kindly Light."

The floral tributes consisted of a beautiful sheaf of wheat and a wreath of English ivy.

The remains were taken to Bedminster, where a short service was held in the afternoon at the Reformed church which was conducted by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Jones. Interment was made in the church cemetery.

WAR OVER COWS.

Which Causes a Law Suit Among Neighbors in South Plainfield.

Two cows had a quarrel in South Plainfield last Tuesday and the consequence is that the owners are going to law about it. Miss Harriet W. Mallison, the school teacher in South Plainfield, keeps a cow but always has it tied as it should be. Now, one of her neighbors, Samuel B. Merrill, keeps a cow also, but unlike the other cow it is not tied. Merrill's cow, which has quite a reputation as a fighter, took a walk last Tuesday and finally managed to bring up in Miss Mallison's lot where her bossy was tied. They fought and the result was a complete victory for the visitor who tore out one of the horns of her opponent and damaged her generally. The result is a suit before Justice Huff, of Dunellen, which comes up on Thursday, when Harry C. Runyon will plead for justice on the side of the battered cow.

IT WAS A MISTAKE.

A Man in the First Presbyterian Church Almost Loses His Umbrella.

The rain had commenced to fall in torrents last evening when an amusing incident occurred in the First Presbyterian church, which might not have been so funny after all. Rev. C. E. Herring had about half finished his sermon when one of the doors in the back of the church opened and a man walked in, looked around, and, picking up an umbrella that stood by the door, started out again. Now, it happened that the owner of that umbrella sat in the rear seat, and, hearing the rain pouring down, he wanted to use the umbrella himself. He jumped to his feet and ran after the borrower. "Give me that umbrella; it's mine. Your are a thief," he gently remarked as he caught up with him in the vestibule. "Excuse me," said the other, "I thought it was mine," and without another word disappeared in the darkness.

JUST A LITTLE ROMANCE.

A Young Couple Attend the Cranford Carnival and are Wedded.

Miss Agnes Kate Ford, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ford, and Louis K. Clark of this city went to Cranford Saturday evening to witness the carnival. While there they went to the home of Rev. Mr. Johnston, pastor of the Methodist church, and were married. The affair was a very quiet one, and on their return went to the home of the bride where they informed Mr. and Mrs. Ford of what had taken place. They are living at the corner of Fourth street and Madison avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Clarke are well-known in Plainfield.

A Successful Examination.

Miss Clyde B. Burnet, of Madison avenue, distinguished herself in having successfully passed a difficult examination in Bible history, while in attendance at the Bible class of the Ocean Grove Sunday-school Assembly this year. The class was a very large one, and out of the many perfect papers she was finally decided to be the best. As a result of her merit she received the first prize.

SAVED BY JUST TWO MINUTES

BICYCLISTS WERE NUMEROUS AT THE CITY COURT THIS MORNING.

Tolles Did Not Know His Lantern Was Out—A Trio Got a Ride Home and Then Had Trouble About It.

Bicycling is becoming more and more popular with Plainfield people, as was shown by the large number of cycling offenders before the city court this morning.

The first case was one for riding a bicycle without a light last Wednesday evening, and Volney F. Green pleaded not guilty to the charge. Officer Totten, who made the arrest on Watchung avenue, said that it happened at 8:15, and as the hour after sunset when lights are required was not up until two minutes later, Green was discharged.

The next two, Gregory Humes and Henry Ostermoor, did not get off as easily. They were charged by Officer Cooney of riding on the sidewalk on Liberty street a week ago last Saturday. Their excuse was that the street was blocked by the laying of the sewer pipes, but Judge Coddington did not think that sufficient cause, and gave them their choice between a fine of $5 or twenty days in the county jail. The fines were paid.

Ralph Tolles, who was arrested Saturday for riding without a light, had a better reason, as he did not know his light had gone out until the officer told him. Sentence was suspended.

The last of the bicycle riders was Emin Jarmand, who was arrested in Evona by Officer Hartpence for riding on the sidewalk. Most of the cyclists ride on the sidewalk there, but Jarmand was the unlucky one to be caught. He paid his fine of $5.

The adjourned case of four men quarreling and fighting at Tunison's stable on Sycamore street was the next. William Waldron, Thomas Humble, and Patrick Keller went riding on their wheels week before last, and when the party arrived at South Plainfield, one of the wheels broke down. William C. Laine, the colored driver for Watson J. Tunison, was about to start for Plainfield, and allowed the three white men to put their wheels in and ride home. No trouble occurred until Plainfield was reached, when they wanted Laine to drive them home. He refused, as the horses were tired and needed their food. A heated argument arose, and ended by Laine putting Keller out of the barn which they had then reached. Humble behaved himself and had nothing to do with the quarrel, but thanked Laine and went home. On him and Laine the judge suspended sentence; but Waldron and Keller had their choice between paying $5 or going to jail for twenty days. They both preferred to pay cash.

At the request of George W. DeMeza, the counsel for the defendant in the Dennis Kane case, the trial for trespassing on coal cars, was adjourned until Monday, August 12th, at nine o'clock a. m.

Burglars at Cranford.

Burglars Sunday night broke into the barn of J. B. Cline, superintendent at Cranford for the Union County Water Company, and stole eight costly lap robes and blankets, a set of single and one of double harness valued at $30. In all about $200 worth of articles were taken. The thieves overlooked a new set of double harness worth $65 that was locked in a closet in the barn. The police of Elizabeth and Plainfield have been notified of the robbery.

Councilman Westphal Makes a Move for Sunday Closing.

TONSORIAL ARTISTS DESERVE A REST

The August Meeting of the Common Council has Lots of Business—Only One Objection to Watchung Avenue Extension—Street Railway Extension Ordinance Reintroduced—One Sewer Contract Accepted—Other Business.

The regular August meeting of the City Conneil was held Monday at which time a considerable amount of business was transacted.

Councilman Fisk, Dumont, Frost, Ginna, Frazee, Moore and Westphal were present when President See called the meeting to order at 8:30.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and adopted.

On Mr. Ginna's motion the regular order of business was suspended to hear any objections to the proposed opening of Watchung avenue.

Mrs. Hannah Derlach having property along that avenue objected in a communication because five feet of the frontage would be taken off. That was the only objection and the communication was received and filed.

The regular order of business was then taken up.

A. C. Rogers asked for permission to make an extension on his property at 182 East Front street and it was granted.

Charles Ross and others residents of La Grande avenue and Berckman street asked for additional electric lights. It was referred to the Committee on Police and Public Lights.

Catherine Ohl and Perry Ohl in a long communication petitioned Council to throw off the interests and costs on their tax bills, but Mr. Dumont could not see that the Council had power to act in the matter and recommended the petition be returned with instructions to that effect.

Permission was asked of Council by Dennis Sheehan to lay a cement walk in front of the property at 836-838 Richmond street. The street committee recommended it be granted, with the proviso that it be laid according to the instructions of the street commissioner. It was so ordered.

R. B. Brown objected to the name now held by Berckman street. He stated that he was a resident of the street, and would like to see the name of the residential portion of it changed. The letter was received and filed.

The reports of the city collector, city treasurer, and city physician were received and filed. The latter showed seventeen cases treated, and four miscellaneous cases examined.

The monthly bills were presented, and after being audtted wese ordered paid.

Mr. Dumont offered a resolution and four miscellaneous cases examinad.

The monthly bills were presented and after being audited were ordered paid.

Mr. Dumont offered a resolution that $2,000, $1.000 and $5,000 be borrowed in anticipation of taxes and charged to the general, fire and poor funds respectively. It was adopted.

Mr. Frost offered a resolution that $7,000 be drawn, the same to be used on the sewers. It was adopted, all voting for the resolution.

Mr. Dumont stated that the city assessor would have his books ready to be examined on Tuesday evening, August 20th, at eight o'clock, and he made a motion, that was carried, that when Council adjourn it be to meet at that time.

The petitions of W. R. Codington to erect a building on Park avenue, near Second street, and C. Chapot & Sons to erect one on South avenue, near Rock avenue, were granted.

Mr. Westphal introdnced an ordinance which was placed on first and second readings and ordered engrossed and advertised.

Councilmen Fisk and Dumont asked Councilman Westphal what was intended by the ordinance, and whether it would close restaurants and drug stores, etc. Mr. Westphal stated that it was the intent of the ordinance to prevent manual labor on Sunday as far as possible, but it did not include restaurants, livery stables and drug stores. He said the barbers were anxious to have Sunday for rest, and for that reason he favored its adoption.

The ordinance provides for the closing of all places of business in the city on Sunday except those of absolute necessity. It is really an amendment to the present city ordinance on that subject. Mr. Westphal championed the ordinance and it passed all right.

The application of William Stillman to have the license fee on plays at Music Hall reduced was not granted.

The following licenses were granted: H. DeMott, stage; J. Kennedy, truck; S. Kremer, peddler; H. M. Staats, cartman. A bill of Chief of Police G. W. Grant for $13 was referred back for correction. Mr. Fisk stated that the streets of the city were very much in need of something to put them in passable condition and moved that the Street Committee be authorized to advertised for bids to secure a steam roller and report at the next meeting The motion was adopted. In reference to the street railway matter Mr. Fisk stated that it would be necessary to re-advertise the ordinance which was ordered. He then offered a resolution that Tuesday evening, August 20th be set as the time to table final action on the application of the company. It was adopted.

Mr. Fisk said that a large number of the property owners in the city had removed their fences, also the street signs. He offered a resolution, which was carried, that the city clerk be authorized to secure bids for signs and posts. Mr. Frost stated that the Sewer Committee expected to be able to ask Council soon to advertise for bids to do the necessary work on sewage beds. A. J. Gavett reported through a letter that W. W. Cook & Co. had completed their sewer work and asked that it be accepted and the conditions followed out. On Mr. Frost's motion, Mr. Gavett's certification of Cook & Co's work was adopted. Mr. Frost asked Council that the Sewer Committee be allowed $500 to expend in preliminary work on sewage beds. It was granted, all voting for it except Councilmen Frazee and Moore.

On Mr. Ginna's motions the ordinances relating to the Arlington avenue curb lines, the establishing of the Watchung avenue grade, and the Watchung avenue extension were brought up for final passage and were adopted, all voting for them. Council then adjourned.

POISON KILLS MISS ENGELKE.

Disappointed in Love, She Drinks Carbolic Acid.

Miss Magdelena Engelke, of Rahway, took a large dose of carbolic acid with suicidal intent on Sunday.

The young woman swallowed the poison in the presence of several boarders in the family with whom she was living, notwithstanding their efforts to prevent it. Jealousy is assigned as the cause for the act.

Death resulted at 6:30 o'clock yesterday morning. The young woman was disappointed in a love affair. Her sister, Mrs. Sophia Arndt, of 812 Park avenue, Hoboken, has been notified.

The programme changes every twenty minutes and the child in the most delightful manner studies the natural sciences, geometry and mathematics, varied by games and occupations.

A Grain Elevator in Plainfield.

Plainfield has not an immense grain elevator like one of those at Chicago but she has at last a real one of her own. I. R. Giles, the enterprising grain dealer of East Fourth street, has had one built so that the grain may be unloaded from the cars without handling and is conveyed directly into the store rooms.

POOR WAY TO GET THE MEAT.

BERNARD TRACEY PROCURED STEAK BY FALSE PRETENSES.

Ordered Thirty Pounds and Had it Charged to Mr. McVey—A Warrant Out for His Arrest.

It is not good for one's health to eat too much meat during the summer months, but when you can get it for nothing as Bernard Tracey did yesterday, the rule of health doesn't count.

Until about ten days ago Bernard was employed by J. H. McVey at his North avenue restaurant. Mr. McVey occasionally sent him for various things needed, and he became very efficient in his line of work.

Yesterday afternoon he went to Israel Lewis' meat shop on Somerset street and told Mr. Lewis that Mr. McVey wanted some meat. Mr. Lewis thinking it was all right let him have what he asked for, which was about thirty-five pounds of the best cuts of beef.

He took it with him, and a few hours later returned for more meat. Mr. Lewis' son George was at the shop and was inclined to think something was wrong so he called at Mr. McVey's place and inquired if it was all right. He was informed that Tracey was not working there, and that the meat had been obtained under false pretenses.

Mr. Lewis at once had a warrant issued by Justice Crosley for the arrest of Tracey. It was placed in Constable Taynor's hands and he no doubt will be captured today.

BURNED UP HIS CLOTHES.

Fire at the Pump Station in the Engineer's Closet.

A water station is a rather funny place in which to have a fire but that is what occurred at the pump station of the Plainfield Water Supply Company at Netherwood during Saturday evening. The engineer, James Henderson, has a closet in which he keeps his clothes and other personal articles. When he returned to the engine room after a short absence, he found the closet in flames. A stream of water was turned on which soon extinguished the fire but not until it had destroyed his clothes and completely ruined a valuable watch.

The origin of the fire is not known, but the old story of the rats and the matches is thought as probably the reason. It may have caught however from a lamp nearby.

A FAMOUS DABOLL.

DEATH OF A PUBLISHER KNOWN ALL OVER NEW ENGLAND.

David A. Daboll, the Third in the Line of the Famous Almanac Publishers. His Arithmetic was One of the First Text Books Used in American Schools.

David A. Daboll, publisher of Daboll's Almanac, was 82 years old when he lied of general debility, at New London, Conn. The almanac has been issued by the Daboll's since 1773, and it will probably remain in the family for several generations longer.

David A. Daboll was of the third generation that published the "Farmer's Friend." His grandfather, Nathan Daboll, conceived the idea and produced the first number in 1773. He was professor of mathematics at Plainfield Academy, and the author of the famous Old Daboll Arithmetic and Schoolmaster's Assistant, and a work on navigation.

Nathan Daboll made the calculations for the almanac until 1818. From then until 1864 his son, also named Nathan, was the almanac maker; and since that time David A., one of the six sons of Nathan H., has figured out the astronomical problems. Every one of David's brothers was capable to do the work at a moment's notice. All of them were mathematicans. One of them invented the foghorn which warns mariners of danger when the weather on the coast is thick, and keeps the seaside boarders awake on foggy nights.

David A. Daboll leaves four sons, all mathematicans. David A. Daboll, Jr., has been living with his father, and expects to succeed him as publisher of the almanac. The house where the almanac maker has been living was built by old Nathan Daboll more than a century ago, and it has been the home of the Daboll's always. It is at Center Groton, four miles from New London, on the old Providence turnpike.

The first number of the almanac was prepared under the low oaken roof of the Daboll house, and each succeeding number has been prepared there since. It was in this house that Nathan arranged his Schoolmaster's Assistant, and prepared the book on navigation. Afterward the little house was used for a nautical school, although it was four miles from the water, and for years father and son taught navigation.

Boys came from many towns in New England to receive instruction. More than 200 were prepared as midshipmen for the navy. Some of the best known captains of the present day received their instructions in navigation in Center Groton.

The New England Almanac and Farmer's Friend was one of the first in the field. Every farmer throughout New England has an almanac, which hangs at the side of the old-fashioned fireplace in the kitchen. It is the recognized authority on the weather and the workings of the sun, moon and stars.

Steamships and sailing vessels that cruise from New England seaport towns invariably have the Farmer's Friend hanging in their cabin also. To many of the farmers this almanac furnishes food reading the year round. It has been said that no farmer in that region would think of doing any work on his place without first consulting his almanac.

If he contemplates planting on a certain day and the prognostications in the title book should declare unfavorably as to meteorological conditions, he would not plant, and no one could induce him to alter the circumstances.

In addition to a good deal of valuable information, the almanac furnishes jokes for the recreation of the farmer. They are good old jokes that have stood the test of time, and they are none the less appreciated for that fact.

The almanac office is in the wing of the Daboll house. Its furniture now is antique, and there for many years Mr. Daboll has worked out his calculation by the glow of the kerosene lamp. Until almost his last days his eye was bright, his brain active and his memory excellent.

He made his calculations from the Nautical Almanac, a work issued by the Royal Observatory of Greenwich, several years in advance, for the special use of astronomers and navigators. To the astronomer it furnishes a great mass of valuable information. Mr. Daboll gave in his almanac a daily forecast of the weather for an entire year. These forecasts represent the almanac maker's personal opinion, but to the farmers they were worth a good deal, for Mr. Daboll's long practice in almanac making made him a good guesser.

When he desired to know what the weather a year in advance would be he figured out the exact position of the sun and the moon, and then searched his journal until he found them in similar positions. If frost or rain or snow prevailed on that day, he calculated that there would be frost or rain or snow on the day in question.

He Felt It Deeply.

"Can you trust me to a glass of beer until day after to-morrow, at half past 2?" he asked, as he came over from the free lunch counter.

"No, sir," said the bartender with hopeless emphasis.

"I'm sorry. It seems kinder small for a man to eat a lot of lunch an' then not buy anything to drink."

And he went slowly out with a halo of intense mortification hovering over him.—Puck.

Was He Right?

After listening to the woman suffrage advocate from Maine a Yankee shuffled uneasily up to her, murmuring:

"I understand ye're a Maineac, an' willin' from that State meself thought——"

But here he was interrupted. The woman from Maine designed no reply; she coldly shook the extended hand and refused to shook him.—Judge.

A BLAZE OF GLORY.

Note.—Mrs. Katherine O'Leary, owner of the cow that kicked the lamp that fired the barn that set the blaze that burned Chicago, died in that town July 3.

Dead is Mrs. O'Leary,
Dead in Chicago now;
Finished her earthly labors,
Gone to meet her cow:

Cow that is ever famous.
More than heart could desire
Famous because she started
The Great Chicago Fire:

Fire that swept the city;
City of brick and frame
Went up in a blaze of glory,
That brought untading fame:

Fame for being the biggest
Fire that ever blazed
In any other city,
And left the world amazed:

Amazed that from her ashes
Chicago could arise,
And grow with magic swiftness
To such enormous size:

Size that is simply wondrous;
Distended everywhere,
With the wind which is de facto,
Coagulated air:

Air that is filled with thickness,
That makes the sun as red
As the blood in her slaughter houses
Where the wine of her life is shed:

Shed that her wealth and glory
Might decorate the brow
Of the one and only city
Kicked to fame by a cow:

Cow of Mrs. O'Leary:
A lamp, a kick, and a shed,
A wonderful combination
Numbered now with the dead.

Dead is Mrs O'Leary,
Gone to the by and by;
Go build her a tomb of granite
A hundred stories high!

—W. J. Lampton.

"BROTHER JONATHAN."

The Name of Jonathan Does Not Seem to Be Very Popular Among Us.

The Englishman is John Bull, the Irishman is Pat or Paddy, the Scotchman is Sandy or Sawney, the Welshman is David, the Frenchman is Jean Crapaud or Micaire, the German is Cousin Michael, the Swiss is Colin Tampon, the Jew is Sheeny, and the American is Brother Jonathan. There is a nickname for the people of almost every country on earth.

It is a singular circumstance that, while John is a popular prenomen in England, and Patrick in Ireland, and David in Wales, and Jean in France, and Michael in Germany, the name of Jonathan has never become popular in the United States.

All that is necessary to give any one evidence of this statement is that he shall examine the directory of the city of New York from beginning to end, or shall look through the directories printed in Philadelphia, Boston, New Orleans, Chicago, Brooklyn, Jersey City, San Francisco, or any other American city. He may see Jonathan once in a while, as he turns over the leaves of the book; but he may go through ten or twenty pages without seeing it even once. Patrick is on every page of a Dublin directory, as John is on every page of an English directory; but as for the name of Jonathan, it is seen about as often in an English as in an American directory. It is possible that one reason for the unpopularity of the name with fathers and mothers lies in the fact that Brother Jonathan is always pictured as a very grotesque and unattractive personage, costumed in a ridiculous fashion, and calculated to raise laughter rather than command respect.

It is a wonder that no American artist has ever drawn a worthy figure of the great and mighty and majestic Brother Jonathan, one that would be characteristic, significant and impressive, without too marked a violation of the traditions that are associated with the name. It cannot be said that the "Uncle Sam" of the picture makers is any better than the Brother Jonathan.

Paid the Expenses.

A good story is told of a well-known Hartford landlord who has been having any amount of trouble during the hard times to collect rents from his tenants. There was a certain man with a large family who had occupied a part of one of his houses in the surburbs for a number of years.

The man was thoroughly honest but down on his luck. The landlord bore the loss of his rent with considerable fortitude until he thought it was some one else's turn to help the fellow a little; then he went to him one day and told him with all seriousness that he intended to give the house a going over; it was out of repair and he had decided to expend a little money on it and make some important alterations, and, as it would be some expense for the man to move, he generously offered to order a team for him and settle the bill himself.

The matter was arranged with the utmost friendliness on both sides, and the landlord went his way feeling quite a little like the celebrated Pharisee. A week later he asked his agent about some flats that had been empty for a month or two.

"All rented," said the agent, and he named the parties, whereupon the landlord immediately descended on the plane of publicans and sinners. When he had recovered himself sufficiently to talk English, he proceeded to inform the astonished agent that one of his acquisitions was the man who had just moved at his own expense out of the house in the suburbs.

Precaution All Around.

A carpenter, sent to make some repairs in a private house, entered the apartment of the lady of the house with his apprentice.

"Mary," the lady called to her servant, "see that my jewel case is locked at once."

The carpenter understood. He removed his watch and chain from his vest with a significant air and gave them to his apprentice.

"John," he said, "take these right back to the shop. It seems that the house isn't safe!"—Youth's Companion.

WILL ASSESS PER FRONT FOOT

VALUABLE INFORMATION FOR THOSE WHO WILL USE SEWERS.

The Assessment Will Probably Be From Fifteen to Twenty Cents a Lineal Foot—All Will Have to Pay.

In connection with the system of sewerage which Plainfield is to have, many points arise, knowledge of which will not only be of great value to all interested but a positive necessity. The question of assessment is probably one that most people are interested in. There are many different plans of assessment, and as yet one has not been found that will satisfy everyone.

However, every property owner in front of whose property the sewer pipes pass will be assessed; the amount to be determined by commissioners appointed for that purpose. It will probably be from fifteen to twenty-five cents a lineal foot. This amount will go into the general tax fund and the balance of the cost of the sewers will be against the city at large. There will be a uniform price for pipe laid which will probably be the minimum amount that has been paid per foot for lateral sewers; this statement must be qualified, however, because in some cases of assessment a fixed price is adopted which may be greater than the minimum cost of lateral sewers.

Another question will probably be asked, that is, whether a man living on the corner will have to pay for both the front and side.

He will have to pay for sidewalk and street improvements on both sides, and while there are plans of assessment which provide for this in special cases of corner lots, yet it is probable that they will have to pay for both sides, because the property is more valuable and the benefits greater.

After the laterals are in, the city at large will be assessed for intersections, for the extra cost of the main sewers over the laterals, for manholes, flush tanks, and preparation of disposal beds entire.

A fact worthy of much note is that in time there will be no cesspools and out houses on property connected with sewers, as an ordinance will be prepared and put into effect by the Board of Health, which will require people using the sewer to remove them and fill them in. This will be done to purify the ground, and it is the intention to have Plainfield as healthy as possible. It will take some time to effect this change, but it will eventually come and the city will be all the better for it.

PRIZE WALTZERS.

Dancers Merry and Graceful at the Jersey Central Ball.

The first grand ball given by the Jersey Central Club was given in T. A. B. Hall, on West Fourth street, last evening. The attendance at the first dance of this organization was large, and it was due mainly to the fact that two handsome prizes were to be contested for and awarded to the two best waltzers present. Precisely at twelve o'clock the contest began and it was watched with interest by those present. The judges selected to pick the winning parties were P. Revelle, W. Goeller and Chas. Greder. Twelve couples contested for the prizes, and out of the twelve the judges selected Thomas Muldowney and his sister, Miss Lizzie Muldowney, and William Barry and Mrs. Fred S. Moore as the lucky ones. The prizes given were two handsome fruit baskets containing some of the most lucious fruit of the season.

The affair was a grand success both financially and socially and the committee deserve credit for the manner in which matters were carried out at this their first attempt.

Great Array of Talent.

A change of bill next week at Koster & Bial's Roof Garden in New York includes the first appearance at this house of the Burt sisters, who appear in a unique specialty entitled "The Broadway Swells;" of Nelle Waters, in Irish comicalities; of Mason and Healy, comedians, and of Lew Bloom, who makes his debut in the vaudeville, and who will be remembered on acconnt of his excellent work as a tramp and monologist in several of Hoyt's companies. The other new features include the reappearance of Senorita Yberrie, a Spanish danseuse; Le Clair and Leslie, in their burlesque on "Trilby," and Fielding, a somewhat remarkable juggler. The retained features will be J. W. Ransome, the Ruler of New York; the Egger-Rieser troupe of Tyrolean singers and dancers; Clairesse Agnew, an eccentric dancer; Marietta and Belloni, and their wonderful flock of performing cockatoos, and Dr. Leo Sommer's Hungarian Gysy Orchestra.

That's the Place.

A NEW MARKET GIRL.

Mrs. Morse Believes in a Wifely Ministry to Ministers.

The New York Commercial Advertiser of Saturday published a portrait of Mrs. Anna Bloomfield Giles Morse, a former New Market young lady. Mrs. Morse is the helpmeet of Rev. Dr. Frank Rogers Morse, of the Calvary Baptist church, and The Advertiser speaks of her as one of the most prominent of minister's wives. She was born in New Market, and was a daughter of John and Sarah Bancroft Giles. Mr. Giles was a carriage manufacturer for nearly fifty years and a large property owner. He was a prominent man of the New Market Baptist church. He was a liberal contributor to all good causes.

Mrs. Morse's early life was spent at her parents' home in New Market, and here, even as a child, she was loved by all who knew her for her sweet disposition and lovable traits. She received her early education in the public schools of her native town, and in these prepared herself for the New Hampton institute. She was graduated with honors. She speaks of these years as being among the happiest of her life.

After her school days she returned home, and here she met the church workers, whose labors were so facilitated by the liberality of her father. Here, too, she met her husband.

Mrs. Morse has always been a great physical sufferer, but notwithstanding this she has done an immense amount of good.

Mrs. Morse says that there is a great deal more work to do in the churches than can be performed by the church-caller delegated for that purpose, and a minister's wife has many duties which she alone can do. One of the most important of these is to make her home a loyable, sociable place where all of her husband's parishioners may come at all times and find a hearty and brotherly welcome. It not only creates a good feeling among them, but it at the same time puts the minister in touch with his congregation, thereby insuring better work and giving better satisfaction to both the minister and his parishioners.

And she says that a minister's home should be made cheerful and comfortable for his sake also, for his surroundings must be inspiring if he would write such sermons as would interest and touch the listener.

In nature Mrs. Morse is retiring, refined, sincere and loyal.

Dr. Morse says his wife can preach better sermons than half of the ministers, and he invariably gets points from her for his sermons.

SUFFERING WITH LOCKJAW.

William Peterson Stepped on a Rusty Nail and Is Bad Off.

About two weeks ago William Peterson, of Watchung avenue, stepped on a rusty nail which penetrated his left foot. Nothing serious was thought of the accident till a few days ago when he began to suffer terrible pains. His limbs became stiffened and he had difficulty in swallowing his food.

Dr. Tomlinson was called and discovered that the young man was suffering with the first stages of lockjaw. In order that Mr. Peterson should have good treatment the doctor thought he had better be taken to the hospital, which was done this morning with the ambulance.

It is impossible to determine at present the seriousness of the wound.

Life at West Point.

Plainfield's representative in the United States Military Academy at West Point, Louis H. Rand, of Madison avenue, has been having exciting experiences at his new school. At the time of the great wind and hail storm, a week ago last Saturday, Rand was standing guard in one of the sentry boxes when the great blow came and over went sentry box, sentry and all rolling on the ground. Rand is quite enjoying his soldier life and says that the drill is not half as hard as it is thought. His health is very good and the regular exercise has improved him greatly.

Murder Will Out.

"Murder will out." The truth of this is often made manifest. Perhaps no single local event in American criminal history ever attracted more attention or caused more excitement, here and abroad, at the time of its occurrence, or was more vividly remembered for many years thereafter—especially in Boston, in staid old Massachusetts—than the one which is made the subject of an article entitled "The Parkman-Webster Tragedy," by Henry Mann, which appears in Home and Country, New York, for August.

The Crucifixion.

Jerusalem on the day of the Crucifixion, a cyclorama, is on exhibition at Asbury Park. The picture was painted in Philadelphia and was originally exhibited in that city. During the World's Fair it was shown with great success in the city of Chicago.

NEW JERSEY REFORMATORY.

AN INSTITUTION IN WHICH PLAINFIELDERS ARE INTERESTED.

To Be an Intermediate Reformatory for Boys Who Have Not Been to Prison—Located at Rahway.

Governor Werts, Supervisor Seymour, and other State officials, as well as various associations whose object is to improve the morals of young offenders against the laws of New Jersey, have for some years strongly urged and recommended the construction of an intermediate prison or reformatory for boys who have not previously been sent to State prison. The most important reasons for this were the overcrowded condition of the State prison at Trenton, and the taint that is in many instances imparted from older convicts to susceptible youths, many of whom have been taught tricks in roguery which can never be eradicated. Gov. Werts, on these grounds, strongly advocated the reformatory in his last message, and on January 14th Assemblyman John C. Eisele, of Newark, introduced Assembly bill No. 53, an act relating to a State reformatory, providing for the erection of a main building, two wings, and a hospital, on State grounds, at a cost of $250,000, to accommodate 1,000 persons. The bill met with some opposition from those in favor of enlarging the State prison, but was finally passed on March 28th with a $100,000 appropriation for this year's work.

In one of the sections of the bill, the State property at Rahway, comprising an acreage of 81.44 (a section of the Thomas Edgar farm of 400 acres), was designated as the site, and $10,000 was appropriated to purchase additional land. The bill authorized the Governor to appoint six commissioners to erect the buildings and serve as managers for three years. In April the Governor appointed the following gentlemen: Patrick Farrelly, President of the American News Company, who lives at Morristown; ex-Postmaster Thomas M. Gopsill of Jersey City, William A. Ure of the Newark Sunday Call, the Rev. George S. Mott of Flemington, David M. Chambers of Camden, and Dr. J. J. Daly, Mayor of the city of Rahway.

These gentlemen have, since their appointment, met at Rahway twice, inspecting the land, taking title, and arranging preliminaries, as the work is to commence at once. They will meet at Trenton Tuesday, August 6th, and attend to all details pending the breaking of ground.

The site chosen is an admirable one. It is at the extreme southwestern part of the city, one mile from the Pennsylvania Railroan station, fronting on Hazelwood Avenue Boulevard along the Rahway river, and extending 3,500 feet along the main Woodbridge road into Middlesex county. The land is high above tidewater, level and dry, and is naturally well adopted for the building of the reformatory.

COASTED DOWN THE MOUNTAIN.

The Unpleasant Close of a Sunday-school Picnic on the Mountain.

Two Sunday-school classes from Hope chapel held a picnic up on Johnston's drive on the mountain yesterday under the care of their teachers, Mrs. Clarence Leland and Miss Ada Nash. A very pleasant time was spent by all except Miss Ritta Nash who came to grief on the return to Plainfield. She had her wheel with her and as she led it down the steep hill she kept jumping on and off. At last she stayed on too long and lost her control of the machine and away she went. After getting down part of the distance the wheel turned and the young girl was thrown off. She was badly bruised all over, but her wheel escaped without injury.

At Werner's Emporium.

Everybody that needs a suit of clothing is taking advantage of the low prices at Werner's. He is selling off the balance of his summer suits, worth from $15 to $18, for $9.90, in order to make room for his extensive stock of fall and winter goods which will arrive shortly. Do not buy elsewhere before looking at these bargains. See ad in another column, window display.

Got Lime in His Eye.

A serious affliction of the eye has sent William A. Pangborn, of Chatham street, to the Ear and Eye Infirmary, at New York. Mr. Pangborn, who is a mason, was standing by a mortar bed several weeks ago when a piece of lime flew in his eye. He thought nothing of it at the time, but it grew worse and worse until now he has gone to the hospital to have it treated.

Church Poor-Boxes Robbed.

Two thieves broke into the Sacred Heart Catholic church at New Brunswick Tuesday night and stole all the money in the poor boxes. The amount secured is unknown, but is supposed to have been large, as the poor boxes have not been opened for some time.

A GOOD SELECTION.

Executor J. A. Hubbard Protects the Babcock Building from Fire.

In the Babcock building Plainfield has a building that is worthy of her and it is but right that such a place has the best of modern appliances. The elevator is a great help, but now the question of fire protection has come up. Of course J. A. Hubbard, the executor of the estate, wished the very best obtainable, for it is the object of Mr. Hubbard to put in the building every modern and successful appliance to prevent fire, and the recent trial of the Kent Fire Extinguisher was to test its efficiency with this object in view. Its great effectiveness has already been described in The Press, and the test completely convinced Mr. Hubbard that the Kent was the one to have. Mariner J. Kent, the secretary and general manager of the Manhattan Fire Extinguisher Company, who manufacture the Kent, thoroughly explained all its good points, and as a result fifteen extinguishers have been placed in the building.

The Kent extinguisher is one of the most modern, the patent for it being granted on July 27th of the present year, and all those who have seen it in use will testify that it is by far the quickest and best on the market. It is endorsed by leading insurance companies, and the fire departments of different cities.

Sues Mr. Bellis for $10,000.

James B. Brown, the contractor, has begun suit in the Somerset court for $10,000 damages against Lewis A. Bellis, a prominent business man. Brown alleges that Bellis brutally assaulted his nineteen-year-old son, who became a cripple from the effects of his injuries and died after five years of continuous suffering. Bellis denies that he assulted young Brown. His friends say that it will be proved that the lad died of a hip disease for which he had been under medical treatment years before the time of the alleged assult. The trial takes place in September.

Down In Front.

Maltby's track is becoming a resort where cyclists of the western end of this city congregate. James Butts, of the Potter Press Works, was among them last evening and was riding around the track. There was a patch of mud on the track, and Butts managed to strike it. His wheel slipped, and he was thrown and knocked senseless. After a time he came to, but it was quite a while before he could ride his wheel. His face was badly skinned, and he was badly bruised all over.

The Police Must Kill.

A few weeks ago Mayor Treganowan, of South Amboy, issued a proclamation warning dog-owners to keep their dogs muzzled, also authorizing the borough marshals to kill all unmuzzled dogs found running at large within the borough limits. It was discovered a few days later that the marshals were not strictly enforcing the law, and complaints were made to several of the Councilmen, who, at the last meeting of the Common Council, strongly favored the Mayor's action, and decided that a fine be imposed upon a marshal for failure to kill a dog running without a muzzle.

A CAMPAIGN OF ABUSE.

Why the Mayor and the Ccuncil Are Attacked.

DISGRUNTLED ONES WANT TO RULE.

The Courier-News Editor Is Doing His Best to Prejudice People Against the Present City Administration, in Order that the Clique of Which He Is the Mouthpiece May Run the City to Suit Themselves—Last Year They Wanted to Use the Democratic Party as a Tail to Their Kite, But They Couldn't Tie the Knot and So It Did Not Fly—Will They Succeed This Year.

Midsummer madness is a peculiar disease and effects people in peculiar ways. In Plainfield the trend is in the direction of politics, and to the stranger or uninformed who reads The Courier-News the political gridiron seems to be redhot. Week in and week out for a long time this sheet has been bitterly assailing the present city administration—sometimes by inuendo, sometimes by sarcasm, sometimes by ignorance—quite often in this way—but always without any real or justifiable cause. The animus of the attacks, which have ranged from sly intimation and wrong constructions of public acts of officials to bold utterances that almost reek with libel and slander, have all along been known to those who keep in the drift of municipal affairs.

It was a quaint and trite old saying of the martyred President that "you can fool all of the people part of the time and part of the people all the time, but you can't fool all of the people all the time."

The causes leading up to the bitter attacks of the Courier-News upon the official transactions of the Mayor and Common Council, date back to what has been termed the school board fight, in which the officials of the city scored a victory. As will be remembered, that contest between the Board of Education and the Mayor and Common Council was waged with much bitterness, and a very natural result was that a political and factional enmity developed in Republican ranks.

On the part of those who wanted a new school building, war was declared and it was resolved to defeat for public office all those who supported the Mayor's policy.

It is well known among those who were acquainted with the inside of that fight that as soon as a victory was gained for the policy of the Mayor, a number of his disgruntled opponents held frequent conclaves and mapped out a line of antagonism which they calculated would retire Mr. Gilbert from the Mayor's chair.

It was to wait until the Rupublican and Democratic conventions had placed their nominees in the field, it being a foregone conclusion that Mayor Gilbert would be renominated. Then they intended to spring a citizens movement and nominate an independent ticket, which, while it would not be elected, would result in a scattering of Republican votes and the election of a Democratic Mayor. They cared but little about their own party at that time, and knew that by this method they might eventually succeed. At any rate the malcontents figured that they would retaliate to the degree of tying the hands, so to speak, of the Councilmen who supported the Mayor in the fight which left The Courier-News editor and his friends outside the breastworks.

The plans were cut and dried and were working along so nicely that the projectors were laughing up their sleeves. About this time the Democratic party decided not to place a candidate in the field, believing that the Mayor and Council were working for the interests of the city and not for the Republican party. The proposed citizens movement manipulators calculated to fly their kite with the Democratic party as a tail, but when that important feature did not make connections the kite fell into the political mausoleum with a dull thud that was sickening. The corpse has been lying quietly there ever since, but it has, nevertheless, been nourished by the faithful few so that it has not kicked the bucket entirely. The nourishment prescribed has been administered in doses of various sizes by The Courier-News editor who was deputized to took after the frail thing.

It was decided to nurture the citizens movement through the year by a systematic campaign of abuse. The principal line of attack for a long time was against the police force in which it was sought to bring discredit upon the city, and to pander to the class who think that is a great thing to roast some one all the time and to have what is termed "a mind of your own." But, of course, this class never thought of the string that made jack jump, or the story of "thumbs up" and how quick thumbs went up.

This line of attack was followed up all through the winter and spring, with sundry threats of other kinds, until the negotiations for a proposed bond issue were brought before the Council.

Here is where The Courier-News editor was to make the great jump of his life. He started off with a hop and a step that made some people believe he knew a thing or two. He jumped. But where did he jump? He wanted to know why money could not be procured from the Plainfield banks? He was told the reason. Then he said money could be borrowed for one and a-half per cent. in New York. He was shown that this was only his ignorance. Then he claimed that the bonds should bring a premium. Here it was explained to him that the city had no bonds on which premiums could be secured.

All of these things were sufficient to prove to most people that The Courier-News editor did not know what he was talking about. Turning from one argument to another he finally drifted into charges and intimations concerning the loan of money and commenced to talk about "club car" government. This would have been laughable if he were not hurting the credit of the city, as a stranger, reading his perorations, would think that Plainfield was governed by a Tweed or McKane, who were in power to enrich themselves by public plunder. It is plainly apparent that the intention is to spring the citizens movement again this winter in order to tie the hands of Mayor Gilbert, by electing an antagonistic council, and thus strip him of any influence he might exercise in the management of city affairs. But whether or not their plans will be consummated depends, as it did one year ago, on the stand the Democrats take in the fall.

And The Courier-News is and will continue to do its best to bring the citizens movement into active existence by endeavoring to prejudice those whoare not thoroughly conversant with city affairs against Mayor Gilbert and the councilmen who it is desired to relegate to the rear.

The why and whereof of the anxiety of the people for whom The Courier-News editor is critic under the garb of reform and better government will gradually make themselves public.

AIDING A WORTHY CAUSE.

Endeavor Societies Assist in the Fresh Air Work at Westfield.

The Fresh Air work at Westfield was the subject of a missionary meeting held by the Christian Endeavor society of the Park avenue Baptist church, last evening. The meeting was led by Miss Emma V. Fish, chairman of the Missionary Committee. Special singing was provided by a quartette composed of Miss Laura Runyon, Miss Adelia Runyon, Wm. Stimpson and David Runyon. Mrs. Baker, of Westfield, made a very interesting address on the work. A collection of $8 was taken up for the benefit of it and will be used to furnish the food for them on Tuesday when the society will hold a meeting there. On Wednesday the Christian Endeavor society of the Congregational church will take charge of the meetings and supply the provisions.

Better Indexing Wanted.

The Board of Freeholders met at Elizabeth Thursday and received a communication, signed by most of the members of the bar and the real estate men in the county, stating that the system of indexing the records in the County Clerk's office is inadequate. It was adopted when the county was small in population, and does not meet the necessities due to the great growth and the increasing business. Searchers experience great inconvenience and delays, and it was asked that a new indexing system, to meet present requirements, be devised.

The petition was received on motion of Freeholder Clark, and later, on the resolution of Freeholder Littell, it was referred to a special committee of three to report a plan and cost for the changes asked.

A Lively Day In Court.

Justice Newcorn's court was very busy yesterday. In the case of Kline against Dunham, landlord and tenant, judgment was given for the premises and the dispossess warrant issued. A judgment of $41 was rendered for the plaintiff in the case of Hand against Higgins, on contract. Summons were issued in the following cases: B. D. Newell against Susan Schaeffer, on contract, returnable August 9th, Clarence L. Murphy counsel for Newell; Welch against Kenney, in tort, returnable on August 9th; Schiff Brothers against George and Wallace Miller, on contract, returnable on August 12th; Jildett Clipping Machine Company against Stelle, on contract, returnable August 12th.

Jolly Midsummer Dancers.

A jolly party of young people went to Bound Brook last night and enjoyed a dance at the Mansion House. Those in the party were: Miss Richardson and Miss Coyne, of Jersey City; the Misses Lottie Messersmith, Alice Jenkins, Jennie Giles, Mary Giles, Mamie Steiner, and Judson Giles, Will Havens, Bert Steiner, Frank Blatz, of Plainfield; Fred Haynes, William Slape, Bert Fletcher, and Charles Mattis, of Dunellen.

A GROWTH OF POWER.

Christian Endeavorors Hold a Big Boston Rally.

HELPFUL AND INTERESTING TALKS.

Echoes From the Convention that Showed Its Great Work—The Endeavor Society Helps the Young as Well as the Old—Who Made the Addresses, and the Points Brought Out By the Observers of Christian Unity.

Christian Endeavor is a synonym for a bright, earnest worker, and the recent convention of the Christian Endeavorers in Boston showed that they have lost none of their brightness or earnestness. The Boston rally held in the Trinity Reformed church Friday night was one of the numerous echoes of that great gathering which are spreading the inspiration and enthusiasm gained there over all this broad land.

A song service began the meeting, in which a chorus of about twenty-five female voices led in some of the hymns of the convention while a grand harmony pealed out from the organ under the skilful touch of A. L. Titsworth. Scripture reading and a prayer by Rev. J. A. Davis followed.

President F. E. Smith, of the Trinity Reformed Christian Endeavor society, presided and, after another hymn, made a few introductory remarks which he ended by introducing John E. Lindsay, delegate from the Christion Endeavor society of the First Presbyterian church of this city, who spoke on "The arrangements and reception by the committee of thirteen." First he told of the preliminary preparations and then of the wonderful decorations, the arches in particular, the like of which had not been seen in Boston for many a day. He then told of the reception of the 56,435 delegates, how they were met and escorted about and closed by telling of the reception of the New Jersey delegation.

"Advance of Christian Endeavor as shown by the convention" was the subject of the next speaker, Rev. J. A. Davis, of Nyack, N. Y. He said in part: "The Christian Endeavor society reaches all around the world, and has its branches in nearly every country. Fourteen years ago there were but a handful of Endeavorers in Maine, but it soon spread and is now spreading everywhere through every country on this globe. Its advance is not simply growth in size but growth in power. It takes hold of everything bad and makes it good, there is nothing too large for it to handle. It has entered politics, but not into partisanship, and already it has done much, as for example the recent reforms in New York and Syracuse in which many of the leading men were Christian Endeavorers. Can you realize what we can do with our 2,500,000 members, what a vast power we wield? It has its work in the missionary field. It keeps us alive and active in the Lord's work. The Christian Endeavor movement is doing something more; the Junior movement is growing very rapidly, it is taking the children of the church and preparing them for the future. Woman is also brought forward, and is fast learning to do her share of the work in the church and elsewhere."

Mrs. Bolland, of the South Bound Brook Dutch Reformed Church, spoke on "The Junior Rally," and told how she and some of her friends waited three hours to attend one of the most interesting meetings of the convention. Forty-four States were represented on the platform, while a Junior orchestra of thirty pieces furnished the music. Walter Campbell, a lad of thirteen, delivered the opening address which was followed by many interesting speakers, and the meeting closed with "Blest be the tie that binds."

The next address was by the Rev. A. I. Martine on "Fellowship as shown and taught by the Convention." He said in part: "I can remember the day when there was no affiliation between the sects, but at the convention there was the spirit of brotherly love which appeared very prominently. I roomed with a Congregational minister, for there was none of the sectarian differences. You scarcely reached Boston before you realized that spirit. It was the spirit of the the convention, loyalty to your church, but above all to Christ; when they came together there was one banner above them all. There was an advance in the Boston Convention over all them and that was its oneness of purpose." At the conclusion of his address, the congregation joined in singing one verse of the hymn "Blest be the tie that binds." That great Christian Endeavor song "Scatter Sunshine" was sung by the choir with all uniting in the chorus.

"Convention Aftermath" by Rev. B. V. D. Wyckoff was the next talk. He told of the wonderous blessing that Boston and the commonwealth of Massachusettes had received from the convention and said, "If ever a city gave royally, it was Boston." He told of his own welcome and how a cabman offered to take him to his hotel for nothing, and the reverend gentleman further said, "I was afraid of him, for I have seen cabmen in New York, but at last I went and he carried me safely, and when he left he told me he was a Christian Endeavorer, gave me his card and invited me to call at his place of business." They took the signs 'Keep off the grass' and changed them to 'Keep on the grass,' and these echo meetings are being duplicated all over the United States, and the echoes of the convention will not die out until some of us meet again in Washington. The people are waking up and asking questions about us."

Rev. L. B. Goodrich, of Bound Brook, spoke next on "Did the Boston Convention Pay?" and gave a very eloquent address. He said in part:

Boston has been the scene of many gatherings but it has never witnessed such an assemblage with such an influence and such infinite possibilities. Could not the million of dollars spent be used in a better way? It was an education to travel and to learn about other people and places. It is a good thing to bring people together, and it was a great object lesson to see a christian governor speaking to a christian assemblage and in touch with them. And it destroys denominational bigotry, while it encourages the worker to greater efforts and inspires us all to new service.

"The Consecration Meeting" was the theme of Rev. T. E. Davis' talk. He told of the last and grandest meeting of the convention and of the profound impression it made upon him.

After the offering and hymn, Rev. Mr. Martine pronounced the benediction and most of those present repaired to the Sunday-school rooms where a reception was held. The reception committee consisted of the Misses Carrie Mehl, Jennie Smith, Hattie Powelson and Mrs. Marshall.

The ushers at the rally were John H. Van Winkle, Jr., James Love, Elmer Garretson, William Crawford and Frank Woodruff.

A RESPECTED CITIZEN DEAD.

Jacob VanDyke Passed Peacefully Away Yesterday.

It was with saddened hearts that the people of Plainfield learned of the death of Jacob VanDyke which occurred yesterday at the home of his son, John C. VanDyke, on East Front street. For the past year and a half Mr. VanDyke has been a great sufferer and his suffering has increased steadily, but through it all he has been patient and not a complaining word has escaped from his lips. The fact that he was a thorough Christian man and lived a life of holiness gave him sufficient grace and strength to pass peacefully over the dark river. His death was expected, but he passed away sooner than was looked for. In the morning he was as well as usual, and no particular change was noticed in his condition till afternoon, when he began to grow weaker. Up to the last he was conscious, knowing everyone near him, while death came without a struggle.

Everything possible has been done to relieve the severe suffering which he experienced and he was truly thankful for the unceasing tender care that has been given him. His death leaves a vacancy in his home that can never be filled.

Jacob VanDyke was born 78 years ago on a farm about four miles from Somerville, on what is known as the old Morristown road.

He lived home and worked at farming until 1868 when he moved to Plainfield. He erected a house and store on West Fourth street where he conducted a grocery business for many years. He was married to Miss Catherine Mundy, daughter of Lewis Mundy, of Millington, and they lived happily together for several years till her death.

While living near Somerville Mr. VanDyke was a faithful member of the Bedminster Reformed church and served the society as deacon for a long time. After he retired from the grocery business he lived a retired life with his children. For the past six months he has been living with his son John on East Front street, where bad health and feebleness kept him at home. His condition required constant attendance, which he received, and the last part of his life was made more comfortable thereby.

He leaves three sons, John C. VanDyke and Lewis VanDyke, of Plainfield, and James VanDyke, of Morristown.

The funeral services will be held from the Bedminster Reformed church tomorrow morning at 10:30, and interment will be made at that place.

He Lost His Drink.

Randolph's soda has always been far-famed and today a horse attached to a buggy that was standing in front of U. B. Crane's hat store thought he wanted some too. He left his position at the curb and started down the street on a trot. A young boy who was left in charge of the animal, started in pursuit but before he could reach it a woman, who was passing by, coolly walked out to the middle of the street and held the horse until the lad caught up.

READY FOR ADOPTION.

Watchung Avenue Extension Ordinance Lacks Final Passage.

BOROUGH STREETS TO BE IMPROVED

Regular Council Meeting Transact Considerable Important Business, and Incidentally the Spectators are Entertained by a Cat Show Not Down on the Calendar — Adjourned to August 15th.

The visitors gallery in the North Plainfield Council rooms was filled with an expectant crowd of borough citizens at Friday's regular meeting, but nothing unusual happened except that Councilman Schutt very unconsciously placed his left foot on a cat's tail, which had slyly crept under his desk and when he arose to offer a resolution everyone was startled by hearing the most unearthly yells imaginable. For a minute the cause was unknown, no one knowing who was to blame for the affair. It all passed off in hearty laughter and the business continued.

Councilmen Peck, Valiant, Smith and Schutt were present, and the meeting was called to order by Mayor Hegeman, Jr., at 8:30 o'clock. The proceedings of the last meeting were then read by Clerk Arnold which were approved. He then presented his financial report, which was received and filed, for the month ending July 31st, which was as follows:

	Balance	Deficit
Borough	$319.68
Fire Department		$306.49
Light Account		295.86
Roads	930.09
Poor		200.00
	$1,249.77	$802.35
	802.35
	$447.41

Total amount of money received, $3,271.07, which includes the borough's share of the division with the township.

A large batch of bills were presented and after being audited were ordered paid, excepting Mr. Wilson's bill of $711.51 which Mr. Smith had not time to examine. He offered a resolution which prevailed, that $600 be paid on account.

Mr. Peck, from the fire, water and lamps committee, stated that a new roof had been placed on the engine house, and some other improvements made, which would not exceed $85 in cost, also that 1,500 feet of hose had been ordered and would be delivered shortly.

Mr. Smith, of the streets and public health committee, stated that there were still a few sidewalks to be laid, and that the heavy rains had done some damage, the most of which had been repaired. He also said that certain pipes used as drains had been lowered so as to carry off the water.

In his report, which was read by the Clerk, it showed that for the month of June $456.35 had been expended on borough streets, $38.50 of which was paid by the street railway; and for the month of July $84.12 had been expended. The report was received and filed.

Mr. Smith introduced an ordinance to open Watchung avenue.

Mr. Schutt made a motion that it be placed on first reading, which was carried. He then moved it be adopted on first reading and passed to second reading which was also carried, and finally moved it be adopted on second reading, and laid over till next meeting for final reading and adoption. It was so decided.

Mr. Schutt offered a resolution that the street commissioner be authorized to purchase a road scraper, the cost not to exceed $120. It was carried.

A resolution was offered by Mr. Schutt that whereas L. A. Hummer of Somerset street; Mrs. Nellie P. Lyman, of Washington avenue; C. P. Sebring, of Prospect place; Mrs. Estella Sebring, of Prospect place; and William M. Stillman, representing the Peter Wooden estate on Somerset street had failed to comply with the ordinance to put down sidewalks, that the Street Commissioner proceed to do so and that the Corporation Counsel take steps to effect a lien on the property for the payment of the same. It was carried.

Another resolution by Mr. Schutt was adopted that Prospect place from Grove street to Washington avenue be macadamized in accordance with the usual custom. Assessor Cooley stated that his books would be ready by August 15th, and Mr. Peck offered a resolution, which was carried, that when council adjourn it be to meet August 15th.

Mr. Smith stated that the plans and specifications for improving Harrison street were out but as yet no bids had been received. He said he would be ready to report August 16th.

Mr. Schutt offered a resolution that $1,600 of the money received from the township be used on borough roads and that the same amount be transferred to the road account. It was so decided, council then adjourned.

Afraid of the Cars.

A farmer's wagon was standing in front of Kirch's grocery on Somerset street this morning, when the trolley car came by and frightened the horse attached. He tried to climb all over the sidewalk, but one of the trolley wire poles got in his way, and the dashboard and shaft gave way, badly wrecking the wagon.

ALBERT EDWARD'S EXPENSIVE JOKE.

How He Smashed the Crockery and Furniture of an Elderly Countess.

Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, is perhaps the most popular man in England. This popularity is due to his love of sports and all manly traits which are particularly commendable in the eyes of the average Britisher. As a youth, his audacity and appreciation of a joke, either as a perpetrator or victim, were well known.

One of his early escapades resulted in Her Majesty the Queen footing a bill for broken crockery and wrecked furniture which the young Prince caused in the house of one of the lesser members of the nobility. A rather elderly countess, whose quick temper and sharp tongue drove even her servants away from her, advertised for a footman. The Prince, to whose ears tales of the peculiarities of the old lady had come, resolved to teach her a lesson. He therefore presented himself in disguise at her ladyship's house and applied for the position of footman.

The Countess had just finished her breakfast, and pushing her chair back from the table, instructed the servant to bring before her the applicant. The Prince was thereupon ushered into the room. The Countess looked him over from his feet up.

Apparently pleased with the appearance of the Prince, she said: "Let me see you walk."

Albert Edward did as commanded and walked backward and forward several times across the floor from one end of the room to the other, now walking briskly at the request of the old lady and then pacing slowly, as she wished to obtain points on this score.

This performance over, the Countess ordered him to trot. The dining-room still the theater of action, the Prince trotted around it several times. When this exercise was completed he again came to a standstill near the head of the table, where the Countess was seated. Her ladyship seemed pleased, and was just on the point of asking the young man some more questions about himself when he shouted:

"Now see me gallop!"

Grasping a corner of the table cloth firmly in one hand, the Prince rushed around the room, pulling the crockery off on the floor in a heap, knocking over the furniture and finally winding her ladyship up in the folds of the cloth. He then bolted for the door, leaving the Countess sputtering and shouting and the servants running about in a distracted way to liberate their mistress and quiet her rage.

In the hubbub and confusion the Prince escaped. The next day a check from the keeper of the Privy Purse settled the amount of the damages, and likewise established the identity of the mischief maker.

A Cheerful View.

The following story is told of a correspondent who has recently returned from a trip to the far West of the United States.

Two men who had been sitting together in the seat near the door of a railway car became engaged in an animated controversy, and their loud voices attracted the attention of all the other passengers.

Suddenly one of them rose and said:

"Ladies and gentleman, I appeal to you to decide a disputed point. My friend here insists that not more than three persons out of five believe they have souls. I take a more cheerful view of humanity than that. Will all of you who believe you have souls raise your right hands?"

Every hand in the car went up.

"Thank you," he said, with a smile. "Keep them up just a moment. Now, will all of you who believe in a hereafter please raise your left hand also?"

Every hand in the car went up.

"Thank you again," he said. "Now, while all of you have your hands raised," he continued, drawing a pair of revolvers and leveling them, "my friend here will go down the aisle and relieve you of whatever valuables you may happen to have. Lively now, Jim."—Pearson's Weekly.

A Liberal Education.

"That man," said Huxley, "has a liberal education who has been so trained in youth that his body is the ready servant of his will, and does with ease and pleasure all the work that, as a mechanicism, it is capable of; whose intellect is a clear, cold logic engine, with all its parts of equal strength and in smooth working order, ready, like a steam engine, to be turned to any kind of work, and spin the gossameres as well as forge the anchors of the mind; whose mind is stored with a knowledge of the great and fundumental truths of nature and of the laws of her operations; one who, no stunted ascetic, is full of life and fire, but whose passions are trained to come to a halt by a vigorous will, the servant of a tender conscience; who has learned to love all beauty, whether of nature or of art, to hate all vileness, and to respect others as himself. Such a one, and no other, has had a liberal education." The world can add no higher and no more richly merited tribute to the author of those noble words than this, that such a man was Thomas Henry Huxley.

A Reasoner.

"There, Willie," said the lad's mother, "is ten cents for you. Now, what are you going to do with it?"

"Save it up to buy fireworks for the Fourth of July," replied the boy in a tone whose positiveness was almost defiant.

"Why, Willie, you know you are saving up your money to give to the heathen."

"Y-yes'm, but the Chinese are heathen, aren't they?"

"Yes, dear."

"And the Chinese make the firecrackers, don't they?"

"I am told they do."

"Well, then, the heathen'll get my money just the same, so it's all right."—Burlington Journal.

MAN-HOLE FELL IN.

Workmen Were Too Anxious to Put on the Iron Cap.

An accident in connection with the work on the sewers occurred Thursday afternoon about five o'clock at the head of Church street on Front street. Honan & Sons' men were building the man-hole at that place and had completed the mason-work. It was left entirely unsupported. Two of the men attempted to place a heavy iron cap over the hole before the cement was set. The result was that the bricks gave way and the "house that Jack built" was no more. It was the fault of the men and the expense will be stood by Honan & Sons.

The Pentathlon Winners.

The Pentathlon State meet of the Young Men's Christian Associations, which opened on the grounds of the Orange Association on Saturday, was finished on Tuesday of last week on the grounds of the Newark Association at Roseville. The Newark Association won the banner, having a score of 776 points for its three highest men; Orange came second with 783 points, and Paterson third with 778 points. Two of the individual contestants received silver medals for attaining scores exceeding 300 points, and fourteen received bronze medals for exceeding 200 points. The Plainfield Y. M. C. A. were unable to compete.

Good Building Lots.

At the sale of lots on West Front street, Second street and Rock avenue on Saturday afternoon, thirty-eight lots in all were sold. Several purchasers will build this fall, notably those who bought on West Front street. J. F. MacDonald, who knows a good thing when he sees it, bought two of the Front street lots, and a block of eighteen on Second street, corner of Rock avenue. The latter plot he will dress up and put on the market for sale.

Life at the High School.

The repairs at the High School have at length been started. The desks have been removed from all the class rooms and the platform in Assembly Hall torn down. Work has also been commenced on the ventilating apparatus. The fence to the boy's yard has been repaired where it needed it and the elm trees in the other yard cut down. The winter supply of coal also being put in.

Good Work of a Pastor.

Sunday morning last was the ninth communion service held in the Warren chapel since Rev. J. O. McKelvey assumed pastoral charge, and at that time four persons confessed their needs of a saviour and united with the chapel, making a total of seventy-two persons who have connected themselves with this chapel since Mr. McKelvey became its pastor.

Valuable Souvenirs.

Dr. Charles Mathewson has in his possession two valuable souvenirs in the shape of a piece of metal called Mangause bronze and aluminum, which were scraps from the material used in the construction of the yacht Defender. The bronze was used in building the hull and the aluminum in the upper work above the water.

Work of Tramps.

The station at Graceland has again been nearly wrecked by tramps. A gang who made the place their headquarters on Sunday night became involved in a fight, and, using the railroad stone ballast es missile, they destroyed every pane of glass and every window sash in the building.

A Good Burner All Around.

It will be of interest to many who have used or seen the Welshbach incandescent burner, to know that the network mantle which is suspended over the Bunsen burner, and which produces the intense white light is made of the oxide of thorium one of the rare earth metals. According to the scientific American the oxides of of several of these earth metals passes the property of becoming incandescent at a moderate heat, but the light emitted is the greatest in the case of thorium. The burner is having a large sale through the country. It is an economical light, about 1-6 cheaper than electric, and 1-4 cheaper than the ordinary gas burner, for same amount of light. Gavett & Co, are having good success in placing lights in this place.

Look Out Now for Your Dogs.

The Elizabeth police will begin the slaughter of unmuzzled dogs tomorrow, and the dog-catcher will begin to make his rounds for the capture of unlicensed dogs. Judge VanSyckel has granted a writ of certiorari against the decision of Judge McCormick, which gave dogs liberty to run about without license tags. The police authorities claim the issuing of this writ leaves the question the same as it was before. Judge McCormick decided against the city. Hence the new activity of the police, who want to swell the coffers of the Police Mutual Aid treasury with receipts from the licensing and capture of unlicensed dogs.

What Could He Say.

A good story is told of a borough man who arose one morning recently and asked his better half where his trousers were. She, of course did not know, and the two began a search through the house for the missing pair. After the good wife's patience was exhausted, she happened to discover that her husband had his trousers on. He didn't say a word.

A BRAVE LITTLE GIRL.

Jumps in the Rear End of a Wagon and Stops a Runaway.

The quiet little borough of Fanwood was thrown into a state of excitement Wednesday. As usual, Sheriff Geo. P. Kyte was taken to the railroad station with his horse and wagon, in charge of his coachman, Hans Lambertson. Mr. Kyte's six-year-old son Robert accompanied him. When the station was reached Mr. Kyte got out and started for the train. He left a package in the wagon by mistake, and Hans happening to see it took it to Mr. Kyte.

During this time the horse, being of a nervous disposition, started off on a run with Robert in the wagon. Hans attempted to get in the wagon but was thrown down. Besides his coat being torn he received no injuries.

The runaway horse was making fast time toward Mr. Kyte's home. Robert was frightened and so was everyone who saw it. Mr. Kyte saw the start of it and sent word for Dr. Westcott to go to the house, thinking surely his son would be injured. Just before the house was reached Mr. Kyte's twelve-year-old daughter Ethel, took the situation in at a glance, and with much difficulty pluckily jumped in the rear of the wagon, caught the reins and stopped the horse. There was no damage but all were thoroughly frightened. Hans came along in a few minutes and took charge of the rig. The little girl received hearty commendation for her brave act.

SEWERS WILL SOON BE READY.

MR. FROST SAYS THEY WILL BE IN OPERATION BY NOVEMBER.

Work Being Pushed by the Contractors—Every Householder Will be Compelled to Use Them Where They Run.

Chairman George H. Frost, of Councilmanic Committee on Sewers, has furnished the following for publication:

The time for the completion of the outfall sewer by Contractor Marsden is November first, and there is every reason to believe that the work will be finished promptly as called for in the contract; the sewage disposal farm is being cleared of brushwood; the engineering work prelimary to the preparation of plans and specifications is being pushed as energetically as possible, and the filtration beds will be ready for the reception of sewage by the time that the outfall sewer is completed. Contractor Siddall is well through Fifth street with the curb connections and will work next from Netherwood along the entire line of main sewers as far as Grant avenue and Front street, after which he will begin on the lines on the Honan contract now being laid. Unless some unforseen cause should occur the Plainfield sewer system will be in full operation by the middle of November at latest.

The question is frequently asked if connection with the sewer is compulsory. Unless Plainfield expects to become an exception to the general rule there will be no option in the matter—every house on the lines of sewers must be connected with the sewer and within reasonable time; not a single cesspool or privy vault in the sewered district will be allowed to make a pipe connection with the public sewers, but these disagreeable features of the Plainfield of today will be abolished as speedily as possible until not a single one remains.

Concerning the details of house connections some information will be given out later on.

JOHN KEAN, FARMER.

The Ex-Congressman is a Man of Agricultural Interests.

An enthusiastic admirer of John Kean rebutted the comment made after the meeting of the State Committee the other day, that Kean would not run well with the farmers because of his numerous corporation interests, by stating that Kean was a farmer. It may not be generally known that he and his mother have one of the finest and largest farms that is actually worked in the State of New Jersey. About seventy-five acres are sub-letted. The rest is farmed by John Kean himself, who gives personal supervision to everything in the barnyard and the field. He rises with the morning lark and goes about his duties until the middle of the morning, when he goes to his Elizabeth office. "Why talk about farming," said Mr. Enthusiastic Admirer, "John Kean could give some of these hayseeds about the State points on farming, and particularly how to make money out of their acres. Of course, he does not go around with overalls on or hayseeds in his hair, nor does he go about his farming with a swallow-tail coat on and kid gloves. His potatoes don't cost a dollar apiece or his corn a dollar and fifty cents a stalk, but he farms according to the very latest scientific methods, and that is more than some of the farmers who are carping so much can say for their own farms."

THE RACE QUESTION.

A Saloon Keeper to Be Sued for Abusive Language.

The race question has caused more than one quarrel, and now promises to involve a Plainfield saloon keeper in a suit. The story is that a man went to a saloon to drink on Saturday evening, and was invited by a friend to drink in the side room. The proprietor would not allow him to enter, and, so the offended individual claims, used very abusive language.

He says he intends to sue the saloon keeper under a civil rights law.

THIS TALE ABOUT A COAT.

IT WAS CARRIED HITHER AND THITHER AND CAUSES TROUBLE.

Taken From One Shop to Another and Finally Gets Back to Where it Started—Police Take a Hand Now.

About two weeks ago a colored man took a coat to I. Shrager, a Jewish tailor doing business at the corner of Watchung avenue and Second street. He left the coat to have it altered and repaired. Yesterday afternoon another man called at the tailor's and said he would like to see Mr. Shrager. The latter's wife went after him in the yard where he was busy. When she returned she saw the man on a wheel in front of the shop with a coat on his arm. He told her he would be back in the evening. He then went to J. A. Freeman's tailor shop on East Fourth street, corner of Watchung avenue, where he wanted to have the coat repaired. Mr. Freeman was not in, but the shoemaker who uses a part of the shop took the coat, saying he would attend to the matter. After the man had departed the shoemaker thought he had better have the garment fixed as he did not know when Mr. Freeman would return. So he took the coat to Shrager's shop. The latter at once recognized the garment as belonging to his customer, and claimed the article. After much talk in the way of explanation Shrager succeeded in getting the coat.

The unknown man who left it at Freeman's was to call for it at noon today. Policeman Frederickson was made acquainted with the facts and is working the case up.

HER HAPPY FIFTH.

A Bright Little Miss Gives a Delightful Birthday Event.

The anniversaries of birthdays in early life are most always pleasant occasions and little folks take great pleasure in celebrating them as the years roll by. Such a pleasant event happened Tuesday afternoon from three to five o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George E. Rogers, at 201 Watchung avenue, when their bright little daughter, Beulah, celebrated the fifth anniversary of her birthday. Her parents gave her a most delightful lawn party and invited her young friends to make the event one of merriment. A large table was placed on the handsome lawn, and no pains was spared in making it one of artistic beauty by the use of choice flowers.

Here the little ones romped and played to their hearts content. When they became tired they all took seats around the table where they were given a collation. This part was made enjoyable because of the presence of Burney Rogers who kept them in the best of humor.

The music for the occasion was furnished by Conde and Rogers, which is sufficient evidence of the success of this part of the programme.

A feature of the occasion was the presence of Beulah's great grandfather and great grandmother, Mr. and Mrs. D. F. Randolph. Beulah received many handsome and useful presents including a gold chain and locket and two rings. A beautiful fan was given by her friend Carrie McVey. She also received a number of games.

Those present were: Nettie Robinson, Mary Hall, Edgar Hall, Vreeland VanAlstyne, Rainsford VanAlstyne, Fred Allen, Marie Rogers, Harold Rogers, Ida Tier, Harold Dunham, Grace McVey, Carrie McVey, Edna Conde, Edith Runk, Margaret Kenney, Edna Randolph, Isabelle Randolph, Raymond Randolph, Raymond Deerborn of California, Anna Holder, May Schenck, Eva Rogers, Helen Rogers, Grace Stephenson, John Stephenson and Mamie Jones.

Those assisting the young folks were: Mrs. M. W. Hall, Mrs. Charles Runk, Miss Alice Randolph, Mrs. G. E. Rogers, and those looking on were: Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Rogers and Burney Rogers.

One Half Finished.

Honan & Sons have about eight and a half miles of sewers completed. The contract calls for seventeen miles.

When moving into our present home I found a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm left by a former tenant. On the label I found the statement that it was good for cuts and burns. I can testify to the truth of this. Nothing in all my experience has found its equal for treating blisters or burns. F. E. Barrett, manager Le Sueur Sentinel, Le Sueur, Minn. Pain Balm is also a sure cure for rheumatism. For sale at Reynolds Pharmacy, Park and North avenues; T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

DISAPPEARED!

LEFT HOME LAST FRIDAY

Intending to Return in the Afternoon of that Day.

NEW PRINCIPAL OF THE STRATFORD.

Miss Clark Went to New York Friday Morning Apparently in the Best of Spirits and Health—Did Not Return When She Was Expected—Friends and Relatives Alarmed and Institute a Search Which Has Only Deepened the Mystery—Many Theories Advanced, But None Seem Plausible—New York, Brooklyn and Jersey City Police Working on the Case—Had Bright Prospects for a Successful School Year With Plenty of Students.

The most mysterious disappearance which has ever been recorded in the annals of Plainfield's existence is that of Miss Lucretia Clark, who came to this city from Syracuse ten days ago and assumed control of the educational institution on Park avenue heretofore known as Harned academy, but the title of which she has changed to the "Stratford" with the intention of making it a fashionable boarding school for young ladies.

Miss Clark left, or is supposed to have left Plainfield Friday morning for New York, but the circumstances of her leaving are of the most unaccountable kind, and not the slightest clue or trace of where she is or has been can be gained after leaving her neice, Miss Irene M. Yanne, at the Stratford on Friday morning. Miss Yanne is a young girl about eighteen years of age and resides with her parents in Johnstown, N. Y., her mother being a sister to Miss Clark. She came on to this city with Miss Clark to keep her company until the corps of instructors should arrive for the opening of the school on September 18th.

Since Miss Clark leased the Stratford many improvements and repairs have been made and among the most important which she intended to make was the refurnishing of the rooms throughout the house, thus entailing an expense of about $4,000 for furniture.

Last Thursday evening she made arrangements to go to New York the next morning and visit the furniture dealers, Ludwig, Bauman & Co., on Eighth avenue and Thirty-sixth street, with whom she had been in correspondence in reference to making purchases.

As intended, she prepared to leave in the morning but before going gave her neice, Miss Yanne, $2.50 in change, at the same time remarking that she would give her a larger amount only for the fact that she had nothing less than a fifty dollar bill with her.

She was in buoyant spirits and said that she would return early in the afternoon, as her business was not such as to detain her in the city any length of time, for she did not intend to make purchases of furniture just at that time. Previous to her departure she left instructions not to have dinner prepared but simply a light lunch. She left home about seven o'clock to take the 7:26 train for New York at the North avenue station. This is the last seen or heard of the missing woman from that time to the present. That afternoon and evening came and Miss Clark did not make her appearance. Her niece felt somewhat alarmed and worried at her absence, and going to the home of James Martine on Watchung avenue, with whose family Miss Clark had become quite well acquinted, Miss Yanne related the circumstances of her leaving and her failure to return at the intended time. Though her absence could not be accounted for by Mr. Martine and his sisters, they formed the conclusion that she had been detained in the city by unexpected business, and would certainly return the next day. With this idea Miss Yanne was pacified and for the night remained contented at the home of Mr. Martine. All through Saturday Miss Clark's return or word from her was anxiously awaited but without result. Saturday evening Mr. Martine realized that something was decidedly wrong in her continued absence, and fearing that the excessive heat of Friday had prostrated her, he put himself in communication with the New York police and hospital authorities in the endeavor to find out whether or not she had been taken to some public institution. These officials could not furnish the slightest intelligence that would lead to the discovery of her whereabouts or condition. Not even a trace of a woman answering her description could be found.

Mr. Martine continued his efforts all day Sunday by further enquiry and communication among those whom she would be likely to have come in contact with, but was unable to clear away the mystery and suspense in the least way. He did not immediately notify Miss Clark's two sisters, Mrs. J. E. Sweet, of Syracuse, and Mrs. Yanne, of Johnstown—hoping all the time that the missing woman would return. Sunday evening he telegraphed to Mr. Sweet at Syracuse, who is president of the Straight Line Engine Company, and this gentleman immediately started for Plainfield, arriving here the next morning. Upon learning the condition of affairs he was almost crushed in spirit by the startling news.

Monday morning Mr. Martine and Mr. Sweet went to New York and availed themselves of every means to find Miss Clark, but her disappearance remained as much of a mystery as ever. They visited the firm of Ludwig, Bauman & Company, and found that though they had been negotiating with Miss Clark for the sale of furniture, she had not been there on Friday or any other day thereafter. They also visited the big dry goods houses of O'Neils, Macy's, Simpson, Crawford & Simpson's, and Purcell's dining rooms, but at none of these places could trace of her be secured.

They also visited the home of Mrs. Wm. H. Dickinson at 184 East Sixtieth Street, where Miss Clark frequently stopped when in New York, but it was the same sad and discouraging story here of not having seen her.

Communication was held with the Brooklyn and Jersey City police and hospital authorities. Nothing favorable could be gained from them, and then William Myers, who resides with Mr. Martine, made a personal canvass of the institutions of these two cities. He could gain no information that might tend to finding the missing woman.

Mr. Martine thought that possibly Miss Clark might have been taken suddenly ill on the train between here and Elizabeth, and taken off at the latter place and placed in a hotel or hospital. He appealed to the Elizabeth authorities, but like those of other cities, they were in utter ignorance of the identity of any such woman as Miss Clark was described to be.

Edward Nelson, ticket agent at the North avenue station, was enquired of as to whether or not he had taken a $50 bill in on Friday morning. He said he had not, nor did not remember selling a ticket to a lady resembling Miss Clark.

Detective Charles Dodd, of the Central railroad, is making enquiries among the conductors and brakemen who ran in to New York on the morning trains on Friday, but as yet they have offered no evidence that would make it even appear that Miss Clark had left Plainfield.

Every possible channel has been exhausted in the most persistent attempt to find the missing woman, but all efforts have proved fruitless.

Last night Mr. Sweet returned to his home in Syracuse thoroughly disheartened at the sad condition of affairs which this inexplicable absence has plunged his family into. He was accompanied by Miss Yanne.

The police authorities who have been notified of the facts of the case are still at work trying to ferret out the location of Miss Clark. If she is not found in a day or two it is probable that a general alarm will be sent throughout the United States.

When Mr. Martine was seen by the Daily Press reporter this morning he stated that the only theory he could advance for the disappearance of Miss Clark was that she may have been prostrated by the excessive heat while in New York on Friday and picked up by some humanitarian who had taken her to their home, and that she had not yet recovered sufficiently to make her identity known. The case, though, to Mr. Martine, who is better acquainted with its circumstances than anyone else, is as puzzling an enigma as can be imagined. The possibility of her having made an indiscriminate display of the roll of bills to some sharper who had enticed her into a rendezvous and there robbed and held her, is scouted as improbable by Mr. Martine, from the fact that Miss Clark is very reserved in making acquaintances and not given to the display of money or jewelry.

This is evidenced by the fact that only a day before leaving she cautioned Miss Yanne to be careful and not carry money where it could easily be purloined from her person.

Some people hint that Miss Clark may have assumed too much in a financial way in taking charge of the Stratford and had taken this manner of escaping future embarrassment. This is not so, because she has ample financial backing and her prospects for a successful season were most favorable. Already she has secured the admittance of several daughters of wealthy people, who were to pay $1,000 a year tuition and board, and her success was assured.

The report in The World this morning that there is romance in her absence is absolutely ridiculous. In manner she was quiet and unassuming, not particularly quick in making friends, but after once making them ready and entertaining in conversation.

Miss Clark is about five feet tall, well-proportioned, fair complexion and light flaxen hair. She is forty years of age. When in conversation she displays two fillings of gold in her front teeth. When she left home she was attired in a brown traveling suit.

Yesterday Miss Clark's personal effects were packed up and sent on to Syracuse to her sister, Mrs. Sweet though her other property is still at the Stratford, awaiting her discovery or reason of absence.

For eight years Miss Clark was connected with Miss Baird's boarding school at New Haven, Conn., which is patronized by the most wealthy people of New York.

Matters are in such a state of chaos that Mr. Martine does not know what will be done with the school, but it is hoped every moment some tidings of her may be secured.

RESPECT TO A COMRADE.

Funeral Services Over the Remains of the Late Wm. Blimm.

Very impressive and largely attended was the funeral service of the late W. H. Blimm, which was held Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock from the home of his parents on Somerset street. The service was conducted by Rev. George Hauser, pastor of the German Reformed church, assisted by Rev. G. Kennedy Newell, pastor of Hope chapel.

About forty members of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., and thirty members of Crescent Division, U. R., K. of P., attended, besides members of the Plainfield Fire Department.

At the grave in North Plainfield cemetery Cadwallader Jones, from Perseverance Lodge, conducted the ritualistic service which was very solemn. The Knights also sang their funeral ode, after which each one dropped a sprig of evergreen in the grave. Revs. Messrs. Hauser and Newell also assisted.

The floral tributes were many and beautiful, consisting of a pillow with the words "Our Friend" inscribed; an anchor, from five brothers, with the word "Brother" thereon. Crescent Division gave a handsome crescent of flowers, with the letters "U. R. K. of P.;" and Zephyr Hook and Ladder Company contributed a very large horseshoe of flowers on which was inscribed "Zephyr Hook and Ladder Company." There was a large choice pillow with the words "K. of P., No. 74, F. C. B.;" another pillow and several smaller pieces from friends. A touching tribute was a basket of flowers on the card being written, "Little Raymond, to Uncle Willie." There was also a pretty wreath from the Park Avenue Social Club, on which were the initials of the club.

The bearers were: H. Keller, G. Ball, from Perseverance Lodge; John Haberle, G. H. Van Nest, from Crescens Division; George Mehl, G. Schlereth, from Zephyr Hook and Ladder Company.

The Dog The Cause.

While Herbert C. McVoy was riding his wheel along Somerset street on Sunday he ran over a dog, and was thrown off into the street. He was able to go to work yesterday for the first.

My boy was taken sick with a disease resembling bloody flux. The first thing I thought of was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Two doses of it settled the matter and cured him sound and well. I heartily recommend this remedy to all persons suffering from a like complaint. I will answer any inquiries regarding it when stamp is inclosed. I refer to any county official as to my reliability. Wm. Roach, J. P., Primroy, Campbell Co., Tenn. DIFFERENT SUITS, SAME MEN.

GALBRAITH AGAINST GILL AND VICE VERSA TRIED THIS MORNING.

One Put Under Bonds to Keep the Peace, While the Other Is Held for the Grand Jury—Sensational End is Expected.

Galbraith against Gill and Gill against Galbraith were the titles of actions tried before Plainfield justices Wednesday, in which spicy testimony was given by witnesses. The first case was brought up before Justice Newcorn at eight o'clock and the other before Justice Mosher at ten o'clock. The charge in both cases assault and battery.

Galbraith is a hackman. Gill formerly was, but is now employed by a Dog Corners lady. Galbraith worked for the same woman before Gill secured the position, and it was while discussing her affairs that the two men became involved in an altercation that resulted in fisticuffs playing a tattoo upon each other, and an airing of their grievances before the tribunal of justice.

It seems that Gill and his employer drove up to an out of town road house one day last week to quench their thirst, and upon the former entering the place found Galbraith there. Since Gill secured the job which Galbraith formerly held the feeling between the two men has not been altogether friendly, but notwithstanding Gill asked the latter to step up and have something. At first he refused, but a little urging brought him before the bar and—well they got into an argument. Then they commenced to talk about betting. Gill went out to his employer and got $35, but when he returned Galbraith insisted on putting up a watch instead of the cash.

This led to more words and finally to blows. Both swore out warrants for each other, the result being that Gill was put under $100 bonds to keep to keep the peace, and Galbraith was held in $300 bail to await the action of the grand jury.

The arguments which brought about the fracas was a part of a discussion that was very sensational in the statements made by the two. It is said that when the matter is brought before the grand jury several well-known people will have to face music that will make them wiggle.

George W. Demeza represented Galbraith and J. P. Powers looked after the interests of Gill.

A New Jersey Railroad.

A railroad from Morristown to Whippany is being built by Superintendent J. E. Melick, who, it is understood, has several influential men of Hanover at his back. The road will be about four miles long and will probably be used largely for freight traffic. The freight comes to Morristown at present and is hauled by teams to Whippany.

The loads are heavy, and as the traffic amounts to something over one hundred tons a day, it is almost impossible to keep the roads in a passable condition. Well-informed railroad officials say that the road, for which the right of way practically costs nothing, can pay for itself in ten years solely from the freight transportation, to say nothing of the passenger traffic.

Kiely Gets a Good Clubbing.

Big Jim Kiely was nearly killed at a christening Sunday night at Elizabethport. The merry-makers, believing he was there to make trouble, pitched into Kiely, and threw threw him out. He attempted to return, when they attacked him with fence pickets and clubbed him unmercifully. He might have been beaten to death had it not been for persons going to his rescue. He will be laid up some time.

Plumbers to Talk.

The Master Plumbers Association adjourned their meeting last evening till tonight when it is expected that Prof. Wingate and James Muir, of New York, will be present. They will talk on expert sanitary matters. They will also tell why Plainfielders should have their house connections to the sewers made by home plumbers.

ENGLISH LIVING.

HOW AN AMERICAN FARED IN ENGLAND ON SIX MEALS A DAY

Daily Bread in a Middle Class Home. Breakfast at 7, Supper at 9. Yorkshire Pudding and Bubble and Squeak. Odd Serving of Food.

Any Englishman will acknowledge with perfect good humor that it is an old saying in his country that "an Englishman considers his stomach first and his back afterward," but no American can realize how universally true the love of good living is all over England unless he has been fortunate enough to be invited to spend several months as a guest in a middle class English home.

The house where such a stay was had, and to which the writer will always look back with longing for a return of the delightful days spent there, was presided over by a typical English hostess, round, ruddy, and so jolly that, though she must have been sixty, one always thought of her as young. Her house was managed in good old English style, and from the moment we greeted her in the morning until we took our candles to go to bed at night, her one thought was to make us comfortable and happy.

Breakfast began at 7 o'clock, and we always found our hostess waiting for us in the breakfast room, in her place at the head of the table. English etiquette demands that each person as he enters the breakfast room should shake hands with the hostess first, and then with every one else in the room. This practice was, of course, new to the American guest, but it was soon acquired, though more difficult was the getting used to interruption half a dozen times in the course of the meal to shake hands with the late risers as they came in, one by one.

There would always be two or three kinds of cold meat, beef, mutton, ham, etc., left over from the day before, hot sausage or eggs, and, in season, a Melton-Mowbray pork pie. Along with these would be the most delicious of toast and tea. Coffee was little drunk and was not particularly good, but the tea was always so much nicer than any tea which can be had in this country that one easily preferred it.

About 11 o'clock comes what they call "a bite and a snatch." This is merely bread and beer and a bit of pastry, set informally on an end of the dining table and eaten as one chooses. It follows one about the house or into the garden, a maid bringing your share on a tray. This luncheon was to be dodged, when possible, as it only spoiled the appetite for dinner, which, in this house, was served at 12:30.

Dinner is a substantial meal, beginning with an enormous roast of beef, a leg of mutton or a boiled ham. There was very seldom soup, but whenever the roast was of beef or mutton there was always delicious Yorkshire pudding, which was served before or with the roast. To make this dish, comparatively unknown in America, the roast is put to cook upon an iron frame called a "horse," which raises it from the bottom of the roasting pan. An hour or so before the roast is done, the pudding batter, made of flour, milk and eggs, is poured into the pan and left to cook beneath the drippings of the meat, the juices of which penetrate and flavor it. One might reasonably think, to read how it is made, that a Yorkshire pudding would be solid enough to sole a shoe with, but it isn't. When properly made, it is light and delicious.

Of course everything is carved on the table. The Englishman has a lofty contempt for side dishes, and your meat, potato, Yorkshire pudding and two kinds of vegetables are always heaped upon one plate, which, fortunately, is a large one.

Of pies, as we make them in this country, they know nothing. The nearest approach which they have to them are their tarts, made with one crust, about as large as a saucer, and filled with various kinds of fruit jam.

By the middle of the afternoon, when our hostess was fairly relieved of her domestic duties for the day, she liked to have us drop in at her own little sitting room for a bit of cake, some fruit and a glass of her home-made wine.

At 5 o'clock, by which time we naturally needed something to eat, came tea; and this was no "four o'clock" affair, with tiny cups and wafers of paper thinness. The table was spread in the dining-room, and we sat down to a generous meal of potted meat, salad, big plates piled high with thin slices of bread and butter, more toast, tea and pastry.

At 9 o'clock comes supper—next to dinner, the most solid meal of the day. This is also the social meal, when conversation is at its best, and we are apt to linger, loath to leave. If a neighbor dropped in, or more than one, as was often the case, extra plates were put on, and they must have at least a mouthful for the sake of hospitality.

The cold roasts from dinner, and usually from dinner of the day before, always came up for supper, with roast potatoes or "bubble and squeak," made regularly after the first night, because the traveler liked it so well. "Bubble and squeak" is simply the cold potato and cabbage from dinner chopped together, and then done in a frying pan to a crisp brown. It doesn't sound nice, but try it and see how good it is. This is not the notion of one particular house for directions for cooking it were found in an old cook book published in 1837.

A leading literary light in one of the best known woman's colleges says that there are just three books that everybody should know by heart. "The Arabian Nights," "Alice in Wonderland" and "Mother Goose." "A thorough knowledge of those masterpieces," she says, "will do more toward cultivating the imagination than any other process that I know of. And I regard imagination as the most important of all mental faculties." This is a direct and significant opposition to the ideas held by many parents and teachers that fairy tales are injurious reading for the young.

TIME BRINGS ROSES.

When from my mountain top of years I gaze
Backward upon the scenes that I have passed,
How pleasant is the view! and yet how vast
The deserts where I thirsted many days!
There, where now hangs that blue and shimmering haze,
And there, and there, my lot with pain was cast.
Hopeless and dark; but always at the last
Deliverance came, from unexpected ways.
And now all past grief is as but a dream;
Yet even now there loom before my path
Shadows whose gloomy portent checks my breath.
But shadows are not always what they seem—
God's love sometimes appears to be his wrath,
And His best gift is the white rose of death.

ROMANCE IN HIGH LIFE.

The Daughter of the Late Col. Elliott F. Shepard Weds Secretly.

In striking comparison with the brilliant wedding of Miss Adele Sloane to James Abercrombie Burden, Jr., at Lenox, Mass., on June 6, was the unexpected marriage of Mrs. Burden's cousin, Miss Alice Vanderbilt Shepard, to Dave Hennen Morris, son of the late John A. Morris, of Westchester, the noted turfman and lottery king. Mrs. Burden is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William D. Sloane. Mrs. Morris is the daughter of the late Elliott F. Shepard, former owner of the New York Mail and Express, and both young women are granddaughters of William H. Vanderbilt and nieces of Cornelius, Frederick W., George and William K. Vanderbilt.

Three special trains carried up several hundred wedding guests to the Burden-Sloane wedding at Lenox. Every member of the Vanderbilt family in this country was present at the wedding, and Miss Alice Vanderbilt Shepard was conspicuous among the guests.

None of the family connections of Miss Shepard but her mother knew of the impending Morris-Shepard wedding, and only a few persons were aware that Miss Shepard and Mr. Morris were engaged.

The romance which culminated in the wedding of Miss Alice Vanderbilt Shepard and Dave Hennen Morris dates back a year to a social courtesy paid by ex-Secretary William C. Whitney to the young people during an ocean voyage. In July of last year ex-Secretary Whitney, Miss Davidge, Miss Pauline Whitney and Miss Alice Vanderbilt Shepard went abroad on the steamer Majestic. Mr. Morris was a passenger on the same steamer, and, during the trip, ex-Secretary Whitney introduced Mr. Morris to Miss Shepard. They had never met before. During the stay abroad of ex-Secretary Whitney's party Miss Shepard and Mr. Morris saw each other frequently. Observers noticed during the summer trip that a strong attachment was springing up between Miss Shepard and Mr. Morris.

During the winter the attentions of Mr. Morris were not sufficiently constant to attract attention, but recently it had been rumored among the intimate acquaintances of both that Mr. Morris never called upon Miss Shepard at her home during his brief visits from Harvard, of whose junior class he was a member. Ten days ago Mr. Morris came home from Harvard on his summer vacation. Mrs. Elliot F. Shepard had transferred her household to her country place at Scarboro.

Mrs. Elliot F. Shepard went to New York the morning of the wedding with Miss Alice Vanderbilt Shepard. They went to the Shepard residence, at Fifth avenue and Fifty-second street. At 5.30 o'clock Miss Shepard was married to Mr. Morris in the Church of the Transfiguration. Mrs. Shepard was not present at the wedding.

The secrecy of the wedding led the acquaintances of the bride and bridegroom to believe that there was not perfect harmony between the two families over the marriage.

Mrs. Shepard was very fond of Mr. Morris until she found out how the large fortune he had inherited had been made, and then she changed completely. Mrs. Shepard is a very religious woman, and she would not allow her daughter to receive attention from a turfman's son.

It is the intention of Mr. Morris to finish his course at Harvard, and during his concluding studies next year Mrs. Morris will probably live in Boston. Mr. Morris intends to take up surgery as a profession. He has taken a two-year course under Dr. William Todd Helmuth, and he will follow a post-graduate course of surgical study and practice. Mr. Morris has long cherished the hobby of founding a free surgical hospital in this city where the poorest can receive the very best medical and surgical attention. The young man's large wealth will allow him to realize this idea.

The fortune of the late John T. Morris was estimated at his death to be $30,000. Of this Dave Hennen Morris inherits a large share. The share of the Vanderbilt estate, which Mrs. Morris will eventually receive, will make her many times a millionaire in her own name.

Adventure With a Shark.

W. H. Muller wrote from Aransas Pass, Tex., to Forest and Stream as follows:

"On June 14, last, while out fishing for tarpon, a shark got on my hook and the boom of the boat struck me in the back of the neck, knocking me head first into the channel, and the shark got me in the calf of the left leg, taking me twenty feet down the channel. However, I managed to pull myself up on the line which I had in my hand and tied to the boat, and when I pulled myself up to the boat I kicked the shark in the jaw at least twelve times, tearing a large gash in my limb, and the boatman then dumped me in the boat and I landed the shark, killing him, and we sailed for shore. It laid me up for seven weeks. However, I am going out this evening and presume you will hear from me again before leaving here."

BARBERS ON SUNDAY CLOSING

SOME ARE FOR AND SOME AGAINST THE MOVEMENT.

Various Arguments are Offered Pro and Con—Some Say it Will Hurt Their Business, While Others Say Not.

There are many minds of many opinions among the barbers in regard to the Sunday closing ordinance which has passed the City Council on its second reading.

A Daily Press reporter made the rounds yesterday and learned many things on the subject.

The first man interviewed was P. H. Decker, of North avenue. He said that he had made up his mind to close whether anyone else did or not as he wanted his Sunday off. He was not concerned about the others.

Brown & Hill said they were not in favor of it for many reasons. One being that they had a class of customers who only came to their shop on Sunday mornings as they could not come any other time. Their customers were also kicking about it and were very much against it.

Charles Suhr was much opposed. His customers, he said, were loud in their talk against closing. Mr. Suhr said if the shops were closed Sundays the journeymen would lose a half a day as they would not get their day off in the week. He also thought that under the present rule all of the barbers could go to church if they wanted to and that there was no excuse.

William Bamberger was the next man seen and he was inclined to be neutral on the subject, although he signed the petition to close. He said it made no difference to him whether or not they closed, but thought if a man wanted to be an objectionist he could have a little fun.

The next man interviewed was George Richter on Somerset street. At first he was not inclined to say much, but finally said he did not favor the idea. He stated that a large number of his customers could not possibly get shaved on Saturday night and were obliged to come on Sunday. He thought it was a poor plan to close all the shops, but if any wanted to close they could do so. When the reporter saw Charles Hui, the originator of the idea, he was free to give his opinion. He thought that a man ought to be able to do all his work in six days, and also, if married, ought to have some time to spend with his family; if not, he ought to have the day to himself. He was strongly in favor of closing and hoped the ordinance would become a law

Eugene Laine was found in front of his shop and when asked if he was in favor of closing, said he was most emphatically. Mr. Laine said that for a number of years past he had worked hard to have the shops close but never succeeded. He was strongly hoping that this time it would go through.

George Kesselring was asked for his opinion of closing on Sundays. He was in favor of the idea, but wants all to close. He thinks that a man can do all necessary work in six days, and although he did not sign the petition he is perfectly willing to abide by the ordinance.

E. B. Maynard thought it was an excellent plan, and was enthusiastically in favor of it. His opinion was that it would be a success in every respect.

Theodore Kurzhals did not favor Sunday closing. His customers were opposed to it. And he thought there should be no law compelling all to close. His idea would be to let anyone close that wanted to. It was the people that keep the shops open, and they should be the ones to regulate the business in that respect.

William Feiring, whose barber shop is under George Hallock's hat store on West Front street, said that he was willing to close if the rest did. He does not object to the ordinance and does not care much about the whole affair.

P. J. Kreitling, further down West Front street, was one of the first signers and was, of course, much in favor.

"Dave" of the same street was another signer of the petition and William Claassen, of Liberty street, was one of the promoters of the idea and therefore is very much in favor of the ordinance.

HE PULLED HER HAIR.

Another Boulevard Scrap Between Two Colored Denizens of Battle Row.

Battle Row appeared to be quite appropriately named, when two colored residents of that place had quite a lively little scrap on West Fourth street yesterday. No one appeared to know what the row was about, only that a colored man was arguing with a colored girl when he seized her by the hair, threw her down, and brutally kicked and beat her. A crowd collected and some of them were about to interfere, when the man left his victim in the gutter and walked off. The names of the participants could not be learned, but it is known that they are not husband and wife.

Revival in September.

Rev. Ralph Gillam will commence conducting a series of gospel meetings in Hope chapel on September 20th.

LIFE AT CAMP PLAINFIELD.

Mr. Franklin Investigates His Thirteen-Pound Cake.

Lake Hopatcong is a delightful place for camping, with its beautiful scenery and lake, boating and fishing. A party of Plainfield young men are camping there, and some time ago a Mr. Franklin, of Waynwood place, sent them an immense cake, weighing thirteen pounds. Last Tuesday morning he rode up on his wheel to see them, and returned yesterday afternoon shortly before six o'clock. He had had no intention of remaining so long at "Camp Plainfield," as the boys term their ground, but he found the life there so enjoyable that he remained much longer than he expected. He found the party, which consists of Walter B. Rittenhouse, J. Vincent Rittenhouse, and Everett J. Peck and George F. Rose, completely satisfied with camp life, which they say has twice as much enjoyment in it than they expected. There are two banjos in the party, and on the night of Mr. Franklin's arrival he was entertained with selections on them and a song, which was a joint composition of the whole party, which was sung to the tune of "Solomon Levi." The words were as follows:

We are a lazy sort of crowd,
On pleasure we are bent;
We sit away our idle days
Beneath our ragged tent;
And when it comes to cooking grub,
And scratching round for feed,
We are a crew who know the ropes,
And we can do the deed.

CHORUS.

Fried fish and taters are peachy agately, brown;
Oatmeal and pancakes turn summersaults on the way down.
There's Guggeret Peck, who trots for wood,
While Georgy runs the place,
The Kid he does the dirty work,
While Brit he feeds his face.

The boys expect to return to Plainfield on Monday, as their three weeks' outing will then be up.

OFFICIALS AT WAR.

Rahway's Mayor Said to Have Acted in a Sumptuary Way.

War has been declared between Mayor Daly and the Aldermanic Committee on Lamps and Gas, and it has all arisen over the action of the Common Council in passing a resolution empowering the Committee on Lamps to make a contract with the Rahway Gaslight Company to light 100 lamps for the month of August or until such time as the electric light company is ready to complete its contract for lighting the city It seems that Mayor Daly went to the gaslight company the day after the Council's last meeting, told it to go ahead, and in consequence the company officials did not consult the Lamp Committee of the Council at all, but started 100 lights burning. This aroused the committee, who that same night had forty-five of the lamps put out. Next night the gas company lighted up again and have been doing so ever since, wholly ignoring the authority of the Lamp Committee. Alderman Gruener, chairman of the committee, says that the gas company will not get a penny for the work, as they have done it without entering into a contract with the city. Mayor Daly, on the other hand, declares he will see to it that the bill is paid.

THE BULLET REMOVED SAFELY.

Dr. Mattison Was all Right but Mrs. Summers Wanted Another Doctor.

The victim of the accidental shooting yesterday, little Sherman Haberle, is doing as well as can be expected. He was taken yesterday afternoon to Dr. Cooper at Westfield, who put the lad under the influence of ether and cutting a slit in the side of his jaw, took the bullet out, which he found imbedded three-quarters of an inch in bone.

The bullet was about half an inch long and one of the kind known as 22-shorts. The lad recovered from the ether before the operation was completed but never made the slightest objection.

Dr. Mattison says that it was Mrs. Summers and not he that said Sherman must be sent to another physician. When Dr. Mattison attempted to probe for the bullet, he did not break his probe but merely bent it in trying to loosen the bullet from its firm position in the jaw bone.

J. G. Haberle now has the little piece of lead on exhibition at his store on Somerset street.

A Sail on the Hudson.

B. R. Force and son, Augustus Force, of East Front street, and Mrs. G. W. Force, Miss Ida Force, and Miss Emma Force, of West Second street, and Charles Burnett, of Central avenue, took the day boat up the Hudson yesterday to Newburgh, and returned on the down steamer in the afternoon. A most enjoyable day was spent.

Shut Down.

The block-cutting department in Love's wall-paper making establishment shut down last Saturday for two weeks. All the employes are thus getting a vacation.

CLIMAX CLUB WAS SECOND.

BEATEN IN THE STATE SHOOT BY THE MAPLEWOOD GUN CLUB.

The Cracks of New Jersey Attend the Meet and With Steady Arms and Good Aim Break the Empire Targets.

"Bang" went the guns and "crash" went the targets at the Climax Gun Club yesterday when the August shoot of the New Jersey State Trap Shooters League was held, at which quite a number of the cracks from this vicinity were in attendance. The warm weather made itself felt among the shooters but the sheltered position among the hills and trees shielded them to a great extent and a most enjoyable day was passed. There were eight events and the team shoot in which seven of the nine clubs in the League were represented by teams of five men each. The Maplewood Gun Club, of Maplewood, won the Club shoot by 112 out of a possible 125, with the Climax Club, of this city second. The scores of the other clubs were as follows:

Climax Gun Club, of Plainfield, 99.

Endeavor Gun Club, of Jersey City, 94.

Elizabeth Gun Club, of Elizabeth, 91.

South Side Gun Club, of Newark, 90.

Boiling Springs Fishing and Gun Club, of Rutherford, 90.

Riverside Gun Club, of Red Bank, 101.

Though the Riverside club made a better score than the Climax club they were unable to get a place by the inelgibility in having one man short, and filling out their team by R. O. Heikes, the visiting champion.

The summaries of the sweepstakes were as follows:

Event No. 1—10 Empire targets at known angles. Sigler, Hoffman and Van Dyke, 10; Brentnall, Heikes, E. Sickley, Huck and Crosly, 9; Keller and Hebbard, 8; Paul and Thomas, 7.

Smith, Drake, Proctor and Von Lengerke, 9; Piercy, Brientnall, Van Dyke, Thomas, Miller, Cooper, Woodruff and Major, 8; Keller, Paul, Sigler, C. Smith, Ballard, Heritage, Steiry and Collins, 7.

Event No. 7—10 Empire targets at unknown angles. E. Sickley and Heikes, 10; McAlpin, Collins, Keller and C. Smith, 9; Drake, A. Sickley, Geoffrey and W. Smith, 8; Grier and Rockafeller, 7.

Event No. 8—10 Empire targets at unknown angles. E. Sickley, Grier, Heikes and McAlpin, 10; Keller 9.

The purses in the first seven events were divided into four parts and in the eighth event into two parts.

Tony Creiger was in charge of the financial matters and managed them to the complete satisfaction all.

The crowd broke up about six o'clock and the visitors voted the Climax Gun a very hospitable band.

A GOLF CLUB ASSURED.

The Hillside Tennis Club to Organize One Wednesday Evening.

The Board of Governors of the Hillside Tennis Club met last evening and listened to the report of the golf committee, which was very favorable, showing that their energetic efforts had been rewarded. It was decided to call a special meeting of the club on Wednesday evening to organize the golf club. Quite a number of answers have been received to the circulars sent out, but it is hoped that those who have not already done so will respond favorably before next Wednesday evening.

Golf is fast becoming one of the most popular games in the United States, while it already holds a very high place in England and Scotland, and so it seems but right that such a city as Plainfield should afford the means of playing it.

There Is No Doubt About It.

Africa is a continent of great possibilities, and promises to take an active part in the future history of the world, but in preparation for that, a day of rest by the ocean would be of great benefit, and as the excursion of the Hope chapel goes Saturday, you will make a mistake if you do not go, too.

REFORMERS AND RADICALS.

What a Plainfield Woman Has to Say About These People.

"Reformers and radicals," said Mrs. Florence Howe Hall at a woman's club meeting, "should be careful not to impede progress. This, from the very fact that they are themselves in the lead, they are apt to do. Their being in front often keeps others back—not intentionally nor invariably, of course, but none the less definitely, and at times, certainly. Also, of course, the evil is never a lasting one, but while it does last it is most effectual and for a time defeats the very purpose that the reformers set out to accomplish. The same principle acts upon any other sort of crowd. At the ferries and railway stations it isn't the people behind, it's those in front, who retard progress and so make all the trouble."—Evening Sun.

FORLORN AND A CRIPPLE.

POOR COLORED GIRL TURNED OUT WITHOUT SUPPORT.

Had Been Working For a Deckertown Man, Who She Says Sent Her to This City Without Apparent Reason.

A peculiar problem is just now bothering Rev. P. S. Gibson, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church. A young colored woman about twenty-three years old, and giving the name of Miss Mirah Hawkins, arrived in town yesterday, and was sent to the Liberty street minister. She is badly crippled with rheumatism, making it very difficult for her to walk.

Her story is that for sometime past she has been working for a man named Loomis at Deckertown, Sussex county, and when she became helpless through rheumatism he said did not need her services any longer.

He then gave her car fare and sent her to Plainfield, where she has no friends. She does not even know a person in the city.

Why Mr. Loomis sent her is a mystery which she cannot explain, but she is here, and just what to do with her is puzzling.

Miss Hawkins claims Lynchburg, Va., as her home, and says that if she could reach there she has friends who would take care of her. But it is not so easy to raise her car fare.

Her condition is such that she cannot get around very well to help earn the money.

Mr. Gibson thinks that he could possibly get her in the hospital for a week, but does not know what to do afterwards. He also thinks that she should be sent back to Deckertown to Mr. Loomis, and that he should be compelled to help her.

Mr. Gibson will consult with some friends and see what can be done.

In the meantime Miss Hawkins is stopping on West Fourth street.

THE ANTHRAX EPIDEMIC.

Great Mortality Among Cattle—Vaccination with Pasteur's Lymph.

State Dairy Commissioner George McGuire received yesterday morning a report from Special Milk Inspector P. L. Vandergrift, who has been inspecting milk in the district in south New Jersey where the disease known as anthrax, that is killing the farmers' cows, horses, mules and hogs, is doing the greatest damage. The inspector's report is dated several days ago. In it he said that seventy-two head of cattle, horses and mules have succumbed to the scourge in Cumberland county alone, and that many animals were still sick at the time of making his report.

His time has been so taken up in this one county, he reports, that he has had no opportunity to visit adjoining counties where the disease is prevalent.

He believes many more animals have died of the disease in Cumberland county than he has reported. The inspector's instructions were to prevent the sale of milk from infected districts. Many gallons of milk are shipped from Cumberland county to Philadelphia each week.

Dr. Vandergrift says that in the opinion of Dr. R. W. Hewitt, of Bridgeton, who has investigated the epidemic, nothing but vaccination with Pasteur's lymph will prevent the spread of the disease.

A Journey to the North Pole.

Sir John Franklin tried to go to the North pole and did not make a success of the attempt, but got lost on the road. The road to Tier's is very plain however and you cannot get lost, so just run over today and examine his special sale of candies or try his ice cream soda at five cents a glass.

BAD BOUND BROOK.

Said to be the Stamping Ground for Green Goods Men.

The Bound Brook Chronicle published the following last week:

"Scarcely a day passes but what Bound Brook is visited by green goods men and their victims. Last Saturday a gang of five sharpers stepped off at the station and lingered around until their victim came when the whole party went down the railroad. What became of the poor victim can only be surmised. On Wednesday the green goods men made an attempt to defraud another man in this vicinity. Where he came from nobody knows, but shortly after two o'clock in the afternoon he ran into the Central depot, nearly out of breath, and requested a ticket for Philadelphia of Ticket Agent Baxter. That official noticed the worn-out condition of the man and asked the reason therefor. The stranger replied that he had been to a resort over towards the mountain and several men had there endeavored by unfair means to get possession of his money, a large roll of which he showed to Mr. Baxter. He further stated that he had only escaped by running across fields until he reached the railroad tracks. He was uneasy until the Philadelphia train started out, when he seemed to regain his composure."

SURPRISERS SURPRISED.

Mrs. Fernandez Was Ready and Have a Good Time.

Surprise parties are usually very nice affairs, and so was the one given to Mrs. Fernandez, of Dog Corners, last evening, but it turned out rather unexpectedly. About fifty friends of Mrs. Fernandez from Plainfield, Westfield, and this vicinity, drove up to the house expecting, of course, to surprise her greatly, but what was their astonishment to find the house and lawn all gaily decorated with Chinese lanterns, and the one they came to surprise waiting to greet them. Inside another very pleasant surprise awaited them, for there was Professor Frazee all ready to furnish the music for dancing which was soon enjoyed by all. A fine supper was served later in the evening, and the guests all agreed that the joke was on them this time, and it was they, and not Mrs. Fernandez, who were surprised. All declared it a most delightful surprise party.

PICNICING BY THE RARITAN.

A Family Party Start in a Stage for Boynton Beach.

These warm days send many hurrying to the mountains or the seashore. Boynton Beach is the only water resort of importance within driving distance of Plainfield, and this morning a family party from the borough started for a picnic at that place. The party consisted of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Blatz, Mrs. Charles Ulrich, Mrs. Elizabeth Ulrich, Mrs. Frank Willis, of New York, Mrs. Maggie Smith, of New York, Miss Etta Blatz, Miss Mildred Ulrich, Miss Frankie Smith, of New York, Miss Maggie Smith, of New York, Hilaire Blatz, and Carl Ulrich.

VAN CLEEF ACQUITTED.

The Jury Brought In Their Verdict This Morning.

Trenton, August 8—The jury in the case of Col. John T. Van Cleef, on trial for obtaining money from the State under false pretences, in alleged fraudulent map transactions, came into court at 10:50 o'clock this morning with a verdict of not guilty after being out all night.

Took A Bath.

A man from North Plainfield had an exciting and rather amusing experience Tuesday. He was leading his cow along Green brook near French's dam when for some reason the animal prrferred the other side. Her owner said no, but that was of no use for the cow walked across dragging her unwilling owner right through the way and out on the other side.

WILL THEY TRY AGAIN?

A Cow Fight Is Developing Into an Exciting Suit.

There is going to be a lively time at Justice Huff's court in Dunellen next Friday when the case of Harriet Mallison vs. Samuel Pyatt comes up. The case was set for last Thursday but was then postponed eight days on account of the illness of Justice Huff.

A young man, who lives near Miss Mallison and saw the entire affair, is about the most important witness and last Wednesday he was arrested and taken six miles to Justice Wood, of Metuchen, to answer to the charge of shooting Pyatt's cow. As there was no evidence against him he was released. But Thursday, the day of the trial, the constable appeared again and arrested the lad the second time. Despite his protest against being taken so far away when Justice Huff lived about a mile away, he was again carried over to Justice Wood on the charge of threatening to shoot Pyatt's daughter and again he was discharged.

Felt Like Doing Something.

While Constable George Rockafellow was crossing Park avenue a few days ago a young man on a wheel ran into him. The latter was thrown off his wheel, sliding about ten feet from where he fell, while the constable received a severe shock. There were no exchange of hard words, but the latter felt like doing something.

No Law Suit.

Samuel B. Merrill, who was reported to have become involved in a law suit over a cow in South Plainfield, states that it is an error and that he has not owned a cow in five years, and therefore has nothing to go to law about.

On Duty Again.

The obliging elevator man of the Babcock building, Reuben Ray, is back to his duties after a weeks vacation spent at Newark, Orange and New York.

CONDUCTOR HETFIELD HURT.

Thrown From a Car By a Peculiar Accident at Sea Girt.

Conductor Augustus P. Hetfield, of Madison avenue, was yesterday afternoon the victim of a peculiar and very painful accident, which, to say the least, was a narrow escape from a fatality. Mr. Hetfield runs between Jersey City and Long Branch on the Jersey Central, and is one of the most popular conductors on the road.

He was running the train up from the Branch yesterday afternoon, and just as it was pulling into the Sea Girt station at 3:40 o'clock, he walked out on to the platform of a car and naturally placed his hand on the brake handle as a means of support from the jar of the car. The train was still going at a rapid rate, when the engineer applied the air brakes. Unluckily the brake on this particular car was on just enough to catch the action of the air mechanism, with the result of the handle which Conductor Hetfield had grasped turning with a force and a rapidity sufficient to precipitate him ten feet out from the car and landing him all doubled up on the depot platform.

The shock and jar which he received was something terrible, and getting up and making an examination, he found his coat badly torn and body painfully bruised and injured.

He was quickly surrounded by passengers and railway employes and assisted on to the train. A Somerville physician happened to be a passenger on the train and made him as comfortable as possible, stating that his left arm was broken. The train was run into Jersey City by Brakeman Richard Bellis.

Mr. Hetfield came home in the evening and called Dr. Endicott, who, after a thorough examination, declared that the arm was not broken, though severely bruised. The unfortunate man will be layed up for some time with his injuries.

FATAL LOCK-JAW.

William J. Peterson Dies From the Effects of a Rusty Nail.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Peterson, of Watchung avenue, have the sympathy of the entire community in the death of their eldest son, Wm. J. Peterson, which occured at Muhlenberg Hospital yesterday afternoon at 3:30.

About a week ago he was taken to the hospital suffering from lock-jaw, which was caused by running a rusty nail in his foot. At first little attention was paid to the wound, thinking it would not amount to much. But it continued to get worse until it was thought best to remove him to the hospital. His condition did not improve, and in fact it became serious.

Yesterday afternoon his parents were sent for, as he was dying. They went to the hospital and saw him before he passed away.

He was brought to his home on Watchung avenue where the funeral services will be held Saturday afternoon at two o'clock.

PROTEST TO SEWER CONTRACTORS.

A Grievance Against Them For Removing Mr. Pearson's Driveway.

W. W. Pearson, of Orchard place, is complaining against the action of Honan & Sons, the sewer contractors, in destroying the bridge or driveway over the gutter in front of his house. Mr. Pearson is a paralytic, having lost the entire use of his lower limbs and it is necessary for him to ride a tricycle to carry him about. The bridge was a convenience to him in allowing him to go from the sidewalk to the street. He had permission from the authorities to build it but when the street was cleaned up after the digging of the sewer, the driveway went also.

Mr. Pearson appealed to Street Commissioner Meeker and A. J. Gavett, the engineer in charge, but they were unable to have it replaced.

The friends of Mr. Pearson believe that the contractors ought to restore the bridge which is the means in a small way of lightening Mr. Pearson's burden.

Pirates of the Kills Can't Get Bail.

William and John Farron and Thomas Kellett, the pirates of the Kills, were unable yesterday to secure bail at Elizabeth and were committed to the Union county jail this morning. Detective Shotwell, of Staten Island, accompanied by a representative from District-Attorney's Fitzgerald's office, in Richmond county, was in Elizabeth yesterday afternoon completing arrangements for the removal of the prisoners on requisition papers to Richmond county for trial. The authorities there expect to get control of the prisoners next week.

Borough Fire Gong on this Side.

It has been decided to place the borough fire gong on the Plainfield Electric Light station. Fires in the borough will be distinguished by the code of signals now in use by the borough.

Almost Ready For Light.

The stringing of the feed wire from the Plainfield electric light station to the North Plainfield station was completed yesterday and today connections are being made in the borough.

SURGERY BY A BLIND MAN

Delicate and Dangerous Operations Done With Nerve and Skill.

When Dr. James R. Cocke, of 138 Huntington avenue, Boston, was two months old both of his eyes were ruined by a blundering doctor, who administered a wrong medicine.

Since then he has been totally blind. He is now 32 years of age, and he is consulted in difficult cases by the most eminent of the regular physicians of Boston.

He has performed recently two very delicate an l difficult surgical operations, and in both cases the patients are doing well. He locates a disease by his sensitive touch, and he tells the color of goods in the same way, singular as it may appear. A lady who had eight or ten samples of dress goods, each about three inches square, and of different colors and shades of colors, handed them to Dr. Cocke the other day, and he at once told accurately the color, and even the shade of color, of each, and selected the samples of best quality. When handed several national bank and government currency bills he at once told the denomination of each, and the color, whether green or black. He tells the complexion of a person by touching the skin.

It is difficult to believe that a blind man could do this, but he is seen to do it, and accurately, too.

Dr. Cocke went among Buffalo Bill's Indians the other day, and designated their character by their voices, spoken in the Indian dialect. He has three diplomas from colleges in this and foreign countries, and four certificates of commendation from institutions where he has taken special courses of study. He went through a course of study under the famous Weir Mitchell. Before Dr. Cocke was 21 years of age he was employed by a large tobacco house to select the raw material for them. He never failed in getting the best quality and the most desirable color—all by the touch.

From this source he earned over $3,000, which paid his expenses at a university in Tennessee, where he stood at the head of his class. From Tennessee University he entered a medical school, where he was "to the fore" all through the class. He has taken special studies in five other institutions, a part of them in Europe. To attain all that this remarkable man has accomplished in the higher classics and professional studies of the colleges requires a large and firmly knit brain, perseverance and self-reliance to an unusual degree.

The two women patients that he operated upon last week are both doing well. In one case a large tumor was removed; the other was a still more difficult and delicate case. In lifting out the tumor Dr. Cocke found that he had twenty-four forceps holding veins and arteries. He tied blood vessels quickly and removed the forceps. He takes up and ties severed arteries in difficult cases more rapidly than any of the clear-seeing surgeons.

He has no idea of the appearance of the moon and the planets and stars, nor the sun; and night and day are all the same to him, except that the stillness of the night does not escape his attention. He is a hard worker and unflagging student. He has a typewriter, to whom he dictates. His wife writes medical prescriptions in Latin.—Hartford Times.

AN IDEAL FIELD FOR THE FLAG.

Hawaii's Star Would Make Old Glory Shine in Symmetrical Perfection.

The forty-four stars now in the field of the American flag present a very jagged appearance. There does not seem to be any way to arrange them in equal rows; all sorts of forms and arrangements have been adopted by flagmakers. Perhaps some uniform plan of placing the stars would be settled if it were not that every one expects that the number will be shortly increased.

No change can be made, however, until 1896, as the law requires that additional stars shall be added only on the Fourth of July succeeding the admission of new States. In all probability Utah and New Mexico will be admitted next winter, which will increase the stars in the field to forty-six. But even then there will be almost the same irregularity, though the field will be more nearly filled up and will appear less jagged than now.

Forty-eight stars could be arranged so as to present a perfectly regular appearance, and it is not improbable that the number may be reached before long. Oklahoma, a booming Territory, is asking admission, and Arizona has long had pretentions to Statehood.

With the admission of those four organized Territories the national domain will be exhausted unless the Indian country is to be absorbed or admitted as an Indian State. There is, of course, Alaska, but that region can hardly be considered as a possible State. It might be added to our extreme Northwestern State, or even to California, as there is no constitutional objection to this.

An ideal number of stars for arrangement in the field of the flag would be forty-nine. Up, down, and diagonally there would be rows of seven, the mystic number.

It is quite possible that there may be forty-nine States before the end of the century. The civilized Indians in the Indian Territory may ask and obtain admission, or the American colonists in the Hawaiian Islands may come in. It is true that they now maintain an independent republic, but they constantly avow their purpose to ask admission to the Union.—San Francisco Chronicle.

No Chance of Rest.

Miss Emancipus—Our movement is a powerful one. Woman will never rest until she has asserted herself.

Mr. Oldstyle—No, nor men either.

Brave.

A mouse ran by. She did not scream
Or wildly raise her head.
"I do not mind such animals
With bloomers on," she said.

REBUILDING THE FERRIS WHEEL.

The Monarch of the Midway Again to Be an Attraction in Chicago.

The big Ferris Wheel, which everybody who even so much as heard of the Chicago World's Fair knows all about, and which everybody who visited the Fair remembers with a vast amount of interest, after being housed in small sections for a year or more, is again to be set up in the Windy City to afford Chicagoans a chance to get above their atrocious atmosphere and have an occasional glimpse of the sun. There have been all sorts of suggestions of a new site for the wheel, and some negotiations looking toward its purchase as an attraction for various summer resorts. At one time it was almost settled that it was to be set up at Coney Island. But these various schemes fell through, and finally the company owning it, and which operated it during the fair, has decided to re-erect the wheel in Chicago as the leading feature of a new excursion resort on the northern outskirts of the city.

Several notable copies of the big wheel have been built in Europe, and one that eclipses the Midway giant in the mere matter of height is an attraction at the Empire of India Exhibition now running at Earl's Court, London. But none of the imitations has eclipsed, if even equaled, the Ferris Wheel as a triumph of clever designing and engineering. The absolute perfection of the gigantic structure in its every part and as a whole is being made more evident in the rebuilding than seemed apparent at its first setting up. The solid steel axle, measuring thirty-three inches in diameter and weighing fifty-six tons, retains its pre-eminence as the largest steel casting ever made.

THINGS HAD CHANGED.

The Old Man Had Been Away From New York for a Time.

The old man had been away doing the Continent and had just returned, as was evident from the foreign hotel "stickers" on the bag he carried. He was evidently in a hurry, too, for he came around the corner with a rush that carried him full tilt into the broad expanse of a roundsman coming the other way.

"Gosh! Whoop! Beg pardon——" the old man began. "Excuse me! Carelessness itself, I'm sure. I hope——"

The resplendent cap was lifted politely as the officer courteously interrupted him.

"Don't mention it, sir. I beg your pardon sincerely. It was my own fault."

The old man's jaw fell and he slunk away as though in sudden alarm as the officer, with a profound bow, passed on.

"Gosh!" he muttered feebly, "this sun is pretty hot, and I guess my hearing isn't what it used to be. But that hat certainly went up! And he didn't even hunch me—not a hunch. Do I look like Byrnes? Something's wrong!"

A policeman stood mopping his face on the corner and the old man approached him with the air of one in painful doubt.

"He can't do any more than run me in," he said to himself, "and if I've got a sunstroke I may as well find it out."

"Very warm day," he observed casually, in a tone that was meant to be unconcerned, but which to the close observer would have betrayed a hideous fear.

The officer did not seem to notice it.

"It is, sir," he replied courteously, "very warm indeed! I hope, however, that it may be cooler to-morrow."

The old man staggered back against a lamppost.

"Mad!" he murmured. "Mad as a March hare! Oh, why did they let me off the ship!"

"Officer," he said desperately, as one who dares all in a final throw, "officer, come in and have a drink with me, will you?"

The officer gazed searchingly at the old man. He noticed his pitiful agitation and he winked softly to himself.

"No, I thank you; I never drink, Mr. Roosevelt," he answered.

But the old man did not hear the name. The final shock of the negation was too much for his shattered nerves. He had fallen, a lifeless heap, upon the pavement.—Truth.

The Hearty Hospitality of the West.

"The people in the East," says Mr. John P. Miller, who has just returned from a trip through the West, "do not know what broad, open-hearted hospitality means. It takes the experience of a trip through the Northwest to learn how much one man can do for another. I never saw anything like it. The mere fact that I came from Washington in itself was frequently the open sesame to everything. If I knew some one who knew some one else, and he in turn knew the man I was talking to, there was nothing in the town too good for me. One gentleman to whom I was introduced out in a Montana town did not think it too much trouble to drive me around to several places I had to visit, and yet he and I were total strangers until we were introduced an hour before. Another gentleman whose name I did not even learn presented me with a flask of the finest whisky, while a hotel keeper, who happened to hear that I wanted to meet a prominent citizen of the town, sent three of his bellboys out to hunt up the man and bring him to the hotel. I could tell instance after instance of the hospitality of the Western people, and I am willing to bet that my experience could not be duplicated in the East if I were to travel for a thousand years."—Washington Post.

A statement of the Post-office Department showing receipts of the twenty largest post-offices in the United States for the quarter ending July 31, 1895, gives the total receipts as $6,794,000, an increase over those of the same quarter in 1894 of $449,000, or 7⅓ per cent. The receipts of the New York office were $1,526,000, an increase of $116,000.

A prominent real estate dealer has said: "I believe that within the past three years not less than ten thousand families have removed from New York and Brooklyn and taken up their residence in New Jersey solely on account of the many miles of superior roads which have been built between the suburban towns of that State under the road improvement law."

A contract has been awarded to a Philadelphia firm to build a double-track standard gauge road between Washington and Baltimore to be used for trolley express trains. Messrs. The estimated cost of construction is $3,000,000.

Chairman Thomas H. Proctor, of the New Jersey State Committee of the People's party, has issued a call for a State convention, to be held at Trenton, Labor Day, Sept. 2d, at ten a. m. The call outlines the work of the convention as follows: To formulate a State platform, to nominate a candidate for Governor, to fill vacancies in the committee, to perfect the State organization, to arrange for an aggressive campaign, and to reaffirm allegiance to the Omaha platform.

The sentiment of the Democratic party, so far as manifested, favors the nomination of Chancellor McGill for Governor, and as between him and John Kean the certainty of which Republicans have been so boastful will disappear. There are hundreds of Republicans in Newark who would not hesitate a moment to decide in favor of the Chancellor, while the independent Democratic vote would be unanimous in its favor. The Republican party has played ducks and drakes with its opportunities, and it will not require much more to reduce its tremendous majorities to nothing. —Newark Call.

A story was recently told of how a preacher tested the effect of the hard times upon his congregation. At the conclusion of one of his sermons he said: "Let everybody in the house who pay their debts stand up." Instantly every man woman and child, with one exception arose to their feet. He seated the crowd, and then said: "Let every man who is not paying his debts stand up." The exception noted, a care-worn, hungry-looking individual, clothed in his last summer suit, slowly assumed a perpendicular position, and leaned upon the back of the seat in front of him. "How is it, my friend," inquired the minister, "that you are the only man in this large congregation, who is unable to meet his obligations?" "I publish a newspaper," he meekly replied, "and my brethren here, who have just stood up, are my subscribers, and—" "Let us pray," exclaimed the minister.—Independent Herald.

If there is anything that will make Plainfield people happy, it is the announcement that the sewers will soon be completed, and thus obviate the necessity of performing acrobatic feats in perambulating about the public thoroughfares. Mr. Frost's announcement is good news.

The newspaper is the familiar of all men, of all degrees, of all occupations. If it teaches it teaches imperceptibly. It has no pompous gown or scholastic rod to abash or control, but prepares itself and is admitted freely and at once to a world-wide intimacy with all kinds and conditions of people.—Hunt.

No case of mystery so puzzling has come to Plainfield's attention in a long time as the disappearance of Miss Clark. As others look on with a morbid curiosity let them think for a moment what a strain and worry it must be for those who are related to the unfortunate missing lady. It is an extremely sad case.

The "good road" movement throughout the country has attracted general attention to the subject of wide tires, and recent scientific tests have been made which show great economical advantage in the use of such tires. Electricity is relieving city horse of drudgery, and the agricultural journals are looking forward to the time when electric feed wires will reach out to the farms to do the pumping, threshing, churning, chopping, lighting and eventually the ploughing and hoeing. Already an electric plough has been tested in Germany and is found to perform its work well, though not quite so cheaply, in the first experiment, as the man and horses. The farmer in the course of time will probably have the choice of getting his electric power from central stations, neighboring streams or wind mills. When this happens it is likely that there will be a return drift of population from the cities to the conntry.—Exchange.

The Small Old Boy.

The small boy, who when asked his age, replied that judged by the fun he had had, he was about 100 years old, pretty accurately described the feeling of the large audience at the Academy last night. Lillian Kennedy made a decided hit, and the amusement that was crowded into three hours to unravel "A Midnight Frolic" was enough for two nights; and all the rolls essayed by Miss Kennedy and the strong support, was equally charming and successful. WORK DOWN IN THE SLUMS.

REAL LIFE IN CHINATOWN AS FOUND BY THE RESCUE BAND.

Many Touching Incidents of How the Lower Classes are Saved From a Degrading and Miserable Death There.

Real life in the Chinatown of New York is a subject of much interest to everyone and when one can hear it described by a person thoroughly acquainted with it there is a fascination that is pleasant.

Such was the case last Monday when Frank W. Morse, of East Sixth street, addressed the Christian Endeavor Society of Trinity Reformed church. Mr. Morse is Superintendent of the Garwood Land Improvement Company, but is also a member of the New York Rescue Band, a society that centres its efforts in Chinatown, and Mr. Morse finds time to do much in this field of labor. In part Mr. Morse spoke as follows:

It is true that "one half of the world doesn't know how the other half live." Those of us here who live in quite peaceful homes with pleasant surroundings probably don't know how others who have not these luxuries live. In Chinatown one can see every character in life. The dives, dens, Joss houses, all have their inmates and the Rescue Band, composed of people from New York, Brooklyn and New Jersey, who have quarters at 17 Doyer street, preach the Gospel of Christ faithfully every night. Then bands are formed who go into the men's lodging houses and reading rooms to sing Gospel songs, offer prayers and work with the unsaved.

Then there is a branch known as the street work, and a most important one it is, going in the streets to pursuade the unsaved to attend meetings.

They often go into slums, dives and holes of Chinatown, starting at nine o'clock in the evening and stopping anywhere between two and four o'clock in the morning. The members take turns in leading meetings. Mr. Morse during his talk related many touching incidents in regard to the conversion of the unsaved.

One very pathetic was the conversion of the man known as "Frenchy, No. 2." He told how this man came to the mission in a degraded low state under the influence of liquor, and how it was found necessary to eject him on account of the disturbance he made. But some of the testimonies he had heard, touched him and he was saved miraculously. Mr. Morse also told in an interesting manner of the conversion of fallen women, and how they lived in rooms, 8x12, in tenement houses. There is a home on Fourteenth street where the sick are cared for and if they die they are given a decent burial. His remarks came to a close by offering an impressive prayer.

Previous to Mr. Morse's talk a beautiful vocal duet. "Some other Mother's Child," was rendered by Mrs. Frank Woodruff, Miss Grace Berg and Miss Mary Berg was the accompanist, and at the close Mrs. Woodruff sang "Two Lifes."

The service closed with prayer by President F. E. Smith, the singing of "Jesus Saviour Pilot Me" and the Mizpah benediction.

Resolutions of Condolence.

At a regular meeting of Zephyr Hook and Ladder Company No. 1, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Whereas, In view of the loss we have sustained by the decease of our friend and brother fireman, William H. Blimm, and of the still heavier loss sustained by those who were nearest and dearest to him; therefore be it

Resolved, That it is but a just tribute to the memory of the departed to say that in regretting his removal from our midst we mourn for one who was in every way worthy of our respect and regard.

Resolved, That we sincerely condole with the family of the deceased in the dispensation with which it has pleased Divine Providence to afflict them, and commend them for consolation to Him who orders all things for the best and whose chastisements are meant in mercy.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the minutes of the company, and a copy thereof be transmitted to the family of our deceased brother and to each of the daily papers.

Want to Go Up the Hudson.

Justice Newcorn has been deputized by the joint committee from the A. O. U. W. Lodges to see H. P. Baldwin of the Central railroad company and the steamboat companies as to what rates and arrangements can be made for an excursion up the Hudson. He will report Friday night at the meeting.

Fulfilling His Contract.

Contractor Marsden is fulfilling his contract, notwithstanding the item published in last night's Courier-News in regard to the complaint made that he is not using water to settle the dirt. His contract says he must either use water or use the method of ramming. As there is no water in that locality it is plain enough to see that he cannot use it.

BONNER'S POOR PLAYING.

He is Said to be Putting Up a Very Poor Game.

The Wilkesbarre correspondent of the Sporting Life has this to say about a former Plainfield ball player:

Owing to the criticism of the local press of Dorscher's course in the game of Thursday, August 1st, the gentleman felt himself so aggrieved that he would not umpire the game on August 2d. As a consequence Shannon allowed himself to be seduced into weakening the team by umpiring the game with Mat Kilroy. That necessitated the putting of Bonner at second base, where he gave a first-class exhibition of wretched ball playing. Bonner's poor work manifests itself in the utter demoralization of the team when he plays. Of course it is a nice thing for Bonner to have him located here where he is with his family, but that won't win games. And as the winning of games is the primary object of the club it is difficult to understand what they want with the ex-Leaguer. The argument is made that Bonner's poor work is due to lack of practice; that he does not participate in enough games to give him practice. He might, perhaps, get what practice he requires by having a small boy to throw grounder and pop-flies for him, as he has developed into a confirmed fumbler.

GREEN WON'T REFORM.

Is Now Sojourning in the Somerset County Jail for His Acts.

Joseph Green, who was arrested yesterday for creating a disturbance at Washingtonville Sunday morning, could not secure bail and in the afternoon was taken to Somerville to await the action of the Grand Jury. It now appears that before Green and his two companions went to Washingtonville they had a fight on Somerset street near Greenbrook road, in which several others were engaged. It is said that they were trying to do up a Swede for some reason or other, when some neighbors appeared and quelled the disturbance. The three then went to the mountains and caused the disturbance as reported in The Daily Press of yesterday. The two young men who were with Green have not been captured as yet.

In connection with the above it might be stated that Green was employed by H. J. Martin, the blacksmith, who did all in his power to assist and help him, but his efforts failed.

ANNA INDULGES AGAIN.

A Netherwood Woman Makes a Spectacle of Herself Last Night.

Mrs. Anna Nolan, of Netherwood, who needs no introduction to a Plainfield audience, was very much in evidence at the North avenue railroad station last night between nine and ten o'clock.

As usual, Anna took an overdose of fire water which went to her head. Her screams attracted the attention of about 1?0 people.

When Policeman Flanagan reached the station he found her in one corner of the waiting room in the attitude of prayer. The appearence of an officer brought forth a volley of the vilest sort of language. Policeman Flanagan arrested her and with the assistance of night baggage master Joe Case took her to the rookery.

This morning President See, of the City Council, held court and sentenced her to sixty days in the county jail. She was taken to Elizabeth this afternoon.

MUST PAY TAXES

Elizabeth's Comptroller Arrests Delinquents at the Singer Works.

Comptroller Carlton, of Elizabeth, has decided to take vigorous measures to collect unpaid personal taxes. Yesterday his deputies raided the Singer Machine Works and arrested a large number there who owe one and two years' taxes. There are 300 delinquents in the Singer Works alone, and the raid will be kept up until all pay or go to jail.

Those arrested yesterday were released on the officials of the works agreeing to deduct the amount of the tax from the men's wages next Saturday night and pay the money over to the Comptroller's deputies. Other factories will also be visited.

ALL WERE AT THE CONCERT.

A COSMOPOLITAN CROWD CONGREGATE TO HEAR MUSIC.

The First of the Series of Recitals Prove a Popular Success.—Nearby Houses Were Prettily Decorated.

"It's warm, do you know it?" remarked the Tired Young Man, as he wiped the perspiration from the inside of his straw hat, and leaned up against the iron fence at the corner of La Grande avenue and Franklin place on Saturday evening. Just then the band struck up the inspiring Honeymoon March, and the Lively Young Lady, who stood beside him, unconsciously kept time to it. "I know it" she replied, "but I love to listen to music out of doors at night, and it's much nicer than staying at home. Who did you say furnished this open air concert?"

"Councilman Frost," drawled out her companion. "He had those extra electric lights put up in the square, and got Guttman's band to supply the music." Just then a party of cyclists rode up and dismounted in front of the couple. The Lively Young Lady recognized her brother among them, and called to him.

"Come on over her, you can't stay in the middle of the road, the policeman there won't let you. Put your wheel against the curb like all the rest." And then the party of riders joined the rest of their fellow-cyclists who were stretched all along the sides of the adjoining streets.

"You poor boy," exclaimed the sister, "what's the matter?" as the wheelman put his handkerchief about his neck. "I wanted to go calling" he answered, "but my collar is all melted down, and look, here comes the Rapid Young Man wearing a stand-up collar on this hot night."

The last strains of the Honeymoon March had died away, and the musicians mopped their heads preparatory to starting the next selection. The five corners were all crowded, and the number kept rapidly increasing. Just then the Timid Young Lady and her father, the Cross Old Man, appeared on the scene.

"I'm not coming out with you again on a night like this," he growled, "There is nothing left of my shirt-front, and the little boys in the crowd keep running into me all the time; they should not be allowed to attend these concerts."

"Oh, papa," exclaimed the Timid Young Lady, "don't get angry. Let's walk up here out of the crowd and see the decorations. Whose houses are they?" she asked of the cycling brother who stood nearby.

"Why, let's see," he said, as he tried not to be upset by a crowd of boys who kept chasing around through the throng of listeners, "Mrs. Depew lives on the corner, and has those Japanese lanterns hung from the trees and piazza. That large house next door, with the brilliantly lighted piazza, is where Mr. Marsh lives, and the next one, with the lanterns hung over the front lawn and the large party on the piazza, is the residence of Mr. Morse."

"That pale light on the houses makes them look like immense hotels," said the Lively Young Lady. "I hope some of the rest of the people living around here will decorate next time, for the effect is certainly very beautiful."

And still the assemblage grew in numbers with those who came to listen to the music, and swelter in the heat of one of the warmest evenings in August. The police kept the streets and lawns clear, but Franklin square was otherwise completely surrounded by the listening throng, while the streets leading to it were lined for some distance.

"Just look at the people on the piazza of that empty house," said the Cross Old man, indignantly. "That's the house of George Wharton Edwards, the great artist," explained the obliging young cyclist. "He's away for the summer."

But there were others at this open air concert besides this party. There was the factory girl, in her holiday dress, who sat along the edge of the streets with her beau, and where they murmured sweet nothings to each other, as the band alternately played and thought how warm it was. Then the boys and girls were out in full force and flirted to their heart's content.

When the concert was about half concluded, some one asked that the Honeymoon March be played again. The request was granted, and afterwards that popular air was played for the third time, and every time it called forth loud applause, more than could be expected on such a night.

All of the selections were well rendered, while several of them were so heartily applauded that the band courteously repeated them.

The concert was a success from every point of view, except that in the direction of the thermometer. And everybody, including the Cross Old Man, gave Councilman Frost a hearty vote of thanks in their minds, as they took their various ways toward home or the nearest soda-water fountain.

It did not take long for the crowd to disperse, and as the Lively Young Lady and the Tired Young Man sat drinking ice cream soda, the young man raised up energy enough to say, "Let's go next Saturday, if it don't rain?" and his fair companion murmured, as she finished her ice cream, "I shall be pleased to go if you will take me."

And he is going to take her.

GREEN IN MORE TROUBLE.

Breaks Windows and Shoots off Guns—Held for Grand Jury.

Again Joseph Green is in trouble and this time it is likely to go hard with him. His wife has been stopping for a few days at the boarding house of David Robinson in Washingtonville. Joseph heard of it and he became angered. Saturday night he and two friends were at Hipp's saloon drinking rather heavily.

Green decided to go to Robinson's house and take his wife away. The two friends went with him. It was about two o'clock Sunday morning when they reached the place and approaching the house broke in a window and tore the sash out. At the same time a revolver was dischaged several times. The inmates were much frightened, but succeeded in chasing the midnight trespassers away.

As soon as possible, Constable G. N. Stewart, of the township, secured a warrant on complaint of Robinson and captured Green. He was brought to the borough lock-up.

This morning Justice Crosley gave a hearing and placed him under $200 bail to await the action of the Grand Jury. The other two men are known and will be arrested today. It is not likely that Green will secure bail. He was placed in the cell after the hearing.

HONAN TALKED TOO MUCH.

Chief Grant Has a Little Spat With the Sewer Man.

W. Arthur, a contractor and builder, with his horse and wagon attempted to drive through Washington street to Front this morning. When he reached Front street he found that thoroughfare closed. He got out of the wagon and let down the board that was resting on some pipe.

Harry Honan saw the affair and at once objected to the man driving through. Arthur was in such a position that he could not go back with his horse and wagon, but Honan would not let him pass. He then sought Chief Grant who went to the place and told Arthur and the man to go through. The Chief and Honan had some words, whereupon the former told the latter to appear before Judge Coddington at nine o'clock which he did.

The matter was then settled satisfactorily.

CAME TOGETHER.

A Separation by Earthly Law and Another by Heavenly Law.

Two letters came to the office of Lawyer Harry C. Runyon on Friday evening. One stated that the divorce case brought by his client, Mrs. J. B. Heath, had been granted by the Court of Chancery, and the other told of the death of the defendant, James B., formerly of this city, at the Bellevue hospital, where he had been removed from the City hospital on Blackwell's Island, a week before his death.

Mrs. Heath lives in this city with her four-year-old little boy.

ON THE GREAT CONVENTION.

DR. C. R. BARNES TALKS ABOUT THE CATHOLIC MOVEMENT.

Their Meeting in New York at This Time Was a Significant—Bound to be a Great Power for Temperance.

Rev. Dr. C. R. Barnes, of the First M. E. church, Sunday preached from the subject, "The Late Catholic Total Abstinence Convention," and said in part:

A remarkable event occurred in New York, last week, which deserves more than a passing notice. Indeed, I am persuaded that had it taken place at any other time than midsummer, it would have been today the theme of many a sermon. That to which I refer is the twenty-fifth annual convention of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union of America.

This convention and its deliverances must be taken as, at least, semi-official; being held in the Cathedral under the sanction of the Archbishop, with the Pontifical Mass solemnized by Monsignor Satolli, the Apostolic delegate.

What makes it more significant, was its coming while the city was in a ferment because some of its officials are making earnest efforts to enforce the laws, and that against the powerful rum power. To see the Church, more largely represented among the saloon keepers than any other, stamping the traffic with its deserved infamy, is certainly very refreshing.

Three vital subjects were discussed, and most positive declarations made respecting them, either by the officers of the Union or by its invited speakers: "The Saloon," "The Enforcement of the Law," and "The Observance of the Sabbath." In addition, those who favor a compromise with the degraded notions of freedom and immorality brought to our shores from other lands, were roundly scored.

I propose to give you some of these declarations, and ask you to carefully consider them, and see if in them there are not indications of a great advance promised in the fight for our better principles.

THE SALOON DENOUNCED.

Rev. J. M. Cleary, President of the Union spoke as follows:

Our Church has again and again voiced its convictions in no uncertain terms. There can be no affiliation between the Church and the saloon. The Church will not, and cannot, permit the drinking den to flourish beneath the shadow of the consecrated house of prayer. No man cannot be a good Catholic, a faithful and docile child of the Church, and continue in the "unbecoming business" of conducting a liquor saloon.

The saloon is the great and unrivalled barrier that impedes the poor man's progress to independence and plenty. Into the coffers of the American saloon the wage-earners of the country generously pour a billion of dollars a year. American opportunities are wasted because of the maddening curse of drink. Destitution and want in this country, in the vast majority of instances, are the result of profligate patronage of the saloon-keeper's business. If so many of the toilers of the land annually camp in the wilderness of great tenement structures and drag out their lives in hopeless poverty, the lamentable fact is, to an alarming extent, the result of paying a too generous tribute to the liquor seller's trade.

CHILDHOOD BLIGHTED BY THE SALOON.

With our ever-increasing advantages of education and mental culture, with the schoolhouse within sight of every man's door, anxiously inviting all the children of men to come and drink at the fountains of knowledge, there should not be a poor man's child in all this our land cursed with the darkness of ignorance were it not for the beastliness of intemperance that brutalizes the lives of the poor. Public and private munificence has embellished every city in the land with well-stocked public libraries, placed at the disposal of every lover of knowledge. The saloon and the desolating traffic upon which it thrives prevent a door for learning from being planted in the hearts of the children of toil. How blessed it would be if the feet of the laborer's child were trained to the way that leads to the free public library, instead of treading the desolate path that leads from the liquor den to the inviting abode into which generosity toward the saloon forces the unfortunate man to shelter his wretched family.

Remember that these are not the words of some fanatical ignoramus, who is led away by a hobby, nor the misled lecturer, but a priest of the Church, whose life is devoted to the service of his fellow-men; and who, doubtless, has had many opportunities of proving all and even more than he has stated.

ENFORCEMENT OF LAW.

Mr. Roosevelt, President of the Police Board said:

The Board of which I have the honor of being a member stand squarely on the platform of the enforcement of the laws of the land. We hold that our duty is to enforce the law impartially and without fear or favor. We have not revived any obsolete law. We have merely taken a law which was always alive against the man who had not wealth or political influence, and we have enforced it with rigid impartiality against all law-breakers, rich and poor, great and small.

You all know the clamor that our action caused. At first we were met on every hand with the statement that we could not enforce the law. The answer is this—that so far, at least, we have enforced it. Never in the memory of any man now living have the saloons been closed as we have closed them.

We are Americans, all of us; we glory in the name; we challenge as our own the spirit of Americanism; and we recognize as the first and most vital element of that spirit the love of orderly liberty. No greater harm can be done any community than to teach it the spirit of defiance of law; and no greater wrong can be perpetrated by any legislative body than by putting on the statute book laws which are not intended to be executed in good faith.

These sturdy sentiments were loudly applauded, giving a great contrast to the hisses which followed the sentiments expressed by Senator O'Sullivan, who attacked the Puritan Sabbath and the efforts of the police to enforce the Sabbath laws.

We have come to a trying period in the history of our country when lawmakers will unblushingly lecture public officers for enforcing the laws which they have made. The sublimity of impudence is reached when legislators will plead for tolerance of lawlessness. And it is a very encouraging factor in the problem to hear men in office speak as he did, and to have him applauded by the representatives of one of the greatest churches of the land. When Rome shall insist upon the due observance of all righteous laws, she does credit to herself, and brightens the hopes of victory.

All over the land, in family, in communities, in the churches, schools, business, in politics and trade, we need to insist upon the law-abiding spirit. All who have the ear of the public should reiterate the declaration of Mr. Roosevelt, "No greater harm can be done any community than to teach it the spirit of defiance of law."

Every loyal heart must gladly respond to the sentiment expressed by Father Cleary:

We Catholic Americans have special public duties to perform. We owe it to ouselves, as loyal lovers of our country, that the vile and degrading customs brought to us from other lands shall not be permitted to flourish on this fair soil. We owe it to the Church of God, our spiritual mother, that her fair and honored name shall not be sullied by the vices of her unworthy children, without loud and earnest protest from indignant hearts, as valorous champions of the nursing mother of our enlightened civilization.

OBSERVANCE OF THE SABBATH.

On this point, the deliverances were as clear as on others. God in Revelation and Nature has told us to remember the Sabbath; and whether we agree or disagree as to keeping the First or Seventh day of the week, it should be our great effort to see that all men have opportunity to worship and rest.

President Murray of the Excise Board spoke as follows respecting the Sabbath:

It looks as if there would be a division of parties in this State, but upon a different issue. It will be: Shall the Sunday be observed as a holy day, or shall the laws be changed so as to make a holiday of Sunday? There is but one course for those who make claim to American principles, and that is, let the law remain as it is, so far as it relates to Sunday closing.

When the liquor dealers get control of the State and County Government we look for a reorganization of the Police and Excise departments on a very liberal basis, and not upon so-called Puritanical principles, as they say they are at present. And when they are engaged in the work of reorganizing the Legislature on more liberal principles they propose to amend one of the Ten Commandments that reads: "Keep Holy the Sabbath Day" so that it will read: "Keep Holy the Sabbath Day just a little bit, not enough to interfere with the poor man getting all the liquor he wants, providing he has got the cash."

After him Father Cleary delivered sledgehammer blows in favor of the Holy Day; saying:

We know from experience which no amount of sophistry can set aside that the saloon is the foulest and most dangerous foe of both our Church and country, and as Catholics and Americans we do not propose to submit to the degradation which we should suffer if the customs of abroad should take hold of our country. The best part of the American public has set its face against the American saloon and the violation of the sanctity of the American Sunday, and America will never submit to the degradation of being dominated over by liquor sellers. (Cheers.)

Bishop Kane, President of Washington University entered into an eloquent denunciation of the continental Sunday and the social customs which prevailed there, which, he said, were surely sapping the foundations of virtue and patriotism in the Old World. He concluded by hoping that the American people would forever keep from such contamination and uphold the sanctity of its Sabbath Day.

The ears of time-servers, who are ready to sacrifice Liberty and Morality for personal gain must have tingled when they heard these ringing words of Father Cleary:

People who had never known the meaning of human freedom until their feet touched American soil, who had never dared in the land of their birth to clamor for personal liberty, for they had not enjoyed the privilege of freely fleeing from the chains that fettered them, began to set up in this, their refuge from thraldom, new ideas of individual freedom, which proved to be as inconsistent as they were un-American, for they contemplated only the personal privilege of doing as pleased them best, regardless of the hallowed traditions and the cherished rights of the people who gave them shelter and a home.

We are not to be ruled by the customs of other lands; the sound judgment of the great American public is amply competent to regulate its own customs, in accordance with the best interests of our country.

Such is the gist of the principles and sentiments freely spoken at this convention. As a Methodist, every member of which Church is a pledged total abstainer from all alcoholic liquor as a beverage, I can but rejoice that in the Roman Catholic Church is a Total Abstinence Society numbering over 65,000; nor would I fail to wish them God-speed.

Let us see to it that in our lot we are doing what we may to uphold Temperance, Law and the Sabbath.

In our own city today might have been seen those alone on pleasure bent, speeding their way through our streets, unmindful of the hour or act of worship.

It is very unfortunate that we do not lay aside our own inclinations, and unite in a determined, continuous effort to bring about the golden age of Temperance, Law and Religion.

I should greatly dislike in any way to be one of those who should contribute to any lax sentiment respecting the laws of Day of God.

MR. HONAN'S SIDE.

He Says That The Courier-News Story Was Entirely Wrong.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—

Seeing in yesterday's Courier-News a statement of a little difficulty between myself and Chief of Police Grant, and as they only printed one side of the argument, I take this means of setting myself right before the public.

The driver of the team in question instead of coming up Washington street, came down Front street, and taking down the barricade drove through and was stopped at Washington street with my orders, and he became abusive and was not allowed to pass through. He then went after the police, and brought Chief Grant. The chief, without consulting me or any one else as to the cause of the trouble, took down the barricade and ordered the man to go through, and I refused to let him pass as he had been very abusive to myself and foreman. The chief, seeing that he was in the wrong, and not knowing how to hide his chagrin, began to upbraid me and used language unbecoming an officer of your city, for which there are several witnesses as proof, and as a last resort threatened me with arrest. I asked him what time I would appear, and he told me nine o'clock. I then ordered him off the street where he was interfering with me and my workmen. When I went to the hearing, and threatened to enter complaint against him, he said he did want any sentence imposed, and if I had been guilty of any offense, I do not think the law would have been so easily satisfied.

Hoping that I have not taken too much of your valuable space, and wishing to stand right in the minds of the people of the city of Plainfield.

I am yours respectfully,

Harry W. Honan,
308 West Third street.

Old Friends Meet.

A pleasant coincident in connection with the visit of Rev. Isaac P. Brokaw, D. D., of Freehold, to Plainfield on Sunday, was the meeting of Mrs. Robert Clark and George L. VanEmburgh whose guest he was while here. When Mr. Brokaw was pastor of Trinity church in Newark several years ago Mrs. Clark was the organist and Mr. VanEmburgh was precentor. The meeting was a most enjoyable one, as they talked over bygone days. Mr. Brokaw preached in Trinity church on Sunday.

WANTS KEAN TO GET OUT.

Silas D. Drake Writes Bitterly Against the Ex-Congressman.

Silas D. Drake, of Elizabeth, in a letter published in yesterday morning's World waxes wroth about the Gubernatorial candidacy of John Kean, and so many startling statements and propositions are made that it is given below:

Permit me to use your valuable columns to lay before the Republicans of New Jersey a weighty question. The Republicans were successful at the polls in the last election, and they were encouraged, with the idea that they can elect their candidate for Governor in November. There would be no question on that point if a proper man is nominated. John Kean is prominently mentioned as a candidate, and it is to him I seek to give a few pointers. He is anxious for the nomination because he wants to be Governor. Foster M. Voorhees is willing to be a candidate because the people—the rank and file—want him to be Governor. Kean was born with a silver spoon in his mouth, and Voorhees is brainy, self-made.

My advice to Mr. Kean is to withdraw his name and permit a united delegation from Union county to go to Trenton for Voorhees. If Kean persists in standing as a candidate it will jeopardize the prospects of the Republicans electing any candidate. In addition to many having asked Mr. Kean to withdraw his name before too late, I would suggest that a public meeting be held in the Drake opera house, and let me ask him a few questions, and let a vote be taken then and there, and then he will be satisfied that he is not wanted.

I would ask him did he recommend an old soldier as postmaster at Elizabeth when he had an opportunity? How many new industries has he paralyzed and scooped in; and being identified in business solely in corporations, how could he serve the people when corporations wanted anything? In conclusion, in case he sees some of the delegates and should get the nomination, I will wager $500 stock of the Drake Opera House against $500 of the Lyceum Theatre stock he holds that his own home—Union township, that gave a Republican majority last year—will give a Democratic majority; and $1,000 more of same stock against his that he will not be elected Governor even though he gets the nomination. Take my advice and withdraw, and do not imperil the Republican party at this election when a brainy, self-made man like Voorhees can be elected.

The Coming Games.

The members of the Y. M. L. of Hope chapel who are going to take part in the outdoor sports with the Y. M. A. of Monroe Avenue chapel, are practicing daily and the runners are running over the course every night, and some members are showing some remarkable speed. Captain Head of the tug-of-war-team is confident of his team winning. John Cose has been appointed field captain.

The games are going to take place Saturday afternoon, August 31st, at Maltby's driving park, if it can be secured, and a large crowd is expected to be present. The Hope chape colors are blue and gold.

ONE KIND OF MODELS.

Their Business is to Display Good Clothes.

There are hundreds of young women in New York who make their living as models; one authority says that there are more than a thousand; which estimate leads to the conclusion that good looks are not scarce on the island of Manhattan. for these young women owe success entirely to their fine physique. The models here alluded to are not those who sit to artists, and whose charms are transferred to canvas, but those who try on suits, silk waists, jackets, cloaks and capes for the benefit of the customers in the stores and dressmaking establishments.

The more exclusive and expensive of the uptown women's tailors all employ models to display their gowns. The best firms in the shopping districts have them, but the great majority of models find occupation in the big wholesale houses in middle and lower Broadway, a number of firms in that vicinity employing as many as a dozen the whole year round. The average downtown model is paid from $12 to $15 a week, but an unusually pleasing subject may command as high as $18. Those in the big retail establishments who combine the office of a model with that of a saleswoman get $20.

The available model must measure thirty-six inches about the bust and twenty-three or twenty-four around the waist, her height being in proportion, the trying on of gowns and cloaks for women built on a less liberal plan being intrusted to the misses' models; that is, to unformed girls fourteen or fifteen years old.

"I think our work is much to be preferred to that of the ordinary salesgirls," said a handsome model of the brunette type, employed in a large suit and cloak house in Broadway, a concern which is said to be the largest of its kind in the world. "Our hours are shorter, and for months at a time there is scarcely anything to do. Of course the very busy months are busy indeed, but we are treated with the greatest respect, and we always get of at half past 5 the year round. Some of the firms in town lay off many of their models as soon as business gets slack, but this firm never does; our salary goes on just the same, whether there is much or nothing doing. We are always certain of our vacation of two weeks, and certain of our pay during that time. Of course, if a girl wants a longer vacation she has to pay for the extra time."

"Do you have to dress in any prescribed style?" inquired one interested in the subject.

"Oh, yes! We are required to dress in black; all of us; just a simple, tight-fitting waist, and a good style, plain skirt. You mustn't judge of our uniform by the way we look this morning," she added, glancing at her companion. "But as there is very little doing this month, we are permitted to wear cotton waists, they being cooler and more convenient," and she adjusted a stud in her blue-striped shirt waist. "August is our busy time," she continued, "and we will be busier than ever this year on account of so many of the dry-goods houses beginning to deal in furs."

"You try on the furs and cloaks?"

"Yes, and that is warm and tiresome work when the thermometer is in the nineties."

"How long do you have to keep the garments on?"

"Oh, sometimes the buyer does not know just what he wants and we must await his decision, or try a number of garments to see how he likes them: then again, in ten minutes a man will buy a quantity of goods, and we will be released. In the winter, in February, when everybody is cloaked up and wearing heavy clothing, we adopt tight-fitting jerseys and try on thin, unlined summer costumes for the next season's trade. Trying on the thin things in winter, though, isn't as bad as cloaking up in heavy suits in summer."—New York Tribune.

Bryant's Early Pecuniary Rewards.

It is amusing to know how small were the pecuniary rewards of Bryant's literary labors, whatever may have been the fame they brought him. Two dollars a poem was the price that he named, and he seemed to be abundantly satisfied with the terms. A gentleman met him in New York many years after and said to him:

"I have just bought the earliest edition of your poems, and gave twenty dollars for it."

"More, by a long shot," replied the poet, "than I received for writing the whole work."—Century.

Circuses Will Skip This Town.

Oxford, N.Y., is bound to go down in the annals of circus history as the worst in the United States. A few days ago a wagon circus after liberal advertising by posters pitched its tents in this village, and although the band chariot made a tour through the streets not a person visited the circus during the afternoon or evening. The circus men say that they never before experienced such a chilly experience.

A Compromise.

It was in an absent-minded sort of way that she read the sign "Ice Cream."

"Oh, ah! ice cream," said he. "Did you ever read that there were deadly ptomaines in ice cream."

"Yes," she said, a little spitefully. "Did you ever read of the microbes in kissing?"

On reflection he concluded to compromise on a basis of present cream and future kisses.—Indianapolis Journal.

MRS. STANFORD'S JEWELS.

The Costly Collection to be Sold for Stanford University.

The statement that Mr. Leland Stanford is about to sell her marvelous collection of jewels has revived interest in these famous gems. Mrs. Stanford, on several occasions, either at White House receptions or State dinners, wore such elegant jewels that it was generally supposed that Washington had seen the best of them. But the reverse is the truth.

After the death of her son, Mrs. Stanford preferred not to wear jewels, and when she did so it was because of her husband's desire, and then she selected the simplest ones. The others reposed in the darkness of her banker's vaults and were never brought to this city.

There are few more choice or extensive collections of gems owned by the royal families of the Old World. Their value is variously estimated at from one to two millions of dollars.

Mr. Stanford bought four sets of diamonds for his wife when the valuables of Queen Isabella of Spain were sold in Paris, and he paid upwards of $600,000 for the four. One set is of the kind known as blue diamonds, as they emit violet rays by day. Another set has pink rays in its stones. The third set is of yellow diamonds, as yellow as topaz, and the fourth set is of flawless white stones. Each set has a tiara or necklace, pendant, brooch, earrings, from four to six bracelets and some finger rings, all of the same style of make and of corresponding stones.

In addition to these Mrs. Stanford has some genuine black diamonds, cut pear shaped, and numerous other diamond ornaments in a variety of styles. One necklace (not belonging to any of the sets above named) is valued at $100,000, and its pendants at $30,000. This was manufactured to order, and consists of large colored diamonds intermixed with small white stones, sapphires, rubbies, and emeralds, all of the purest water. A band of large yellow diamonds encircles the throat, each set in a smaller white stone. Beneath this band is placed a floriated design in small white diamonds and colored stones, extending in deep points. Between each of these points is suspended an immense yellow diamond, set in white diamonds and attached to the upper part of the necklace by a ruby, emerald, or sapphire. There are five of these pendants, the central one being the largest and having once figured in the collection of the Duke of Brunswick.

This magnificent ornament is accompanied by a comb, a brooch, and earrings to match, and the necklace itself can be converted into pins, hair ornaments, etc., while the upper row of diamonds can be worn as a necklace without the pendant and the pointed floriated band.

Mrs. Stanford has also over sixty diamond finger rings, and many more diamonds in monograms on books, purses and card cases.

But for the litigation by which the Stanford estate is now tied up $2,500,000 would have been available for immediate use in the Stanford University, and Mrs. Stanford will, it is stated, sell her jewels to meet the present emergency.

Uncle Sam's Money and Mails.

There were 189,576 miles of telegraph line in the country in 1892, carrying 739,105 miles of wire. The number of messages exceeded 62,000,000, or nearly as many as the people. The average charges per message was 31.6 cents, and the profits were enormous in and between the great cities, but elsewhere there was often a decided loss.

The Bell telephones in use numbered 512,477, with 265,546 miles of wire, 216,017 subscribers, $5,127,000 gross earnings, and $1,220,000 dividends for the parent Bell Telephone Company alone, and $80,000,000 capital for it and ten subsidiary companies, largely in franchise.

In 1891 there were 9,662 miles of street railway, and in 1892 there were 385 electric roads of all sorts, with a capital of $155,000,000, operating 3,980 miles of road.

The mail service in 1892 included 67,119 Post Offices, most of them petty, with 447,591 miles of post routes. The receipts were $71,000,000 and the expenses 76,000,000, the deficit thus being 5,000,000. The mail handled was 7,865,000,000 pieces, surpassing the record of any country, not excepting Great Britain.

The total amount of circulating media used in the United States in the year 1891 was $1,175,000,000, and that the amount in the Treasury would, if added, increase this to $2,014,000,000. The first amount, the money in circulation, consisted of $407,000,000 in gold, $59,000,000 in silver, and $58,000,000,000 in fractional silver. The balance was paper money.

The coinage in 1890 was $20,700,000 gold, $39,200,000 silver, and $1,400,000 minor silver pieces. The total amount of gold coin minted for the hundred year ending with 1892 was $1,582,000,000; of silver, $657,000,000; of minor coins, $24,000,000.

The national banks in 1891 numbered 3,677, with a capital of $967,400,000, and resources amounting to $3,213,000,000. The savings banks numbered 1,011, with 4,533,217 depositors; total deposits of 1,623,000,000, averaging $358 to each depositor, and total assets of $1,885,000,000.

MARRIED A NEW YORKER.

Rev. P. S. Gibson Tied a Pretty Nuptial Knot Last Night.

The marriage of Mrs. Mary Green, of this city, to Robert Ford, of New York, took place last night at 8:30 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Jones on West Second street. Rev. P. S. Gibson, pastor of the Mount Olive Baptist church, officiated.

The bridesmaid was Miss Mary Jones and the best man Wm. Burden. The bride wore a gown of lavender silk and the bridesmaid was gowned in white.

Only the immediate friends and relatives were present. Many valuable presents were received by Mr. and Mrs. Ford. They left on the 11:28 train for their future home in New York.

Lots of Fun.

B. T. Barnes and son, Malcomb Barnes, rode their wheels to Hank's pond, where the Plainfield boys are camping. Mr. Barnes says they are having lots of fun, but he doesn't believe they will ever get home with the horse that attempted to take them there.

Administrator Applied For.

Application was made before the Orphan's Court at New Brunswick, Tuesday, for a permanent administrator for the estate of Elizabeth Elliott, deceased, who was a re ident of Plainfield. The application was made by George W. DeMeza.

Two Experts.

Rolla O. Heikes, one of the first trap shooters of the country and holder of a number of championships, attended the August shoot of the New Jersey State Trap Shooters League on the Climax Gun Club's grounds yesterday and spent the evening with T. H. Keller, of East Front street, one of Plainfield's celebrated shots.

Union County Directory.

The new Union County Directory is being canvassed for, and will be out in about three weeks. It will include the cities of Rahway, Plainfield, Elizabeth, and the townships of Union county. It is published by Heidingsfeld & Mulholland, offices in New York and New Brunswick.

What the Daily Press said in reference to its being easy enough for an investigating committee to convict a man, while the court would find it very difficult, is exemplified in the acquital of Colonel Van Cleef. The political complexion of the jury was nine Republicans and three Democrats.

Secretary of State Kelsey is preparing a report of New Jersey's population. The returns for each census of 1895 are all in and it is expected the work of revision and tabulation will be finished by October 1st. It is estimated that the census will show a population or more than 1,600,000, the gain being mostly in the larger cities. In 1890 when the last census was taken, the population was 1,444,933.

Politics in the far west are rapidly becoming permeated with feminity. The Occident has evidently made up its mind to tackle the woman officeholder, and, as a consequence, the woman officeholder is humming. If the east doesn't make up its mind to follow suit before long the nation's two parties will represent gender rather than principle. This conclusion is drawn from present western indications. Kansas, perhaps, boast the most women officeholders. The political appointment oftenest open to the women of that State is county superintendent of public schools. There has not been a time during the past fifteen years when there were not from ten to twenty women filling this position in various counties in the State. At present nineteen women are incumbents of the place. The latest political office thrown open to women is that of register of deeds in Dickinson county. Colorado is not far behind Kansas. An important office held by a woman in that State is the commissioner of dairy inspection. The secretary of Colorado's board of horticulture is also a woman. There are seven women upon Denver's school board, and a woman holds the office of superintendent of public instruction. Wyoming and North Dakota each have women in prominent public office. Miss Estelle Reel, superintendent of public instruction for the former State, is one of the three women in the United States who have been honored by an election to State office.—Evening Sun.

Twenty-five Cents a Bottle.

AFTER THE TRUNK.

Martin Did Not Recognize Any of the Wagons.

"The Case of the Stolen Trunk" would make a good title for another adventure of Sherlock Holmes, buut unless Sherlock Holmes or some other expert appears, it seems very likely that the trunk stolen from the station will never be found. Yesterday Chief of Police Grant and Constable Rymar, of Mount Bethel, went to Berkeley Heights, accompanied by Ed Martin, to see if Martin could recognize any of the vehicles in that place as the one which carted away the missing trunk. The search proved fruitless, but the police have not given up the chase and hope to get it yet.

The Republican State convention will be held at Trenton on September 19th. There will be 842 delegates, forty-two of whom will hail from Union county, and seventeen from Somerset county.

The Trenton Times, changed in form, with a new dress of type, and reduced in price to one cent, made its appearance yesterday. It looks well and ought to prosper well.

Editor Rollinson, of the Rahway Advocote, is real mean when he attempts to jolly the Courier-News editor by telling people that he presides with "such ability, dignity and grace."

While respectable citizens are being waylaid and robbed in the vicinity of Rahway and New Brunswick, Plainfield people are resting in peace and security so far as any such bold crimes are concerned.

The question propounded by a correspondent in another column as to just where or what the Courier-News editor is, opens up an interesting field of discussion. It is very much doubted whether or not the Courier-News editor himself knows where he is at, much less other people.

Great conventions for the moral and religious welfare of the people have been numerously held during the past few weeks, and it is a gratifying sight to see the multitude of young members of the Catholic Total Abstinence Union in convention in New York. They are a working force for the principles for which they stand that is something powerful.

Read you! Read you! You men of the hirsute adornments. The Daily Press today officially publishes the ordinance "relating to the morals, peace and good order of the city of Plainfield." A barber receives ten cents for removing the growth of hair upon one's face, and now if he performs the labor on Sunday he may have to pay a fine of $25. Let the barber have a rest on Sunday. He deserves it.

The Rahway Advocate calls on the Courier-News editor to open up the columns of his "fearless, independent" paper for the "sentiment that animates the hearts of the rank and file of Plainfield's sturdy Republicans," which Editor Rollinson says is for Foster Voorhees for the Gubernatorial nomination. Will the "fearless, independent" editor, who presides "with such ability, dignity and grace," (oh what taffy) do it? Not while John Kean is in the field.

Wherever free band concerts have been given they have proved a popular feature, and the announcement that Plainfielders may now have an opportunity of enjoying them, is something pleasant for The Daily Press to record. But with the congratulations a word of advice may not come amiss. The concerts will naturally attract a large crowd, and a crowd does not always act in a manner like an individual. The residents in the section of the city where the concerts are to be held take particular pride in having well-kept lawns, and it is hoped that the crowd will be just as careful in not treading on them as any well-mannered individual would be.

Whatever idea the young girls who practice "street-mashing" may entertain, it may be set down as a certainty that when a respectable young man desires the acquaintance of one who may some time be his wife, he does not go out on the street and seek her acquaintance through a flirtation. The flirt, no matter how innocent her intentions may be, is the last one he would select as a companion. He desires purity without and above suspicion. All young girls who engage in this sort of pastime should bear in mind that they not only endanger their reputation and leave a stain on their good names, but their names become by-words among those with whom they flirt, to be handed about in saloons, on the street corners, and in the low-down unholy places of the town, fastening on their otherwise fair, respectable and honored names a stigma or stain that will follow them years after they have seen their folly and attempt to mend their way.—Manasquan News.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

MOTHERS! Do You Know that Paregoric, Bateman's Drops, Godfrey's Cordial, many so-called Soothing Syrups, and most remedies for children are composed of opium or morphine?

Do You Know that opium and morphine are stupefying narcotic poisons?

Do You Know that in most countries druggists are not permitted to sell narcotics without labeling them poisons?

Do You Know that you should not permit any medicine to be given your child unless you or your physician know of what it is composed?

Do You Know that Castoria is a purely vegetable preparation, and that a list of its ingredients is published with every bottle?

Do You Know that Castoria is the prescription of the famous Dr. Samuel Pitcher. That it has been in use for nearly thirty years, and that more Castoria is now sold than of all other remedies for children combined?

Do You Know that the Patent Office Department of the United States, and of other countries, have issued exclusive right to Dr. Pitcher and his assigns to use the word "Castoria" and its formula, and that to imitate them is a state prison offense?

Do You Know that one of the reasons for granting this government protection was because Castoria had been proven to be absolutely harmless?

Do You Know that 35 average doses of Castoria are furnished for 35 cents, or one cent a dose?

Do You Know that when possessed of this perfect preparation, your children may be kept well, and that you may have unbroken rest?

Well, these things are worth knowing. They are facts.

The fac-simile signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. is on every wrapper.

JOE MILLER'S TRILBY COMPANY.

An Amusement Enterprise Fostered by a Former Plainfielder.

J. B. Miller, formerly of Plainfield, but now of the Elm House, on Grand street, Elizabeth, has in rehearsal a farce comedy entitled "Trilby up to Date," with seventy-five people in the cast, headed by Mrs. J. B. Miller, nee May Winchester, the well known soprano. The company will be under the management and direction of J. E. Fisher and Mr. Miller. The famous Hungarian Band, eighteen in number, will compose part of the company. A full dress rehearsal will be given Monday evening at Syracuse. A number of Mr. Miller's Elizabeth friends have decided to attend, and have arranged for a special car.

A Chance to See the South.

The dedication of the Chickamauga-Chattanooga National Park takes place September 19th and 20th. A rate of one cent a mile for the round trip has been made by the southern lines. As yet the trunk lines have not made their rates. The round trip rate from Washington to Chattanooga will be $12.70, from Norfolk, $13. The Old Dominion Steamship Company have made a rate in connection with the Norfolk and Western Railroad, going down by Old Dominion steamer to Old Point Comfort, Norfolk and Roanoke to Chattanooga and returning all rail via Roanoke, Natural Bridge, Luray Caverns, Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia for $25, round trip. This is the lowest rate ever made to any southern point, and offers people in the east a chance to see a great deal of the country, including Old Point Comfort, and those wonders of nature, natural bridge and Luray caverns, for a very small sum of money.

A Reply to Critics.

Dr. Max Nordau writes a "Reply to My Critics" in the August number of The Century. His book on "Degeneration" has called out a large amount of simply abusive criticism, and while he pays his respect to such writers, he gives serious answers to several objections which have been urged against his theories. Dr. Nordau thinks that the present epidemic of hysteria and degeneration is due to the over-exertion of the last sixty years; and that, while it is not the first phenomenon of its kind, it is more dangerous than the previous ones because it has gained a far greater headway.

Former Plainfielder Killed in New York.

Among the dead found in the ruins of the building that collapsed at West Broadway and West Third street on Thursday was Michael Flynn, aged thirty-four, a plasterer, living at 84 Third avenue. Mr. Flynn was a resident of Plainfield several years ago and was well known here. He moved to New York where he had been engaged at his trade. He leaves a large family. The funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon from his late home. A few Plainfielders will attend.

For Sick Babies.

A number of little girls living in the borough will hold an ice cream festival at 32 Fairview avenue on Tuesday afternoon and evening, August 20th. The proceeds will go to the sick babies fund in New York.

FOOTPADS ABOUT RAHWAY.

A Peddler Attacked and Badly Injured at Colonia.

James McManus, as the result of his encounter with tramps, has been lying in a precarious condition all day yesterday in a barn at Colonia, a small station a mile south of Rahway. At five o'clock last evening an ambulance arrived from New Brunswick and McManus was taken to the hospital there. He is a peddler of hosiery and trinkets, and is well known in Union and Middlesex counties. His wife usually travels with him. He is a war veteran.

Just about dust McManus was passing along the edge of the woods when he saw a man among the trees ahead. McManus had had trouble with tramps before, and he turned and started to run. As he did so another man sprang out behind him and, drawing a pistol, fired three shots, none of them taking effect. The peddler was knocked down by a blow from behind and set upon by five tramps, who beat and kicked him into insensibility. They then took his pack and $7. They were seen and pursued, but made their escape in the woods.

McManus was carried into the barn, and it was not until today that medical attendance arrived. The beaten man recognized one of his assailants, the one who fired the shots, as an itinerant peddler who bears the nickname of "Whitey." He says he could identify the others if he saw them. McManus recently befriended "Whitey," and fed him when he was recovering from a prolonged debauch. "Whitey" was also recognized by a third person, whose name is withheld.

A LARGER GALLERY.

Pearson and Gayle Doing An Excellent Job For a Church.

The month of August is always selected by the churches as the month in which to make repairs. The Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church is now closed for two weeks to allow extensive alterations to be made. The galleries on the side will be widened six inches and at the back by eight feet, thus giving a much larger seating capacity to the gallery. The carpenter work is being done by Pearson and Gayle, who now have twelve men at work. The changes promise to greatly improve the looks as well as the seating capacity as the work is being done in a most workmanlike manner.

PECULIAR PHYSICAL FORMATION.

A Plainfield Ice Cream Dealer Who Has Double Joints.

One of the strangest developments in the human frame is the double joint, and G. W. Ralph, son of James W. Ralph, the Liberty street ice cream dealer, has these unusual joints at the knee. Dr. Adams has examined it and said it is one of the very few cases he ever saw and advised Ralph to go to New York and allow the doctors there to examine this wonderful formation. On one wrist there is a large lump, the cause of which cannot be given.

To Be Tried Again.

The case of Lowrie against McGinley will be retried before Justice Newcorn and a jury on Tuesday afternoon. It is expected that the trial will be held in the city court rooms.

A TRAMP'S UNLUCKY RIDE.

HIS FOOT CAUGHT BETWEEN THE BUMPERS AND CRUSHED.

Joseph Miller, Who Hails From St. Louis, Now in the Hospital—Liable to Lose One of His Legs.

When a man attempts to "travel on his face," which is a common expression among a class of people, he is apt to get in trouble.

Such was the case of Joseph Miller, a tramp, who said he lived in St. Louis. He was stealing a ride on a coal train on the Central railroad and he met with an accident at Lebanon last night which will probably cost him his left foot.

He was sitting between two coal cars with his feet hanging near the bumpers. The train pulled out very quickly and for some reason made a sudden stop. Miller's left foot was caught between the bumpers, which resulted in three toes being crushed and a portion of the foot. He managed to get his mutilated member out where he remained until found by brakemen Saltzman.

He was brought to Plainfield on engine 350, and taken to the Hospital in the ambulance.

It will probably be found necessary to amputate the foot.

A SUCCESSFUL TRIUMVIRATE.

Three Washington Park Young People Give a Successful Entertainment.

Two little girls and one boy gave an entertainment at the residence of Thomas B. Brooks on Rockview avenue last evening for the benefit of the Fresh Air Fund. The energetic little promoters of the entertainment were Miss Ray Hooley, Miss Mabel Hooley and Charles B. McLean. The programme consisted of tableaux and charades, all of which were most prettily given. One of the best was "Me and Jack," which was represented by Miss Mabel Hooley and a large bulldog. The loud applause frightened the dog and he made a leap, almost upsetting his pretty companion. Another of the last tableaux was "The Sleeping Beauty," in which Charles McLean was the gallant prince and Miss Ray Hooley his sleeping love. The entire entertainment was given in a most pleasing manner that well merited the hearty applause that it received. Lemonade was served at the close of the programme. The receipts were $7.12, which will be duly sent to the Fresh Air Fund.

DESERTED AND DESTITUTE.

Application has been made to H. Hand, overseer of the poor, of Fanwood township, for relief to the family of William Peel, a milkman, who for the last two years has been living at the corner of Terrell road and Midway avenue, in Fanwood.

On Saturday last Peel disposed of about everything available, in the shape of personal effects, and Sunday, taking one of his children, he left home saying he would not return. He left his wife with four other small children in a needy and helpless condition.

For Moving Endeavorers.

R. B. Sinclair, superintendent of the correspondence department of the State Christian Endeavor Union, has been diligently furthering the work of his department, and, at the present time, he is able to report seventeen unions with superintendents of correspondence. They are Essex and Hudson counties, Atlantic City, Camden, Hollywood, Middlesex county, Plainfield, Paterson and vicinity, Sussex and Warren, Somerset, Northern and Central, Trenton, Pittsgrove, Hackensack Valley, Shore Union, and Ocean county. The object of this department is to enable the societies to follow Endeavorers moving from place to place.

Mr. French's Enterprise.

John H. French states that it will not be a hotel which he is to erect on the mountain, but a first class boarding-house. His present plans are to have a twenty-four room house, which is to be erected on the bluff at this end of the mountain near the Moore property and not more than ten minutes walk from the terminus of the trolley road.

Mr. French calculates to have the building completed by next fall and just as soon as possible he will put a force of men at work clearing away the brush and trees to get an open space where excavation can be commenced.

Young Soldiers at Boynton.

The First New Jersey Battalion Boys' Brigade, under command of Major Thomas W. Wightman, are in camp at Boynton Beach. Seventy-five tents have been erected on the field adjoining the ball ground. The camp has been laid out in streets and looks quite soldierlike. The boys will be in camp for ten days and will be given a taste of camp life in the way of guard duty, etc. There will be a dress parade every afternoon.

IT IS WARM, BUT OH WHAT FUN.

The Revere House Waiters Dance Merrily Last Night.

It was a warm night but that did not make any difference to the waiters in the Revere House and their friends, for Central Hall was well filled with those who came to attend the waiters' ball. The inspiring music, furnished by Professor Guttman, hardly ceased once during the evening and the brilliant costumes of the dancers made a lively and everchanging picture.

Howard Grobes made an excellent floor manager and was assisted by William Lewis and Samuel Lewis. William Lee acted in the responsible position of ticket-seller, while Benjamin Hayard took them at the door. A great convenience to the guests was the cloak-room, where John Perkins checked such articles as were wished. The table of refreshments was under the control of Miss Arlie Lewis and Miss Lottie Johnson.

The grand march took place at ten o'clock and was led by Lewis Peterson and Miss Agnes Perkins. From that time until midnight the guests gradually came in until the hall was crowded. Quite a number of the guests of the Revere House came to witness the affair.

The event of the evening was a cake-walk, of which there were two. The first was a plain one and the best walkers were Lewis Petersen and Miss Agnes Perkins. In the second, which was a fancy one, the contest was very close and it had to be walked twice to allow the judges to decide. The enthusiasm of the spectators was great and they tried to encourage their favorites on to greater efforts by cheering and clapping. One man became so excited that he jumped up and down in his endeavor to help his friend.

The second cake walk was won by Daniel Upsher and his mother. The success of the first two walks led to a third which was won by James Grouth and a companion from Fanwood.

A prize of a ladies diamond pin was given to Miss Agnes Perkins and Lewis Peterson as the best waltzers.

The financial part of the ball was very successful, as all expenses were paid and a neat balance left in the treasury.

COULD NOT EQUAL THE PRISONER.

A West End Young Man Fails to Win His Wager.

They are not all dead in the west end of the city, neither have they lost their sense of fun. The other evening a number of men heard the story of how a prisoner once escaped by crawling out of a hole six by ten inches in size. The case was discussed and one young man was very sure it could be done; the rest were inclined to think otherwise. Finally a bet was made that this young man could not crawl through a hole of the required size. Yesterday the trial took place in a secluded part of the West End. The young man removed his clothing and greased himself preparatory to the trial. And then he tried to squeeze through the opening but wiggle his prettiest he could not manage to equal the prisoner's performance and finally had to desist amid the laughter of his comrades.

A RECORD BREAKER.

Dr. Lawler Called to Westfield to Treat a Badly Injured Horse.

One of the longest runaways that hass been heard of for some time took place Wednesday evening at Westfield. Mr. Wittke of that place was driving a young but very valuable colt when another horse coming from behind frightened the animal who started to run. Mr. Wittke was thrown from the carriage but not seriously injured, while the horse was not found until six o'clock yesterday morning three miles north of this city, with a very serious wound. The muscles on the right hind leg had been torn away from the hock to the fetlock. Dr. J. H. Lawler, the well-known veterinary surgeon from New York, who is now located in Plainfield, was called and performed a very skillful operation which will probably save the leg of the valuable animal.

Up Where the Vassar Girls Are.

J. Hervey Doane and family, of La Grande avenue, are visiting Mr. Doane's neices, Mrs. Samuel Moore, and Miss Belle Bradshaw at their home in Poughkeepsie, N. Y. His neices are both well known in this city as they once resided here. Samuel Moore is the owner of the leading shoe store of Poughkeepsie. The party will return to Plainfield tomorrow. Mr. Doane took his camera with him, so several fine views of the place may be expected.

Postoffice at Mt. Bethel.

Postmaster-General Wilson has upon the petition of influential inhabitants created a new post-office at Mount Bethel, near Millington, to be known as Gallia. This name was given it in honor of the nativity of Prof. Eugene Fezendie, of No. 686 Lexington avenue, a venerated member of the French colony in New York city, who for many years had a summer residence at Mt. Bethel.

THE VENINO DIVORCE CASE.

THE HUSBAND BEGINS AN ACTION IN A SPOKANE COURT.

Friends of Mrs. Venino Will Make a Determined Effort to Prevent the Coup of Separation—Who is "Margaret."

The fact that the Venino divorce case is to be reopened will interest many Plainfielders.

It will be remembered that Mr. Venino was assisted by philanthropic citizens of this city to get on his feet, so to speak, after an illness, and then helped him to reach Spokane, Washington, where he was assured of work which would give him a sufficient amount of compensation to support his family consisting of a wife and six children.

At first he sent his wife allowances each month. Then the allowance was reduced until he began to claim hard times and said he could send her nothing. Shortly afterwards he began proceedings to obtain a divorce.

But friends of Mrs. Venino interested themselves in her case and besides securing counsel at Spokane, Lawyer Charles A. Reed, of the firm of Reed & Coddington, was retained as counsel. The case was tried and Mrs. Venino won it; which was supposed to settle the matter.

Recently Venino had the case reopened, and through notification by an unknown friend in Spokane Mrs. Venino was made acquainted with Venino's movements. Mrs. Venino's counsel lost no time and prepared affidavits and took testimony which will be used at the trial which comes up Monday, August 12th, at Spokane.

The Daily Press has been informed that a person going by the name of "Margaret S" is playing an important part on Mr. Venino's side.

WHERE IT WAS COOL.

German Reformed Church People Enjoy a Pleasant Day.

When most of Plainfield was sweltering in the extreme heat yesterday afternoon, fifty-five member of the singing school of the German Reformed church were enjoying themselves under the cooling shade of Hyde's woods. Refreshments, in the shape of ice cream, lemonade and sandwiches were dispensed among the singing people with a liberal hand. Mrs. Doerenger looked after the frozen delicacies while Miss Anna Ptaschinska, Mrs. Bechtle and Mrs. C. Menzenbach were in charge of the other table.

Every effort was made to make the afternoon an enjoyable one for the young people. For the boys there was a back jumping contest which was won by Albert Utzinger. August Neher was second and Charles Doerenger third.

An egg race furnished plenty of excitement for the fair sex and in it Miss Annie Doerenger proved herself to be the best. Miss Carrie Meyers was third. To end the athletic contests a tug of war was held between the two sexes and old and young joined in the fun. It is said that the coming women will lead the men but the tug of war showed that they were doing it already. A fish pond in which the young people fished for packages was another attraction.

The committee in charge of the picnic consisted of August Wolffe, Philip Bach and Mrs. Stahl, and they deserve great credit for the excellent manner in which everything was arranged.

TURNED UP AFTER THIRTY YEARS.

Photographer Thorn Runs Across a Reminder of a Disastrous Fire.

G. Thorn, the East Front street photographer, has just finished a very beautiful and lifelike platinotype picture of the father and mother of Collector H. N. Spencer.

A remarkable coincidence in connection with the picture is the fact that the plate from which the picture has been produced, is almost thirty years old. It was made in September, 1866, and in 1869, three years after, Mr. Thorn's photograph gallery was destroyed by fire, and out of nearly 9,000 negatives or plates stored away in his gallery, only about 400 were carried out by the firemen and citizens, and the plate of Mr. Spencer's father and mother proved to be one of the 400 saved. Mr. Spencer is greatly pleased at this piece of good luck, and the very excellent picture produced by Mr. Thorn.

Oh, That Watermelon.

The word watermelon brings up pleasant thoughts of past experiences, but to the colored people of this city a chance for another experience is coming. A lawn party and watermelon feast is the title of a festival which is to occur on the grounds of the Fillmore avenue Baptist church on the afternoon and evening of August 21st.

Van Deventer Assigns.

The large dry goods firm of U. L. Van Deventer, at Elizabeth, has assigned to Frank W. Patterson, of Red Bank. The liabilities are said to be several thousand dollars. Assignee Patterson is a salesman for a wholesale firm in New York.

CAMP WOLF.

A Worthy Cause That Appeals to the Charitable People.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—Riding on my wheel the other day and passing through Westfield I bethought me of a promise made to my friend, Rev. Mr. Fox, of New York, to visit Camp Wolf. So turning into Summit avenue I went a little beyond the school-house and there found what I consider a very worthy institution.

Mr. Fox finds many a weary mother and child to whom a fortnight's sojourn in the country would be a benefit as well as pleasure; widows who know hardly any cessation from toil; children who are starving for fresh pure air; wives whose domestic duties are too often increased by a drunken husband.

Such are the people from whom he makes his selection, on the score of need, and without reference to nationality or religious beliefs. These poor women and children are housed, given an abundance of good substantial food and once a day assembled to enjoy a religious service.

After a fortnight's stay they return to the city, and their places are filled by others. The good people of Westfield have put up a good frame dormitory, capable of lodging about seventy people.

All this work is carried on by voluntary contributions, and I make bold to urge upon the good people of Plainfield to assist these friends. If you are riding out, stop and visit the camp, and you will be rewarded by what you will see and hear.

Take provisions or the cash with you; if you cannot go, leave your contributions with G. Q. Packer on Park avenue, and they will be forwarded. Six dollars will support the camp for a day. By so doing you will gladden the life of some hard-worked woman or pinched child, and receive the recognition of Him who said "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of these little ones ye have done it unto Me." Rev. C. R. Barnes.

AT THE NETHERWOOD.

A Progressive Euchre Party—Season at its Height.

The progressive Euchre party at the Hotel Netherwood last evening was participated in by a large number of the guests, the following handsome prizes being awarded: Ladies first prize, gold buckle belt, won by Mrs. Barclay; second ladies prize, Dresden hair pin, won by Mrs. Rodrigner; ladies consolation, Miss Steenworth, a gold belt pin; gentlemen's first prize, silver handled umbrella, won by Mr. Finnegan; second prize, silver pocket knife, won by Mr. Stevens; gentleman's consolation perpetual calander, awarded to Mr. Plass.

The present season is one unsurpassed socialy, the young ladies being particulary attractive, as are also a number of young matrons. Among the young ladies Miss E. V. Pitman, of Brooklyn, N. Y., an ellegant and graceful girl, is a general favorite.

Under the able management of Mr. John Spitler the Hotel is gaining in popularity daily.

Chief Clerk Hightower is a genial personality, never ruffled or aggravating, and very popular with the guests.

IT WILL SOON BE BUILT.

Traction Company Officials Viewed the Road From Plainfield to Elizabeth.

Several prominent officials of the Traction Company rode in a carriage from Plainfield to Elizabeth on Wednesday for the purpose of viewing the best road on which to locate a line for trolley cars between the two cities. They were several hours in making the trip because of the close attention which they gave the matter in hand.

One of the officials told the informant that the route was a good one, and he had no doubt the road would be built at an early day—perhaps before the close of the year.

It would be better for the public if the road to out-lying towns was owned and managed by another company, but if nobody else will step up and fill the long-felt want on the part of the people, we shall be glad to see the Traction Company undertake the task of its construction and equipment.—Elizabeth Leader.

An Evening of Pleasure.

A very enjoyable children's party was given by Miss Lucile Simmonds, of Watchung avenue, to a number of her young companions last evening. Games formed the principal part of the evening's pleasure while at the close dainty refreshments were served.

Miss Mary Simmonds and Miss Josephine Simmonds assisted in entertaining the guests.

Among those present were Miss Margaret Simpson, Miss Alice Chamberlin, Miss Bessie Bowen, Miss Brieton, of Elizabeth, Miss Dumont, of Finderne, LeRoy Wheeler, William Beale, Charles King, and Clarence Mills.

They Are Going Too.

The Independent Fife and Drum Corps have been engaged to go with the J. O. U. A. M. to Asbury Park on August 15th.

CURIOSITIES OF DISMAL SWAMP.

Queer Things Found by a Government Scientist in that Strange Region.

"I have just returned from a visit to the Dismal Swamp," said Dr. A. K. Fisher, ornithologist of the Department of Agriculture, to a Washington Star writer. "It is a strange region, full of oddities that are not to be found elsewhere. The purpose of my expedition was to investigate the fauna of the locality, and of rare mammals and birds I secured quite a number.

"There are plenty of cattle in the swamp—small, dark and very wild. They are the progeny of animals that have strayed from domesticated herds. Hunters stalk and shoot them like deer. Bears are numerous. In the autumn they feed greedily on the fruit of the sour gum.

Wildcats, opposums, and raccoons are not scarce, while squirrels are remarkably abundant. The squirrels have discovered an easy way to get a living, by going along the shores of Lake Drummond and picking up the nuts and berries which have fallen into the water and drifted in windrows. They trot along the logs and fish them out with their paws. Deer are common but hard to get. In the fall hunters run them into the lake and then catch them with dogs.

"The boats used in the Dismal Swamp are all dug outs, made from cypress logs, twelve feet long and very narrow. To shape such a craft properly is a nice piece of work. The novice who steps into one of these boats is apt to go out on the other side, but the native stands up and paddles with security.

"The water is darker than amber and excellent to drink; it is said to be a sure cure for malaria. There is no malaria disease in the swamp. The swamp is full of magnolias, from the size of bushes to trees sixty feet high. When I was there they were full of flowers. The cypress trees are cut for shingles. The best trees for the purpose are those which fell from twenty-five to ninety years ago, and are now covered with moss. The negroes wade in and cut off the moss and rotten bark. Then they cut up the log into shingles on the spot. The next best tree is one that is newly fallen, and the third quality is the tree that has to be felled.

"The Dismal Swamp is the most northern of the great morass swamps. Lake Drummond, in the center of it, is four miles long and of an oval shape. There is a very odd fact about the Jericho Ditch, which extends for a distance of eleven miles from the Nansemond River to the lake. From the middle point of the ditch the water runs both ways; there is a current toward Lake Drummond and another current in the opposite direction toward the Nansemond River."

COLUMBIAN HALF DOLLARS.

Columbian centennial coins not heretofore circulated have been found frequently in change of late. They are fifty-cent pieces of 1893, and the reason given for their appearance is that many coin collectors and others believed that many coin collectors and others believed that immediately after the Columbian Exposition they would have special value as rarities, and so hoarded them for a premium. They were so held for the better part of two years, but no appreciation in value followed, and now they have been thrown upon the market and are freely circulated. They have a more attractive appearance than the regular fifty-cent pieces, but this superior attractiveness has not, to any visible extent, mitigated the regret which collectors have had in parting with them.

The silver coinage of the United States in use varies from time to time according to no definite law with which the Treasury officials are familiar. At times silver dollars circulate with much ease and freedom, and there does not seem to be any serious demand for a greater number of the smaller coins. Again, ten-cent pieces seem to be greatly in demand, and the dollars are stored away in banks and trust companies and in the Treasury vaults, and are grudgingly received by business men. But silver half dollars always circulate freely.

Mr. Smith's Tame Bears.

Mr. Henry L. Smith is fond of horses and dogs, but there is nothing on four legs that could win his affection more than the two tame bears now quartered on his property on Renssalaer Island. Few of Mr. Smith's friends have failed to see his pets. Yesterday the Tourist had a glimpse of them. Many will remember them over a year ago in Mr. Smith's store window. They were then only a month or so old. They were caught near Mr. Smith's preserve in the Adirondacks when only three days old, when the mother was shot.

They were brought up on a bottle and have prospered as well as if their mamma was still with them. They had never been chained or beaten, but have been conquered through their stomachs. They have not yet attained their half growth and give promise of becoming immense fellows.

Their quarters are large and with a tub apiece are made cool these hot days. They frolic all day and are in an ecstacy when one offers candy through the bars. They answer to the names of Jim and John. When Mr. Smith goes in with them they lick his hand as a dog would do and want to be petted. They are also very friendly with Mrs. Smith, and have never shown the least violence toward any one.—Albany Journal.

Her Strength of Mind.

He leaned soulfully near.

"And could you," he whispered "think of another?"

She cast down her eyes in sweet confusion.

"Really," she faltered; "two plates only—er—if you insist—thank you. Strawberry flavor, if you please."

A BLAZE OF GLORY.

Note.—Mrs. Katherine O'Leary, owner of the cow that kicked the lamp that fired the barn that set the blaze that burned Chicago, died in that town July 3.

Dead is Mrs. O'Leary,
Dead in Chicago now;
Finished her earthly labors,
Gone to meet her cow:

Cow that is ever famous,
More than heart could desire;
Famous because she started
The Great Chicago Fire:

Fire that swept the city;
City of brick and frame
Went up in a blaze of glory,
That brought unfading fame:

Fame for being the biggest
Fire that ever blazed
In any other city,
And left the world amazed:

Amazed that from her ashes
Chicago could arise,
And grow with magic swiftness
To such enormous size:

Size that is simply wondrous;
Distended everywhere,
With the wind which is de facto,
Coagulated air:

Air that is filled with thickness,
That makes the sun as red
As the blood in her slaughter houses
Where the wine of her life is shed:

Shed that her wealth and glory
Might decorate the brow
Of the one and only city
Kicked to fame by a cow:

Cow of Mrs. O'Leary;
A lamp, a kick, and a shed,
A wonderful combination
Numbered now with the dead.

Dead is Mrs O'Leary,
Gone to the by and by;
Go build her a tomb of granite
A hundred stories high!

"BROTHER JONATHAN."

The Name of Jonathan Does Not Seem to Be Very Popular Among Us.

The Englishman is John Bull, the Irishman is Pat or Paddy, the Scotchman is Sandy or Sawney, the Welshman is David, the Frenchman is Jean Crapaud or Micaire, the German is Cousin Michael, the Swiss is Colin Tampon, the Jew is Sheeny, and the American is Brother Jonathan. There is a nickname for the people of almost every country on earth.

It is a singular circumstance that, while John is a popular prenomen in England, and Patrick in Ireland, and David in Wales, and Jean in France, and Michael in Germany, the name of Jonathan has never become popular in the United States.

All that is necessary to give any one evidence of this statement is that he shall examine the directory of the city of New York from beginning to end, or shall look through the directories printed in Philadelphia, Boston, New Orleans, Chicago, Brooklyn, Jersey City, San Francisco, or any other American city. He may see Jonathan once in a while, as he turns over the leaves of the book; but he may go through ten or twenty pages without seeing it even once. Patrick is on every page of a Dublin directory, as John is on every page of an English directory; but as for the name of Jonathan, it is seen about as often in an English as in an American directory. It is possible that one reason for the unpopularity of the name with fathers and mothers lies in the fact that Brother Jonathan is always pictured as a very grotesque and unattractive personage, costumed in a ridiculous fashion, and calculated to raise laughter rather than command respect.

John Bull is always pictured as a solid business personage; Brother Jonathan is depicted as a circus clown.

It is a wonder that no American artist has ever drawn a worthy figure of the great and mighty and majestic Brother Jonathan, one that would be characteristic, significant and impressive, without too marked a violation of the traditions that are associated with the name. It cannot be said that the "Uncle Sam" of the picture makers is any better than the Brother Jonathan.

Paid the Expenses.

A good story is told of a well-known Hartford landlord who has been having any amount of trouble during the hard times to collect rents from his tenants. There was a certain man with a large family who had occupied a part of one of his houses in the surburbs for a number of years.

The man was thoroughly honest but down on his luck. The landlord bore the loss of his rent with considerable fortitude until he thought it was some one else's turn to help the fellow a little; then he went to him one day and told him with all seriousness that he intended to give the house a going over; it was out of repair and he had decided to expend a little money on it and make some important alterations, and, as it would be some expense for the man to move, he generously offered to order a team for him and settle the bill himself.

The matter was arranged with the utmost friendliness on both sides, and the landlord went his way feeling quite a little like the celebrated Pharisee. A week later he asked his agent about some flats that had been empty for a month or two.

"All rented," said the agent, and he named the parties, whereupon the landlord immediately descended on the plane of publicans and sinners. When he had recovered himself sufficiently to talk English, he proceeded to inform the astonished agent that one of his acquisitions was the man who had just moved at his own expense out of the house in the suburbs.

Precaution All Around.

A carpenter, sent to make some repairs in a private house, entered the apartment of the lady of the house with his apprentice.

"Mary," the lady called to her servant, "see that my jewel case is locked at once."

The carpenter understood. He removed his watch and chain from his vest with a significant air and gave them to his apprentice.

"John," he said, "take these right back to the shop. It seems that the house isn't safe!"—Youth's Companion.

MR. LAINE'S SENSIBLE POINTS.

It Is Only Custom That Makes the Barber Work Like a Slave.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—I read the report of the canvass made by your reporter in Saturday evening's Press. I am not at all surprised that there is a difference of opinion as expressed by the barbers of this city on the subject of Sunday closing. All movements have advocates and opponents. Still there is no good reason why barbers should not be released on Sunday for the purpose of following their religious duties or enjoying recreation from the cares of business the same as most other people.

All other business people might open up on Sunday with equal propriety and hypnotize themselves into the belief that it was really necessary for the comfort of humanity that they should do so.

The hours in most shops run from seven a. m., until nine p. m., and on Saturday until twelve, midnight. Then on Sunday from seven a. m. until one p. m., making the aggregate number of working hours in a week ninety-three. To this can be added an hour each day coming to and going from work, making fourteen hours more.

As an industrious barber devotes 107 hours each week out of a possible 168 hours for the privilege of existence.

The legal working hours of labor average nine hours a day. Yet the man who enjoys this great boon waits until all the other pleasures and duties are all over, and then he remembers that he hasn't been shaved. He goes to the barber shop late on Saturday night and a few waiting customers make him decide that he will "wait till morning." That same evening he will chase himself around to the butcher, grocer and baker and get his provisions and other necessities because these tradesmen won't give up their day of rest for his comfort, but the barber invites it by long custom that only needs a little more stiffening in the backbones of some of the craft.

I think if the people who oppose this movement would only look over the facts pointed out to them that would say to their customers "We close on Sunday" and thus remove this relic of barberism.

Nothing But Sand.

The three cyclists, Arthur B. Crane, S. Clinton Crane, and Walter Probasco, who are touring through southern New Jersey, have been heard from. They spent Sunday at Cape May according to their plan. Up to Tuckerton, 132 miles from home, they found very good roads, but after that A. B. Crane writes that they have seen nothing but sand.

The Dog Was Blind.

A blind dog was the cause of a painful fall for Ed. Sowden, Friday evening. He was riding his wheel through Scotch Plains when the blind creature ran right in his path and brought him to the ground rather suddenly. Sowden escaped with a few painful bruises but the wheel was badly twisted and generally disabled.

Funny Way of Rahway Laws.

The dozen Rahway saloon-keepers who are charged with violating the Sunday law Friday afternoon filed their bonds with the City Attorney, agreeing to pay $20 fine each, with $8.40 costs added, in case the test case of Saloon-keeper Lambert is decided adversely by the Supreme Court. Should the decision be in Lambert's favor then the bonds will be void.

Prizes and Winners of the Anniversary Events.

The fifteenth anniversary of the Gesang and Turn Verein society was appropriately celebrated Thursday. The society, with their friends met at the hall on Somerset street in the morning at ten o'clock, when the prize turning exhibition was given. About thirty-four members of the society took part. They were divided into three classes according to size and ability. The exhibitions on the horse, rings, and in climbing resulted as follows:

VOORHEES AND PLAINFIELD.

The Senator's Chances are Said to be Fairly Bright in the City.

Senator Voorhees, who is a prominent candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor, is not taking any vacation this summer, but is hard at work in his law business trying to make up for the time he lost while chairman of the Senate Investigating Committee. The Senator is hopeful of making a good showing at the convention, and says if the rank and file of the party attend the primaries he is confident of having a majority of the Union county delegation. His chances are very bright for carrying Rahway, and fairly bright in Plainfield. The big struggle, however, will be in Elizabeth, which is the home of Kean and Voorhees. The latter has the powerful backing of Mayor Rankin and Congressman Fowler, but John Kean has many strong adherents, and the contests at the primaries will be of an exciting character. It is quietly rumored, however, among those who claim to know what is going on in the inner political circles, that the Kean-Voorhees forces will be united on the eve of the convention, and that Senator Voorhees will withdraw in favor of the ex-Congressman, and, as he did three years ago, he John Kean's campaign manager, if the latter as he confidently expects, receives the nomination.

Big Deals for '95 and '96.

There is no business which admits of so many wonderful innovations as the theatrical business. The present age might appropriately be styled "The Realistic." Men with vast capital have entered the field, and their rivalry and spirited competition have called forth the most astounding results. The public crave amusement as one of the most essential necessities of life, and are so thoroughly educated as to the merits of what is good or bad that it pays best to cater to them by presenting only what is certain to be stamped as "O. K."

One of the theatrical enterprises which will open in New York City is the comedy drama; "A Midnight Frolic," for which extensive preparations have been carried on, is sure to make an instantaneous and unqualified success. After its New York opening it will be sent across the continent to San Francisco with the entire New York caste, and it is unanimously conceded by newspapers and theatrical critics that among the big deals for '95 and '96 will be found "A Midnight Frolic."

Real Estate Transfers.

The following transfers of Plainfield property has been recorded in the County Clerk's office from August 1st to 7th inclusive:

Isaac W. Rushmore et ux to Maria Louise Rushmore, lots on Eighth street, $1,800.

The Mutual Life Insurance Company, of New York, to the inhabitants of Plainfield, lots, Rock avenue, $15,500.

Hop at The Netherwood.

The usual Saturday night hop at the Netherwood was thoroughly enjoyed. There were thirty-five couple present from Netherwood and Plainfield.

Prof. Gioscia and his orchestra furnished delightful music. This orchestra is Governor Morton's favorite one and plays for him at his home during the winter months.

WILLIAM PETERSON'S FUNERAL.

Beautiful Tributes of Flowers Show the Esteem in Which He Was Held.

The funeral services over the remains of the late William Peterson were held at 2:30 o'clock Saturday afternoon from the residence of his parents on Watchung avenue. Rev. Dr. E. M. Bodman, of Grace P. E. church, officiating, using the Episcopal service. Members of Perseverance Lodge, No. 74, K. of P., and the Swedish Lodge of which decedent was a member attended in a body.

The floral tributes were beautiful and consisted of a standing cross, with an anchor on one side and a heart on the other. In the centre were the words "Willie at Rest." Another tribute was a pillow with the words, K. of P., No. 74, F. C. B. The Swedish Lodge gave a choice wreath tied with blue and yellow ribbon. Miss Lincoln, of Park avenue, sent an exquisite bouquet of white roses, and there were several other pieces from friends.

Interment was in North Plainfield cemetery. The pallbearers were:

R. V. Saums, William Young, T. Colleen, W. J. Ackens, J. Armstrong and G. Clark.

Charles McGinley acted as marshal of the day.

Dogs Have Friends in Elizabeth.

The people of Elizabeth do not approve of the action of the police in trying to enforce the dog ordinance, which the Court of Common Pleas declared to be null and void. An appeal has been taken by the City Attorney to the Supreme Court on a writ of certiorari granted by Judge Van-Syckel, and meanwhile the police say this acts as a stay, and that the slaughtering and asphyxiation of unlicensed and unmuzzled dogs can be resumed. The dog catcher started on Thursday on his rounds. Physicians here denounce the muzzling of dogs as absurd, and declare that the practice, instead of acting as a preventive against hydrophobia, effects just the reverse, as it irritates and annoys the canines.

About Mr. Lounsbury.

In speaking of the Hastings Card Co., the Copy Hook has this to say about Fred C. Lounsbury, of this city, who is its president:

The president and Treasurer of the Hastings Card Company, Ltd., has long been identified with the cardboard business, and his ability as executive officer and tact in advertising has kept his company well in the lead in the lines they handle.

In March, 1894, Mr. Lounsbury was compelled, on account of ill health, caused by overwork, to retire from business; but after an absence of two years returned to his post in the spring of 1894, and has since been making his presence felt in a most practical manner—increase of business and a general betterment of facilities for handling the same.

Kenneth Bazemore had the good fortune to receive a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy when three members of his family were sick with dysentery. This one small bottle cured them all and he had some left which he gave to Geo. W. Baker, a prominent merchant of the place, Lewiston, N. C., and it cured him of of the same complaint. When troubled with dysentery, diarrhœa, colic or cholera morbus, give this remedy a trial and you will be more than pleased with the result. The praise that naturally follow its introduction and use has made it very popular. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale at Reynolds's Pharmacy, Park and North avenues; T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

Plainfield First, Elizabeth Next.

The Christian Endeavorers of New Jersey have eyes toward Atlantic City, where, in October, the State convention will be held. Union county will be largely represented. President Anthony of Plainfield is making every effort to head a delegation of 200 from that city, and the Endeavor societies all over the county have promised to go as well represented as possible to strive for Plainfield in '96. In 1897 the convention will probably go to South Jersey, and for 1898 the Elizabeth Endeavorers mean to capture it.—Elizabeth Journal.

Great Convention Coming.

The latter part of this month Plainfield will be the scene of one of the largest conventions ever held, that of the Seventh-Day Baptist denomination. There will be present delegates from all parts of the United States, including some of the most noted divines in the country.

The sessions will be of incalculable interest to everyone connected in any way with religious work.

Powerful Sermon.

Rev. Ashley Jones, of Kentucky, preached two powerful and interesting sermons in the First Baptist Baptist church yesterday and large congregations were present at each service. Mr. Jones will occupy the same pulpit next Sunday.

Are You Ever Annoyed by a buzzing or roaring sound in your head? Have you difficulty in hearing distinctly? Are you troubled with a continual dropping of mucus, irritating the throat and causing you to cough? Is your breath unpleasantly affected and accompanied with bad taste? Is your hearing less acute? If so, you have catarrh and should at once procure a bottle of Ely's Cream Balm, the best known remedy. The Balm will give instant relief.

TAXES TEN PER CENT HIGHER

COMMON COUNCIL FIXED THE RATE AT 2.32.

Bids Received for the Street Rooler—Complaint About Slow Work of Constructing Sewers—Other Business.

It was 8:30 Tuesday when President See called the City Council meeting to order. Councilman Erickson, Frost, Bird, Moore, Frazee and Westphal answered to the roll call by Clerk MacMurray.

On motion of Councilman Erickson the street railway matter was laid over till September 5th. Councilman Erickson than moved that the Council take a recess and as a committee on the whole examine the Assessors books, which was so ordered.

The tax rate, it was learned, would be 2:32, which is 10 per cent. higher than that of last year. At present there is $184,000 more taxable property than there was last year. After a thorough examination of the books, Mr. Erickson offered a resolution approving them. It was adopted.

A petition signed by J. B. Mills and others asked that the Council accept Martine avenue. It was referred to the street committee.

Phillip Cottrell and others of the East End asked Council to place two electric lights in that section, one at East Third and Berckman streets, and the other on Fillmore avenue. It was referred to the committee on lights. Charles Stimpson asked Council for an electric light on Carleton avenue, east of Putman avenue. This was also referred to the committee on lights. M. Ross, of Franklin place, petitioned Council for permission to remove a barn from Franklin place to West Third street. It was granted.

W. W. Cook & Company, having fulfilled their contract with the city, asked Council to release their bondsmen. The matter was referred to the sewer committee.

The street committee, through Mr. Bird, stated bids for a steam roller had been received from five companies, as follows: Harrisburg $2,900; Springfield. $3,150; Columbia, $2,875; Buffalo Pitts, $3,000; Gem City, $2,950. The committee asked that the matter be referred to them with power, as they wanted more time to look into the matter. It was so ordered. Mr. Bird also stated that there would be a report made on street signs at the next meeting.

Mr. Frost said that the work on the outlet sewer was not progressing as rapidly as it ought to and that some means would be necessary to rush the work. He hoped to be able to present some statistics at the next meeting which he was now preparing.

Councilman Moore brought up the ordinance on final passage in regard to giving Mrs. Conneeley permission to conduct a saloon on Park avenue until the license expired. Mr Frost strongly objected as he thought it was contrary to the city laws. Mr. Erickson stated that he did not think the city could give a woman the priviledge. The vote on the motion to adopt it was as follows: Councilmen See, Frost, Erickson, Frazee,—Nay: Councilmen Bird, Moore and Westphal,—Aye.

A motion that was carried was then made by Mr. Frazee that the vote be reconsidered. He also moved that the matter be laid on the table, which was so ordered.

There Was No Oil.

James Smith, of Elmwood place, desires to state through The Daily Press columns that there was no kerosene or other oils in his cellar. There was a number of paint kegs, he says, but no oils.

My boy was taken sick with a disease resembling bloody flux. The first thing I thought of was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Two doses of it settled the matter and cured him sound and well. I heartily recommend this remedy to all persons suffering from a like complaint. I will answer any inquiries regarding it when stamp is inclosed. I refer to any county official as to my reliability. Wm. Roach, J. P., Primroy, Campbell Co., Tenn. CHANGE OF MANAGEMENT.

Music Hall to be Hereafter Known as the Stillman Theatre.

Mr. Stillman, the proprietor of Music Hall, has just entered into an agreement with Messrs. Rich & Maeder, the well-known New York managers, whereby they assume the absolute control and management of the newly-fitted up theatre, which will hereafter be known as "The Stillman Theatre." The new lessees intend to place only the very best attraction at the theatre, and will manage the house from their New York offices, though the firm will place in charge as their representative a gentleman in whom they have the utmost confidence, who will see that the comfort and convenience of the patrons of the Stillman are assured, thus promising that the newly-appointed playhouse will be conducted in a manner equal to any of the principal theatres in New York city. The firm is largely known in the theatrical market, and is rapidly adding to their list of theatres under their personal control. The beautiful Drake Opera House at Elizabeth is theirs, and the line of attractions that will visit Plainfield will be in advance of any yet presented for consideration. That gifted and attractive artist Rhea is under Messrs. Rich & Maeder's personal management, and is already booked for an appearance in this city. Altogether, Mr. Stillman has done well to place his theatre in such able hands, and a brilliant season may be looked for, which opens about August 29th.

WHERE THE HITCH IS.

The Street Railway and the City Officials Cannot Agree.

The people of Plainfield no doubt are wondering why there is such delay in the matter of the proposed extension of the street railway. Sometimes the matter is not brought up in the council at all and then when it is it is laid over.

A Daily Press reporter learned at the meeting of the Council last evening just where the hitch is.

The street railway people want one year to complete the extension and then want to run the cars under thirty minutes headway. They also want to put the trunk line right through, and then to take their time on the extension.

The city council are not willing to accept such conditions, and claim that the extension can be made in three months easily. Until the company is willing to do as the Council says, street railway extension will remain just where it is.

FRED S. DUNN HOME.

Has Been in California Where He Regained Health and Strength.

A great surprise was given the relatives and many friends in Plainfield of Fred S. Dunn on Tuesday as he alighted from a Blue Liner about six o'clock. On the eighth of August last year he was compelled to relinquish his position as engineer of the Plainfield Electric Light plant, in this city, and seek the balmy air of Passadena, California, to regain his health. He now holds a lucrative and responsible position on Echo Mountain, near Passadena, as engineer of Prof. Lowe's great incline railway, and so well has he suited his employer that he has been granted a five weeks vacation by Mr. Lowe, to come east and see his brother, W. F. Dunn, his grandmother and other relatives and friends. He is looking and feeling remarkably well, and many hearts are glad to see and converse with him. He will remain in Plainfield and vicinity until about September 7th, and then start for Passadena.

The work of repairs at the High School building are being pushed rapidly and they will probably be completed by time school reopens, September 9th.

When moving into our present home I found a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm left by a former tenant. On the label I found the statement that it was good for cuts and burns. I can testify to the truth of this. Nothing in all my experience has found its equal for treating blisters or burns. F. E. Barrett, manager Le Sueur Sentinel, Le Sueur, Minn. FOUL MURDER!

Shocking Tragedy at New Market Tuesday.

SHOT DOWN LIKE A DOG.

William Darling Murders Harry Dunham in Cold Blood.

NO CAUSE ASSIGNED FOR THE ACT.

The Men Were Old Friends and Had Been Playing Pool Together in a Friendly Way All the Afternoon Until Darling Pulled Out a Revolver and Killed His Friend—Then He Jumped on a Bicycle and Rode Away—No Attempt to Capture the Man Until He Had a Half Hours Start—His Bicycle Found in South Plainfield Lake—Details of the Case.

From Press of Aug. 21.

One of the most deliberate and cold-blooded murders ever committed in New Jersey occurred last night at ten minutes after six o'clock in a little wayside inn kept by Mrs. Danz at New Market, six miles from this city, when William M. Darling, of this city, shot Harry Dunham in the neck just above the breast bone, death ensuing from the wound fifty minutes afterward.

It was three o'clock yesterday afternoon when Darling wheeled into the little hamlet of New Market on a bicycle and dismounted in front of the tavern. He was attired in a natty black bicycle suit, and entering the bar room called for a glass of lager from the bartender, Wm. Kohn, an easy-going, good-natured specimen of a not easily ruffled German. He lolled about the bar for a few moments, sipping the beer, when he entered the pool room, just off the bar room, and looked on at the playing of Kohn and Edward Randolph, who were shooting pool.

After the game was finished Darling expressed a desire to enter the contest, and his wish was acceded to. The trio played a couple of games when Dunham entered with Lisbon Pierson and Edward Mitchell, two colored men. Darling and Dunham no sooner saw each other than Darling exclaimed in a most friendly way:

"Why, how are you, Harry. I'm glad to see you."

Dunham returned the greeting with equal warmth, and the two then engaged in passing conversation, until finally Kohn dropped out of the game and Dunham took his place. Later on Randolph also quit and left the place. The two men continued to play on, all the time joking and talking to one another in evidently the best of spirits. Pierson and Mitchell, the colored men, were in the room, the former waiting on the players. They were playing for the drinks only, each having a glass of beer after every other game. Shortly after six o'clock, when Mrs. Danz and her bartender were eating their supper, the talk between the two men drifted into how long they had known each other.

"Why," said Darling, "I have known that fellow every since he was knee high to a grasshopper."

"Why," replied Dunham, in a joking way, "I knew you before you were born."

A scowl came over Darling's countenance at this remark and he left the room and went out doors. He returned in a moment with a revolver in his hand and said to Dunham:

"Harry, you'll have to take that back."

Dunham only looked at him and laughed in a bantering way. At this Darling leveled his revolver at the man, pulled the trigger and bang went the report.

Dunham turned in a half stooping position and with one of his arms encircled about his head in a frightened manner he edged towards the door leading into the barroom. Darling dogged his footsteps and kept muttering in a threatening tone: "Do you want it again, damn you, I'll give it to you."

"No, no, don't do it," cried Dunham.

By this time Darling had moved out midway between the pool room door and the door leading to the street. The noise of the first shot attracted Mrs. Danz, who rushed in from the supper table. Kohn, the bartender, had just come into the barroom to wait on Lee Perrine and Theodore Roantree, two young men. Dunham was standing on the sill of the pool room door white as a sheet and trembling like a leaf. Mrs. Danz turned to Dunham and says:

"Harry, are you hurt."

"No, he replied."

He had no sooner uttered the words than Darling raised his revolver and fired a second time at him. At this Kohn went over towards Darling as if to catch hold of him when he leveled the revolver at the bartender and said:

"Do you want some of this, too. I'll give it to you if you do."

Turning on his heel he strode out of the hotel and jumping on his wheel rode away towards Bound Brook at a rapid speed.

All of this happened in a few seconds, during which Roantree and Perrine ran out of the barroom frightened half to death. As soon as the first shot was fired in the pool room, Pierson, the colored man, ran out of a back door and sought a place of safety in the barn. His brother-in-law remained in the pool room while the shooting was going on.

As soon as the second shot was fired, Dunham stood still for a few moments and then staggered back and fell in a heap alongside the pool table. Pierson was called in and together with Mitchell lifted the man up, and asked him if he was hurt. All the reply they could get was a grunt. By this time a small stream of blood was noticed oozing forth from a bullet wound in the neck. The injured man was carried to a lounge. During this time a few persons who were nearby and heard the shots had arrived at the scene of the fatality. Dr. Whitford was sent for, but upon his arrival could do nothing for the man, and at seven o'clock he breathed his last.

It was fully twenty minutes after Darling had been gone before any one thought of starting after him, as no alarm had been given.

Then William Day started out on his bicycle and tracked him for a couple of miles to the Harris Lane school house. There he lost all trace of him and returned to New Market.

When the Daily Press reporter arrived at New Market an hour and a half after the fatality the only effort made to notify the police officials was by a man who came upon the train from Dunellen about half past seven and told Chief Grant of the case. The Chief and Sergeant Kiely immediately drove to New Market. The sergeant, in company with Constable Dougherty and Mitchell, the colored man, who went along to identify Darling if he should be seen, started out on his trail. They first went to a farm owned by Darling's father, near Millstone, but no trace could be gained here. On enquiring along the road they learned from Mrs. Peter Osborn, who resides one and a half mile from New Market on the highway to New Brunswick, that she had seen a man resembling the description of Darling ride rapidly by her place on a wheel shortly after the time he committed the murder.

Nothing further could be learned as to where he went until this morning, when Wm. Johnson, a young lad, reported that he had found a Columbia bicycle in the New Brooklyn millpond, partly submerged in the water. The wheel was brought to Plainfield and identified as the one Darling was riding. This leads up to the supposition that he went to South Plainfield and boarded a Lehigh Valley train.

At ten o'clock last night the county physician of Middlesex county arrived in New Market and gave a permit to have the murdered man's body removed to the home of his aunt. The body was taken care of by Undertaker Runyon, of Dunellen.

Dunham is employed as a fireman on the Erie railroad and resides in Hornellsville, N. Y., from whence he came on Sunday to attend the funeral of Abraham Dunham, his foster father. This makes the affair all the more deplorable and sad. Dunham is said to be a steady and industrous fellow, who is well known and liked here. He learned the machinists trade in the Potter Press Works eight years ago. During his residence here he boarded with James Clawson on West Sixth street. He was twenty eight years of age and unmarried.

Darling lived with his parents at 927 Prospect avenue in this city, and was always of a wayward character, having caused his father a great deal of trouble by his erratic acts.

Much sympathy is expressed for Mr. and Mrs. John Darling in Plainfield, where the character and actions of the son are known.

Many people express surprise that Darling was allowed to escape when there was five men near at hand. The fact is that all were so frightened after the bartender was threatened that they were almost dumb struck.

However, the bartender, who is a good natured Dutchman, and who told the story of the shooting to the Daily Press man as though it was an incipient scrap, asserted that if he had known that Dunham had really been shot he would have cowered the murderer by going after him with a revolver which he had behind the bar.

When a lad Darling was of a wild and uncontrolable disposition and as the years passed these traits seemed to grow on him. He is an expert telegraph operator by occupation but was never able to hold a position any length of time.

Two years ago he enlisted in the regular army but by some hook or crook was able to get out of the service after a brief experience of army life.

The Daily Press reporter was the first one to convey the news of the shooting to the home of Darling's parents on Prospect avenue, but they absolutely refused to talk about the case.

Mrs. Abraham Dunham, the murdered man's aunt, whose husband was buried on Sunday, is prostrated to the bed over the sad affair.

Coroner McDede, of New Brunswick, will probably hold an inquest over the dead man's body this afternoon.

Mr. Danz says that she followed Darling out to the piazza and exclaimed:

"Here, vat you do here; I doan vont any such capers about my house You get out."

But before she could say anything further, Darling jumped on his bicycle and rode off.

If he is found and arrested his trial would necessarily take place in Middlesex county where the fatality occurred.

Coroner McDede, of New Brunswick, today had Wm. Kohn, Edward Mitchell, Peter Campbell, Mrs. Lena Danz and Lisbon Pierson arrested as witnesses. They were lodged in jail in New Brunswick.

MILLSTONE ROAD A TROLLEY.

The Pennsylvania Expects to Make the Branch Pay.

The Pennsylvania Railroad intends to convert its branch road from New Brunswick to Millstone into an electric road on the plan of the branch road from Mount Holly to Burlington. The reason for the change is that the branch has long since proved a losing investment.

For many years the Millstone branch was leased to the Pennsylvania Railroad by the Millstone Railroad Company, and the stockholders were paid dividends. Later on, when the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad made an effort to buy the branch so as to compete with the Pennsylvania Railroad, General Superintendent F. W. Jackson, of the Pennsylvania, appeared at the meeting with a block of stock that had been purchased to give the Pennsylvania control. Thus the sale of the branch was frustrated, and the Millstone Company stockholders have been paid no dividends since.

The branch, it is reported, has been losing $10,000 yearly, but the plan to change it into an electric road, it is thought, will pay. Part of the sudden change of front manifested by the Pennsylvania Railroad is attributed to its opposition to the trolley lines in Middlesex county.

Won't Stay at Home.

Mrs. Joseph Green's mother sought Chief Grant last night and asked him if he would get her daughter away from some people with whom she was living. She is the wife of Joseph Green who is now at Somerville awaiting the action of the Grand Jury. The Chief could not see that he had any right to act in accordance with the woman's request unless there was some complaint. The mother was anxious that her child should remain home with her, but there seemed to be no alternative.

Union Meetings.

Two union meetings of the Local Union of the Y. P. S. C. E. have been arranged to be held this month in Plainfield, the first one in the Park Avenue Baptist church on Friday evening of this week, led by Miss Florence Hawkins, secretary of the Union, and another on Thursday evening of next week in the First Presbyterian church. The latter meeting will be a consecration service, led by the president of the Local Union, E. E. Anthony. At both services good singing will be a feature.

Brown as a Berry.

Manager Mills, of the United States Express Company in this city, has returned from a two-days outing on his wheel. He rode to Middletown, N. Y., and thoroughly appreciated the good roads of Union county after traveling over so many poor ones. His cyclometer registered ninety miles. Mr. Mills enjoyed the trip and is looking as brown as a berry.

ON BOARD A SINKING SHIP.

CRAIG A. MARSH HAS A MARACULOUS ESCAPE FROM DEATH.

A Hundred Americans Have Narrow Escapes From a Watery Grave—What Mr. Marsh Has to Say About the Affair.

The New York Sun published the following Wednesday:

London, August 20.—The steamship Seaford, with 450 passengers, including more than 100 Americans, traveling from Paris to London, collided in mid-channel at four o'clock this afternoon, and a few minutes later the vessel foundered.

All on board were saved by the Lyon, the colliding vessel, of the same line. The Seaford was one of the finest ships in the New Haven Dieppe service, which is much patronized by Americans.

She left Dieppe under a bright sky and with a smooth sea. Shortly before four o'clock she ran into a dense fog. What followed is clearly told by Craig A. Marsh, a well-known Plainfield lawyer:

"I had been sitting near the rail on the port side about amidships. Five minutes before the collision I went below with a friend. We felt the shock, but it was not greater than sometimes when the Jersey ferryboats bumps against the New York dock.

"I hurried on deck and found the side of the ship crushed in. There was a wedge-shaped hole just where I had been sitting. Three passengers who had been sitting with me lay on the deck with broken limbs. I joined my wife on the promenade deck.

"We did not at first think the vessel was going to sink, for the officers assured us that there was no danger. We soon noticed, however, that she was getting lower in the water, which poured in a steady stream into the side of the ship. Two compartments had been broken open.

"All the passengers received life preservers which all put on. An attempt was made to lower the boats, but it was ineffectual and presently became unnecessary. The other steamer came alongsike and the sea was so smooth that she was able to touch rail to rail. We were then settling more rapidly, and in the scramble to get on the other boat the only signs of panic occurred.

"There were a few Frenchmen who acted the part of cowards, violently pushing aside women in order to get to the rail. One woman fell overboard but a sailor jumped after her, and she was pulled out from between the two ships with a crushed foot.

"In less than ten minutes after we got aboard the Lyon our ship foundered. It was a most impressive sight. She sunk slowly, stern first. Her bow rose in the air, there was a great puff of steam when the water reached the furnaces and then, suddenly pointing her bow straight to the zenith, she disappeared. Capt. Sharp stood on the bridge of the Lyon and sadly saluted his doomed ship as the waves engulfed her."

The Arm Had to Be Reset.

Andrew Carney, Jr., of the borough, who fractured his arm some time ago, has suffered considerably ever since On Monday the doctor thought it necessary to set the arm again which necessitated breaking it. The little fellow is getting along very nicely.

Disastrous Circus Act.

Wm. Schorb was performing acrobatic feats over a clothes line at Washingtonville on Sunday, when he misjudged the distance he had to jump and tripped and fell. His hip was fractured.

Plainfield Patentee.

L. W. Hammond, of Somerset street, has just received a patent on a saucepan that bids fair to be a great success, for it does away with the possibility of burning the users hands. Mr. Hammond has also secured a patent on a window fastener.

Good Fishing.

Will Cadmus and James Mills were driven over to New Market pond early on Saturday morning. They spent the day there and when they came home they had nine fine black bass, averaging two pounds a piece.

Kenneth Bazemore had the good fortune to receive a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy when three members of his family were sick with dysentery. This one small bottle cured them all and he had some left which he gave to Geo. W. Baker, a prominent merchant of the place, Lewiston, N. C., and it cured him of of the same complaint. When troubled with dysentery, diarrhœa, colic or cholera morbus, give this remedy a trial and you will be more than pleased with the result. The praise that naturally follow its introduction and use has made it very popular. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale at Reynolds's Pharmacy, Park and North avenues; T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

GEN. HARRISON ON THE FLAG.

Patriotic and Felicitous Speech at a Flag Raising at Old Forge.

During his vacation in the Adirondacks, President Harrison delivered an address at a flag raising at Old Forge. He said:

"That flag stands to us for a sentiment, for an institution. In itself, in the combination of colors that made it, in the bunting or silk of which it is made, there is nothing. It is what it stands for that makes it dear to us. It is not the land of ours, wide and rich as it is; it is not this wonderful scenery that opens to us here, these mountain peaks, these grand lakes, these enticing summer grounds, or the great plains of the West, where while we rest the farmer is pushing the plow to fill the granaries that can feed the world; it is not this stretch of land, these rivers and mountains and plains; it is not the product of these; it is not Wall street; it is not the Produce Exchange; it is not bulk meats; it is nothing that has bulk; it is something that lives in the heart—it is an enshrined sentiment that makes this flag, and it stands for a glorious history.

"We look upon that flag, and we think of Bunker Hill, and we see a gallant band expending the last charge of ammunition, and battling with clubbed muskets over the breastworks, retiring at last defeated.

"As some one said, the Briton won the victory that day, and we kept the hill. It speaks to us of Lexington and Concord, of Saratoga, of Yorktown and of all of those great achievements. We look upon it and think of Washington. We look again and see the beaming face of Abraham Lincoln. We look again and Grant and Sherman and Sheridan are revealed to us. We see upon its folds the story of Vicksburg and Chicamauga and Chattanooga, of Gettysburg and of Appomattox. It is this story that is woven in it that makes it precious to us. It is the thought that it inspires. It is that for which it stands—a union of States—a Government of the people, for they made it, and by the people, for they conduct it, and for the people, for it has missed its object if it does not accomplish their good.

"It stands for a Government of law; for a civil organization; for a Constitution that has assigned powers. It stands for the thought that our people have pledged their loyalty to a system of laws of their own making, subject to be changed by them; but while they are laws, demanding allegiance of every man and woman in the country.

"It is because we have learned the lesson, and it seems to me the Anglo-Saxon people, or that people that has been wrought out of various contributions that have come to these shores, are the only people in this world that understand what it is to give the allegiance of the mind and of the heart to civil institutions and not to men.

"What can any man do against that flag? Let him have mounted ever so high on the roll of honor, let him have intrenched himself ever so strongly in the affections of the people, if he raises his hand against that flag he falls at once. He can lead no following against it or against our free institutions. Why is it that the South American countries that have imitated our example and organized republican Governments have been so racked and tortured with revolutions? It is because they have not learned this great lesson—to give their affections and allegiance to institutions, to a constitution, and not to a man. In their impetuosity, in their wild, unregulated thoughts of liberty, they follow a cockade and are continually led into revolution."

Animals Understand Hygiene.

Enough is now known of the nature of animal materia medica to excite interest and curiosity. There is abundant evidence that many species know and constantly make use of simple remedies for definite disorders, and at the same time observe rules of health to which only the highest civilization or the sanction of religious prescription compels man to conform.

It has been noted that the general condition of animal health, especially in the case of the herbivorous creatures, corresponds not inexactly with such tribes as the Somalis, men feeding almost solely on grain, milk, dates and water, living constantly in the open air, moderate in all things, and cleanly, because their religion enjoins constant ablutions.

Like them, wild animals have no induced diseases; the greater number do not eat to excess; they take regular exercise in seeking their food and drink only at fixed hours. Many of them secure change of climate, one of the greatest factors in health, by migration.

This is not confined to birds and beasts, for the salmon enters the soft water partly to get rid of sea parasites, and returns to the sea to recruit after spawning.

With change of climate, change of diet, and perfectly healthy habits, their list of disorders is short, though they readily fall victims to contagious disease, just as recently numbers of the Hamran Arabs of the Soudan, as healthy investigated Mussulmans as the Somalis themselves, friends and fellow-hunters with Sir Samuel Baker, perished of contagious fever on the banks of the Nile tributaries.

A Real Sacrifice.

Miss Uppercrust—She's awfully self-sacrificing. Do you know she stayed away from church last Sunday to sit with a sick friend?

Mr. Cynicus—I don't see anything so self sacrificing in that.

Miss Uppercrust—Yes; but she had just got a new hat and dress.—Leslie's Weekly.

"Yes, sir," said the promoter, "the railroad is assured. The company has been formed, the stock subscribed and the receiver appointed. Oh, we are hustlers."—Detroit Tribune.

FIFTEEN YEARS OLD, BUT A GIANT

William Ludlum White, of Jamaica is Six Feet, Three Inches in Height.

Jamaica, L. I., boasts of what is believed to be the largest boy for his years in the United States. He is William Ludlum White, only son of Arthur M. White, one of the Village Trustees.

William will be fifteen years old next October, and he is 6 feet, 3 inches in height and weighs 262 pounds.

His size and weight have at times caused him considerable trouble. When he was attending school with boys of his own age, his gigantic statue subjected him to much ridicule, but he is a good natured fellow and pays no attention to it.

William, when eleven years old, was just as tall as he is now. His father, when riding with him on a horse car, always offered the conductor half fare to pay for his son's transportation. If the conductor did not know Mr. White he would always object. Mr. White would only point to the rules, which said that three cents would be charged for children under 12 years, and so he managed to get the best of the railroad company.

Mr. White has three other children, but they are only of average size and weight. The father weighs 195 pounds and is 5 feet, 11 inches in height. His wife is tall and slender.

Pat Regan had a face on him that, as he had once remarked himself, was an "offince to the landscape." Next to his homeliness his poverty was the most conspicuous part of him. An Irish neighbor met him recently, when the following colloquy ensued:

"And how are ye, Pat?"

"Moighty bad entirely. It's shtarvation that's shtarin' me in the face."

"Is that so? Sure an' it can't be very pleasant for ayther of yez."—Montana Columbian.

The famous distillery of the Benedictine abbey at Fecamp, in France, which was destroyed by fire three years ago, has now been rebuilt, and was consecrated along with the restored abbey, a fortnight ago, by the Cardinal Archbishop of Rouen. The spectacle of an archbishop consecrating a distillery is somewhat startling, but it cannot hurt the liquor, and the archbishop doubtless has good reasons.—Buffalo Commercial.

"No, we don't pal much with the Americans," said an English sailor at Kiel. "You see, they are a mixed lot. They're Swedes and Norwegians and niggers, but I never met a sailor who was a real American, and so we don't pal with them, although we have nothing against them."

Is there something in the thirteen superstition, after all? On the 13th of this month an Ohio man left home with only 13 cents in his pocket. Exactly thirteen minutes afterward he was informed that an uncle who had recently died left him $13,000.

Iron and Prosperity.

The iron industry lies so near the foundation of commercial prosperity that great significance attaches to the rapid and steady increase of activity in that business at the great producing centers. This increase is most notable.

For the first time in many years the mills at Pittsburg are running through the hot season; the manufacturers cannot afford to stop. During the past fortnight mills that have been idle for two years have been leased and will be put in operation.

It is estimated that there are more men at work in the steel, iron and tin trades than at any time since the panic, earning larger wages and assured of steady employment into next year.

All this is made possible by the increase in the price of steel billets, on which wages and business are based. And this increase is caused by the larger demand for iron in its structural and commercial forms for use in other industries. The country is building more, is manufacturing more, is extending old enterprises and undertaking new ones; and the flush times in the iron business only reflects the prosperity growing up all over the land.

THE FREE AND EASY NORTHWEST.

Familiar Reception Accorded to a United States Senator on His Return Home.

"Last month," said a far Northwestern Senator, "I was back in my State. Something occurred to illustrate the easy, old-shoe methods of those parts and the cable familiarity of the inhabitants with even so tremendous an engine of State as a Senator. I wouldn't, however, for the world have such monuments of dignity as some of our Eastern statesmen bear of this. I'm afraid it would give them a profound nervous shock. Well, this is the story:

"I'd come to town that noon and had been busy with affairs until late into the night. It was about 1 o'clock in the morning and I'd just finished up a dinner.

"Having, as it were, exhausted what might be called the better element, and not feeling at all like sleep, I concluded to hunt up a few near friends who belonged to the fringe of society.

"It was perhaps 1.30 o'clock when I steered into a saloon known locally as the Tub of Blood. It was conducted under excellent influences, and I was a warm friend of the proprietors.

"The Tub of Blood was wide open as I turned in, but there weren't many people there; possibly seven in all.

"These—five white men and two Chinese—were at the rear of the saloon, bending zealousy to a game they call American Tan. You must know that about the only people out my way in these gold-bug days who have any money are the Chinese. The impoverished Americans have invented a particular tan game to get some of this Chinese wealth. At Chinese or fan tan the Mongols are too many for my constituents. So they have been driven to construct this Caucasian tan to make headway against the saffron invader.

"I walked down the Tub of Blood until I came up to where the tan game was raging. The dealer—friend of mine—looked up.

"'Hello, Billy, old stocking; how are you?' he said, and a look of genuine pleasure came into his face. He was glad to see me.

"'I'm first rate, Hunter,' I replied. 'How are you? Taking your hemlock right along?'

"'Sure,' said Hunter, all the time continuing to slowly deal the tan game. 'How soon you goin' back to Wash'nton, Billy?—Here, you Chinese, you can't play your money on that card. You know that as well as I do, you almond-eyed horse thief.—As I was sayin', when you goin' back East ag'in, Billy?'

"'I'll be here about a week,' I replied. 'All the boys doing well, Hunter?'

"'Tolerable,' said Hunter. 'Say, you soap-consoomin' son of a thief, you didn't win that bet. Set them chips right back on the board, or I'll have your laundry in flames in a second. Yes, Billy, boys doin' well enough. You heard about Caribou Pete marryin' Big Liz?'

"'No,' I replied. 'You know I've been pretty busy in the Senate. Don't hear much real news back East, Hunter.'

"'No! I allow not,' said Hunter. 'Before you leave Ca——. By the three Tetons, don't you short horns know how to play tan yet? Get your stuff up, an' get it quick. D'ye think I'm turnin' these kyards out of idle cur'osity to see whatever's onto 'em? No! I s'pose, Billy, you all back in Wash'nton don't hear much news till some of us jump in on you now an' then? Yes, Caribou married Big Liz, an' they're keepin' house over on the edge of camp somewheres. All they had, Caribou tells me, to begin life on, is a string of beads and a Buffalo robe. That's what I call lettin' each other in on the ground floor. Them nuptials was——. Here, you pig-tailed stiff; pick your money up thar or I'll take it away from you. You're gittin' damn lethargic sittin' over thar. What's the matter of ye? Dreamin' of China? But do you know, Billy, now I'll make a bet, even up, Caribou an' Liz will do all right. Caribou's at work every night, an' Liz's took a brace an' says she's goin' to live down the past, an' I'm allowin' she'll do it.'

"'Big Liz has shure lived down a heap of whisky in her time,' interjected one of the Americans who was playing at the game, as he meditatively placed a bet.

"'Well, I should kiss a pig,' remarked Hunter, in affirmation of the last statement. 'Big Liz has soaked more booze than Buncoed Charlie, an' he's gone crazy at it. See here, my tub-thumpin' friend, do you take me for a sucker? Now you get your chips off that card or I'll be on your neck. Next time you do that I'll hang your cue up back of the bar, just to show what happens to a Chink when he gets funny. Well, the deal's about through, Billy. Won't you take a drink?'

"'Let's make it one on me, Hunter,' I said; 'that's what I came in for.'

"There were the four Americans and two Chinese sitting in the tan game, besides my friend Hunter, who dealt it. As we started for the bar I said to the Americans, 'Come on, boys.'

"'Me, too?' said one of the Chinese, hopefully pointing to himself.

"'Yes,' I replied, 'get in.'

"So there we were, Chinese and all, drinking harmonious whiskey in the Tub of Blood. I had to smile at the thought of what Senator Hoar would probably experience in the line of sensations if he had beheld the spectacle. But that's about the way we do things in our country, and if you can't conform to local customs you might better go back East.

"'Go over an' see Caribou, Billy,' said Hunter, as I turned to leave. 'You'll find him rollin' stuff over in the Bank Exchange. He'll be tickled to death to see you. Now, you murderers, if you want another whirl at tan, come back here, an' I'll turn the clothes off your back.'"—Washington Post.

H. C. CORSA GETS OUT NOW.

COLONEL WARING SUMMARILY FIRES THE PLAINFIELD MAN.

Said to Have Been Discharged Because He Was a Friend of Colonel Chas. K. Moore — Mandamus Proceedings.

Col. Waring, street cleaner, and Plainfielders do not seem to get along very well. H. C. Corsa, of this city, has had a spat with the Colonel and is now out of a job as will be seen from the following which appeared in the Sun this morning:

H. C. Corsa was in the employ of the Central Railroad of New Jersey when he was appointed foreman in the street cleaning department by ex-Deputy Commissioner Charles K. Moore last January, a few days after Moore had been appointed. He was a war veteran with a four years' record and he brought with him the best of recommendations.

Several times he was complimented verbally and by letter by Commissioner Waring, who also forwarded to him letters from various persons who commended his work, among whom was Mrs. Mary Jay Schieffelin, of 242 East Fifteenth street. He it was whom Waring put at the head of the forces which were to clear the streets of trucks, and in the fight with VanTassell & Kearny's men in East Thirteenth street three months ago Corsa had two ribs broken. Then, after publicly commending him, Col. Waring made him district superintendent.

On August 8th, Corsa received the following letter:

Sir: This is a private letter, and no record will be made of it.

I request your immediate resignation of your office of district superintendent.

GEORGE F. WARING, Jr.

Yesterday Mr. Corsa received the following letter:

Sir: Upon evidence satisfactory to me that you are guilty of neglect of duty and disobedience of orders in that you have made reports to me which are not sustained by the facts and that you have caused the foremen of your district—or some of them—to meet you or to wait for you at the department dump after having been ordered by the Superintendent not to do so, you are dismissed, and your position of District Superintendent in the Department of Street Cleaning is vacated from and after this date.

GEORGE E. WARING, Jr.,
Commissioner.

Mr. Corsa immediately turned this notice over to Alderman Olcott who is preparing papers for mandamus proceedings.

Corsa went the next day to get an explanation from the Colonel, but the latter had gone to Newport to give that town its share of his time. On Monday morning, however, Corsa found the Colonel at breakfast at the Century Club.

"Commissioner," he said, "I don't understand at all what this means."

"It means," answered Col. Waring with his most brusque air, "just what it says."

"But are there any charges against me?" asked Corsa.

"None whatever," said Waring (according to Mr. Corsa.)

"Then what is the reason of this?"

"It's a feeling of mine that I want you to resign," answered Waring, and, turning on his heel, he left Corsa, to get what consolation he could out of it.

Corsa immediately went to see ex-Deputy Commissioner Moore, who had appointed him, and the latter took him to Alderman Olcott, who is a lawyer. The Alderman accepted the case and said at once that Waring had exceeded his powers. Chapter 716 of the Laws of 1894 says that no veteran shall be removed from public office except on account of charges of incompetency or neglect of duty, and that the burden of proving these charges shall rest on the removing officer. And the second section of this chapter says that if the removing officer fails to comply with this law, both in spirit and in letter, he shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor.

Alderman Olcott thought that the matter could be amicably settled if Col. Waring was informed that he had exceeded his authority, and on Monday afternoon, in company with Mr. Corsa, he called on Mayor Strong and told him the facts in the case. The Mayor said he would look into it, and sent for Col. Waring.

Col. Waring told the Mayor that he had no charges against Corsa, but that he would consult with his subordinates and find some. Then the Mayor called in Mr. Corsa, and, saying nothing about Waring's determination to find charges, said, in substance:

"You had better go back to your place in the Jersey Central which you left. Col. Waring has no charges against you, but your life will be most unpleasant in the department on account of the ill-will he bears you."

Mr. Corsa immediately told Mr. Olcott about that, and later in the day the latter went to see the Mayor. In the meantime Col. Waring had found what he considered the necessary charges, and told the Mayor so, and when Mr. Olcott saw Mayor Strong the latter told him that charges had been made, and that the matter would have to take the regular course.

The real reason of Col. Waring's determination to get rid of Corsa is said to be that he is an appointee and a friend of Charles K. Moore. Moore, it will be remembered, was discharged by Waring because, it is said, he was unable to get along with Mme. Carrie. George Gore, the old ball player, was Corsa's assistant, and was also appointed by Moore. It is said that he is to go, and, as he is not a veteran, nothing will hinder his discharge.

ANXIOUS OVER UNION.

Foster Voorhees's Friends Worried Over the Condition of His Fences.

Assemblyman Charles N. Codding, who is one of the Voorhees boomers in Union county, was in Elizabeth a day or two ago discussing the political situation with some of the Republican leaders. The Assemblyman is much agitated over a report that the Griggs men are claiming that their favorite will get fifteen votes out of Union county, if no choice be made on the first ballot taken at the convention. The backers of Senator Rogers, of Camden, are also claiming that he will get seven votes in the Union delegation.

Mr. Codding has become alarmed over these rumors, and hence his trip to Elizabeth to confer with the managers of the Voorhees boom. The Assemblyman also had a chat while here with some of John Kean's staunchest supporters, to whom he did not hesitate to mention his fears as to the alleged strength of the Griggs following in Union county. Mr. Codding wants, he says, by all means a man from this county to carry off the prize, and if it can't be his friend Voorhees, then John Kean, it is said, is his second choice.

A Progtessive Company.

The New York and New Jersey Telephone Company, with headquarters at Elizabeth, has decided to equip its inspectors and linemen with bicycles so that they can reach points of trouble on the lines sooner. This conclusion, it is announced, was reached at a meeting held in Brooklyn on Thursday by the managers of the various branches of the company. It is also said in support of the change that the work can be done more economically by the aid of the wheel. Monday is the time fixed for the new arrangement to go into effect.

The train was backing towards Flemington, and Botsford alleges carelessness on the part of the trainmen.

FASCINATING, EXHILARATING.

THAT IS A PROPER DESCRIPTION OF PLAYING GOLF.

Samuel S. Tucker, an Expert, Declares the Hillside Club Grounds Naturally Adapted for This Great Game—Points.

Samuel S. Tucker, who was in the city yesterday making an inspection of the ground where the golf course of the Hillside Tennis Club is to be located, expressed himself to a Daily Press reporter as being highly pleased with the selection made by the committee who have the matter in charge. Mr. Tucker is the expert of the St. Andrew golf course at Yonkers, which was the first and is the best in the country, and holds several championships in playing this game of fascination and healthfulness. He says that the ground selected is splendidly adapted for the game in the fact of its being well supplied with hazards, while in most courses they have to be artificially supplied.

The Hillside Club course will be two miles square and will probably be ready for use in practice by the latter part of September, and will provide ample room for from forty to fifty persons to engage in the game at the same time. The contestants will be obliged to cover four miles in playing the regulation game, which will take about an hour. There will be nine holes on this course, and the greens which it will be necessary to construct will eventually become as smooth as a billiard table. The game is one that can be played by young as well as old and is bound to become a popular pastime and recreation among Plainfielders.

The players use a set of clubs which are carried by a boy, who hands them to the player as the exigency of the playing demands. The golf ball, which is made of gutta percha and weighs 27½ drams, is started from the first T with the club termed the driver, which drives it to the first hole in the first green and then alternately on to each hole until all have been covered. The clubs are called the driver, cleek, iron, mashie, lofter, putter and brassie. They cost $2.25 each, while the ball costs 25 to 35 cents.

During practice yesterday afternoon on the ground where the course is to be built, Mr. Tucker put the ball 210 yards.

SHIP CANAL ACROSS JERSEY.

A PLAN TO CONNECT THE DELAWARE RIVER WITH RARITAN BAY.

The Estimated Cost of Building Such a Water Way is $24,124,700—Operating Expenses About $250,000 a Year.

There is now being revived the project of a ship canal across New Jersey, to connect the Delaware river with Raritan river and Raritan bay. The eastern terminus of the canal as proposed would be within a mile and a half of the steamboat dock, and just outside the city limits of New Brunswick. Its effect would be practically to make New Brunswick a seaport town.

Unlike the Delaware and Raritan Canal, which is suitable only for vessels of the shallowest draught, the proposed canal would be navigable for war ships, ocean steamers, and the largest cruisers, freighters or passenger steamships. The Raritan would be deepened to accommodate the larger vessels, and New Brunswick would be at the head of a practical deep water harbor.

The scheme is being fostered by Philadelphia enthusiasts, although the Boards of Trade in nearly every city of New Jersey have adopted resolutions endorsing the plan and urging Congress to take action in the matter.

Inasmuch as it is proposed that this canal shall bisect New Jersey, it is a matter of great interest to New Jersey people generally, and a few of the facts reported by the commission will prove good reading.

From Philadelphia the Delaware river is to be followed to Bordentown, 26 miles. Then the canal proper begins, the water to be supplied from the Delaware river. The proposed canal is to be 24 feet deep and 100 to 180 feet wide. From Bordentown it is to run to Lawrence, thence to Princeton Junction, in which vicinity it would tap the streams and ponds numerous in "Great Bear Swamps," and thus increase its water supply greatly. Thence it runs in a northeast course, a short distance east of the Pennsylvania railroad, until it taps a "proposed lake" not far from Milltown, the lake to arise from the damming of Lawrence's brook. Thence it takes a practically straight course southeast, following Lawrence's brook and opening into the Raritan river near the mouth of the brook, which is there known as Cremeline's creek, and empties into the Raritan a short distance from New Brunswick. The whole distance thus to be traversed by the canal between the Delaware and the Raritan is 31¼ miles. The total distance from Philadelphia across the State to the Atlantic Ocean, near Sandy Hook, is 78 miles, and to New York 92 miles. By way of Cape May and the ocean these distances are 260 and 274 miles respectively, so it may be readily seen what great time and distances would be saved to commerce by such a canal.

The commission carefully estimated the cost of building such a canal, with suitable locks, some of the latter being three abreast, and have found it to be $24,124,700. But this does not include the expense of cleaning out and properly preparing the waterway in the Delaware and Raritan rivers. This latter work would have to be done by the United States Government, and could not be well taken into account in this report. The operating expenses of the whole are estimated at $250,000 a year. It is further estimated that with so great a saving of time between New York and Philadelphia, upwards of 12 hours, would draw an immense amount of traffic through such a canal, as nearly all that now goes around Cape May would, it is claimed, pass directly across New Jersey, saving time and expense. In order to pay the running expenses the canal would have to carry 3,333,333 tons of freight annually, but the commission claims that this is less than half the traffic they can confidently count upon.

Trolley Succeeds the Old Horse.

Yesterday the first electric car of the Consolidated Traction Company was run from Newark to Bloomfield. The old horse ceased to run at the same time. One track is completed and the horsecar track is being torn up to make room for the second trolley road. The North Jersey Street Railway Company will continue the road from the present terminus to the Montclair town line. A franchise from Montclair is wanted to make the trolley road continuous from Newark to Caldwell borough, a distance of about nine miles.

Another Industry for Union County.

WILD MAN OF ELMORA CAUGHT.

The Old Man a Lunatic, Threatens Women and Shows Fight.

For several weeks a man has been roaming about the woods of Elmora, frightening timid women and children by demanding food and money, and at times he has been insulting. The people dubbed him the "wild man of the woods." Yesterday afternoon he appeared at the residence of Dr. H. L. Anderson and began pounding on the door. His manner terrified the women and they asked him to leave. He got furious at this, and with a stout oak cudgel he battered the doors and smashed the windows in the new house, shouting, "Come out until I pump your blood away!" Having wreaked his vengeance on the house, the madman retreated to the woods.

A message was sent to the Elizabeth police, and Detective Decker, with Policeman Tucker, hastened to Elmora to capture the maniac. They entered the wood and saw him leaning against a tree. Tucker approached him from the front and Detective Decker from the rear. The latter, when he got close enough, sprang forward and kicked the club out of the madman's hand and then grabbed him. Quick as a flash the man stooped and, seizing a long, sharp-pointed case knife which was lying in a basket, made a lunge at Decker's breast. Tucker seized his descending arm and probably saved Decker's life. The latter drew his blackjack and hit the madman several times over the knuckles before he would let go the knife. He struggled desperately with the officers, but was overpowered and taken to Elizabeth Police Headquarters.

He gave his name as Herman Lauterbach, aged seventy-seven. The rest of his talk was incoherent raving. He is powerfully built and well-preserved. Where he came from is a mystery. It is about six weeks since he was first seen at Elmora. He will be kept at Elizabeth Headquarters a few days. It is thought he escaped from some madhouse.

SEWERS AND TROLLEY.

They Are Helping to Develop Union County in Many Ways.

The advent of the trolley in the city of Elizabeth has been a boon to the town. It is the general opinion that there has been more bustle, life and activity to be seen about the streets since the trolley came about six weeks ago than could be seen in any year of the city's history prior to that time. People seem to move more actively, to feel livelier and to work with more energy. They not only feel better, they feel richer, evidently convinced that their property, which has been stagnant for the best part of a generation, has been made valuable. This feeling even permeated the minds of the assessors. Notwithstanding the former stagnation in business, a gratifying increase was found in the value of taxable property. Throughout the entire county the same spirit prevails. Wherever one journeys to Summit, to Plainfield, through Westfield and Rahway, there are evidence of renewed life and activity. No doubt the chief factors in the prosperity of the county outside of Elizabeth, are our admirable system of county roads, the trolleys already in Plainfield and Rahway, and others in the talking stage of development, and last though probably not least, is the large and growing systems of waterworks established by the Plainfield and Union companies, which spread over a very large and growing section of the county from El Mora to North Plainfield. These water companies have, during the past four or five years, laid over seventy miles of mains, and are supplying pure and wholdsome wates to nearly two thousand families.

Another great improvement now under way which is destined to be of inestimable benefit to the county are the four sewer systems under construction in Plainfield, Westfield, Cranford and Roselle, all of which will probably be completed early in the fall. With good roads, live people, good water, trolley, here and coming, and sewer systems in course of construction, with no oppressive debt, it is difficult to see what can prevent the continued rapid growth and development of the resources of Union county. —New Jersey Contractor.

A Bad Westfield Dog.

Wednesday night John Stoll, section foreman on the Lehigh Valley railroad, was attacked by his Newfoundland dog and both his arms and hands and his nose were terribly lacerated. The dog had always been a great pet and was kept as a protector for Mrs. Stoll, who is station agent at Ash Brook. Mr. Stoll was walking on the lawn at the time the animal attacked him. The dog was shot and Dr. Harrison, of Westfield, dressed Mr. Stoll's wounds.

Summons Issued.

ANGLING SPORTS IN TROUBLE

BUT THE PROOF OF WHO OWNED THE FISH DID NOT APPEAR.

And in Consequence the New Market Disciples of Isaac Walton Escaped From the Meshes of the Law—Wrathy Lawyers

It is not often that the quiet little village of New Market is aroused, but such it was Thursday morning when the case of the New Jersey Fish and Game Wardens, represented by Lawyer W. W. Howland, of Perth Amboy, against Alexander Harris and Charles Drake, represented by Lawyer George W. DeMeza, of this city, was tried before Justice Storms.

The defendents were charged with violating the game and fish laws by drawing a net in Cedar brook, for the purpose of catching fish.

The plaintiffs open their case and placed on the stand W. J. Clawson, of South Plainfield, who testified that on the morning of June 20th as he was returning home he saw a number of men fishing with a net in Cedar brook and upon investigation learned who they were, among whom being Alexander Harris and Charles Drake, of New Market.

The net was full of fish which he testified were dumped back in the brook, and upon closer examination he discovered two carp in a boiler.

On close cross-examination Lawyer De Meza brought out the facts that witness saw Mr. Brower, Mr. Drake and Mr. Harris standing near the net.

Witness said that he did not know who drew the net or who owned it, as there were others present. He also said that he saw no carp caught, nor any fish taken from the brook. Mr. Clawson's son, H. P. Clawson, testified substantially the same.

Lawyer De Meza made several motions for non-suits during the trial, but they were refused. He also made one after the State rested their case, and after a heated discussion between counsel, the Court refused to grant non-suits.

Upon opening the case by the defendants, another legal fight ensued, whereupon Mr. De Meza accused the fish commissioner of having prostituted his office.

The lawyers exchanged words which were not complimentary. Thereupon Mr. DeMeza was forced to open the case, in which he found that Mr. Drake and Mr. Brower were present when the net was drawn. They did not attempt to take fish from the brook. During cross-examination of Mr. Brower counsel for plaintiff asked Justice Storms a question which defendant's counsel objected to. The court ordered the question answered, but Mr. DeMeza refused to let witness answer. Fully a half hour was consumed in the dispute.

After the evidence had been adduced Mr. DeMeza asked the court if it was necessary for him to go out and draw his breath to sum up the case. Justice Storm decided that the arguments set forth by defendants counsel and the evidence of the defendants themselves was sufficient to dismiss the case which he judiciously did. There was a shake all around and the excitement was over.

A STRANGE AND FATAL DISEASE.

It Has Killed Four of Eugene Wilson's Children and Two More Are Ill.

Many of the people of Elizabeth who have families of grown-up children have become alarmed recently at the ravages of a disease which, if not really new, has at any rate proved itself beyond the skill of doctors to cure. Within a month it has carried off four children in one family, and two more children of the same family seem about to die of it.

The mysterious malady is in the family of Eugene Wilson, who is well known in Elizabeth, and who is employed at the Singer Sewing Machine Works at Elizabethport. On July 25th, Esther, the baby, and Eugene, one of the twins, were taken ill, and Dr. Montfort was called in. Two days later he reported to Health Inspector Putnam that there were two cases of whooping cough in Mr. Wilson's family. Then came the peculiar symptoms which each child in the family has shown in turn, due, the doctors say, to a combination of whooping cough and measles. The rash of the measles appeared at first, Mr. Wilson says, and then it went in again.

Three days after Dr. Montfort had reported the cases of Esther and Eugene both these children had died, within a few hours of each other. On the same day, July 30th, Philip, aged 3, was taken ill. He died on August 8th. He was buried the next day, when Annie, the eldest of the young family, was taken down. She died last Wednesday. Before her death, Eddie, the other twin, fell a victim of the malady, and on Thursday the last one of the children, Lillie, six years old, was found to be ill of the same disease.

SAVED HIS BOOTS.

About the Only Satisfaction the Old Man Had On the Modern Train.

The old man had just arrived at his son's house from the country.

"Well, father," said the boy, "I hope you came through in the sleeping car, as I told you to, and had a good night's sleep."

The old man smiled a sickly, sarcastic smile.

"Oh, yes," he said, "I had a good sleep; first rate sleep; went to bed early."

"Did you wake up during the night?"

"Only twicet; only went to sleep twicet."

"Say, father," said the young man, "you've got two great bumps on the top of your forehead. What have you been doing?"

"Them's the two times I woke up. Passed another train both times, an' when I heard the big engine whizzin' by, an' the bell ringin' I thought 'twas a fire, an' jumped up slam agin' the ceilin'. It's lucky I was awake one time, though."

"Why, how so?"

"The high an' mighty importer that laughed when I ast to go to my room early in the evenin' was sneakin' off with my boots."

"Why, he was only going to shine them for you."

"Oh, go 'way," said the old man. "I never ast him to shine 'em. Any way, I took 'em to bed with me after that, an' never slep' another wink. Say, Henry, you ain't got an old pair of suspenders, have you?"

"I guess I can find a pair for you—yes."

"Busted mine tryin' to put my pantaloons on lyin' down. Done it though. Got all dressed laying flat—boots, pantaloons, coat, collar and necktie—hull business."

"Why didn't you get out of your berth to put on your collar and coat?"

"Wimmin in the car. Got a handy place where I kin wash up, Henry? There was a well o' water in the car an' I pumped some, but the train was going so fast I couldn't stand at the sink. Say, Henry, what time's dinner ready? I'm so hungry I kin eatin' my whiskers."

"Didn't you get breakfast in the dining car, as I told you to?"

"Oh, yes," said the old man; "oh, yes; but I didn't want to go it too expensive, so I told the feller I'd just take a cup of coffee an' some buckwheat cakes."

"Pretty light breakfast, that's so," said Henry.

"Yes," said the old man, "light breakfast—two pancakes."

"Well, come downstairs and we'll fix up something to eat right away. You mustn't wait for dinner."

"Charged me a dollar," continued the old man. "Feller sat next to me eating grapes and oranges and oysters and stewed chicken and boiled eggs, and I don't know what all. When we got back in the bedroom car I told him I calculated that breakfast he et cost $1.8. And then he told me breakfast was $1 anyway, whether you et much or little. You'd oughter wrote me about that, Henry."

"Well, father, a man can ride pretty comfortably nowadays, after he gets used to it," said Henry, as he started to lead the old gentleman to the bathroom for a wash.

"Oyes, oyes, a man can ride all right when he knows how," replied the old man, and the smile lasted till he started to wash his face from the faucets over the bathtub.—Rehoboth Sunday Herald.

Origin of Christian Endeavorers.

The first national convention of the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor was held in Portland, Me. (its birthplace), in 1882. The membership then was 481, comprising six societies. At the twelfth convention, held in Cleveland, O., in June, 1894, 28,741 societies, with a membership of 1,724,400, were represented.

Rev. Dr. Francis E. Clark, of the Williston Church, of Portland, Me., was the originator of the society. Being desirous of interesting the young people in church work he invited them to his house and talked to them about it, and their enthusiasm being aroused, he asked them to sign this pledge:

"Trusting in the Lord Jesus Christ for strength, I promise Him that I will strive to do whatever He would like to have me do; that I will pray to Him and read the Bible every day, and that, just so far as I know how, throughout my whole life, I will endeavor to lead a Christian life. As an active member I promise to be true to all my duties, to be present at and to take some part aside from singing in every meeting, unless hindered by some reason which I can conscientiously give to my Lord and master, Jesus Christ. If obliged to be absent from the monthly consecration meeting, I will, if possible, send an excuse for my absence to the society."

The first name subscribed to this pledge was that of F. H. Pennell, who has ever since been prominent in the society. It was not long before every church in Portland had a similar society. A member of Williston Church moved to Lincoln, Neb., and carried the idea there. Another member moved to South Hadley, Mass., and started a society there. And as it spread, not only throughout this country, but to foreign countries, until it has reached every civilized country in the globe, and, in fact, some which are not civilized.

Nerving Himself Up.

The Major came softly down from his room on the floor above and opened my door with an expression of deep anxiety on his face.

"Can you tell me," he said, "of a dentist that hurts. I want to suffer pain."

"Real, genuine pain?" I inquired calmly, for I was too much used to the Major's eccentricities to be surprised.

"Yes sir," he replied, beginning to pace the floor rapidly. "I want a man that will hurt. I propose to have several teeth out. That's one of the things I thought of. But there are others. Yes, others," he continued, his face flushing with emotion. "For instance, I would like to meet a man that would like to argue politics with me. I want a formidable man. I want to get him mad. If he calls me out so much the better. I must have excitement. Can you suggest anything?"

"Why, yes," I responded carelessly. "You might take a ride in a hospital ambulance. Why not take a poem to an editor I know? or I can get a ticket to the afternoon session of a young woman's emancipation club. Is that satisfactory?"

"As far as it goes," replied the Major, increasing his pace. "I must be aroused, I tell you. Nothing is too dangerous for me to attempt. Oh, for one of those battles that I have been in! Give me those tickets. I must see that dentist at once and arrange for a couple of hours of agony. I want to call a man out before supper. I must——"

"But why?" I interrupted. "Tell me why."

"Young man," said the Major, impressively, stopping suddenly and facing me "I will tell you. I am in love with the dearest, sweetest, most angelic piece of widowhood that ever drew breath. I have sworn to propose to her at 11:30 tomorrow morning by the clock, and I've got to do something to lead up to it."—Life.

New Albany's Smart Sparrows.

New Albany, Ind., has a very fine little library of some 8,000 odd volumes, and the residents of that city claim that the intellectual status of the town is improving so rapidly that all other cities in the neighborhood will soon be left far in the rear.

It is even asserted that the New Albany English sparrow knows more than the Louisville sparrow. At a well-known Spring street grocery in New Albany is a peanut roaster, accompanied by a bin of peanuts always open to view. The smart sparrows of that vicinity watch their chance, pounce down upon a peanut bin, pluck a big, fat peanut, carry it across the street, and open and devour it with great gusto and hilarity.

And a legal gentleman of untarnished veracity asserts that he knows English sparrows which have long made a practice of riding on electric cars. He has seen them get on the roof of a car down street, and stay there until the car has taken them up to the locality which they desired to visit.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

The venerable John A. Bingham, who was once a great power in Ohio politics and was for many years Minister to Japan, is still living in Cadiz, the county seat of Harrison County, Ohio. In a recent address before the students of Franklin College he emphasized his belief in a life beyond the grave. He said:

"Ingersoll and others ridicule my belief in a future life. I think I have the better of them. If I am mistaken, I never be conscious of it; neither will they. If they are mistaken I shall be conscious of it, and so will they. Therefore I think I have the advantage of them."

The World discussing the subject "Is Man or Woman Most Beautiful?" What nonsense.

Many a man will fight for his creed, who never has a word of encouragement for his wife.—Rams Horn.

When things are on the drop people generally complain. But nothing but words of praise are heard about the action of the thermometer for the last two days.

Frank Magowan denies the story that he went to Oklahoma to secure a divorce from his wife. If the denial is the truth Mr. Magowan is not as bad as pictured.

At the present rate a whale may soon be expected to visit Asbury Park, and about the first thing he should do is to swallow the man who says a seal was caught on the beach yesterday.

For almost all that keeps up in us, permanently and effectually, the spirit of regard for liberty and the public good we must look to the unshackled and independent energies of the press.—Hamlin.

The News complains about the filching tactics of the New Brunswick Home News in appropriating editorials from it without credit. The Daily Press has the same complaint to make against the New Brunswick Times. New Brunswick evidently has editors who are editors only because they have gaul and scissors.

The German government has issued a rescript, ordering that steamship companies shall be liable to refund to the government all the expenses entailed upon it through the rejection by the United States of emigrants or by emigrants to whom the companies have sold tickets who are left destitute while on the way to the point of embarkation.

A so-called electric shaving mirror has made its appearance in England. The electric feature consists of a beveled frame of translucent material, behind which is an incandescent lamp and reflector. The light is thus thrown directly upon the face of the user, with an entire absence of shadow. The lamp has a flexible cord and socket attached, and can be connected instantly with any existing electric fixture.

One of the latest discoveries in connection with the development and extension of the telephone business, says an exchange, is the result which it has had upon the railroad business, and consequently upon the hotel business. It is no doubt true that much of the business that formerly required a trip to New York, Philadelphia or Chicago by Boston business men is now transacted by means of the long distance telephone.

Clapp & Company, the New York brokers, have the following to say in their weekly market letter:

When rivulets are full the rivers are swollen to unusual proportions. When farmers and planters have plenty, merchants, manufacturers and employees each get their share. The railways are the servants of adverse circumstances, and the masters of themselves only when worked to full capacity. The sunlight kisses a prosperous country that is rejoicing in plentiful harvests, fair wages, fair wages and moderate prices.

Justice Van Syckel, of the Supreme Court, says that the decision in the case which seeks to determine the constitutionality of the Voorhees Elective Judiciary bill will not be rendered until the March term of the Court. As that will be after election, it is taken to mean that the law will be sustained, as the Court would hardly let the counties go to the expense of holding an election under the law if they proposed to declare it unconstitutional.

When the New Brunswick Home News expresses itself as having "thought that there was enough enterprise in the pretty little town of Somerville to counteract such slothfulness as the county fathers are exhibiting" in the matter of stone roads it displays an error of judgement. Somerville has citizens who are enterprising in many directions but in road improvement Bound Brook and North Plainfield must be given the credit of bringing or attempting to bring the Somerset Board of Freeholders to a realization to their duties. —Bound Brook Chronicle.

The average New Yorker, born and bred in the metropolis, is about the most provincial individual in existence.

Plant a good man anywhere in this world, and the devil will immediately begin walking up and down in that neighborhood—Rams Horn.

The Elizabeth Journal's editorials on the weather each day are filled with a zest of comment that is quite refreshing for such a mooted subject.

Senator Edward C. Stokes, of Bridgeton, is publicly committed to the candidacy of Senator Foster M. Voorhees for Governor and is openly working to secure for him as many delegates as possible.

The Daily Press says: "Plainfield can never be thoroughly Roosevelted as long as hard cider is sold the way it is." The same complaint will hold good in Morristown, the sale on Sundays being especially abundant.—Morristown Chronicle.

Ex-Governor James E. Campbell is positive in his declaration that he will not again accept the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in Ohio. He states that such an acceptance involves a great deal of expense which he is not willing to assume.

Frank A. Magowan, whose unexplained absence from his business interests and home at Trenton a couple of weeks ago caused considerable comment, now states that he was in Dokota endeavoring to establish a residence whereby he could secure a divorce from his wife, which the New Jersey courts had refused him. Under these circumstances the prospects of the young man to receive political preferment are not very bright.

Senator Hoar's letter to an A. P. A. fanatic and ignoramus is a well-deserved rebuke to the intolerant secret society which has lately taken such a high hand in the politics of Massachusetts. In connection with his letter, Mr. Hoar publishes a circular sent to him by the A. P. A., purporting to tell something about the tenets of Roman Catholicism. We are informed in this printed missive, in equal defiance of snytax and of truth, that the Catholic church holds that "all human power is from evil, and must therefore be standing under the Pope." Other tenets of the church, according to this circular, are these:

"The Pope has the right to give countries and nations which are non-Catholic to Catholic regents, who can reduce them to slavery.

"The Pope can make slaves of those Christian subjects whose prince of ruling power is interdicted by the Pope.

"The Pope has the right to annul State laws, treaties, constitutions, etc.; to absolve from obedience thereto as soon as they seem detrimental to the rights of the Church or those of the clergy.

"The Pope has the right to absolve from oaths and obedience to the persons and laws of the princes whom he excommunicates.

"The Pope can annul all legal relations of those in ban, especially their marriages.

"He who kills one who is excommunicated is no muderer in a legal sense."

Every one of these statements is a glaring untruth, but it is charitable to suppose that the persons who put them in print and sent them around "to frighten old women of both sexes" are not conscious liars, but simply weak-minded persons who were told these things in their infancy, and have never learned anything since infancy. There was a time (and it is within the memory of those still living) when all orthodox persons in New England believed that the Church of Rome was the Scarlet Woman of the Apocalypse. Probably Mr. Hoar was taught this doctrine in his youth by pious parents and instructors, who were just as much convinced of its truth as they were that the world was made in six days. The difference between him and the A. P. A. fanatic to whom he writes is that he has learned something as he grew older, while the other man is as great an ignoramus as ever.—New York Evening Post.

A Great Success.

There are many remarkable successes on the road this season, but none exceed the popularity enjoyed by the latest New York success, "A Midnight Frolic." Press and public accord it an ovation wherever presented. The scenic effects are superb, the story an intense and interesting one, unlike the many unreasonable and unnatural plays with which the public are surfeited. It is full of hearty laughter, bright and catchy music, the most sensational climaxes. The company is one of the strongest on the road.

WHAT IMPROVES THE CITY.

Time and Fashion a Leveller of Fences and a Maker of Beauty.

A few years ago a man of taste visited Plainfield who had once been a land-owner here and still had sufficient interest in the welfare of the city to care for whatever made or marred its beauty. Passing through the streets, he made the criticism that the fences about the yards projected so far into the streets that a narrow effect was given the thoroughfares, and he suggested that it would be well for Plainfielders to agitate the subject of lessening the front yards by setting fences farther back and thus widening the sidewalks and giving a broader street effect.

If the critic were to visit Plainfield now, he would be greatly delighted that time and fashion have accomplished more than was included in his suggestion. In a number of streets the fences have been entirely removed and broad avenues merged into grassy lawns with no belittling barriers. The effect is good, and what one loses in privacy is more than compensated by the width and beauty of the unbroken stretch of lawn reaching from street to street. The removal of the last fence from the east side of Grove street, between Park place and Mercer avenue is a cause for congratulation. The whole block is vastly improved, and each place shares in the improvement.

GROUND SOON TO BE BROKEN.

Bids Being Received on Powlison & Jones New Building.

Plainfield seems especially lucky this year in the number of fine new buildings that are being put up. The plans for the new building of Powlison & Jones have been completed by the architect by the architects, Clum & Lancaster, and estimates are now being received. They will be opened the first part of next week, and as soon as the contract is awarded ground will be broken.

The building which is to be located on East Front street, between Park and Watchung avenues, is to be a three-story structure, forty-five feet wide by one hundred feet long, of light brick with terra cotta trimmings. Large display windows will be made in the first and second stories, and an arcade on the third floor.

The building will be an ornament to the city, and one of the finest furniture stores in the vicinity.

GREAT HOPES ENTERTAINED.

Westfield People Hate to Give Up the Idea of Not Finding Oil.

The World this morning publishes the following from Westfield concerning the oil scare:

The oil vein found in a sewer trench here Saturday, continues to run. The flow is continuous, and there is no decrease in its strength. People familiar with the locality recall that a decade ago large quantities of casked petroleum were stored in an outbuilding about eighty rods from the present discovery, and attribute this strange flow to percolation. This is hardly probable, as no water-shed flow or any diversion or percolation could possibly bring the fluid in that direction. There are no pipe lines in this vicinity, nor any quantity of oil stored in town.

Experts say the fluid is rich and has every evidence of coming from a direct mineral force. Steps will shortly be taken by W. W. Gilby and H. B. Kurzhals, wealthy property-owners controlling the course of the vein, to open it through their property with a view of determing its value.

The sewer contractors have been forced to keep pumps in constant operation in the trench all day that their work might go on.

Help for our Working-Girls and Women Near at Hand.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

N the stroke of six ends the day's work at stores, offices, factories, mills, where women are employed. But their necessary work at home, sewing, mending, etc., must be done after that time, and "their work is never done."

All women work; some for ambition, some for economy in the household, but the great mass of women work for their daily bread. All are subject to the same physical laws; all suffer alike from the same physical disturbances, and the nature of their duties often quickly drifts them into the horrors of all kinds of female complaints, ovarian troubles, inflammation, ulceration, falling and displacement of the womb, leucorrhœa, and perhaps irregular or suppressed "monthly periods," causing severe backache, loss of appetite, nervousness, irritability and weakness.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the unfailing cure for all these troubles. It strengthens the proper muscles, and cures displacement.

Backache, dizziness, fainting, bearing-down, disordered stomach, moodiness, dislike of friends and society—all symptoms of the one cause—will be quickly dispelled. Write Mrs. Pinkham about your trouble.

MR. SEBRING INDIGNANT.

TROUBLE BETWEEN TWO ELECTRIC COMPANIES THIS MORNING.

Part of the Machinery Used in Lighting Dunellen Placed in an Open Lot Near the Borough Plant.

When the Edison Electric Light Company of North Plainfield changed hands a few weeks ago and was consolidated with the Plainfield company there was a mutual understanding between Dr. Justus H. Cooley, A. V. Manning and Charles Sebring, of the borough plant, and the purchasers, that all the portion of the Dunellen line, such as the copper wire, engine and the exciter, which were used in lighting up a part of the borough, the owners were to be given a reasonable time in which to remove the machinery to the Bound Brook station, which is located in the lower end of the township of North Plainfield at Sebring's Mills. Mr. Sebring has had workmen engaged in taking down the copper wire and making cut-outs, and on Saturday evening over in the West End of the borough there were no lights in some of the residences and a portion of the street lights were also out.

The manager of the Plainfield plant yesterday had the engine belonging to the Dunellen plant taken out of the station and placed in an adjoining lot. Today Mr. Sebring brought men to the Edison station in the borough to remove the engine and also to make the necessary cut-outs. Upon his arrival he was surprised to see the engine belonging to the Dunellen plant placed in the vacant lot next to the station. Mr. Sebring was a trifle indignant and claimed that while he had lighted up that portion of the borough where he had cut out and another portion he had to dead-end to accommodate the new company for the first sixteen days of the present month it was rather a bad return for the favors he had extended the new owners.

Appreciated Concerts.

The second in the series of the band concerts was given Saturday night and was a great success. The attendance was larger than at the first one and the programme was finely rendered. The illuminations were noticeable for their number. One selection, Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, the Boy's are Marching, was so well given that it stirred the hearts of the veterans present. The author of the popular selection, Mr. Root, died in Chicago last week.

The people of Plainfield thoroughly appreciate these concerts as is evidenced by the way in which they attend them.

A News Lie.

G. Sutterlin, of Greenbrook road, denies the article that appeared in Saturday's News stating that he had purchased a stylish horse in New York. Mr. Sutterlin has not purchased any horse nor does he think of purchasing any.

A Pressing Need.

The need of old linen at the Muhlenberg hospital is very pressing, and any contributions of this article would be highly appreciated by those in charge.

MYSTERIOUS CONFLAGRATION

FIRE IN THE CELLAR OF A HOUSE WITHOUT APPARENT CAUSE.

The Department Was Quick to Respond and Prevented Serious Damage—Structure Owned by J. Smith, Who Was Away.

A very mysterious fire occurred at the home of James Smith on Elmwood place last Monday. It was 5:20 when the alarm was sent in from Box 46 located at the corner of Liberty and West Second streets.

Shortly after five o'clock Edward Mosher, who lives a few doors above, left his home for the North Avenue station to take the train for Somerville, where he works in the Woollen mills. When he passed Mr. Smith's house he noticed smoke coming from the windows and the cellar. His first thought was to awaken Mr. Smith whom he supposed was asleep in the house. So he commenced to pound on the front door with a club, at the same time calling Mr. Smith by name. Joseph Randolph who lives opposite was awakened. He came out and assisted Mr. Mosher. The latter soon afterwards went to the fire alarm box and sent in a call. A quick response was made by the fire department. Chief Doane and First Assistant Martin arrived on time. It was then learned that Mr. Smith was not at home, he having gone to Newark yesterday afternoon, leaving the house without an occupant.

The Chief at first thought an extinguisher would be sufficient, but later found it necessary to use a stream of water.

The flames were found in the cellar where there was a quantity of turpentine, a barrel of kerosene, some paint, rags, etc. How the fire started is a complete mystery.

It was soon extinguished, though the firemen had great difficulty in doing so on account of the almost stiffling fumes arising from the oils.

There was no damage to the upper part of the house, though a quantity of water was needed in the cellar.

Two complete rounds were blown from the box, but owing to the break of a small wire at the electric light station, due to the carelessness of workmen who have been busy there for a few days, the alarm only gave two blows afterward.

A telegram was sent to Mr. Smith at Newark by his son Ferdinand, and he arrived home early in the day.

Julia Ward Howe on the Bicycle.

I wish to say that I am very glad that the use of the bicycle is becoming so much extended among the women of this and other contries. I hold disuse of the muscles to be a cause of much ill-health, especially to women whose means place them beyond the necessity for personal exertion of any kind. The fashions of dress among the fashionable are often such as encourage and even enforce this dangerous indolence, whose evil influence affects the mind and character as well as the bodily condition. The exercise furnished by the bicycle will both call into play the neglected muscles and bring into use modes of dress permitting their free and natural use. I rejoice to be able to give my voice in its support.—Mrs. Julia Ward Howe, in American Wheelman.

Killed Himself After Two Trials.

Uriah Guiwitz, an aged carpenter, of Orange, shot himself through the head and died last night because his pension had been reduced by the Government and he was unable to secure work. He was sixty years old and did odd jobs of cabinet work and furniture repairing. Wednesday night Guwitz took a big dose of morphine. He then got his revolver to finish self-destruction. Before he could shoot the morphine had gained such an effect over him that he could not hold the pistol.

No Crowing Hens.

At a very recent date, in many parts of our country, it was a sign of bad luck for a hen to crow. Just why, is difficult to trace; perhaps because it was considered the assumption by a female of masculine prerogatives. Whenever a hen dared attempt it, she was immediately run down by the united efforts of all the children on the premises, and her head paid the forfeit.

A recent traveller in Kentucky writes that while visiting at the country home of a friend a hen was heard to crow. Instantly the cry was raised, "Catch her! Kill her!" He interposed in the hen's behalf, by reminding his hosts that this was an "age of rights," and she was therefore not guilty of any wrong-doing. They scoffed at his heterodoxy, and the clamor that followed prepared him for the return of the pursuers bearing the head of the foolfowl.—Elizabeth F. Seat in September Lippincott's.

At Tony Pastor's Theatre.

For the opening of his autumn season Tony Pastor has engaged some of the best talent on the vaudeville stage. His theatre in New York will open this afternoon, Mr. Pastor having decided to give four matinees, instead of two, a week hereafter. The famous Russell Brothers will appear in a new version of "The Irish Servant Girls;" William H. Fox will play the piano; Whiting and Shepard will sing some new selections and perform on various musical instruments; Miss Lottie West Symunds, the Irish character singer, will be heard here for the first time in a number of years; John and Nellie McCarthy will give some new parodies on the popular songs of the day; Fisher and Crowell, in songs and dances; the Travelles, in shadowgraphs; Harry and Dollie Russel, and Layman will make up the rest of the programme.

The Situation in Summit.

Ex-Sheriff Glasby, of Elizabeth, visited Summit on Thursday, for the purpose of learning, if possible, the choice of those delegates to be selected from this section of Union county to the Republican gubernatorial convention this fall. He spent the day in Summit and adjoining townships endeavoring to arrange for the selection of delegates favoring Foster M. Voorhees, whose cause he espouses.

The result of his efforts, or whether he secured any pledges cannot be learned. John Kean has always had a strong following in this portion of the county but the Republican leaders here are apparently undecided as to whom they will support in the fight for the gubernatorial nomination.—Summit Record.

Great is Advertising.

The efficiency of The Daily Press as an advertising medium is shown by a letter received by M. NEGROES IN A FIGHT.

A Ball Game Interrupted and a Boy Shot in the Thigh.

William Bland, a negro, was shot in the right thigh late Saturday afternoon, at Elizabeth, by Robert Fairfax, also colored, and is now in the Elizabeth General Hospital. While several negroes were engaged in playing ball on what is known as Firemen's lane, off South Broad street, two of the onlookers, John Stevens and Delia Banks, became involved in a quarrel, resulting in Stevens losing his temper and slapping the woman, who at once began to shriek.

Doc Reed, a brother-in-law of the woman, hearing her cry, stopped playing ball and at once assaulted Stevens, who is a man almost twice as large as himself. Robert Fairfax, a friend of Reed, seeing that the latter was being worsted, went to his assistance, whereupon Stevens sent a boy named Willie Banks into the house after his revolver.

When the boy returned with the weapon Fairfax took it from him and endeavored to shoot Stevens, when the ball entered the leg of Bland. Fairfax, Reed and Stevens were shortly after arrested.

Fairfax, after shooting Bland, pursued Stevens, who made his escape, Fairfax sending another shot after him. The negroes are all related.

MORE BRADLEY DISCIPLINE.

He Orders Lovers Retreat Closed Early in the Evening.

Founder Bradley's latest move to improve the morals of Asbury Park is causing much comment among the young people who have been in the habit of strolling down to "Lovers' Retreat" at Dead Beach after dark. Some of the young folks feel indignant at this sign, which has been nailed up in a conspicuous place: "No person will be allowed to pass this point after dark for reasons known to police."

Several young couples were prevented last night by the police from visiting their famous resort. They went to Mr. Bradley today and asked for an explanation. Founder Bradley told them he had put up the sigh not to offend any one, but to keep objectionable persons from visiting the secluded spot on the beach after dark. He said he believed the parents of the young folks in Asbury Park would fully sustain him in the action he had taken. He didn't say the sign which had been put up would offend the good young folks of Asbury Park, who didn't need watching. He was glad to say, however, that there were but comparatively few in the town who cared a fig about the sign.

Successsul Social Event.

The subscription concert and ball at Hotel Netherwood Saturday evening, was a most successful social event. About sixty couples outside of the guests enjoyed the affair.

Professor Gioscia's orchestra rendered a high-class musical programme which was supplemented by a cornet solo by William Bartow, of Bound Brook, and a piano solo by Mr. Schenck, of Albany. Claret punch was served during the evening.

FIREMEN'S PARADE DOUBTFUL.

The Question Discussed and the Sentiment Seems to be Against It.

The outlook for a firemens parade is not very bright after the joint meeting of the various companies and the boards of engineers of this city and the borough, held in Warren engine house last evening, unless the people of Plainfield and North Plainfield are generous in a financial direction. Four companies from Plainfield were represented at the meeting. Two of them do not want to parade and the representatives of another were not sure as to the attitude of their fellow members. But the meeting seemed to agree unanimously with the sentiment voiced by Chief Doane that they should not parade unless all expenses could be paid without falling upon the men or the company treasuries.

It was estimated that at least $300 would be needed to pay the expenses of each company. The Warren Engine Co., said that the necessary $300 for them could be raised, but the others were not so certain about the rest of the funds.

No definite action was taken as the meeting was merely to talk over the qustion. If the citizens who wish the parade are willing to contribute they should notify the firemen at once as it may make a difference in the result.

DAVID W. ROGERS HURT.

Squeezed in Beside of Sewer Pipes Laying in Front of His Store.

David W. Rogers, the West Second street sea-food man, had a narrow escape from serious injury yesterday while endeavoring to get into a wagon in front of his place of business. A pile of sewer pipes have been laying in front of the store for two months, and the vehicle was drawn up close to them. The horse was a nervous one and the moment Mr. Rogers placed his foot on the carriage step the animal started and ran the carriage close up alongside of the sewer pipes with the result of squeezing Mr. Rogers in pretty narrow quarters. Mr. Rogers' legs were badly bruised and pinched, so that he is compelled to walk with a limp and endure much pain today. He considers himself lucky to escape with as little injury as he did.

It hardly seems needful that the pipe should be distributed along and left in front of places of business two months before they are used.

WALZ DEFEATS WARD.

Plainfield Tennis Experts Who Go to Orange on Labor Day.

Although the Plainfield tennis cracks were so badly defeated in the recent tournament with the South Field Club, yet Saturday the Plainfield boys showed that they could play tennis after all. Carl Walz and Henry V. Ryder went to Orange Saturday to play. At singles, Walz defeated Holcombe Ward, 6-3, and Ryder won from Miles, 6-0. Later in the afternoon Walz and Ryder tried their luck against two of the Field Club cracks, and were only defeated after an exciting battle, 3-6, 11-9, 6-4.

In the Labor Day tournament which takes place at Orange, Carl Walz, Henry V. Ryder, Thomas U. Smith, and Fred K. Fish, Jr., from this city, will enter, and try hard to retrieve the lost honors of the former tournament.

A True Frog Story.

During the spring many young chickens were missed from the flocks about the barnyard of Alonzo DeCamp's farm at Chester, Morris county, and every effort to find the cause of their disappearance failed. One day the youngest son, Robbie, fathomed the mystery and caught the robber. A large bullfrog, who was quite a pet with the boys on the farm, and who made his home in a large water trough in the barnyard, was caught in the act of gulping down a young chicken, the legs only being visable. Robbie promptly caught the little chicken by the legs and drew it out of the frog's mouth. The chicken lived, and the frog was transferred to his native element, the brook.

From Hospital To Prison.

John K. VanNess, of 261 Broadway, New York, the lawyer who was arrested at his home in Plainfield on the night of July 29, and has since been in Bellevue Hospital, was well enough Saturday to leave the hospital. At the time of his arrest VanNess was sick, but Detective-Sergeant Trainor took him to New York notwithstanding his protests. He is charged with forgery in the second degree, the complainants against him being the executors of the estate of Cornelia Waldron. Detective Trainor Saturday arraigned VanNess at the District-Attorney's office and the prisoner was then locked up in the Tombs.

HOW WESTFIELD WAS FOOLED

HER CITIZENS THOUGHT THEY HAD STRUCK A VEIN OF PETROLEUM.

But it Proved to Be a Hoax Caused by Buried Oil Barrels, Whose Contents Oozed Forth and Set the Town Agog.

The little town of Westfield was all excitement from Friday afternoon till Saturday afternoon, and its gossipy citizens are now laughing over a hoax that a grocery store fire of several years ago has played upon them in the way of striking what was thought to be a vein of petroleum oil.

Westfield is putting in several miles of sewers and Friday afternoon Nicholas Costello, an Italian laborer engaged in the work of excavating trenches, went to the foreman and complained about the disagreeable smell of oil in the trench where he was laboring. The foreman investigated and detected the presence of petroleum which was apparently running out of a crevice in a small stream. A lighted match was applied and a little flame flared up, which continued to increase in volume until it finally rose to a height of a dozen or more feet, and thick, black smoke filled the atmosphere. Such an unusual occurrence immediately set the whole town agog with excitement, and rumors as to the cause of the presence of the burning fluid were as thick as the black smoke that rose and floated in a hovering way about the assembled multitude of townsfolk. Nearly all thought that a vein of petroleum had been struck and tongues were wagging at a great rate with an optimistic view of how it would boom the sleepy town.

The flames continued to leap ferociously up from the sewer trench and several times it was suggested that the town volunteer fire fighters be called into service and attempt to extinguish the flames for fear that the nearby buildings might be devastated. Finally the flames gradually died down, but they were not entirely out until two o'clock yesterday morning. All this time a crowd of men were about the scene of the burning oil.

As soon as the fire went out a gang of anxious and investigating citizens jumped down in the trench and dug away the earth at the point where the oil seemed to flow from. After working for a few minutes they struck the charred remains of two oil barrels which were imbedded in the earth and which the Italian had penetrated with his pick, causing the flow of oil and the subsequent excitment.

The barrels are accounted for by the fact that a few years ago a grocery store owned by J. T. Pierson was burned at that point and several barrels full of oil were rolled out in the street and burned in order that they might not become ignited and add to the intensity of the fire at that time. The barrels were left there and never thought of afterwards until discovered by the men who thought that Westfield was about to have an oil boom.

COL. MOORE WAS THREATENED.

He Causes the Arrest of a Former Street Cleaning Employe.

Col. Charles K. Moore, ex-Deputy Street Cleaning Commissioner in New York, appeared in the Tombs Police Court Saturday against Joseph C. Cockey, of 11 West Sixty-second street, formerly acting assistant dump inspector at Canal street. Col. Moore says Cockey has threatened his life and has been following him for several days. He told magistrate Cornell that on August 9th Cockey came up to him in Prior's saloon, Greenwich and Cortlandt streets, while he was with Mr. Wesson, a friend, and said: "I've got you now, and I'm going to do you." Cocker is a six-footer and of powerful build. Col. Moore moved away from him, after trying to pacify him.

Cockey accused Moore of causing his removal from the Street Cleaning Department last February. Moore says that Cockey called at his home in the Hotel Endicott, Eighty-first street and Columbus avenue, last Tuesday, and, not finding him, told several of the hotel employes that he was looking for the Colonel and intended to "do him up." The following day Cockey called at the house of Mrs. Fostate, 3 West Eighty-second street, a sister of Col. Moore. He asked her about her brother, and, it is said, badly frightened her.

Col. Moore said yesterday that Cockey had been discharged by Col. Waring for negligence, and that he had nothing to do with his discharge.

Cockey was arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct and fined $10, which he paid. Magistrate Cornell warned him not to annoy Col. Moore again.

Mr. Swain To Spread The Gospel.

James R. Swain, a nephew of Philip Swain, of this city, who was a delegate from Princeton College to the Y. M. C. A. convention held here last winter, sailed on the 17th inst. on the steamer "Furnessia," for Beyroot, Syria. He goes out under a three years engagement as teacher in the Protestant college there. It is his purpose to take a brief tour through Scotland, England, and the continent before taking up his work which will begin early in October next. A band of missionaries went on the same vessel, some going to China, Persia and the Laos, they with friends and others joined in singing a number of hymns of cheer and hope, and fervent God speeds were uttered as the gallant ship pulled out for her long voyage.

To Divide With Employes.

Heywood & Co., the big shirt manufacturers of Elizabeth, have posted notices in their factory announcing that for one year from Oct. 1, as an experiment, the firm will semi-annually divide its net profits with the employes. If the plan brings about the results the hopes it will—making the employes attentive, careful, and increasing the standard of those employed—the plan will be adopted permanently.

WHERE SENATOR SEWELL STANDS.

Declares He Does Not Want to Force John Kean's Nomination.

General William J. Sewell has been somewhat annoyed at the statements made in the newspapers, and put in circulation by some of the candidates, that he and his friends were going to force the nomination of John Kean. He emphatically declares this is not true, but at the same time he does not hesitate to say that his personal preference is for John Kean, and it is based upon political reasons. He claims that Kean made a most excellent run three years ago, almost caused the defeat of George T. Werts, took his medicine gracefully and continued to support, and encourage the Republican party just as enthusiastically as before. He made the fight in the face of the best judgement of his many friends, who predicted defeat, and his whole course has been such as to make him worthy of admiration. General Sewell, however, is sifting the situation down very finely. He is acquainting himself with every detail, and is cheerfully lending his ear to every Republican whose opinion is worthy of notice. Next to John Kean, it is believed the Senator favors John W. Griggs.—Newark Advertiser.

MR. ROBINSON'S ABILITY.

He Was a Famous Pitcher and Stood His Ground With Western Bad Men.

"One of the best men that I ever knew at adapting himself to circumstances," observed Major Hotchkiss, "was a young fellow that we'll call Robinson. He was a Yale man and, I fancy, a bit of a black sheep. He came of a good New England family, and one brother went into the ministry and another prospered in law, but these pursuits were too prosaic for him. After we left college he went to Cuba for a few months, and then came back and drifted to Chicago and became a reporter on the Chicago Times. This was in the old Storey days, when a Times reporter, in the event of a man refusing to give him news, was expected to take the man down and hammer it out of him.

"Robinson made a mistake one day. He hammered the city editor and had to leave town. He promptly came out to Badger Rock, Mont.

"Badger Rock, at that time, was one of the hardest towns in the West. Homicide was a pastime, like lawn tennis or croquet in other parts of the country. Mining and gambling were the only two recognized industries, with the preference given to gambling as a gentlemanly vocation.

"Robinson got immediate employment on a morning paper called by its owner, with fine irony, The Daily Dove. It was the worst sheet in town, which is saying a good deal. The exciting nature of a connection with it may be best realized when I say that the paper's strong point was abusive personals in a country where all personals are very dangerous.

"When Robinson came to town he found the post of city editor vacant, and applied for the place. The owner, notwithstanding his belligerency, was a fair man to his employes. He slipped his arm in Robinson's, and led him half a mile up the mountain to the little cemetery. Pointing to three white wooden headboards, he said:

" 'Young man, there sleep your three predecessors.'

" 'There's room for another between that end and the fence,' answered Robinson, and he took the position of city editor.

"But the worst thing about the outlook for the young man I have not yet mentioned. He could not shoot.

"Now, something the owner of the paper didn't know was that Robinson had pitched for three years on the college baseball club. He had been the best pitcher the club had ever had. He could throw a ball harder and straighter than almost any man who up to that time had stood in the center of the diamond. He had made up his mind to utilize his talent in this direction. Up the gulch he began selecting stones about the size of hen's eggs, hard and jagged.

"I think he picked on Galena specimens largely, as being the heaviest and frequently rough and square cornered. He dropped half a dozen nuggets in each side pocket, and took off his hat and filled that, and returned. At the office he emptied his hat on his desk and went to work.

"The second day after this his employer said to him:

" 'Robinson, there's a man come to town named Wash Gazley. He is a criminal and a dead beat who has killed five or six men. He is now drunk and going about town destroying the property of some of our best advertisers. Just touch him up to-morrow morning.'

"Robinson wrote a ripping item, in which he called the man a coward, tramp, chicken thief, and so forth, and warned him to get out of town under pain of further disclosures in the fearless columns of The Dove.

"It was a hot paragraph, and when the foreman read it he simply remarked: 'Well, I hope the man that takes the city editorship to-morrow will write a plainer hand.'

"About ten o'clock the next morning Robinson was walking quietly along the main street of the town with his right hand resting carelessly in his coat pocket. Suddenly Gazley stepped out of the door of a saloon. He reached for his revolver. The young man from Yale who couldn't shoot took his hand from his pocket. In it was an irregular specimen of lead ore. I remember how the local doctor tried to explain subsequently that the specimen didn't hit Gazley in a 'necestary vital spot;' but it was vital enough for all practical purposes, and the next morning The Dove remarked casually that 'when the cut throats of this town meet around the hearth to-night, there will be one vacant chair. Jim Gazley is no more.'"—N. Y. Tribune.

Gallant Conduct of a Brother.

The Queen has conferred the decoration of the Albert Medal of the Second Class on Mr. Hereward Hewison, of Newcastle, New South Wales. The services in respect of which the decoration has been conferred attracted much attention.

While a number of men were bathing on the sea beach at Newcastle, New South Wales, the cry of "Shark!" was suddenly raised. Every one at once made for the shore, with the exception of Mr. Horace Hewison, who cried out that the shark had seized him, and immediately afterward disappeared under the water.

Mr. Hereward Hewison, realizing the dangerous position of his elder brother, promptly turned, and swimming to the spot, found that the shark had seized his brother's right arm. He at once grasped his brother round the body, and the two fought the shark as well as they were able until the complete severance of the arm just below the elbow joint released Mr. Horace Hewison and afforded them an opportunity to escape to the shore, which they succeeded in reaching without further accident. Mr Hereward Hewison assisted his injured brother by keeping behind him and pushing him forward.—Pall Mall Gazette.

A Baffled Heroine.

There was a collision up in the St. Clair Flats the other night between a propeller and a steam yacht from Buffalo. The yacht's masts were snapped off close to the deck and part of her rail was carried away. But after the passengers and crew had hurriedly assembled on deck and taken stock of themselves, it was thought that all on board had escaped without injury. Suddenly there came an agonized cry from below.

"Where is my leg? Won't somebody help me to find my leg?"

An excitable girl among the passengers became frantic at this appeal.

"Why don't you do something for the poor fellow? Aren't you great, hulking men ashamed to stand there and let him suffer? Captain, can't you do something?"

But the Captain, strange to say, only laughed a low, cruel laugh.

"Shame on you, fiends in human form!" said the brave girl. "I am but a weak woman, but no man shall die unassisted before my eyes."

And, with a withering glance at the strangely reluctant men on deck, the heroine plunged down the companion way.

The cries and groans had ceased when she reached the bottom of the steps. Instead, she found the engineer calmly strapping on a cork leg.

"It's all right now, miss," he explained. "I found it under my bunk. Now let the old thing sink, if she wants to. This leg's cork, and is as good as a life preserver. There's some use in being a cripple, after all."—Buffalo Express.

The Old Darky's View of It.

"Near the close of the war," said City Attorney Crewell, "my father was explaining to one of the old slaves on his plantation that the chances were that the war would soon be over and the South would certainly be compelled to give up the struggle.

" 'Den will dis be all Norf?' inquired the negro.

" 'There will be no North and no South then. This will be all one country,' explained my father.

" 'A nigger won't know where he is at den, will he?'

" 'Oh, yes; you will all be free men. You won't belong to me any longer.'

" 'Dat will make me free, huh?'

" 'Yes.'

" 'An' you will lose all de money dat we's worf?'

" 'Yes.'

"The fellow scratched his head a minute and then his face brightened with an idea.

" 'Say, marster,' he inquired, 'why doan yo' sell us an' let tother fellow lose de money?' "—San Francisco Post.

The Bloomer Not Objectionable to Men.

There was great fear among the timid that the adoption of the modern bicycle costumes would subject the wearer to vulgar comment, or at least insufferable stares, from men. The fact is that women stare at and criticize their progressive sisters more than men do. Men do not object in the least to their wives or sisters or daughters wearing 'gym' suits for athletics, divided skirts or Turkish trousers for bicycling, or even for business, so long as the touch of femininity, of modesty, is never lost in the making of such costumes. The man does not concern himself with details about such garments, but he looks for that roundness, as opposed to angularity; that grace, be it of a fluffy wing or a ruffle or garter; that little adornment, a touch of color, ribbon, flowing outline, that shall proclaim at once the sweetness and preciousness of womanhood.—North American Review.

LOUIS COOMBS USES A CLUB.

THE FORMER PLAINFIELDER HAS A SCRAP WITH ONE OF HIS GUESTS.

Tried to Eject John F. Daly From the Palmer House, Which Causes Blood to Flow and Kegs to Go Through Windows.

A fierce fight late Tuesday night at the Palmer House, in New Brunswick, on George street, between Louis J. Coombs, the proprietor of the hotel, on one side, and Michael Cahill and John F. Daly on the other side, has stirred up much feeling. Daly is laid up with a bruised head. Coombs, who used a club, shows few signs of injuries. The barroom of the hotel is wrecked.

Michael Cahill, an employe of the Pennsylvania Railroad, has been boarding at the Palmer House some time. Tuesday night, while under the weather, he had a heated argument with Mr. Coombs about his board bill. He grew abusive and Mr. Coombs ejected him, using a club from behind the bar. Daly went to Cahill's rescue and declared if Cahill went out he would have to go out too, as Cahill was an old friend. After a few hot words Coombs forced Daily from the place. Daly returned, the bystanders say, and was ejected again and clubbed. This time Daly threw a beer keg through the window on the west side of the Washington street entrance. The falling glass made a tremendous noise and attracted a big crowd.

Proprietor Coombs appeared again and the two men clinched. During the fight, Daly says, Coombs hit him three times on the head, cutting a long gash. Friends separated the two men, and Mr. Coombs was taken inside of the barroom by his bartender, John Jaques. Before the fight ended another keg was hurled through the window.

Chief Harding was on the spot, and Michael Cahill and Jack Daly were taken to the police station. Daly was bleeding freely. Drs. Slack and Moore attended him. During the operation he grew delirious at times, and it took several men to hold him. The cut was not very deep, but it extended along the left side of the top of his head for three inches. His left eye was also badly bruised. After his injuries had been attended to he was taken home in a carrage.

Mr. Coombs made a charge of malicious mischief before Recorder Harkins aginst Daly. Alderman John H. Becker became his bondsman. Daly charged Coombs with atrocious assault and battery. W. J. McCurdy became his bondsman. The case will now wait for the September Grand Jury.

Daily was formerly manager of the Palmer House. Of late he has been in the employ of the Iron Steamboat Company, at Pier 1, New York. He has been in town several days. Coombs was formerly connected with the Hotel Grenada, in this city.

Chester B. Dennis, of LaGrande avenue, is now riding a wheel.

The members of the Crescent Whelmen will have a run to Union to-night.

Thomas H. Pittis, of Central avenue, has purchased a Reiss bicycle coupler of F. L. C. Martin.

Charles Hall, of Reynolds's pharmacy, returned today from an extended cycling trip. He starts Monday on his two-weeks vcaation, during which time he will ride on his wheel to Boston.

A New Yorker just returned from Europe says that wheeling here has not reached anything like the vogue it has abroad. In speaking of his own trip he remarked that the proper way to enjoy a summer in Europe is on a wheel. He is talking enthusiastically of going on an extended wheel tour through Ireland, England, France and Germany next season. Europeans seem to have adopted the wheel for the practical uses of life much more quickly than Americans. With us it is still little more than a vehicle of amusement.

Grover Cleveland, that typical American, has, in a letter over his own signature, denied the statements recently attributed to him that he opposed the bicycle. He says that he is heartily in sympathy with the bicycle movement, and would willingly mount a wheel tomorrow were he sure that such an action would not bring ridicule on him and his office. He says that in America their chief executive is censured for the least thing, and that is the only thing that has deterred him. President Cleveland is not consistent. He has often stated in his public utterances that he always did what he thought right and allowed the public to think as they saw fit. A notable case of this kind might be cited in his action on the income tax question. With almost the whole country against him he manfully fought for his convictions until the battle was lost, which was no disgrace to him. He should act in a like manner toward the bicycle. If he is the democratic American he claims to be he will do so.—American Wheelman.

LIQUOR DEALERS ON TRIAL.

The League Had Whiskey for Evidence Against Selling Sunday.

The suits against the liquor dealers were tried at Rahway yesterday. The case of Michael Sullivan took up much time, but the other nine were rushed through, as the evidence in each case was similar.

Sullivan swore that his place was closed, and that he was at a clambake on the Sunday he was charged with unlawful selling. He produced witnesses to substantiate this.

The witnesses for the Law Enforcement League produced the whiskey they claim to have bought. Justice Frazee reserved the decision in all the cases.

Proctor's New Theatre.

Proctor's Pleasure Palace, as it is called, the new theatre of F. F. Proctor, on the south side of Fifty-eighth street, between Third and Lexington avenues, is rapidly approaching completion, and promises to be an imposing addition to east-side pleasure resorts. The structure, which is strictly fireproof, is pleasing architectually on the outside and inside, and is unusually complete in all its details. The stage is seventy feet wide and forty feet deep, and if necessary can be extended back the whole width of the garden, securing a depth of 105 feet, making it, as asserted, the largest stage in the world except the Grand Opera House of Paris. An ample roof garden will be provided. The opening policy will be a continuous vaudeville performance, and the formal opening will be at noon on Labor Day, September 2d.

The "Bicycle Face."

The "speak-to-me-if-you-dare" expression, or, as it is more commonly known, the "bicycle face," is growing in popularity among cyclists, and even the learners, after a week's riding, take on this habitual startled and gloomy expression and in their eyes comes that almost wild, expectant look. This new "disease" is said to be caused by the attention that the wheelman gives to his bicycle in order that he may avoid dangerous obstacles. Concerning this, a prominent physician said recently: "If the law in heredity operates and the cycling craze continues to increase, the world may see a generation of wild-eyed men and women terrible to contemplate."—True American.

TRUE REFORMERS ENTERTAIN.

A Growing Organization of the Colored People of This City.

Those who don't know what it is to spend an evening of real pleasure ought to have attended the second entertainment of the True Reformers in their hall at 204 West Front street last Friday, and they certainly would have enjoyed themselves.

It was arranged by the two Fountains, of Plainfield, and was a complete success.

There was no uncertain sound about the announcement made that they would make it pleasant for all.

The attendance was large, and the supply of cake, candy and ice cream on sale was not adequate to feed all. Every little while those in charge were obliged to send for a fresh supply. The order of the True Reformers, composed entirely of colored is growing rapidly, and at each meeting additions are made to their membership. The affair last night was arranged by the following committee: J. A. Saunders, L. L. Croom, J. H. Saunders, W. H. Cheek, A. Venable. They were assisted by the following committee of faithful and earnest workers: Mrs. S. M. Fields, Mrs. P. Gordon, Mrs. Francis Scott, Mrs. H. Jones, Mrs. J. A. Saunders, Mrs. William Manning, Miss Bettie Jeter, Mrs. M. Johnson, Miss Laura Wilson, Mrs. E. E. Smith, Mrs. M. J. Carthorn, Mrs. L. Lankford, Mrs. E. Saunders, Mrs. Lizzie Wilson, Miss Sarah Hegeman, Miss Eliza Scruggs, Miss Sophia Woolson, Miss L. Saunders.

Those who furnished music were: H. Peterson, bass viol; L. Peterson, cornet; and A. Hankinson, violin.

During the evening there were several grand marches which were not only unique, but very graceful.

EDWARD WHITE TO BUILD.

Will Erect a Costly and Handsome House on a Myrtle Avenue Lot.

Edward White, Plainfield's progressive and successful dry goods merchant, has just purchased a lot of the Cadmus estate on Myrtle avenue and will erect a handsome dwelling house thereon, which will cost between $8,000 and $10,000. The lot has a frontage of 100 feet and runs 350 feet back to Greenbrook.

The house is to be modeled after the one recently built for Samual T. Williams on Sanford avenue and will be ready for occupancy by December 15th. The architect is A. F. Leight, of New York. The masonry work will be done by Seaman Williams and the carpenter work by W. S. Arthur.

Myrtle avenue will be at once graded and opened from Girard avenue to West End avenue and the rest of the property placed on the market.

A Bicyclist's Complaint.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—I trust that you will kindly give the matter of lamps on carriages, and all other vehicles drawn by horses your attention. I, no doubt, am one of many who have at times just escaped running into such vehicles on account of the darkness of Plainfield streets, not because of lack of electric lights; but on account of the shade cast by trees, and blackness of soil due to frequent watering, preventing in many instances the hearing of approaching casriages. I never ride at night without a lantern, and think it but just that all bicycle riders be forewarned by all vehicles driven at night.

CHIEF DOANE ATTRACTS ATTENTION

A New York Journal Writes About Plainfield's Model Fire Department.

Fire and Water, a New York journal, has the following to say about Chief T. O. Doane:

T. O. Doane, chief engineer and fire marshal of Plainfield, N. J., in presenting his seventh annual report to the common council of that city, points out that although the fires have been more in number than in any year since the city controlled its own fire department, the losses have been comparatively small, owing not only to the first-class equipment of the department and the quick means of getting an alarm, but also to the promptness on the part of the officers and men in answering alarms, and their implicit obedience to orders. Chief Doane might also have added that the excellence of the discipline he enforces, and the good example he himself sets of promptitude, punctuality, and skill in disposing of his men, have had no less to do with the small amount of losses sustained. The manual force of the department consists of 125 officers and men, there being one chief with two assistants, J. A. Martin and J. W. Murray, jr., (whom he specially commends), four foremen with eight assistant foremen, one engineer of steamer, five drivers, and 114 privates. The city owns and occupies two houses, one third-size Amoskeag double pump engine, capacity 550 gallons; one Hayes aerial turn-table hook and ladder truck; three hose wagons; one iron frame hook and truck and two hose wagons in reserve. There are 231 fire hydrants (twenty-one having been added during the past year), with an average pressure of about seventy-four pounds. Of the 5,150 feet of hose, 2,500 feet are in good condition, 650 feet fair, and 2,000 feet poor. The department owns seven horses, and has attached to the fire alarm telegraph system one 12-inch chime whistle; two 15-inch engine house gongs; one 15-inch house gong and indicator combined; combined; three 6-inch tappers; two Hollenbeck indicators; about sixteen miles of insulated copper wire in three circuits; two galvanometers, fifty-five gravity cells in battery-room, and twenty-three fire alarm boxes (three added during the year). The loss on buildings has been $3,015.25; on contents $6,674. The total amount of insurance involved was $122,815; total collected $9,689.25. Uninsured property to the value of $18,009 has been saved, and twenty-two fires put out by the use of Halloway chemicals alone. The usual classes of fire, including the inevitable "children playing with matches" were added to by a "celluloid comb," a "wad from a cannon," a "tree on fire," and "acid." Chief Doane strongly recommends the purchase of a chemical engine and greater surveillance over the wires strung over head. Proper precautions taken in that line would reduce the very heavy tax insurance rates levied upon the citizens.

UNION LEAGUE DISGUSTED.

Sunday Closing Movement in Elizabeth Said to be a Fizzle.

The crusade of the Christian Citizenship Union against the saloon-keepers of Elizabeth to compel them to close their places of business on Sunday seems to be a fizzle. The saloons kept closed one Sunday only, and now they are running again as usual. The only thing that was accomplished by the crusade was to put an end to the "growler rushing" on Sunday, but in stopping the sale of liquor and beer it has completely failed. The Citizenship Union has had to contend against the antagonism of the Excise Board on the one hand and the apathy and indifference of the city authorities on the other.

The Union is disgusted at this evidence of an alliance between the Excise Board and the liquor men to openly defy the law, but feel powerless to do anything until the grand jury meets, as it is useless to appeal to the Mayor or police to close the saloons on Sunday. They dodge the responsibility by throwing the blame on the Excise Board, which body has shown itself to be in league with the rich brewers influence is amply sufficient to protect their patrons.

A PLEASANT RECEPTION.

Given by Miss Sarah Moore at Her Beautiful Home in Binghamton.

A very pleasant reception was given last evening by Miss Sarah Moore at her home, 135 Vestal avenue, in honor of Miss Annie Wykoff, of Plainfield, N. J., and Miss Nellie Semonite, of Tampa, Florida, who are her guests. About fifty young people were in attendance and passed a very enjoyable evening. The guests were received by Mrs. Moore, Miss Moore, Miss Wykoff and Miss Semonite. Messrs. Frank and Charles Moore acted as ushers. Dancing, games and other social pastimes were indulged in until a late hour.—Binghamton Herald.

New Electric Light Company.

The company's capital is placed at $100,000, and it will do business in Union, Morris and Essex counties. The incorporators are Carrol Ph. Bassett, Adolph Wagner and Frederick Green, all of Summit. The company will sell, build and operate electrical plants for generating and supplying electricity for lighting, heating and power purposes.

OF DOUBTFUL EXPEDIENCY.

John H. Lord Wants to Clear Up the Somerville Bank Trouble.

John H. Lord has addressed the following communication to the stockholders of the Somerset county bank:

While the instituting of suits against the directors of the Somerset County Bank is, without doubt, just in respect to some of the parties, yet the question of the expediency of such action is very doubtful. The costs of settlement have already been heavy; these suits will be expensive; the final accounting will be greatly delayed, and I firmly believe the stockholders will realize less than if the business was closed up now.

Personally, I would prefer to take what the late managers were kind enough to leave me out of the wreck, without further litigation, than to see parties who were innocent of wrong-doing subjected to trouble and expense, and the money of the stockholders wasted in legal expenses.

If the stockholders who agree with me in this matter will kindly send me their names and addresses, stating the number of shares they hold, I shall be pleased to join with them in a request to the receiver to discontinue the suits, and an application for as speedy a dissolution of the receivership as possible.

A DEED TO RAHWAY'S SITE.

It Is Dated 1753 and Has Been Found in California.

Frank Riblett, of Rahway, has received news from friends in California of the existence of an old deed in Berkeley, which covers the entire present site of the city of Rahway. The document is worn, tattered and time-stained, and is dated April, 1753. It was discovered by John Boyd, an expressman, in an ash barrel, where some one, unable to decipher the text, had tossed it.

The deed was from William Morris to William Grant. It could not be ascertained to whom the document belonged. It was in a cheap gilt frame. California lawyers are now busy at it. It is in the possession of William H. Wurte, an Oakland attorney.

The property mentioned in the document covers the entire heart of the city of Rahway.

Kiernan is Rearrested.

Sylvester J. Kiernan, the fire insurance agent whose term of imprisonment for defrauding several companies expired yesterday afternoon at the Union county jail, was rearrested on complaint of the London Assurance Company, which charges him embezzling $159, and the Niagara Company, which charges an embezzlement of $31. The prisoner was before Justice Neill, at Elizabeth, and pleaded not guilty.

He was held in $1,000 bail, $500 on each charge, and was locked up in default of a bondsman. Kiernan is suffering from dropsy and incipient Bright's disease, the result of his confinement. He was unable to walk from the county jail to police court, so Justice Neill held court in the jail.

First Arrest Under a New Law.

Complaint was made Tuesday before Justice Collins, at Westfield, against John Klopf for shooting fish in Echo Lake. It is charged that Klopf was on the lake in a boat and with a gun shot the fish as they neared the surface. The complaint is made under an act passed last winter, which makes it a misdemeanor, punishable by a fine of $50, to catch fish in any manner except with a hook and line. This is the first case to be brought under the new law in Union county.

Appreciative Guests.

The guests of The Hotel Netherwood appreciating the music provided for by Proprietor Spitler, and desiring to express their appreciation, will tender Professor Gioscio's orchestra a subscription concert and ball on Saturday night. A programme of fourteen numbers have been arranged and the affair promises to be the social event of the season.

A Fine Portrait.

N. E. King, the portrait artist, has just completed an exceedingly fine portrait of L. W. Randolph, the druggist. It is life-size and made on tapestry, of which there are only ten in the United States. Mr. King has worked hard for two years to perfect this branch of portrait work and has at last succeeded. It is really a a fine piece of work. Mr. King's advertisement will be found on another page.

An Elizabeth Opinion.

The Elizabeth Herald has this to say about the candidacy of ex Judge Codington for a seat upon the Union county bench:

No doubt there will be a warm scramble for the nomination, but those who know say that Plainfield might as well have the hollow honor, because a Democrat will unquestionably be elected. When it comes to the Democratic nomination, that will be important.

A District Convention.

The district convention of the Y. M. C. A. will be held at Rahway October 12th and 13th. Several delegates will attend from this city.

HIS PROMISES FAILED.

But the Borough Authorities Caught and Fined Him Five Dollars.

A young bicycle rider named Douglass, living at the corner of Sycamore and Willow avenues, was stopped last Saturday night by Marshal Wilson for riding without a light. He made the excuse that he didn't know his light was out, and the Marshal let him off. Monday night the same thing happened again, when he was caught by Marshal Wilson.

Douglass pleaded with the officer and promised to appear Tuesday night before Justice Crosley if he was released. Tuesday evening the Justice was at his place waiting for the offender, but he did not make his appearance. After waiting a reasonable length of time the Justice went home, but the officer was instructed to capture him as soon as possible. Last night Marshal Wilson found the young man at home and took him before the magistrate. He was given a severe reprimand, fined $5, and released. Hereafter he will think it best to obey the law instead of interfering with borough justice.

Peaches Half a Crop.

Somerville, Aug. 15.—The peach season is opening slowly thus far in this section. From Whitehouse, which is the shipping point for a large peach district, there were sent last year over 1,000 baskets, and the average price realized was from 30 to 60 cents per basket. The peach growers say they will have about half a crop. The fruit has fallen in many orchards. A single case of anthrax has made its appearpearance at Whitehouse. A valuable stallion, owned by A. T. Abbott, died suddenly last week. Veterinarians decided that death was due to the disease.

Appeal From Assessor at Rahway.

J. Edward Marsh, of Rahway, is about to bring another appeal case before the State Board of Taxation at Trenton, he contending that the Rahway Tax Assessors have again placed to high a valuation on his property. Mr. Marsh was victorious in a fight he made against his assessment for 1893 and 1894, and secured a reduction of some thousands of his valuation. This year it is again raised $4,000.

Don't Do So Again.

There are some curious snakes in the vicinity of Fanwood station. Yesterday young Charles Davie was riding a wheel when he run over one. The reptile seemed to be hurt. Young Davie secured a stick and tried to kill it. He struck it once and then it made at him several times. At last Davie found that it was a puff adder, one of the most deadly poisonous reptiles there is.

To Extend the Street Line.

When ex-Judge Codington commences the erection of his new building and extension at the corner of Park avenue and Second street, it is his intention to build out even with the Second street line, so as to be uniform with the other business blocks. His present structure sets back from the line quite a distance and he will also extend this out to the street line, giving Alexander Pargiter eight feet more of store room.

Pugilist Corbett Weds.

James J. Corbett was married at 11:30 today at his cottage at Asbury Park to Miss Taylor, known as Vera Stanwood, the co-respondent in his divorce case. Justice John A. Borden performed the ceremony. The witnesses were J. E. Mortman, J. P. Buckalew, W. E. Bedell, Jacob Howland, Joe. Corbett and the cook.

Corbett and his bride left on the 1:10 train west.

Remarkable Family.

Mrs. James R. Dobb, Jr., of Elizabeth, gave birth to a son yesterday, which makes five generations of the family living here. The child's mother is nineteen, the grandmother forty-one, the great-grandmother sixty, and great-great-grandmother, eighty-two years old.

Get a New Ticket.

The Crescent Wheelmen will hold an important meeting next Tuesday evening, at which time the committees for the Labor Day meet will be appointed and new membership tickets issued. The old tickets will not be good after the new ones are issued.

Progressing Rapidly.

The sewer work on Richmond street is nearing completion and the house connections on East Fifth street between Watchung avenue and Washington street are about completed.

Mr. Murray to Speak.

William D. Murray, president of the Young Men's Christian Association, is to be one of the special speakers at the Northfield camp in Massachusetts, which is held from August 18th to 25th.

Not Likely to Appear.

As yet the man who was to call for the coat at Freeman's tailor shop has not made his appearance and from all accounts is not likely to.

A Civil Marriage.

At eight o'clock this morning Justice Newcorn married Annie Wade to Jefferson White, both of Cottage place.

MRS. STANFORD'S JEWELS.

The Costly Collection to be Sold for Stanford University.

The statement that Mr. Leland Stanford is about to sell her marvelous collection of jewels has revived interest in these famous gems. Mrs. Stanford, on several occasions, either at White House receptions or State dinners, wore such elegant jewels that it was generally supposed that Washington had seen the best of them. But the reverse is the truth.

After the death of her son, Mrs. Stanford preferred not to wear jewels, and when she did so it was because of her husband's desire, and then she selected the simplest ones. The others reposed in the darkness of her banker's vaults and were never brought to this city.

There are few more choice or extensive collections of gems owned by the royal families of the Old World. Their value is variously estimated at from one to two millions of dollars.

Mr. Stanford bought four sets of diamonds for his wife when the valuables of Queen Isabella of Spain were sold in Paris, and he paid upwards of $600,000 for the four. One set is of the kind known as blue diamonds, as they emit violet rays by day. Another set has pink rays in its stones. The third set is of yellow diamonds, as yellow as topaz, and the fourth set is of flawless white stones. Each set has a tiara or necklace, pendant, brooch, earrings, four to six bracelets and some finger rings, all of the same style of make and of corresponding stones.

In addition to these Mrs. Stanford has some genuine black diamonds, cut pear shaped, and numerous other diamond ornaments in a variety of styles. One necklace (not belonging to any of the sets above named) is valued at $100,000, and its pendants at $30,000. This was manufactured to order, and consists of large colored diamonds intermixed with small white stones, sapphires, rubbies, and emeralds, all of the purest water. A band of large yellow diamonds encircles the throat, each set in a smaller white stone. Beneath this band is placed a floriated design in small white diamonds and colored stones, extending in deep points. Between each of these points is suspended an immense yellow diamond, set in white diamonds and attached to the upper part of the necklace by a ruby, emerald, or sapphire. There are five of these pendants, the central one being the largest and having once figured in the collection of the Duke of Brunswick.

This magnificent ornament is accompanied by a comb, a brooch, and earrings to match, and the necklace itself can be converted into pins, hair ornaments, etc., while the upper row of diamonds can be worn as a necklace without the pendant and the pointed floriated band.

Mrs. Stanford has also over sixty diamond finger rings, and many more diamonds in monograms on books, purses and card cases.

But for the litigation by which the Stanford estate is now tied up $2,500,000 would have been available for immediate use in the Stanford University, and Mrs. Stanford will, it is stated, sell her jewels to meet the present emergency.

Uncle Sam's Money and Mails.

There were 189,576 miles of telegraph line in the country in 1892, carrying 739,105 miles of wire. The number of messages exceeded 62,000,000, or nearly as many as the people. The average charges per message was 31.6 cents, and the profits were enormous in and between the great cities, but elsewhere there was often a decided loss.

The Bell telephones in use numbered 512,477, with 265,546 miles of wire, 216,017 subscribers, $5,127,000 gross earnings, and $1,220,000 dividends for the parent Bell Telephone Company alone, and $80,000,000 capital for it and ten subsidiary companies, largely in franchise.

In 1891 there were 9,662 miles of street railway, and in 1892 there were 385 electric roads of all sorts, with a capital of $155,000,000, operating 3,980 miles of road.

The mail service in 1892 included 67,119 Post Offices, most of them petty, with 447,591 miles of post routes. The receipts were $71,000,000 and the expenses 76,000,000, the deficit thus being 5,000,000. The mail handled was 7,865,000,000 pieces, surpassing the record of any country, not excepting Great Britain.

The total amount of circulating media used in the United States in the year 1891 was $1,175,000,000, and that the amount in the Treasury would, if added, increase this to $2,014,000,000. The first amount, the money in circulation, consisted of $407,000,000 in gold, $59,000,000 in silver, and $58,000,000.000 in fractional silver. The balance was paper money.

The coinage in 1890 was $20,700,000 gold, $39,200,000 silver, and $1,400,000 minor silver pieces. The total amount of gold coin minted for the hundred year ending with 1892 was $1,582,000,000; of silver, $657,000,000; of minor coins, $24,000,000.

The national banks in 1891 numbered 3,677, with a capital of $967,400,000, and resources amounting to $3,213,000,000. The savings banks numbered 1,011, with 4,533,217 depositors, total deposits of 1,623,000,000, averaging $358 to each depositor, and total assets of $1,885,000,000.

CURIOSITIES OF DISMAL SWAMP.

Queer Things Found by a Government Scientist in that Strange Region.

"I have just returned from a visit to the Dismal Swamp," said Dr. A. K. Fisher, ornithologist of the Department of Agriculture, to a Washington Star writer. "It is a strange region, full of oddities that are not to be found elsewhere. The purpose of my expedition was to investigate the fauna of the locality, and of rare mammals and birds I secured quite a number.

"There are plenty of cattle in the swamp—small, dark and very wild. They are the progeny of animals that have strayed from domesticated herds. Hunters stalk and shoot them like deer. Bears are numerous. In the autumn they feed greedily on the fruit of the sour gum.

Wildcats, opposums, and raccoons are not scarce, while squirrels are remarkably abundant. The squirrrels have discovered an easy way to get a living, by going along the shores of Lake Drummond and picking up the nuts and berries which have fallen into the water and drifted in windrows. They trot along the logs and fish them out with their paws. Deer are common but hard to get. In the fall hunters run them into the lake and then catch them with dogs.

"The boats used in the Dismal Swamp are all dug outs, made from cypress logs, twelve feet long and very narrow. To shape such a craft properly is a nice piece of work. The novice who steps into one of these boats is apt to go out on the other side, but the native stands up and paddles with security.

"The water is darker than amber and excellent to drink; it is said to be a sure cure for malaria. There is no malaria disease in the swamp. The swamp is full of magnolias, from the size of bushes to trees sixty feet high. When I was there they were full of flowers. The cypress trees are cut for shingles. The best trees for the purpose are those which fell from twenty-five to ninety years ago, and are now covered with moss. The negroes wade in and cut off the moss and rotten bark. Then they cut up the log into shingles on the spot. The next best tree is one that is newly fallen, and the third quality is the tree that has to be felled.

"The Dismal Swamp is the most northern of the great morass swamps. Lake Drummond, in the center of it, is four miles long and of an oval shape. There is a very odd fact about the Jericho Ditch, which extends for a distance of eleven miles from the Nansemond River to the lake. From the middle point of the ditch the water runs both ways; there is a current toward Lake Drummond and another current in the opposite direction toward the Nansemond River."

COLUMBIAN HALF DOLLARS.

Columbian centennial coins not heretofore circulated have been found frequently in change of late. They are fifty-cent pieces of 1893, and the reason given for their appearance is that many coin collectors and others believed that many coin collectors and others believed that immediately after the Columbian Exposition they would have special value as rarities, and so hoarded them for a premium. They were so held for the better part of two years, but no appreciation in value followed, and now they have been thrown upon the market and are freely circulated. They have a more attractive appearance than the regular fifty-cent pieces, but this superior attractiveness has not, to any visible extent, mitigated the regret which collectors have had in parting with them.

The silver coinage of the United States in use varies from time to time according to no definite law with which the Treasury officials are familiar. At times silver dollars circulate with much ease and freedom, and there does not seem to be any serious demand for a greater number of the smaller coins. Again, ten-cent pieces seem to be greatly in demand, and the dollars are stored away in banks and trust companies and in the Treasury vaults, and are grudgingly received by business men. But silver half dollars always circulate freely.

Mr. Smith's Tame Bears.

Mr. Henry L. Smith is fond of horses and dogs, but there is nothing on four legs that could win his affection more than the two tame bears now quartered on his property on Rensselaer Island. Few of Mr. Smith's friends have failed to see his pets. Yesterday the Tourist had a glimpse of them. Many will remember them over a year ago in Mr. Smith's store window. They were then only a month or so old. They were caught near Mr. Smith's preserve in the Adirondacks when only three days old, when the mother was shot.

They were brought up on a bottle and have prospered as well as if their mamma was still with them. They had never been chained or beaten, but have been conquered through their stomachs. They have not yet attained their half growth and give promise of becoming immense fellows.

Their quarters are large and with a tub apiece are made cool these hot days. They frolic all day and are in an ecstacy when one offers candy through the bars. They answer to the names of Jim and John. When Mr. Smith goes in with them they lick his hand as a dog would do and want to be petted. They are also very friendly with Mrs. Smith, and have never shown the least violence toward any one.—Albany Journal.

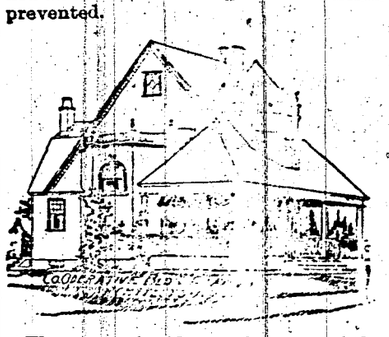
SUBURBAN ARCHITECTURE.

A Light, Airy and Convenient House for Small Cost.

(Copyright 1895 by the Co-operative Building Plan Association, N. Y.)

Those writers who take every occasion to deplore the tendencies of the times, often without any basis for the complaints, are fond of crying about the crowding of the cities and filling of the slums by those who are lured away from the country. It seems to be the general impression that the country is fast becoming depopulated, while the slums and tenements are steadily filling up. Official figures that are available, however, show that this is not the case, for while it is true that the population in many parts of the country is dwindling it is steadily even if slowly building up in others.

More important than all is the fact that under beneficient sanitary laws and regulations, the slums are being purified and over crowding of tenements prevented.

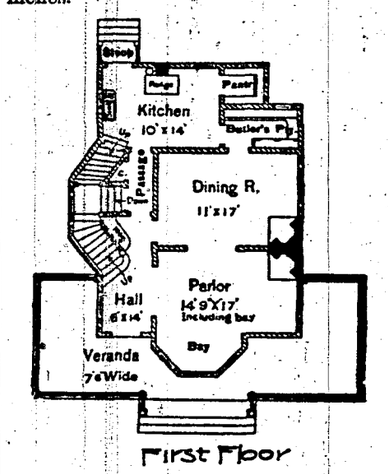


The most significant feature of the shifting of population is found in suburban development. The suburbs draw their population not from the country but from the heart of the cities. Almost every city in the land has shown astonishing growth during the past decade, but in large part this has been in the suburbs while the slums have been stationary in point of population, or have actually shown a decrease.

A house designed after the illustration would prove a convenient, roomy and comfortable household unit still within cost that could be afforded by the average person. A brief description is as follows:

General dimensions: Width, including veranda, 30 ft., 6 in.; depth, including veranda, 40 ft., 6 in.

Height of stories: Cellar, 6 ft., 6 in.; first story, 9 ft.; second story, 8 feet, 6 inches.

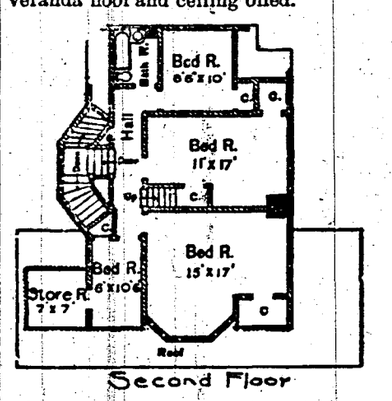


First Floor

Exterior materials: Foundations, brick; side walls, gables and roof, shingles; roof over staircase bay, tin.

Interior finish: Two coat plaster, hard white finish; soft wood flooring and trim: main stairs, ash; bathroom and kitchen wainscoted; all interior woodwork finished with hard oil.

Colors: All shingles on side walls and gables to be left unfinished for weather stain. All roof shingling dipped and brush coated moss green stain; trim, sashes and blinds, ivory white; veranda floor and ceiling oiled.



Second Floor

The principal rooms, their sizes, closets, etc., are shown by the floor plan. Cellar under whole house with inside and outside entrances; bathroom with full plumbing in second story; open fireplaces in parlor and dining room. Numerous and large closets.

Cost $2,500, not including mantels, range and heater, the estimate being based on New York prices for materials and labor, though in many sections of the country the cost should be less.

A laundry could be introduced in the cellar with set tubs at a very small additional cost. Bathroom may be omitted on the second floor and the space thrown into the rear room.

BAPTISTS IN SESSION.

Ninety-Third Annual Conference of Seventh Days.

THREE HUNDRED DELEGATES HERE.

Dr. A. H. Lewis Extends a Hearty Welcome to Them in Behalf of Plainfield — President Utter's Annual Address Filled With Words of Wisdon and Council—Programme to be Followed Out Hereafter in Full.

From the Press of August 21.

The ninety-third annniversary of the Seventh Day Baptist General Conference was called to order this morning at 10:30 o'clock by Hon. George H. Utter, the President, of Westerly, R. I., who is also ex-Secretary of that State.

There was a very large attendance of delegates from all parts of the country and a gradual incoming during the morning. About three hundred were present this morning.

The devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. Mr. Peterson of the New Market Seventh-day church. He read a portion of the second chapter of Acts, after which he offered prayer, asking the blessings of God on the deliberations of the conference. After the singing of the 155th hymn, "Revive Thy Work," a few minutes was spent in a number of short prayers from the delegates, all asking that the conference would accomplish the purpose of God. The devotional service closed with the Lord's Prayer and the singing of "Come Holy Spirit, Heavenly Dove."

The address of welcome was then given by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis as follows:

In behalf of the church of Plainfield I thank you sincerely for the honor you confer upon us, and for the pleasure you bring us by your presence at this time. We welcome you in the name of Christ, to this His house and to each of our homes. For the present these are your homes, and if we fail to do whatever is possible for your comfort and happiness it will be due to inability, rather than to our purpose. But more than all else, we hope so to serve you, and receive from you, that the blessing of God will rest upon us abundantly, and that the highest and holiest interests of this "Anniversary Week" will be promoted unto the honor of God and the strengthening of our beloved Zion. We invoke the divine blessing upon all plans and purposes, all words of counsel, all hymns of praise; upon all that shall be said or done while we are together. We unite with you in seeking thus the highest good toward which God may lead us, through the light and power of the Holy Spirit.

Since the beginning of our organized life as Seventh-day Baptists in America, two hundred and twenty-four years ago, there has been no time when questions of greater importance to ourselvss and to the cause of Christ demanded attention, than now. We have held no General Conference which had deeper significance than this—which convenes within five years of the close of a most remarkable century. Culminating influences have carried us into the midst of a transition period more strongly marked in many respects than any which has preceded it. This transition involves the whole world and every important question connected with modern Christian civilization. In arts, sciences, industries, political and social life, morals and religion, changes and developments outstrip each other with bewildering rapidity. Equally do they challenge credulity by their prophecy concerning the future. Investigation, laden with keys, leaves no field unexplored, no doors untried. The buried history of forgotten centuries in Egypt, Palestine and Babylonia, is yielding its treasures to the spade of the excavator, and the interpreter of records and languages long dead. In the far east, China and Japan are in such swift transition, and in such close relations with the rest of the world, that they are already an important factor in every forecast as to what is soon to be.

But the most important consideration for us at this time is the fact that in this widespread and fundamental transition the Bible is awarded full share of attention. Criticism, high and low, is doing its best with the Book, with creeds, philosophies and practical issues. Many questions will come before you during these sessions which are affected and involved in the changes now going on. True we may not discuss "higher criticism," nor have any heresy trials at hand to distract attention and bewilder faith. But we cannot be indifferent to the fact that the attitude of even the religious world toward the Bible has changed greatly within the last two decades. This fact touches us and our work directly and menacingly. The question now most prominent among the leaders of religious thought, in many places at least, is not, what the Bible teaches, but, what the Bible is: in what sense it is an authoritative Book in matters of religious faith and practice. Is it a Book of specific and universal laws, or only a compilation of general principles to be applied according to individual choice and changing circumstances? Under the influence of such ideas and tendencies the core of our denominational faith is assailed, and we must, in some sense, reconsider that faith in its relation to this time of transition and readjustment. If one wished it otherwise, the wish would be vain.

The Sabbath question is affected by these prevailing tendencies in a large degree. It has almost entirely changed front within ten years. The present issue is not "what day is the Sabbath," but, "is there any Sabbath?" It is not "does the Bible declare that the seventh day is the Sabbath," but, "what has the Bible to do with the Sabbath?" The predominant question in most quarters is: "can we secure a 'rest-day' by civil law on non-religious grounds?" Hence the inquiry is emphasized: "what relation do Sabbath-keepers sustain to the 'civil rest-day'? How far does religious liberty demand the recognition of any day not nominated by the civil law?" Such are some of the prevailing tendencies against which we are called to stand in these times of lawlessness and indifferentism.

What shall our attitude be? Welcome all just criticism of the Bible and of our faith. Accept all truth as fast as its credentials are fully established. Stand firmly and calmly by the Bible as the only and final arbiter in religious matters, and as the foundation of our denominational faith. Remain unmoved and assured amid the changes and clamor of the period. Believe more fully and firmly in God, His Word, His Sabbath, and His Son, Jesus Christ, and having done all, to stand.

Praying for the guidance and power of the Holy Spirit in all your deliberations, plans and worship during the coming days, we welcome you again in the blessed fellowship of the gospel of Christ. In His name, thrice welcome.

President Utter then spoke in part as follows:

The cordial welcome given by the pastor and people is not a surprise to me. We knew it a year ago. The weather has also joined in the welcome, and we are more than favored. I take considerable pleasure in returning thanks to you for your kindness. The year ended has been a most important one. Questions of vital importance have come to us for decision. Early in the year the Tract Society came face to face with the question of moving their plant to Plainfield, and I can say that the change was made after much prayer. The Educational Society has felt the financial stress, but we have men who have stood nobly by the society in the education of the young. The Missionary Society has met serious questions which with the help of God they have been able to solve.

There is no end to a good or bad influence. It is like a stone that rolls on and on. When a good man dies his influence is felt for years. It is the duty of the young to bear aloft the banner and carry it on to victory. The reward is the fulfilment of Christ's promises. You who walk business paths, think what it is to have Christ with you. To doubt would be disloyolty, and to fall would be sin.

The address was followed by the singing of "Stand Up for Jesus."

The general Committee to prepare food for the tables are: Dinner, Mrs. J. F. Hubbard, and Mrs. C. H. Randolph; supper, Mrs. Amanda T. Maxson. Committee on purchases, Mrs. J. D. Titsworth. Mrs. H. M. Maxson has charge of the following waitresses: Misses Bessie Titsworth, May Tomlinson, Nancy Randolph, Lizzie Boice, Ernestine Smith, Maude Mosher, Miss Ayers, Maude Titsworth, Jessie Utter, Florence Randolph, Mrs. Frank Weaks, Mrs. Arthur Titsworth, Mrs. Charles Dunham, Mrs. Davis, Mrs. F. A. Dunham, Mrs. A. Rogers, Mrs. W. Larrabee, Mrs. Chas. Rogers, Harry Boice and I. Titsworth.

The report of Executive Committee and appointment of Committees was was deferred till afternoon.

J. D. Spicer announced that arrangements had been made in the old church for meals, and urged all to see that they had tickets which would serve as credentials. Dinner was served at twelve o'clock, and an adjournment was made to two o'clock, after the benediction was pronounced.

PLAINFIELD REPRESENTED.

Walz to Battle for the Interscholastic Tennis Championship.

Tennis will reign at Newport this week when the annual tournament takes place and the cracks from all over the United States will try for the championship.

Play began on Tuesday. There are eighty-two entries for the tournament among which is that of Carl Walz of this city.

Larned is the general favorite for the single championship and Howland is a good second. Wrenn, the present holder of the championship cup, is not playing his best but it is hoped that he will get into condition for the match. Should he win this year the large trophy cup will become his property as it will be his third time.

The final matches for the interscholastic championship will also take place there during the progress of the big event. Three of the four sectional winners, Ware, Beaman, and Walz of this city, from Harvard, Princeton and Columbia, are entered, but the fourth, Sheldon, of Yale, is among the absentees. This is unfortunate, as Sheldon is said to be even stronger than young Ware by the Yale men.

Walz will put up a hard fight for the championship but in the absence of Sheldon the general belief is that Ware will gain the victory. Sheldon is a younger brother of Sheldon, of Yale, the champion broad jumper.

The lap race is old, but the serial handicap, which is something on the same style of race, is entirely new. The Gilbert and Chester company, of Elizabeth, manufacturers of the Gilchester bicycle, are planing to hold a ten-mile serial road race which is to be called the Gilchester Serial Handicap. Entry blanks have been issued which announce that the handicap will consist of four races, to take place on August 24th and 31st, and September 7th and 11th, over the Elizabeth-Springfield course, starting each time from Morris avenue, Elizabeth at 5 p. m., rain or shine. The contest will be open only to bona fide residents of Union county of three months standing.

There will be two principal prizes, a Gilchester bicycle for first and a gold watch for time. Unlike the usual road race, the prizes will be given to the rider scoring the greatest number of points, the two contest, for first and time, will be entirely separate however. The points will count as follows: five for first, three for second, and one for third. Should there be a tie, it will be run off on the following Thursday.

Clarence E. Teel, of this city has been asked to act as referee in the last race of the series.

Mrs. Anderson's Arm Swells and Amputation May Be Necessary.

Mrs. Mary A. Anderson, of River street, Rahway, while picking a cucumber in her garden yesterday, felt a sharp sting in her right arm just above the wrist. Looking down, she saw a green grape worm four inches in length. She thought no more of it until her arm began to pain her and swell. Home remedies were applied and brought temporary relief. Later in the evening the pain returned and the injured forearm besan to assume alarming proportions. Mrs. Anderson hurried to Dr. H. Page Hough. Dr. Hough said that he feared amputation would be necessary.

Result of a Sunday Outing.

County Detective Keron is investigating the case of Jonas Miller, the Union township farmer whose skull was fractured at an outing of a chowder club from Elizabeth last Sunday. The story circulated by the club that Miller was accidentally hit with a baseball bat is not so, it seems. He was struck either with a brick or stone in a free fight that took place in the grove which he rented to the chowder club for the occasion. They became hilarious and very drunk. They broke some tables erected in the grove, and when Miller went to stop this work he was set upon by the drunken ruffians and knocked senseless. Little hope is entertained of his recovery.

The Merry World.

The restoration of "The Merry World" by Canary & Lederer to the New York Casino stage seems to have brought added life to that house despite the intense heat which has prevailed throughout the week passed. The attendance has maintained the generous pace with which the piece was welcomed on the opening night. The light fleeting character of the entertainment commends it to mid-summer theatre-goers. There is moreover much that is embodied in the general programme that makes it worthy of record in Casino archives.

Miss Lucretia Clark Found Working as a Housemaid.

AT HER HOME IN SYRACUSE NOW

Detective Beck and Reporter Campbell of the World Ceaselessly Follow Up Clues and Finally Locate Her as a Servant in Fitchburg, Mass.—She Left Plainfield and is Thought to Have Become Mentally Deranged.

Miss Lucretia Clark has been found after seventeen days of ceaseless search, working as a housemaid in Fitchburg, Mass. The story of her wanderings and being found is told by The World reporter from Fitchburg as follows:

Lucretia Clark disappears—is lost. She reappears here as Mary Burke, a servant in the house of ex-Mayor Charles S. Hayden, No. 28 Holt street, in this city. And a good servant she is, polite, attentive, methodical, hard-working. She is paid $3 a week, but she does not need money, for two weeks' wages are due her. Mr. Hayden says: "While it was impossible for her to conceal her good breeding, we supposed that she was 'a gentlewoman in need.' She was a good servant, but further than to do her work took no interest in her surroundings. She was polite but taciturn. She answered 'Yes' or 'No' when she was spoken to. She avoided those who wanted to talk to her. She was obedient, sometimes almost childish in her obedience. She arrived here carrying a large cheap cloth traveling bag such as a servant girl might carry. She wore a gown of some trashy black stuff. A big pair of blue goggles hid her dark blue eyes. And Mary Burke's eyes were weak, vacillating. She kept them fixed on the ground."

Lucretia Clark's eyes used to look straight through you.

The first clue was found when the reporter searched "Stratford," the seminary at Plainfield. He found there a copy of a morning newspaper of the date of August 6. In its "personal" column were three advertisements of people who wished to engage a governess. These personals were marked. This seemed to show that three days before Lucretia Clark's actual disappearance her mind was wandering from its fixed purpose.

About to realize her ambition, about to become the mistress of a school from which she expected to derive a handsome income, she was marking advertisements in the newspapers for a governess. Two days after she marked the newspaper Lucretia Clark wrote to Serus Tennebresque, a French teacher, of No. 1,828 Anthony avenue, that she would not need his services at Stratford. She had engaged someone else, she wrote, whose terms were lower. That seemed to prove that she was still determined to open her school.

Then, for some reason, Lucretia Clark had disappeared.

Gradually and with infinite patience Miss Clark was traced. These are the steps:

She left Plainfield on the 7:26 a. m. train August 9th, having told Miss Yanne that she was going to a house on upper Eighth avenue to buy furniture.

Arriving at the Jersey Central railroad depot at Jersey City, Miss Clark asked policeman No. 183 if she could take a ferry-boat at that slip that would land her in New York further uptown than Liberty street. The policeman told her she could not, and taking the ferry-boat in the slip, Miss Clark was landed at Liberty street.

It was found that a woman answering Lucretia Clark's description was in a large department store at Sixth avenue and Fourteenth street between 9 and 10 a. m. on Aug. 9. She was in the furniture department, pricing goods.

Then followed an almost interminable search that ended at the pier of the Fall River Line of steamboats. A woman, short, rather stout, with brown hair, streaked with gray, had been making inquiries of some of the employees of the company and of loungers as to when the steamboat started for Boston. This was about 4 p. m., Aug. 9.

Every other clue failing, the reporter went to Boston. He took with him specimens of Lucretia Clark's hand writing. Arrived in Boston he fruitlessly searched the hospitals and asylums. Always remembering the marked personals that sought a governess, he went to the employment bureaus and intelligence offices. No one had seen a woman of her description seeking employment, or one whose hand writing at all resembled the cultivated hand of Lucretia Clark.

Yes, the head of the employment bureau, No. 691 Washington street, had seen that handwriting before. She turned to her books. "Mary Burke" was written there in a hand exactly like Miss Clark's.

"Where is Mary Burke now?" asked the reporter.

"At Fitchburg, about fifty miles northwest of here," answered the woman. "You see the entry here. She was engaged by Miss Holt, No. 28 Holt street, and left this office with her on the afternoon of Saturday, August 10th."

Miss Clark's relatives here were sent for. They went to Fitchburg with the reporter this morning. They went to No. 28 Holt street and rang the front-door bell.

The door was opened, and Lucretia Clark stood before them—Lucretia Clark—Mary Burke. She had on a checked apron, a dust brush was in her hand. She looked at her visitors, and they at her. For what may have been a minute, that seemed like an hour, no one spoke. Then Lucretia Clark—the servant at the door—said, in cold tones, without emotion, without surprise:

"How did you get here? Come in."

Leading them in, the woman who had been lost and was found, motioned them to chairs, and seated herself. She sat mute. She answered in monosyllables the tearful questions that were put to her. She spoke only when she was spoken to, and while she did not end the interview, she behaved like a sulky child. The whole conduct of this Lucretia Clark, once the level-headed teacher and woman of business, was childish.

She said, always answering questions, she could not remember anything that happened after she left Plainfield until she found herself in the 14th street store pricing furniture. She had a hazy remembrance of going to the Fall River boat in New York, but why she went to the boat or how she reached it she could not tell.

"Come, Lucretia," finally said one of her relatives, "pack up your things and we will go to Syracuse to your sister, to John's house."

Miss Clark, accustomed to give orders, obeyed like a child. She seemed to realize that her will was dominated, that those who then surrounded her had stronger minds than hers. She obeyed them. She packed her cheap traveling bag, and with a relative started for Syracuse at 10:30 a. m. today.

There can be no doubt that Miss Clark's mind is affected, perhaps by overwork and worry, perhaps as the result of a mild sunstroke. The best physicians will be called to attend her, and it is fully expected that quiet and rest will restore her.

MISS CLARK IS SILENT.

Cannot Explain Her Wanderings—Her Arrival at Home.

Syracuse N. Y., August 26—Louis J. Beck, Miss Lucretia Clark and Mrs. Yenne, Miss Clark's neice, arrived here at 8:15 on the Boston and Chicago Limited tonight, and were met at the station by John Edson Sweet.

They were driven to the home of Mr. Sweet. There was an affecting meeting between Mrs. Sweet and her sister. Afterwards Mr. Beck was seen by a World correspondent, and consented to speak of the case. "I have been at work on this case ever since Miss Clark disappeared, and I will say right here that The World was the only paper who knew anything concerning Miss Clark. Wherever I was I found a World reporter close behind, and one was with me at Fitchburg.

"The first definite information I had concerning Miss Clark was through an anonymous communication. She left Plainfield, came to New York and at once went to Macy's. At that time she was in her right mind, but suddenly an impulse came over her to purchase a silk waist. From then on her mind was a blank until I found her this morning.

"While in Boston she lost her baggage and the $200 draft. She also cut off her luxuriant hair. The next day she visited an intelligence office and applied for a position as maid. She was engaged to work in Judge Hayden's household at Fitchburg, and there she has since been, utterly ignorant of her real surroundings. When her sister, Mrs. Yenne, met her she at first failed to recognize her, but in a moment regained consciousness. She is listless, and manifests little interest, however, in her surroundings. I believe she has a singular mental aberration, but I think she will recover."

Miss Clark's course may have been suggested to her by that of Mrs. E. J. Gardiner, of Arcadia, Neb. Mrs. Gardiner went to Boston last July to attend the Christian Endeavor Convention. She disappeared and was found, after a prolonged search, at service in Norwich, Conn. Since Mrs. Gardiner's return to Nebraska she has been declared insane

AT FOUR SCORE AND FOUR.

ANDREW D. MELLICK, SR., SUCCUMBS TO THE GRIM REAPER.

Was a Former Prominent New York Business Man and One of the Founders of Bayonne—Born in Somerset County.

The death of Andrew D. Mellick, Sr., occurred Tuesday at the home of his son on LaGrande avenue after an extended illness. Mr. Mellick was one of the well-known men of New Jersey, but during the last decade has lived a retired life with his son in this city. He was an accomplished man in a business way and pleasant and genial in society.

Mr. Mellick was born at Bedminister, Somerset county, in 1811, and is therefore eighty-four years of age. In 1841 he was married to Elizabeth Dunn of New Brunswick. In his youth he went to New Brunswick and obtained employment with the grocery and shipping firm of James Bishop & Co., where he remained until he became a member. During his New Brunswick residence he was a member of the Common Council, for many years a director of the State Bank and was active in the fire department as foreman of Engine Company No. 1. In 1844 he removed to the city of New York, becoming a member of the wholesale grocery firm of Bealé, Mellick & DeWitt, at 3 and 5 Bridge street, and 30 Pearl street.

This house held a leading position in the trade until overwhelmed by the panic of 1857. He first lived in New York in Clinton place, but in 1845 purchased the dwelling at 20 West Ninth street, in which he lived until he removed to Bergen Point, N. J., in the spring of 1855. While living in New York he was a member of the board of trustees of the First Presbyterian church, and aided in completing its edifice on the corner of Fifth avenue and Eleventh street. He was a director of the American Exchange Bank, and of the National Fire Insurance Company, and a member of the New York Historical Society. In New Jersey he was active and foremost in developing that portion of Hudson county in the way of locating and laying out street, establishing grades and other important improvements preliminary to the founding of the city of Bayonne.

WHO WILL TAKE IT?

Opening in the Nurses' Training Class at the Hospital.

There is one vacancy at Muhlenberg Hospital Training School for Nurses, and the managers are anxious to have some Plainfield young woman apply for the place. The course of training is two years in length, and the pupil at the conclusion of that period receives a certificate of proficiency in nursing signed by the president, the secretary, the medical director and the superintendent, and with the hospital seal attached.

The profession of nursing is most honorable and useful, and the young woman who feels an inclination to adopt it, and who has sound health, neat habits and a kind and cheerful disposition, will find in the medical staff of Muhlenberg Hospital a corps of nine or ten physicians having the enthusiasm, learning and experience combined that eminently fit them for instructors in a training school for nurses.

The superintendent at the hospital will furnish anyone who is interested with all desired information as to the rules of the training school and the method of application for entrance.

May Be of the River Gang.

James Maxwell, who is said to be another of the gang of river pirates that were operating on the Kills and Newark Bay, was arrested yesterday at Carteret and taken to Elizabeth headquarters. He will be held until a requisition is obtained by the Staten Island authorities for his removal to Richmond county.

Was a Prominent Figure.

Ex-councilman F. M. Slater, of the borough, figured prominently in the hostilities between the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and the Junction Railroad Company, at Jersey City, yesterday. Mr. Slater is the Chief Engineer of the Junction Company, and before the railroad war was ended for the day had five men arrested.

Price of Milk to Go Up.

It is reported that the local milk dealers will raise the price of that commodity from six to eight cents on the first of September.

When the Schools Open.

The city schools will open for the fall term on Monday, September 9th. The borough school will open the following day.

VARDON'S JAWS ARE SET.

ANOTHER CASE OF LOCK JAW TAKEN TO THE HOSPITAL.

A Church Street Lad Falls Out of a Hammock and Gashes His Head—Conditionis Thought to Be Precarious.

A very peculiar but serious accident happened to Charles G. Vardon, of 425 Church street, about two weeks ago. His younger brother John was in the yard swinging in the hammock, when Charles came around and catching hold of the hammock was thrown to the ground, his head striking a stone.

He received a severe cut, but thought nothing serious would result. His mother, however, worried considerably about it. She urged her son to attend to the injury at once. He put court plaster on the cut.

Last Sunday he suffered a great deal with pains in his face, and after being urged went to Dr. Keeney's office. She gave him some medicine and thought he would come out all right, but he grew worse and had difficulty in moving his jaws.

Dr. Hedges was called in yesterday and pronounced it a case of lockjaw. He advised that the boy be taken to the hospital yesterday afternoon. There are hopes that he will recover, though he is in a critical condition.

STILL IN A HAZE.

Miss Clark is Unable to Tell of Her Romantic Experiences.

The World this morning contained the following from Syracuse:

Miss Lucretia Clark, who disappeared from Plainfield, and was found acting as a housemaid in Fitchburg, Mass., Monday, is apparently unable to tell of her experiences. She is still at the home of her sister, Mrs. John Sweet, in this city. Mrs. Sweet and Miss Alice Clark have been at her bedside since her arrival here. Mr. Sweet expects that a few weeks of rest and quiet will fully restore her health and impaired faculties.

The day on which Miss Clark disappeared was an excessively warm day. Her friends think that anxiety over the success of her venture in Plainfield had disturbed her mental equilibrium, and the effects of the heat on the morning of the 9th completed the work of unsettling her mind.

Miss Clark is very weak. In addition to the mental shock which she has received she is greatly grieved over what she conceives to be the ruining of all her hopes and plans for future work. She seems to fully realize that she is once more among friends and relatives. Mrs. Sweet when asked if she had a report from the detective who searched for Miss Clark replied in the negative.

Who Is the Tall Man?

A good-sized delegation from John Hand Camp, No. 28, S. of V., will attend the annual field day exercises to be given by Hugh C. Irish Camp, No. 8, of Paterson, at that city on Labor Day, Monday, September 2d. The event promises to be one of the largest in the history of the camp. Members from all parts of the State will be present. Among the prizes offered is one for the tallest member in the division, and the Plainfield camp stands a good show of capturing it, as they have a very tall member.

Rahway Firemen to Parade.

The annual parade of the Rahway Fire Department will take place on October 14. The City Council has appropriated $250 to help defray the expenses of hiring music. My boy was taken sick with a disease resembling bloody flux. The first thing I thought of was Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. Two doses of it settled the matter and cured him sound and well. I heartily recommend this remedy to all persons suffering from a like complaint. I will answer any inquiries regarding it when stamp is inclosed. I refer to any county official as to my reliability. Wm. Roach, J. P., Primroy, Campbell Co., Tenn. AND THE BAND PLAYED ON.

IT WILL TOOT FOR THE BRUNETTE AS WELL AS FOR THE BLONDE.

The Third Open-Air Concert Will Be Given in the City Park by Councilman Fisk—The Official Programme.

There is to be an open-air concert Saturday evening, but this time the residents of the Third Ward are to get the benefit of it. It is to be held at the City Park and is furnished by Councilman Charles J. Fisk. Guttman's band, as usual, will supply the music, which will last from 7:30 to 9:30. The programme is an entirely new one and includes several descriptive pieces. "The Russian Carriage Song" includes the sleigh-bells, whip, coaching calls, bugle calls, and singing. In the Tornado Galop, the tornado whistle will be introduced; the effect is very weird.

The programme is as follows:

Two-Step—New York Sun.....Rosenfeld
Selections from Robin Hood.....DeKoven
(By request).
Waltzes—And the Band Played On.....Beyer
Military Sketch—The Reveille.....Larendean
Descriptive Piece—Russian Carriage Song.

Don't forget to cut out the programme and save it for Saturday evening.

The next concert will be given by Councilman George H. Frost and will probably take place at the corner of Franklin place and La Grande avenue on the evening of Thursday, September 5th.

Saturday evening's concert will be held under the electric light in the centre of the city park. Other lights will be added for the convenience of the band. There will be no need of tramping down the neighboring lawns as the park is of ample size to hold any crowd that will be present.

THINKS HE WILL GET DARLING

Detective Oliver Entertains Hopes of Capturing the Young Murderer.

For the last few days The World has been publishing communications from an anonymous correspondent who has severely criticised the manner in which Middlesex county officials have acted in the murder case of Harry Dunham. In The World of yesterday the correspondent made grave insinuations reflecting on the honesty of the officials. The New Brunswick Home News has the following to say concerning the charges:

Detective Oliver was greatly indignant over the communication this morning, casting, as it did, a mean insinuation without making any charges. He says that the Prosecutor's office has been working on the case, and because they give nothing out for publication about their work, it is no indication that they are not doing anything. Darling, he thinks, is not in hiding about New Market, but is many miles away. The detective has no doubt but that he will capture the man.

An Autopsy on Clark's Body.

An autopsy was performed on the body of Samuel Clark, Sr., who was killed at Scotch Plains Sunday night, by Dr. Mravlag, of Elizabeth, assisted by Dr. I. F. P. Turner, of the Elizabeth General Hospital. The coroner's inquest will be held tomorrow afternoon at Emory's hotel in Scotch Plains.

When moving into our present home I found a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm left by a former tenant. On the label I found the statement that it was good for cuts and burns. I can testify to the truth of this. Nothing in all my experience has found its equal for treating blisters or burns. F. E. Barrett, manager Le Sueur Sentinel, Le Sueur, Minn. Pain Balm is also a sure cure for rheumatism. For sale at Reynolds Pharmacy, Park and North avenues; T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

DALLY MADE RICH IN A DAY.

WOODBRIDGE MILLIONAIRE LEAVES A FORTUNE TO A PLAINFIELD MAN.

William P. Dally Has Been a Wanderer From His Home in Perth Amboy for Two Years—He is Now a Rich Man.

William P. Dally, a resident of this city, has through the death of his grandfather fallen heir to a large fortune. Mr. Dally is at present representing the marble works of J. E. Townsend on the road. He is the son of the late William P. Dally, of Perth Amboy, of which city he was mayor for two terms. At the death of his father young Dally took hold of the extensive marble business that his father had built up.

Reverses overtook him, however, and since that time he has been estranged from his family through an unfortunate mistake. For the past two years Dally, though heir to a large fortune, has been wandering about the country.

Last week his grandfather, Samuel Dally, of Woodbridge, died, leaving a fortune estimated at more than a million. Young Dally is the only living male member of the family, and to him comes the largest share of the estate.

The contents of the will have not been made public as yet, but the attorney, Ephraim Cutter, of Woodbridge, states that Mr. Dally's share is $55,000 in cash, and enough valuable clay lands to make the legacy reach nearly a quarter of a million. Part of the estate lies within the city of Perth Amboy.

Mr. Dally still retains his position with Mr. Townsend, and says he intends making Plainfield his home in the future. There are several heirs to the estate besides the widow of the deceased.

THEY CAUGHT ONE CRAB.

The Wagons All Went the Wrong Way and So They Waited.

Two very crestfallen young men returned to Plainfield last evening. John Richardson, of Leland avenue, and Charles VanWinkle, of Central avenue, started for Boynton Beach Tuesday morning to try their luck at crabbing. They hurried along as they wished to reach there before tide went out and were spining along at a fast pace. Unluckily for them the road in one place was very rutty. VanWinkle turned in towards the middle of the road to escape a rut, as he did his comrade got caught in another rut and went all in a heap toward the middle of the road. The result was they met. Richardson, after all was over, found himself all sprawled out spread eagle fashion and remarked.

"Van, what's the matter?"

After investigating for broken bones they found Richardson's wheel had run into Van's sixty pounder and was bent all out of shape.

It was too far to walk so they waited for a passing wagon. Lunch time came and none appeared so they got something to eat at a nearby farm house. At five o'clock that afternoon Stevens & Giles bakery wagon passed by and carried the wouldbe crabbers home.

The Bullet That Missed.

George Cladek, of Rahway, who went to New Market recently, viewing the scene where young Dunham was murdered, says the revolver used must have been a 38-calibre, as the bullet made an indenture an inch thick in the icebox, and was as large as the end of a man's little finger.

Estimates Being Received.

Clum & Lancaster have completed the plans for a new $3,000 cottage for George Leland, the plumber, which will be erected in Watchung Park. The first story is to be of weather boards and the second gables of shingles. A prominent feature of the house will be an octagonal tower.

Entertained at Green Pond.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker, Sr., Dr. and Mrs. Harrison, Mr. Walker, Jr., and a young woman friend, all of Montclair, are camping at Green Pond, about sixty miles from here. They have been entertaining Plainfield friends

Kenneth Razemore had the good fortune to receive a small bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy when three members of his family were sick with dysentery. This one small bottle cured them all and he had some left which he gave to Geo. W. Baker, a prominent merchant of the place, Lewiston, N. C., and it cured him of of the same complaint. When troubled with dysentery, diarrhœa, colic or cholera morbus, give this remedy a trial and you will be more than pleased with the result. The praise that naturally follow its introduction and use has made it very popular. 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale at Reynolds's Pharmacy, Park and North avenues; T. S. Armstrong, Manager.

COLONIAL HOUSES.

This O'd Style Architecture is Now Called Aesthetic.

(Copyright 1895 by the Co-operative Building Plan Association, N. Y.)

The Chicago Exposition gave a most decided impetus to all phases of æsthetic art in this country. More especially has the influence been felt in everything that partains to architecture. Magnificent as was the array of exhibits showing the material advancement of the world in these latter days, the general criticism that has been passed is that this Exposition is notable above all others for its matchless buildings and superb grouping of structures.

The efforts put forth by the architects were not alone to give suitable housing to all the various articles shown—as was the case of the Philadelphia Exposition—but to make the best possible use of natural advantages and to harmonize all into one perfect whole. The result was well called a "dream city."

The Dutch style of Colonial architecture gives us a more quaint and picturesque appearance, befitting the suburb or the quiet, rich rural country. Its broad and airy porches are always inviting and there is no sacrifice of comfort for showiness.

A brief description of the English Colonial house is as follows:

Width, 32 feet, 6 inches; depth, including portico, 38 ft., 6 in.

Height of stories: Cellar, 7 ft.; first story, 9 ft., second story, 8 ft.; attic, 8 feet.

Exterior materials: Foundation stones; first and second stories, clapboards; balcony floor covered with canvas; deck and extension roofs tin; main roof shingles.

COOPERATIVE BLDG. PLAN ASSN. ARCHITECTS N.Y.

Interior finish: The entrance hall and living room finished in oak; the rest of the house hard white plaster—colored to suit owner's taste; oak floor in the living room and staircase. Rooms throughout are trimmed with soft wood finished in natural colors. An open timber ceiling in the hall, living room and dining room, with the dining room wainscotted, at a cost of about $500, would much improve appearance, as would also finishing the parlor and one or more of the main rooms upstairs in white enamel and gold, at an average expense of $150 a room.

The first floor contains large ball room and living room thrown in one, 18x19x8, with dining room in the back connected by sliding doors. On the left, parlor opening into the hall—sliding doors or portiere. Kitchen in the back. Open fireplaces in all these rooms, feeding into two chimneys, as shown in the prospective view. Four large rooms with bath on the second floor; open fireplaces in the two front chambers. Two rooms may be finished off in the attic, or the attic may be finished off handsomely in hard wood as a billiard room. Full set of plumbing throughout.

In the vicinity of New York this design, well built, without extravagance in details, would cost $5,000. Much smaller than this example as illustrated would not look well, but enlarging the design enhances its appearance.

COOP. BUILDING PLAN ASSN. ARCHITECTS N.Y.

Regarded as a pure example of the best Colonial style, the exterior characteristics of which are a large square structure, with a portico having fluted columns with carved caps, a belvidere on the roof, circular head windows and delicate details of classic origin.

The Dutch design as illustrated is about the same sized house, but the design itself admits of a much smaller dwelling without destroying the artistic appearance. We give a brief description.

Depth, including veranda, 40 ft.; first story, 9 ft., 6 in.; second story, 8 ft., 6 in.

Foundation stone; first story clapboards; gables ornamented with papier-mache and shingles; pediments of dormers and frieze of large dormer ornamented with papier-mache; main room shingles; balcony floor tin.

Interior finish: Hard white plaster throughout, colored to suit owner's taste; soft wood flooring and trim; main staircase ash; kitchen and bath, wainscotted. All interior woodwork grain filled, stained to suit owner and finished in hard oil.

Colors: All clapboards Colonial yellow; trim white; all shingles left natural for weather stain; veranda and porch floores and ceilings oiled.

The acommodations on the first floor give a dining room and sitting room on the right, with open fireplaces; large hall, 7x18x6; parlor and kitchen on the left, separated by side hall and entry; four large rooms on second floor, beside servants' rooms and bath with full set of plumbing. Open fireplaces may be introduced in two of the upstairs bedrooms. Double sliding or folding doors may be used between parlor and hall and sitting room and hall instead of portiere openings. Bay window may be planned at side of dining room and the side porch may be entirely omitted.

FROM WAIST LINE UP.

SKIRTS DON'T BOTHER MUCH SO LONG AS THEY ARE COPIOUS.

It Is the Waist, the Collar, the Hair and Incidentally the Face that Lovely Woman Must Depend Upon for Her Artificial Attractiveness.

The original fancy for the novel in waist decoration is deepening into widespread anxiety. No one minds much about her skirts, if they are moderately wide and have the braid on them, but a new waist involves labor of body and mind.

The sailor collar is rampant. It has grown to be the madness of the hour. We see it not only in the duck, gingham and humble fabrics, but in satin, and the finest; in black and white colors, particularly linen color.

Some seek to vary the simple collar effect by adding ficlu ends. In which case the whole arrangement is often adjustable. The most popular of these finishing touches is made of fine grass linen, with trimmings of black or white lace. But they may be fashioned from any other material at hand.

Stole effects are the latest and perhaps the prettiest. At the back they fit perfectly, extend in epaulete fashion over the sleeves and down the front in loose ends, finishing just at the waist line, where, after their own sweet will, they may flop about a bit.

Stoles are made from the dress fabric, grass linen or net. Some particularly smart ones have been so made of black Brussels, ornamented with appliqued jet pieces. They have, in the latter case, jet borders.

A gown of white glace taffeta with lines of black and small flowers of yellow, has a vest of yellow chiffon and a modified stole trimming of white Russian lace or yellow silk. Yellow chiffon ends, which make a pretty decoration if kept out of ice cream, finish the sleeve. A hat of black and parasol of white, gloves of pale yellow with white stitchings, add the necessary garden party touches.

Shoulder straps ending in broad sash-like tabs are the prominent features of a jaunty evening waist, intended, oddly enough, for half mourning. The body of the waist is of dull white gros grain silk, ornamented with black corded chiffon insertings. The sleeves are of fine black and white striped silk, not glace, and the tab ends are of dull black gros grain, held in place by buckles of unpolished blackness.

It has always seemed a little curious that conventional mourning should insist upon certain somber standard colors, though permitting, even requiring, that the mode be of the latest.

But why quarrel with the mode? One may refuse to adopt it if she likes. But why differ excitedly with it or anything?

Never Touched Him.

"Nearly everything. In fact, the only thing not disturbed was the watchman."—Chicago Standard.

A BURLESQUE ON JUSTICE.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY OFFICIALS THE SUBJECT OF MUCH CRITICISM.

They Seem to Care Not Whether Darling is Captured—Little Effort Made in That Direction—Plausible Theories.

The probability of William Darling, who killed Harry Dunham at New Market Tuesday evening, being captured in the near future, or, in fact, at any time, is very remote. The lethargy which dominated the Middlesex county officials' action at the start does not seem to diminish as time passes. No reward has been offered for the capture or apprehension of Darling, and there is but little doubt that by this time he is sojourning serenely and safely from capture hundreds or thousands of miles from the scene of the fatality.

Great indignation is expressed at the manner in which this case is being handled by the Middlesex county officials, whose laxity is a burlesque on justice.

In the parlance of the street Darling is about as slick as they make them, and is acquainted with all the little ins and outs in vogue among police officials, which would contribute to his success in his efforts to elude capture.

There is but little doubt that Darling came to Plainfield Tuesday night after throwing his bicycle in the New Brooklin pond and that he was the man seen by Harry Williams and a friend sneaking along the bushes opposite the Netherwood station. Some people argue that such a move on his part would have been the height of foolishness, and contrary to what might have been expected from a man who has seen and knows as much about the world as he does. These people do not know what they are talking about.

When Darling fired his second shot at Dunham, Mrs. Danz, the landlady, turned to the latter and asked him if he was hurt. He replied that he was not.

Mrs. Danz then followed Darling to the door, who quickly put the revolver in his pocket and jumped on his wheel and rode away. Of course this byplay was enacted in four or five seconds, and when Darling went out of the hotel door Dunham was still standing, and showed no signs of being hurt. Darling, therefore, did not know whether or not the shots were fatal. But it is supposed that he knew it was possible that he had hurt Dunham and realized that he might get into trouble over it. He grasped the situation quickly and riding to New Brooklyn pond submerged his wheel in the water, and hurriedly walked to this city, which he could have done in three-quarters of an hour.

When he did this he must have had two ideas in his head. The first was that if he had killed Dunham he could get to Plainfield about as soon as the news of the murder would, hear of it in some way and then make his escape by taking a train at some unobserved spot along the road, doubtless thinking that the search would be made about New Market the first thing. And if his pursuers should happen to find the submerged bicycle they would immediately conclude he had jumped a Lehigh Valley train at South Plainfield, thus throwing them off the real course he had taken. This theory seems to be most plausible and probable.

The second theory advanced to account for his throwing the bicycle in the lake is that he sought to hide it there until he could find out just how the shooting had terminated. And if it was nothing disastrous he could hurry back and get the wheel, wipe and clean it up and no one would be the wiser. Whatever the condition of affairs might be his ends would be served in throwing the wheel in the water.

The story of the abandoned tent, footprints, lost shoe, etc., is all bosh.

Darling left a wife and eleven-months-old boy in this city.

The Stillman Theatre.

Nothing has been left undone from an artistic point of view to make "The Captain's Mate," which opens the season at Stillman Theatre, Thursday, August 29th, a grand success. Miss Bindley, the clever little star of the company, requires no introduction. Her artistic work and versatility as America's leading soubrette has been highly commended by press and public from Maine to California, and it is safe to say during her engagement here she will win the goodwill of many admirers of legitimate comedy.

L. B. Mulford, of West Front street, is again quite ill.

Rev. Garret Conover and wife, who have been visiting at the home of Mrs. Conover's mother, Mrs. J. K. VanArsdale of Grove street, left this morning for Clinton, Hunterdon county, the home of Mr. Conover's parents.

Misses Edith and Lolla Cooley, of Westervelt avenue, returned from Central New York State Thursday. They were met at the Grand Central Depot by their brother, Irwin Cooley, who has just returned from an outing at Asbury Park.

WARING INVITES CORSA BACK.

But Corsa Declines to Be Reinstated Without Assurance.

Col. Waring offered yesterday to reinstate H. C. Corsa in his office of District Superintendent in the Street Cleaning Department in New York, from which Corsa was summarily removed last week without a hearing. The Colonel would give to the reporters no explanation of his change of position. He sent this notice to Mr. Corsa, dated Thursday:

Sir: I hereby restore you to your position as District Superintendent. You will report to the Superintendent at his office on the 23d inst.

Mr. Corsa did not report for duty. He had begun mandamus proceedings, as a veteran, to compel Col. Waring to reinstate him, and the hearing is set for next Thursday.

Col. Waring, it is understood, consulted with the Corporation Counsel and on his advice offered to reinstate Mr. Corsa. But Mr. Corsa, on advice of his counsel, Alderman Olcott, will not report for duty until several matters have been settled. If he is restored by mandamus all the charges made before that time are wiped away and can be used no more. Moreover, if a mandamus is granted Col. Waring will have to pay the costs, which though small, are something. And lastly had Mr. Corsa gone back yesterday he would have waived all claims to damages for which he may bring suit.

The matter is now under the consideration of the counsel on both sides and a decision will be arrived at soon.

CHANCE FOR PLAINFIELD RIDERS.

What the Races at the Harvest Home Will Be.

One of the chief attractions at the Harvest Home which is to be held in Smalleytown next Thursday will be three bicycle races, a one-quarter, a one-half, and a one mile contest. F. L. C. Martin, who is to act as referee, went over yesterday to measure out the course. The races will be run the valley road, straightaway and Mr. Martin says the road is in excellent condition. The races begin at 4:30 p. m; entries will be received up to the start and valuable prizes given to the winners. It will be a good chance for Plainfield young men to try their speed.

For More Interesting Meetings.

The Woman's Relief Corps have planned to make their meetings every two weeks more interesting. A new committee is appointed at each meeting to arrange for the following meeting. The programme consists of readings, recitations, vocal and instrumental music and refreshments. Last evening about twenty-five members enjoyed such a programme. It was rendered by the members.

It Will Take Two Sections.

The financial panic is over and business is reviving again, so there is no excuse for refusing to take your family on the monster convention excursion of the Seventh-Day Baptists which goes to Asbury Park next Tuesday. Take your wheel along; there will be a baggage car for them. Ride around, enjoy yourself. It's your last chance. The train leaves the North avenue station at eight a. m.

BARON HAND SUCCESSFUL.

The Crack Spalding Rider as a Bicycle Dealer.

Plainfield cyclists will be glad to know that there is a good repair shop in Westfield now, located next door to to Union County Standard building, which is in connection with the bicycle agency of Scriver & Hand. For "Baron" Hand has left the track temporarily and is Ernie Hand, the bicycle dealer, instead of the member of the Spalding team. When a friend from Plainfield rode up to see him yesterday Hand said that the outlook was very bright, three wheels were sold in the first three days, and that after he had become better acquainted he expected to do a thriving business.

SHELDON DEFEATS WALZ.

Plainfield's Crack Looses, But the Man From Summit May be Champion.

The fourth round in the national tennis tournament at Newport, was played off yesterday and furnished several surprises, among which the greatest was the easy defeat of Malcolm Chase by Neel, the western champion. Neel will meet Hovey today in the semi-finals.

Larned, of Summit, won his match from Foote with ease. He is playing a perfect game and looks like a winner. He has a difficult match to win today with Howland.

The first round interscholastic championship was played yesterday and Walz was easily defeated by the Yale crack. The scores in the two matches were as follows: J. L. Sheldon, Jr., of Yale, defeated C. F. Walz, of Columbia, 6-1, 6-2, 6-1. L. E. Ware, of Howard, defeated M. G. Beaman, of Princeton, 3-6, 6-2, 6-4, 6-3.

Newhall Wins at Lake Placid.

Another Plainfield young man distinguished himself by winning a boat race yesterday. Harry B. Newhall, of East Seventh street, who graduated from Leal's school in '93 and is now a student in the Massachusetts School of Technology, entered the singles in the international boat races on Lake Placid and won. He represented Whiteface Inn in the race.

Lost and Found.

Volney F. Green, of East Fifth street, and George Voorhees, of New Brunswick, planned to go on a cruise to the Atlantic Highlands this week, but Thursday when they went to find the yacht at New Brunswick it was missed. ABOUT ELIZABETH TAXES.

They Are Considered Rather High This Year.

The tax rate of Elizabeth this year will be $2.98, which is considered rather high, in view of the largely increased property valuations there durthe past few years. The tax rate has remained stationary in Elizabeth for a dozen years, although in that time the total taxable valuations which ought to give a lower rate have taken big strides. It is a puzzle to many of the taxpayers why the rate should remain persistently at $2.98, and it is argued that by this time, with all the building improvements that have been made since 1887, the rate should at least have come down to $2.90, and several insist it should fall even lower. With the city debt all negotiated, it is claimed by citizens who have given much study to the city's financial situation that there is no longer any need of hoarding a large contingent fund in the treasury, the maintenance of which is given as one of the principal reasons for keeping up the tax rate. This fund was a handy thing to have in bygone years, when creditors were devising methods to harass the city and threatening to put their judgements on the tax levy, but as these conditions no longer exist the need of a big contingent fund does not appear clear.

The advocates of a high tax rate will doubtless claim that on account of building more schools, slightly increasing the police force and raising the pay of its members, the expenses will be greater and the taxes cannot well be lowered, but it is asserted by those who say they have carefully looked over the situation that with the city's present valuation $2.98 on every $100 is a pretty steep figure for the property owners to be assessed.

THE WEATHER WAS AGAINST THEM.

So They Adjourned to the Church and Enjoyed Themselves.

It is a cold day when the members of the Fillmore Avenue Baptist church get left, and although it was very cold last evening, yet the lawn party and watermelon feast was a success. Of course the low temperature effectually spoiled any outdoor enjoyment, but the church still remained, and the ent, which had been erected on the awn, was deserted and the strings of apanese lanterns burned out one by ne, while the young people ate ice ream and watermelon in the church.

The cake table was under the direction of the Misses Elizabeth Martin, mma Webster, Jennie Booker and lla Randolph.

The following looked after the atermelon, ice cream and lemonade: obert Randolph and the Misses ary Thomas and Ellen Bounds.

Considering the coolness of the eather the attendance was unusually rge.

Music was furnished during the vening by Oscar Nelson on the organ nd Henry Peterson on the violin. he Christian Endeavor society of the hurch arranged the entertainment.

ARRESTED FOR SHARPERS.

Two Reputable Strangers Have an Exciting Adventure.

The sharper is one of the great enemies of the hotel keeper and, in an attempt to capture one of these victimizers, two reputable business men now boarding at the Hotel Grenada, were arrested and had a very narrow escape from spending a night in the borough lockup. Last evening, the two men, who are strangers in Plainfield and represent a large New York concern, went into the borough on business.

They stopped at the Arlington hotel to get a drink, and one of them, who had a five dollar gold piece in his possession, thought he would use it on this occasion. He felt in his pocket and took out what he supposed to be the gold piece and gave it to the bartender. He waited for the change he expected to receive, but as it was not forthcoming he asked for it, and was told that he had only given a quarter, and on investigating he found the gold piece still in his pocket. Then the two walked down Somerset street until they came to Hipp's saloon and entered there.

Here, after drinking, they tried their luck bowling, and paid for the drinks with the five dollar gold piece.

Meantime word came from the bartender at the Arlington to look out for sharpers and flimflam men. The gold coin was found and compared with another and to the excited eyes of the investigators appeared counterfeit. Marshall Dowd was immediately called in and arrested the supposed sharpers.

They tried to explain and finally Wallace V. Miller, of Hotel Grenada, and Mayor Hegeman were sent for and the whole situation explained. They then gave bonds, and arranged with Justice Crosley, who had appeared, for their appearance this morning. When they did appear in court there was no complaint as their entirely innocent actions were plain and they were discharged.

It is said that the men who escaped the lock-up are preparing to sue the borough and Mr. Hipp for false imprisonment.

Rumors Fill the Air.

The Republicans of North Plainfield, we learn, are intending to push the nomination of Lawyer Charles A. Reed for County Judge. It was said, some time ago, that the Republican candidate for County Clerk would be taken from the township, but we understand that a new deal of cards has given the nomination to another township. There are several rumors in the air, one of which is that the Republicans must take their candidate for Sheriff from the south side of the Raritan, and that plum will fall to ex-Freeholder Vreeland of Montgomery. —Somerville Messenger.

Borough Realty Changes.

Lewis M. Codington et ux. to Fannie G. Bolmer, $500.

Margaret E. McLaughlin to George H. Staggard, $150.

John D. Runyon et als. to John W. Mundy, $1,500.

Hector Toulmin Realty Co. to Koroliva Klein, $3,200.

Ignatz H. Boehm to Catharine Goodman et als., $1.

Catharine Goodman et als. to Ignatz Boehm, $900.

No Rest For the Weary.

Plainfield young men are taking quite a fancy to camp life this summer, and another party of them has just returned after a week on the shores of Lake Hopatcong. The comp was called "No Rest For the Weary," and its lively inhabitants were Edward Waring, Henry Wells and James Middledith. They found the sailing very fine and spent much of their time that way as the fishing proved very poor. Many of their evenings were spent at the dances in the neighboring hotels.

Stillman's Theatre.

Florence Bindley is the star selected to open the regular season at Stillman's Theatre in a play which strongly appeals to the masses. The reception this play will receive will no doubt be a feroid one. The first act located amid mountains on the coast of Maine. The second on the North dock and the lights of Jersey City in the distance. The third act is on board the Brazillian steamer Albatross. The last in the mansion wherein Miss Bindley introduces a most artistic musical speciality which alone is a great feature in itself.

A Plainfield Referee.

The friends and congregation of the Union Village M. E. church are making extensive preparations for the great harvest home to be held at Smalleytown, near Stirling, on August 29th. The athletic games, of which Capt. F. L. C. Martin, of this city, will be referee, promise to be very interesting. Several prizes will be given and there will be other interesting features.

It may not be out of order to state that the New Brunswick Times' continues to filch editorial notes from the Daily Press without credit. It is poor and disreputable journalism.

LEAGUE WILL GO IT ALONE.

Disagreement Between Monroe Avenue and Hope Chapel Athletes.

People who have interested themselves in the athletic sports which were to be held August 31st, between the Young Men's Association of Monroe Avenue chapel and the Young Men's League of Hope chapel, will regret to learn that all arrangements for this proposed field day has fell through, owing to a disagreement about the number of entries in the short runs and field events. The athletic committees from both chapels had a meeting Friday night last, and it was proposed by the Monroe Avenue committee to limit the short runs to five entries from each side, which was mutually agreed upon. A meeting to make the final arrangements was held Monday night at Hope chapel, and the Monroe Avenue Association surprised the Young Men's League by giving notice that unless the entries were reduced to three men in the short runs, and also in the field events, they would withdraw from the contest. The Young Men's League offered several concessions, but the Monroe Avenue Association stuck to their new three men entry plan all the way through. The Hope Chapel committee have had five or six men training earnestly for these short runs, and thought it would be doing injustice to these members who have denied themselves many privileges and trained so faithfully to be in good trim for the events, to reduce the entries to three men, so the decision of the Monroe Avenue Association was accepted with regret. The action taken by the Monroe Avenue Association is considered unsportsmanlike. Inasmuch as the meeting between the two associations is off, the Young Men's League members will keep on training, and will hold the meeting on August 31st as previously arranged at Maltby's track, Young Men's League members only eligible to enter. They expect to make a good showing.

PLAINFIELD OUT OF THE RACE.

Larned, of Summit, Is Looked Upon As the Probable Winner.

The second day of the championship tennis tournament at Newport passed off yesterday as successfully as the first. One of the most exciting matches of the day was between James Terry and Holcombe Ward of the South Orange Field Club whom Carl F. Walz, of this city, defeated last Saturday at Orange. Terry won after a very hard fight by the score of 6-2, 5-7, 7-5, 8-6.

In the conclusion of the first round, Sydney L. Smith, of the Bergen Point Tennis Club, defeated Richard Stevens by default. In the second round he also won his match, defeating William Maynardier, 6-3, 6-0, 4-6, 7-5. Smith is very well known to Plainfield people and has played in a number of tournaments in this city. Plainfield's representative, Carl F. Walz, played his match in the second round and was defeated by J. D. E. Jones by a score of 6-2, 7-5, 6-2.

A. Larned, of Summit, won his match easily and still holds his championship form. Walz is expected to play for the interscholastic championship tomorrow.

Either run a town with a vim or sell out and leave it. Men who are all the time trying to get out of business or out of town will never build up either. One of two things must be done—run the town for all it's worth, get up steam and keep it up, or quit the whole thing, slide out and let nature take its course. Do you want trade—Bid for it. Do you want business to come to your town? Encourage those who do come. Do you want a prosperous town, where people can come who are disposed to make homes? The do away with, bury from sight, all spite work; work together for a mutual benefit. Waks up, rub your eyes, roll up your sleeves and go to work. There will be no services in the Congregational church until September 8th, on account of the delay in securing the new carpet. The church was to have opened on September 1st.

AL. TAYLOR DIES SUDDENLY.

STRICKEN DOWN AND EXPIRES A FEW HOURS AFTER.

Working About the Crescent Hotel When the Fatal Illness Overcame Him—He Died Beside His Wife in Bed.

The sudden death of Albert Taylor occurred Friday afternoon at 5:30 at Rudolph Speigel's hotel on Somerset street.

Mr. Taylor was around the hotel about noon and was in the hallway moving a small washstand. Presently Mr. Speigel heard a strange noise and going into the hall found Mr. Taylor lying on the floor. When asked what the trouble was he replied that he didn't feel well.

His wife and Dr. Zeglio were sent for. The latter advised that Mr. Taylor be taken upstairs and placed on a bed. Mrs. Taylor remained with him through the afternoon. Shortly after five o'clock he complained of pains in his stomach.

Mr. Speigel went down stairs to get medicine to relieve the trouble, and when he returned he found Mr. Taylor dead. Mrs. Taylor was beside him asleep and did not know of his death till awakened.

Mr. Speigel at once went after a doctor and after trying several places succeeded in getting Dr. Adams.

Life, however, had entirely left the body. The dead man was conveyed to Dr. Zeglio's home on Somerset street by Mr. Spiegel.

There was a report current that the man had fallen down stairs while handling a large bureau and seriously injured internally, but that was incorrect. Mr. Taylor was well known in Plainfield and the borough. His wife is a sister of Dr. Zeglio. He also leaves a daughter, Mrs. Horace Doty.

A GREAT EXCURSION DAY.

Excursions Leave For Asbury Park, Lake Hopatcong and Grandview Park.

Three excursions left Plainfield this morning and each had a different destination. The first to leave the North avenue station was the one belonging to the Sunday school of Warren chapel and eleven cars were comfortably filled with the happy excursionists bound for Asbury Park.

Going in the opposite direction was the excursion of Plainfield Lodge, No. 14, I. O. O. F. bound for Lake Hopatcong and eight cars carried with ease all those that went from this city.

When the 8:01 train pulled out of the station, there were two cars filled with the members and friends of Stone Square Lodge, No. 38, F. A. M., who were going to join the grand colored people's excursion given by Lincoln Lodge, No. 7, of Elizabeth.

The other lodges that were of the party were, King Solomon Lodge No. 19, of Jersey City, Bethany No. 31, Newark, Widow Son No. 14, Orange, St. Johns No. 43, East Orange and Cevenant Lodge of New Brunswick.

The Cypress Commandery Drum Corps of this city marched up to the train on Watchung avenue, avoiding Park avenue on account of the sewers, and joined the Plainfield party. The train was left at Elizabeth and the trolley taken to Elizabethport where the steamer, Blackbird, and the barge Wm. A. Summers, conveyed the excursionists up the East river to Grandview Park. A number of the colored excursionists were left behind and went down to Elizabeth on the 8:17 train.

SHE WANTS NO OTHER.

The Story of the Victory of a Cleveland Wheel.

F. L. C. Martin, of the F. L. C. Martin Cycle Company, the popular bicycle dealers, is not the only one that believes the Cleveland wheel to be the best on the market. About a month ago Miss Emma McDougall, of Metuchen, decided to purchase a wheel, and although the Cleveland was not her favorite, yet, on the advice of Mr. Martin, she bought a Ladies Cleveland Swell Special and rode it on a trip through the Berkshire Hills and then to Boston. She has just returned and yesterday Mr. Martin received a letter from her. She says:

I am delighted with my wheel and would not part with it for one of any description for it has stood the test and several tumbles. My wheel was in perfect order all the way, and runs even better now than when I started, although we went over some very rough roads.

She ended by thanking him for his advice to her to buy the Cleveland. Mr. Martin considers the letter as good a recommendation as could be wished for.

Over in Rahway.

Editor Rollinson, of the Rahway Advocate, who is Senator Voorhees' lieutenant in Rahway, is letting no grass grow under his feet these days. He was in Elizabeth on Wednesday where he had a long conference with the Senator, and yesterday he had an interview with Mayor Daly, of Rahway. The Mayor is rather inclined to be neutral between Voorhees and Kean, but strong efforts are being made by the former's campaign managers in Rahway to get the Mayor to throw the weight of his influence for the Senator.

A CYNICAL SUMMARY.

This world is but a fleeting show,
And little joy he cleans
Who curiously undertakes
To look behind the scenes.

It is not what the player does
That in the long run tells
In rounding out his baseball fame,
But what the umpire yells.

The fleetest races sometimes falls
The victory to claim;
'Tis not the horse that gets in first,
But the one the judges name.

And so it is with all success
That human life may see;
'Tis not the man that counts, but what
The man is thought to be.

GROWTH OF THE BANANA TRADE.

Immense Increase Since the Introduction of the Fruit in This Country.

The banana trade is astonishing even to those who are directly interested in the business, while those of the general public who are unfamiliar with its details have no adequate conception of its size.

Only a few years ago the aggregate importation of bananas into all American ports of entry was utterly insignificant in comparison with the many million of bunches now annually received.

Bananas, according to researches made and statistics complied by Isaac Tuck, editor of the Fruit Trade Journal, were first imported into the United States in 1804, when Captain John N. Chester, of the little coasting schooner Reynard, brought here a small invoice consisting of only thirty bunches.

Bananas are now transported from the sources of supply to the various ports of this country on a large fleet of steamships built for and especially adapted to the carrying of the fruit. California receives a considerable supply from the Hawaiian Islands.

The active banana season begins in March and ends in July. The fruit is shipped green. If it were ripe it would, in most cases, be in unmarketable condition when received here, and entirely unfit for distribution among inland cities.

While the great bulk of the trade is transacted during the five months of March, April, May, June and July, limited shipments are received at considerably earlier and later dates, and bananas are the one species of foreign fruits which is sure to be found in this market every day in the year.

The total imports of bananas into this country for the six years from 1889 to 1895, inclusive, was, in round numbers, about 75,000,000 bunches, or about an average of 12,500,000 bunches annually which were delivered at New York, New Orleans, Philadelphia, Boston, Baltimore and Montreal, Canada.

The average number of bananas in a bunch of "firsts" is from 125 to 150, and in "seconds" about one half as many, the average number in bunches of "thirds" being proportionately less. At the beginning of this year "firsts" were sold at wholesale for about 90 cents a bunch, but on account of decreased receipts as compared with the corresponding portion of last year, and of the extensive freezing of the fruit while being loaded here, prices were sharply advanced, and when warmer weather set in, accompanied by a largely increased demand, with no commensurate increase of supply, they temporarily reached the unprecedented high price of from $1.75 to $2 a bunch for "firsts," according to size, quality and condition of fruit, "seconds" and "thirds" being sold at proportionate prices.

SHERIDAN'S RETREAT.

Gen. Phil Sheridan's Story that He Used To Tell Upon Himself.

Once in camp myself, some of my brother officers fell desperately in love with a female voice we used to hear singing at night. It was simply angelic, and, resolved to see the singer, we followed its sound through thickets and ravines till we came to a lonely cabin whence the singing proceeded, and creeping up to the window I peeped in and beheld a fat, greasy, middle aged negress, barefooted and clad in a single garment of dirty calico, browning coffee with a long iron spoon, while she gave vent to the sweetest notes I have ever heard. In my surprise I staggered forward with a noise that attracted her attention, and, grasping her coffee skillet and waving it around her head she bawled out:

"G'way from heah, white man; ef yeh don't I'll frow this yeah fryin' pan right at yo' head."

It is Not Yet Too Late.

When the articles of confederation were drawn up in 1777 there was a stipulation that if Canada desired she would be permitted to enter the confederacy, but no other colony should have the privilege without the assent of nine of the original States. This priceless opportunity for obtaining prosperity and freedom was ignored, Canada choosing instead to harass her sister colonies during the long and terrible war which resulted in a complete and glorious triumph and the establishment of the wisest and most perfect government ever devised. Since then nearly every other colony in the western hemisphere has thrown off the foreign yoke. Canada, the most extensive and important, and with advantages possessed by none of these, has remained true to alien rule.—Courier-Journal.

A NEW YORKER IN LONDON.

He Got a Good View of the House of Commons.

A New York business man who is in England has written a letter from London to one of his friends here in which he says:

"I was in Parliament when the Liberal ministers threw up the sponge. There are many curious looking Englishmen in the House of Commons, and I never saw a more motley crowd. There were solemn looking personages wearing wigs. There were strange beings with bald heads and whiskers; there were red-haired and yellow-haired men; there were a hundred faces which Signor Lombroso ought to put in a book. Three-fourths of the members wore their hats in the House, mostly stovepipes and derbys.

"Nearly all of them were clumsily clad. Some wore ill-fitting dress-suits, others cutaways; many had sack coats of all colors, and but very few had stylish coats. Lots of them had trousers that were too short or too long, or very slouchy, while some wore clothes that looked so grotesque as to suggest Baxter street in New York or Petticoat lane in London.

"So much for my first impression of the first assembly of gentlemen in the world. I used to think that the House of Representatives in Washington was badly dressed, but I had not then seen the British House of Commons. As for the brains of Parliament, it seems to me that every man whom I have heard speak during my four visits to it had a hatful of them, closely packed, whether he was a Tory, a Unionist, or a Gladstonian. The speeches in the House of Commons are not in the nature of rant, but are rather plain and direct statements."

An Encounter With a Wildcat.

Harry Prutzman, of Leesport, a brakeman on the Pennsylvania Railroad, had an exciting adventure this week on Fricker's Mountain, near Gouglersville. He had a day off and went out picking huckleberries.

He came to a mountain spring and lay on his stomach to take a drink. While in this position a wildcat sprang out of a tree above him and alighted upon his back. The animal sank its claws deep into the flesh causing great pain.

Having no weapon to defend himself with his chances seemed very slender for coming out of the contest with the vicious animal alive.

However, he turned, and after a desperate struggle succeeded in throwing the animal from him and regaining his feet. It immediately sprung upon him again, tearing his clothing and rending his flesh with its sharp claws.

After several encounters, which greatly weakened and fatigued him, he managed to deal the animal a sound kick, which sent it away some distance and gave him an opportunity to grasp a club which was lying near.

With this he managed to keep it at bay, and after a duel of about ten minutes it apparently became tired of the attack and moved away when Prutzman escaped.—Philadelphia Press.

Incorrigible.

A newly married man of my acquaintance, who evidently needs disciplica, thus discours s:

"A woman is a handy thing around the house. She does not cost any more to keep than you will give her, and she will take a great interest in you. If you go out at night she'll be awake when you get home, and then she'll tell you all about yourself, and more, too.

"Of course she will know where you have been, and what kept you out so late, and after she gets through telling you, she will ask where you have been, and what kept you out so late, and after telling her, she won't believe you, but you mustn't mind that, and if, after going to bed, she says she hasn't closed her eyes for the night, and then keeps up her conversation two hours longer, and won't go to sleep when she a chance, you mustn't mind that, either: it's her nature."—Roxbury Gazette.

Professional Enthusiasm.

The Railroad That Didn't Go.

Lunatics often assume a superiority of intellect to others which is quite amusing. A gentleman travelling in England some years ago, while walking along the road, not far from the side of which ran a railroad, encountered a number of insane people out for a walk in charge of a keeper. With a nod toward the railway tracks he said to one of the lunatics:

"Where does this railway go to!"

The lunatic looked at him scornfully for a moment, and then replied:

"It don't go anywhere. We keep it here to run trains on."—Harper's Round Table.

What is the use of expecting Middlesex county authorities to capture a murderer? They can't even hold their prisoners in the county jail after they have been captured.—Elizabeth Journal.

What a contrast there is between the manner in which the Union county authorities took hold of the accident which resulted in the death of Samuel Clark, and the manner in which the Middlesex county officials handled the murder of Harry Dunham. Shame on Middlesex.

The wanderings of Miss Clark in the last seventeen days, in which she was lost to the world as though the earth had swallowed her up in the snap of a finger, are as pitable as they have been romantic. It is one of the saddest cases with which the people of Plainfield have ever been brought face to face with. Her discovery by a World reporter and Detective Beck was a creditable piece of work.

Speaking editorially with reference to the manner in which Middlesex county officials have acted in attempting to capture Darling, the New Brunswick Home News says:

The present state of affairs is nothing short of appalling. Crime is given a license under such criminal neglect of police prosecution that must soon spread a reign of terror throughout the county. Prosecutor Adrain must either get to work or resign.

Dr. Lewis to leave his pastoral duties in Plainfield. Well, it is not pleasant news for his parishioners, but "what is one's loss is another's gain." Dr. Lewis is eminently qualified to enter this new religious field to which he has been summoned. The Daily Press congratulates Dr. Lewis on this further recognition of his services.

ANOTHER BAD FATALITY

A Murray Hill Farmer Loses His Life at Scotch Plains.

SAMUEL CLARK WAS THE VICTIM.

Had a Collision With an Unknown Young Man, Who Tried to Drive Away—Clark Caught the Horse and Was Knocked Down, Trampled Upon and Killed—Details of the Affair.

Scotch Plains was all excitement last Monday over a fatality which occurred there on Sunday and resulted in the death of Samuel Clark, Sr., a respected farmer of Murray Hill.

Early in the evening Mr. Clark and his two nephews, Fred and Joseph Tombs, who live near him, came to Scotch Plains and spent part of the time at Billy Lee's hotel, and at about ten o'clock started for home. Mr. Clark, who is not a drinking man, was perfectly sober and drove down to the corner by Emery's hotel. The buggy in which the three were riding had just rounded the corner and started in the direction of the mountain when a carriage loomed up ahead and there came a crash. Mr. Clark's buggy was wrecked but there was no apparent damage done to the other carriage by the accident.

William Trainor, Sandy Messeller, and George Vanderbilt had been standing in front of the store opposite Emery's hotel, and saw Clark and his nephews drive past, and heard the crash. Trainor and Messeller immediately rushed to the scene, supposing that the wheel had given way. They found Clark and the two Tombs boys standing looking on the wreck from one side, and a young man, wearing a straw hat and light-colored suit, viewing it from the other. In the other buggy was a young woman, screaming in her excitement.

"You'll have to pay for this or get me a new wheel, and I'd rather have that as we want to get home," Clark was heard to say.

"I can't get you a new wheel now," said the young man, but after dickering he finally agreed to pay for one.

The crowd began to gather and some one suggested that they go to Walpole's blacksmith shop and get a new wheel. Trainor then remarked that he did not think Walpole was home and even if he was, he had no extra wheels.

"This has got to be settled," declared Clark and suggested to the young man that they drive their horses under Emory's shed and settle the question there. Putting his horse in charge of one of his nephews, Clark walked along side of the stranger, who had now climed back into his buggy and was driving his horse down the street toward the shed. When they arrived opposite the driveway, the young stranger showed no inclination to drive in.

"Aren't you coming in?" Clark said.

At this the young man brought the whip down on the back of his bay horse, who immediately sprang forward, but Clark was too quick and grabbed the bridle rein. The stranger plied the whip and Clark was dragged about thirty feet, when for some reason he lost his grip on the rein and fell in a heap under the horse's feet. The strange rig soon disappeared in the direction of Plainfield.

Willing hands picked up the apparently lifeless body of Clark and took it to the kitchen in Emory's hotel where, after a few gasps, he expired. The body was then carried into the parlor where it remained waiting for the Coroner, who was notified at once. The nephews remained with the body of ther uncle, while John Lines and Sandy Messeller hurriedly drove to Murray Hill to carry the sad news to the afflicted wife.

The eldest son, Samuel Clark, Jr., who works in the greenhouse of Carl H. Schultz at Murray Hill, had walked down to Scotch Plains, and having heard that several men were trying to pick a quarrel with his father, had kept his eye on him during the evening. Soon after the father left Lee's place, Clark, Jr., started home on foot, passing by Emory's kitchen just as the father was drawing his last breath. He did not notice anything strange, however, until when almost to his father's house a horse and buggy went by him. In a few minutes he heard his mother scream and he ran to the house where she told him his father was hurt. He then ran to his home and hitching up his horse started for Scotch Plains as fast as possible. As he passed his father's house the mother told him not to run the horse as his father was dead.

The Plainfield police were notified and the livery stables searched for some trace of the accident. The stranger rode in a sidebar buggy, with black running gear, and drawn by a large, powerful bay horse. The stranger himself was a young man apparently about twenty-one years of age, smoothface, medium build and wearing a light colored suit of clothes and a straw hat.

Samuel Clark, Sr., is a farmer, a powerful man, over six feet in height and weighing about 212 pounds. He was fifty-eight years of age and has lived at Murray Hill all his life except the four years he spent in the United States Army during the Civil War. He was a young looking man, with a sandy beard and was popular with his acquaintances.

The accident occurred at about 10:15 and Dr. Westcott was called immediately. Investigation showed a hole in the back of his head from which the blood flowed. It is supposed that he was struck there by the horse's hoof.

LATER.

The young man who run over Clark was Fred Schomp, of 712 West Front street, who works for Grocer Wilson on West Third street near Clinton avenue. He was returning from Bayonne with Miss Lucy Westphal, of West Fourth street, where the couple had been to spend the day.

ACCOMPLISHED MUCH.

The Seventh-Day Baptist Conference Had Good Executive Officers.

In regard to the recent conference of Seventh-Day Baptists too much cannot be said in favor of the method adopted in conducting it.

As a presiding officer, George H. Utter, of Westerly, R. I., was most efficient. His rulings were thoroughly satisfactory to all, and his manner of quickly despatching all business on the table was commendable, for in this way much was accomplished. In fact, those who presided over the various sessions of the societies were thoroughly capable. Taking everything into consideration the conference was the most successful ever held, and productive of much good. It certainly marks an epoch in the history of the denomination which will have its influence for years.

One thing can be said assuredly, and that is that the delegates present are true adherents to the principles they espouse, and there is a decided determination to hold fast to them.

Great credit should be given to the local members who have so kindly cared for their guests.

From the opening to the closing sessions everything on the programme moved like clockwork, and the delegates accomplished all that they had planned.

The Somerset County Fair

opens on September 10th, and promises to be of more than usual interest this year. The exhibits will be better in quality and larger in number than heretofore. A liberal allowance of premiums will be meted out. The racing will be a feature of great interest, as the entries include some of the fastest flyers in the country. There will be bicycle races on both Wednesday and Thursday. Wednesday will be school-childrens' day and Thursday politicians' day.

Stillman's Music Hall.

One of the greatest scenic effects ever shown on any stage can be seen at Stillman's Music Hall on Thursday night, when Florence Bindley brings to Plainfield for the first time her massive scenic production, "The Captain's Mate." The scene referred to is the steamer Albatross, which is an exact reproduction of the celebrated West Indian trader. Many clever specialties are introduced during this scene, which in themselves are a great feature.

Seaside Lots at Auction.

There is no more charming spot on the Atlantic coast than Avon-by-the-Sea, and on Saturday of this week an auction sale of 39 choice cottage and business lots will take place at 2 p. m. Read the advertisement in another column.

Lawyer DeMeza's Narrow Escape.

Lawyer George DeMeza, of Plainfield, had a narrow escape from serious injury Saturday afternoon in that city. He had just untied his horse, which stood in front of his office on West Front street, when the spirited animal started. Mr. DeMeza grabbed the horse by the head and was dragged half way across the street before he could succeed in stopping him—Elizabeth Journal.

Democratic Affairs in Rahway.

It is said that the indications are that Chancellor McGill will get the vote of the entire Rahway delegation at the Democratic State convention. Augustus Cutler has a number of warm friends in Rahway, but they do not seem sufficiently numerous to make much of a showing at the primaries.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer one hundred dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

AMBITIOUS WOMEN

MAKE HEROES OF MEN.

She Will Brave Anything for the Man She Loves.

[SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.]

When an ambitious woman loves a man she will spur him to heroic efforts. She will dare with him the rigors of the frozen North, and encourage him in daring dangers almost unsurmountable.

Women are by nature ambitious according to their physical and mental strength. Hope and ambition come with perfect health, but vanish before sickness and despair.

American women are, unfortunately, particularly subject to those painful female diseases that are the cause of so much hopelessness and misery.

Could all women realize the undeniable fact that they suffer unnecessarily, how much brighter life would be!

Lydia E. Pinkham devoted her life to the study of female diseases and their cause; and she discovered in the Vegetable Compound an absolute remedy. It succeeds in removing the cause of the trouble.

Women who rely more upon their own natural common-sense, rather than on the theories of their physicians, write to Mrs. Pinkham, at Lynn, Mass., and are soon restored to health.

Here is a living example: "Four months ago I was unable to stand on my feet. I had falling of the womb, kidney trouble, and inflammation of the bladder; the backache and bearing-down pains were dreadful.

My physician could give me no relief. A friend said, try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Well, I did. Oh, if every suffering woman would do the same, they would be cured, cured absolutely and entirely, as I am!" MRS. WM. M. MOREY, 20 Seymour St., Pittsfield, Mass.

CITY CAPTURES A JACK POT.

A QUARTETTE OF POKER PLAYERS RAIDED AND FINED.

An Innocent Looking Pie Shop Harbors a Little Monte Carlo—Charles Case's Gambling Proclivities are Irrepressible.

The city captured a jack pot early yesterday morning that brought eighty dollars into its coffers, and incidentally involved four men into the meshes of the law for indulging in a game of poker.

John Tingley runs a little pie shop at the corner of Grant avenue and South Second street, and it was in the rear of this apparently innocent place that the little Monte Carlo was running full blast at half past four yesterday morning. For some time the police have been aware that gambling has been going on in the building, but though Chief Grant and other officers have at various times endeavored to catch the game in progress the players have always been slick enough to receive a tip and gather in the paraphernalia before a raid could be made.

Saturday night Policemen Vanderweg and Flynn concluded to watch the place, with the idea that a game would be most likely in progress at that time. About four o'clock they edged stealthily up along side of the building and mounting an outdoor cellar way gazed into a back room of the unpretentious pie shop and there they were—Charles Case, John Kavanaugh, James Reed, and John Clifton. First the men glanced at their hands and then at the chips, and then—well, you who know how to play poker know without telling, and you who do not know how can just imagine.

The blue coats remained quietly on the outside for a few minutes as spectators. Then they made a bolt for the window and in they went over the sash, breaking a pane of glass as they climbed.

The players knew their jig was up, but they made a desperate attempt to gather in the coin and chips, and were partly successful. Case scurried through the door and ran in under the counter and hid. After the other three had been captured Policeman Flynn went behind the counter and taking his club used it as a poke until he poked Case in the feet.

Case came crawling out with a dejected and guilty conscience, and said in a forlorn tone to the copper:

"Why didn't you give me a tip on this. I wouldn't have been caught this way for a good deal."

But that was not the way the police do business.

The two officers started with the quartette, but had not proceeded far when Case and Kavanaugh both broke away. The officers decided to bring the other two players to the station house, and then hunt up the two fugitives. This was done, and Case and Kavanaugh were found at their homes afterwards.

The culprits were arraigned before Judge Coddinton at eleven o'clock, when it was found that Kavanaugh was running the outfit.

REV. DR. LEWIS CALLED.

The Eminent Divine to Devote His Time to Sunday Reform.

WILL GIVE UP HIS PASTORIAL WORK.

The Seventh-Day Baptist Conference Transacts Business That Will Interest Every Plainfielder—The Call Unanimous—The Tract Society Elect Officers—Last Day of the Conference.

One of the most important topics of the Seventh-Day Baptist Conference was discussed and decided by vote last Friday. It was "Shall we call A. H. Lewis to devote his whole time to the Sabbath Reform?" It was opened for discussion and the delegates freely expressed themselves. J. L. Huffman thought that the Missionary and Tract Societies should combine and employ Dr. Lewis for this work. O. N. Whitford said they ought to call him at once, and settle it right away. T. L. Gardiner was convinced that they should set Dr. Lewis apart for the great work. Rev. Mr. Wheeler, of Colorado, thought the denomination would receive God's condemnation if they failed to put Dr. Lewis into this work. D. E. Titsworth felt that everyone ought to realize what they were doing.

He said it meant that the members would have to go down in their pockets. He thought it was a mistake to throw the matter on the board as was intended, but that the denomination should do the business as a whole.

The resolution offered was in substance that the Sabbath reform movement was so great and imperative that they thought it wise to recommend that the Executive Board of the Sabbath Tract Society call Dr. Lewis to this work.

The resolution was finally adopted, which means that Dr. Lewis is to devote his entire time to the work of Sabbath Reform, and will give up the pastoral duties of his church.

Mr. Ingram, of the nominating committee of the Tract Society, then presented the following list of names as officers of the society for the ensuing year:

The above were all chosen unanimously.

Four resolutions were then offered which provides for the advancement of ideas, work, etc., of denomitation. They were all adopted.

Dr. Lewis, A. E. Main, and W. C. Doland were appointed a committee in accordance with the second resolution which made provision for opposition to any efforts that may be made to make Sunday a Sabbath by civil legislation.

Prof. C. F. Randolph, H. B. Babcock, and L. H. Babcock were appointed as an employment committee by the president.

The service closed with the singing of a hymn and the benediction.

Saturday evening was given up to the Women's Board of the Conference. Mrs. E. M. Dunn, of Alfred, presided. The corresponding secretary's report was read by Mrs. Phebe Coon, of Wisconsin, in the absence of the regular secretary, Mrs. Albert Whitford. The report was a review of the work done by the board during the past year. It showed an increase in membership in the various associations.

Treasurer Mrs. E. B. Saunders report was then read by Mrs. C. B. Hull, of Chicago. This showed that $2,271.10 had been received and expended during the year.

The audience then had the pleasure of listening to Miss Susie M. Burdick who has just returned from China. She gave a very interesting account of the boys school at Shanghai which was started five years ago. She said at first it was hard work to keep the school going, but many obstacles had been met and overcome, so that now the school was progressing most favorably. She hoped the denomination would realize the importance of the work and continue their support. She related many amusing incidents in connection with the work.

"Loyalty to Our Work" was the subject given to Mrs. William A. Rogers, and it was a well-prepared paper. It cited the necessity of the women in the churches being loyal to the various branches of the work and not being discouraged. She said that woman had a work to perform, and that she had a very important place to fill.

Mrs. A. H. Lewis then read a paper on "Systematic Living." The paper treated of the best method of supporting the work which was by a systematic way of contributing by laying aside a portion of one's money toward the cause. It was an able paper on this important subject and was well received for its many valuable points.

Rev. O. N. Whitford gave a stirring address on "Women's Work on Home Field." He told of the many ways in which women could be employed on the home field in the cause of Christ. It was her duty to be active at home and she should not neglect it.

At the conclusion of the evening service the corresponding secretary and treasurer's reports were adopted and it was voted that Mrs. L. A. Platts be requested to send Dr. Ella Swinney a message of greeting from the Board in view of her safe return from China and her recovery from illness. The service closed with the benediction by Dr. O. N. Whitford.

Sunday morning the service opened at ten o'clock with devotional exercises, Charles Potter, president of the American Sabbath Tract Society, presided. The work of yesterday was in connection with the above society. Arthur L. Titsworth was secretary. Treasurer J. Frank Hubbard then read his report. It showed that the receipts had been $10,747.50, leaving a balance on hand of $82.90.

The permanent fund of the society invested had increased $4,000. Corresponding Secretary F. E. Peterson presented his report, showing the resources of the society to be $8,003.12; liabilities, $319.17; leaving a balance of $7,683.95. The Sabbath Recorder account showed receipts to be $10,725, the number of public subscribers amount to $3,000. The account of the Evangel and Outlook gave as the receipts $2,810.54, and the same amount expended. Average edition, 9,335; average edition of "Peculiar People," 1,337. "Helping Hand" account was, receipts and expenditures, $604.44; average edition, 2,875; number of pages of tracks on hand, 2,223,677; sold and distributed, 1,163,031; on hand July 1st, 1,061,646.

Ira J. Ordway then presented a paper on "The Condition of the Sabbath Question, and a Plan of Campaign." It was a well-prepared paper and strongly advocated Seventh-Day Baptist principles, especially in regard to the keeping of the seventh day. He stated that the denomination had a well-equipped ministry, their young people were active and evangelists of no small repute. They also had excellent laymen, missionaries and a champion of Sabbath reform in Dr. Lewis.

President Potter then announced the following committees:

On nomination—W. H. Ingram, Milton; S. J. Ehret, Salem, West Virginia; W. C. Burdick, Alfred; A. L. Chester, Westerly; Dr. C. S. Maxson, Unica.

On resolutions—A. E. Main, Alfred, N. Y.; G. B. Shaw, Nile, N. Y.; A. B. Prentice, Adams; G. H. Utter, Westerly.

He also announced that the collection on Saturday amounted to $300, and yesterday morning $138.96.

N. B. Stillman pronounced the benediction and the morning session closed.

Despite the warm weather yesterday, the attendance at the afternoon session was very good. After singing two hymns Rev. William A. Daland led in prayer. President Charles Potter, Jr., then introduced Rev. L. E. Livermore, of Plainfield, the first speaker of the afternoon. His topic was "The Sabbath Recorder." He said that it aimed to be a first-class paper typographically as well as in reading matter. Not only theology was treated of in its columns, but all the various themes that were of interest to the world. It also aimed to be a through family paper. Its needs were given by him and were the patronage and confidence of the Seventh Day Baptists. He welcomed criticism saying "Our paper has grown, not groaned under criticism."

Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis, of this city, next spoke very interestingly on "The Evangel and Sabbath Outlook." He told that they had been working twelve years for the period that was now at hand. Its distinct mission was, he said, to give every item regarding the Sabbath question and concluded, "Many of you say you know all about the question, but it is changing every day and you must learn the happenings of the last few weeks to be thoroughly up in it."

"Protestantism and Sabbath Reform" was the subject of a talk by Rev. W. C. Daland, of Westerly, R. I. It was merely a question of authority, he said, between the different beliefs. The Catholic says that the church must be believed; the Rationalist says that the reason should direct; while the Protestant believes that the Word of God is law. We should follow his law and not the mere direction of the church.

The next speaker was Rev. E. M. Dunn who spoke on "Diverse Theories Concerning Sunday" and gave three he learned in a personal encounter with one of another sect. The first was that it makes no difference when we begin to count so as to find the seventh day, the next was that Sunday was chosen by Christ and the apostles and the last that, in the Acts of the Apostles, the disannulling of the commandments had taken place.

After a tenor solo, "The Holy City," by Walter McIlray, of Brooklyn, Rev. T. L. Gardiner, of Salem, West Virginia, spoke on "Co-operation of the People in Distributing Sabbath Reform Literature," and gave a number of valuable suggestions by which the pamphlets and other publications could be brought more before the public. He especially advised the appointment of a committee in the church to agitate the question after the manner of the Christian Endeavor.

"Spiritual Uplift Through the Acceptance of the Sabbath" was the subject of an interesting address by Rev. A. P. Ashurst, of Alfred, N. Y.

The next address was by Rev. A. B. Prentice, of Adams Corners, on "The Future of Sabbath Reform." He told his opinion, judging from the signs of the times and ended by saying, "What have we to do with the results? They are with God. The victory is His, the work and duty is ours. It is for us to go forward, that is our future."

W. L. Clarke, of Ashaway, R. I., was the last speaker and had for his topic, "Shall We Call Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis to Devote His Whole Time to the Work of Sabbath Reform?" His answer was yes, and said it was an opportunity that should not be lost.

After a hymn a general discussion on the secretary's report was held and the following spoke: Rev. O. D. Sherman, of Mystic, Conn.; Rev. L. M. Cutter, of DeRuyter, N. Y.; Mrs. L. A. Platts, of Alfred, N. Y.; Rev. O. U. Whitford, of Westerly, R. I.; Hon. George H. Utter, of Westerly, R. I.; Mrs. A. B. Burdick, of New London, Conn.; Rev. A. R. Hoffman, of Salem, W. V.; Rev. S. R. Wheeler, of Boulder, Col.; Rev. G. W. Hills, of Attala, Ala.; Rev. O. U. Whitford, of Westerly, R. I.; Rev. Dr. E. P. Small, of Westerly, R. I.; Rev. Dr. L. A. Platts, of Alfred, N. Y.; and Mrs. Reune Randolph, of Plainfield. During the discussion Rev. U. M. Babcock introduced the following resolution:

Whereas: The work of Sabbath reform in our country has been so great, the opportunities so important and the demands for aggressive effort so broad and imperative therefore be it.

Resolved, That the American Sabbath Tract Society reccommends to its Executive Board that it call Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis to devote his entire time to Sabbath reform work.

The motion, made by D. E. Titsworth, that the resolution be referred to the evening meeting and made the special order of the session, was carried.

After several notices were read Rev. L. C. Rogers, of Alfred, N. Y., pronounced the benediction.

The conference convened this morning at the usual hour when the committee on petitions recommended that the next conference be held with the First Alfred church at Alfred, New York, which was so decided.

The committee on state of religion reported that they found the same to be very encouraging among all the churches. Also that there had been season of revivals in the various associations, both ministers and evangelists had been doing excellent work. They also reported that the harmony and love among the members was noteworthy, there being an absence of any feelings of alienation for which they were all very thankful to God.

The committee on resolutions made a report through the chairman, A. E. Main, of Alfred. There were several resolutions introduced and passed, in which future work was planned.

The committee on finance recommended the expenditure of $300 for the publication of the minutes, and stated that $54.54 of the apportionment money from the churches for last year had not been paid.

Adjournment was then made till 1:30 o'clock.

A committee meeting was held at one o'clock to discuss the California situation.

The Stillman family and all the relatives met in front of the church at 1:45 o'clock, and had their pictures taken.

A telegram of greeting was received at noon from the Louisville Seventh-Day Baptists, to which proper response will be made.

This afternoon will be devoted to the young people.

There was a prevailing spirit of deep earnestness in the last session of the Seventh-Day Baptist conference which was held last Monday, and there was a general feeling of regret that there was to be a separation.

The committee on nominations for conference officers made their final report and the complete list of the officers that were chosen to serve the conference for the ensuing year are as follows:

The committee recommended by the committee on Denominational History was appointed by president G. H. Utter as follows: L. R. Swinney, George J. Crandall and Albert Whitford. He also appointed the following committee to consider the method of holding the anniversaries: Ira J. Ordway, Lewis A. Platts, C. C. Chipman, A. B. Prentice and T. L. Gardiner.

A resolution to have the corresponding secretary secure a complete list of Sabbath-Day keepers was referred to the corresponding secretary to do as he pleases. A resolution that urged the heads of the various churches to make a certified list of delegates in advance of each conference was adopted. Another resolution that was adopted provided for plans to raise money throughout the denomination. It recommended the adoption of the envelope system and the securing of at least five cents a week from each member. S. D. Babcock, the father of this system, was present and spoke in its behalf.

Article 6, section 2, of the constitution which provides for the number of delegates allowed, was amended by vote to read "Every twenty-five or fraction of twenty-five". It means that one delegate will be allowed for every twenty-five members and one for every fraction thereof.

A resolution was offered and adopted adding $300 to the budget to carry out the plans of the Sabbath Tract Society in their exhibit at the Atlanta Exposition. The last resolution adopted was in substance. That recognizing the time especially ripe for a forward movement in Sabbath Reform, that the denomination call Dr. Lewis to this most important work and that the Executive Board attend to the raising of the necessary funds in payment thereof for his services.

Dr. A. E. Main, of Alfred, New York, spoke in part as follows:

I sometimes have advocated certain measures when perhaps I did not fully understand them, but I consent to speak heartily on the subject which is before us. You often hear people say that "These Seventh-Day Baptists have nothing to say but Sabbath, Sabbath." If anyone tells you that, don't tell them they lie, for that wouldn't sound very nice, but tell them that it isn't so. In the first place the young men and young women in our denomination need to be looked after and kept in the fold. It's very easy to get away, and there are people who cannot be held to the Sabbath. Secondly, this is a time of tremendous revolution in the minds of serious thinking men. I was told once by a very prominent Baptist minister, a strict keeper of Sunday, that he would rather keep the Sabbath, for it was right. This shows that the minds of great men are undergoing a revolution. History is almost a new science, as Dr. Lewis knows. You may speak lightly of higher criticism, but the Word of God is now passing through a very severe test. The preaching that has satisfied people for years and years won't answer today, as the people will not listen to it. They really want something different. If you will prove to me that the Sabbath is not essential to religion I will relieve my mind of all responsibility. We are not standing for a hair-splitting truth, but for one of vital importance.

The resolution was then adopted unamously.

The resolutions presented at the young peoples service yesterday afternoon were ordered printed in the Sabbath Recorder, after which the secretary read the names of the delegates, 419 in all, representing sixteen states, also England and China. New York sent 165, and Rhode Island 122. The secretary was authorized to secure the printing of the usual number of minutes.

G. H. Hills, of Alabama, was chosen to represent the conference at the Atlanta exposition for the Tract Society. A motion was then carried that when the conference adjourn it be to meet with the First Alfred church, of New York, at the usual time.

A consecration service in charge of President G. H. Utter, was then conducted.

It was a worshipful service, as nearly everyone in the large audience gave earnest testimony for the blessings received. Interspersing several hymns were sang and prayers offered.

At the close President Utter called on Dr. Lewis to make a few remarks. He said in part:

It was a pleasure to welcome you here; it is sad to say goodbye. I have thought I was consecrated to the Master's service, but I realize I must be more so, or I shall receive the condemnation of God. I am in God's hands, and it matters not whether the work is a success or failure, the call is imperative. There will be the severing of a thousand tender ties, but the work must go on and you must carry it on.

Every heart in the large assemblage was touched as the Doctor spoke and nearly every eye was moist. It was, indeed, touching to witness the costly sacrifice made by a loving people of one of God's noblest and earnest workers. The conference then came to a close and President Utter declared it adjourned.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

E. B. Saunders, of Milton, Wisconsin, chairman of the Christian Endeavor prayer meeting committee, presided at the session of the conference yesterday afternoon which was devoted to the young people's work. In opening Mr. Saunders made a few excellent introductory remarks.

Miss Bessie Clarke, of Milton, Wis., then presented a well-prepared paper on "The Golden Rule." This was followed with a paper on "The Benefits to Christian Endeavorers from Attending Associations and Conferences," by Miss Mary Stillman, of Westerly.

Treasurer W. H. Greenman, of Milton, Wis., then offered his report.

It was read by J. B. Cottrell. It showed that $758.26 had been received during the year, and $673.26 had been expended, leaving a balance of $85.

The report of secretary, Miss Reta I. Crouch, of Milton, Wis., was read by Miss Bessie Clarke. It showed that there were fifty-six societies, 1,983 active members, and 129 conversions during the past year. The total membership is 2,577; money raised during the year, $1,728.60, which was expended as follows: For tract society, $221.08; evangelistic, $286.82; Dr. Palmborg's salary, $301.90; foreign work, $408.79; for unspecified purposes, $342.65.

The report of the Junior Society was as follows: Number of societies, twenty; active members, 510; money raised during the year, $143.25.

Both reports were received and filed.

There were several questions of importance to the Christian Endeavorers that were discussed in open parliament. The session was then thrown open into a testimony service with which it closed.

T. L. Gardiner reported that $1,074 had been received for Salem College, West Virginia. The balance of the resolutions laid over from the morning session were then considered and adopted.

J. D. Spicer stated that the committee in charge had decided to sell the silver knives, forks and spoons used during the conference to the delegates providing they wished to buy at the sum of twenty-five cents a piece, the proceeds to be divided among the Sabbath-Tract and Missionary Societies.

At supper time by special request of the women in charge, the ministers and their wives occupied the centre tables in the dining hall, Dr. Lewis and G. H. Utter presiding at the head.

Local Riders Takes First and Second Time and Third Place.

Despite a strong head wind, Thomas A. Cuming, of this city, came within forty-nine seconds of the road record for ten miles Saturday afternoon in the first race of the Gilchester Serial Handicap over the Elizabeth-Springfield course. The race was won by Ruddy Laggren with 4½ minutes handicap. Howard Grobes, the colored rider from this city, started at the same mark and finished third. The fourth to finish was Thomas A. Cuming, two minutes, who made the best time riding the ten miles in twenty-seven minutes, and fifty-two seconds. Bird, of Elizabeth, was fifth and took the third time, his time being 28.06. S. Clinton, one minute handicap of this city, was sixth and made the distance in twenty-eight minutes making him the second in the race for time. The world's record for the distance on the road is 27.03 and the best made about here was 27.25 made by James Willis.

If there is no wind next Saturday, it is thought the record will go.

AN UNSEEN DANGER.

A West End Young Man Ran Into a Hidden Obstruction.

One young man from the western end of this city had a very narrow escape from having quite an accident last Friday evening. He was driving a carriage on Clinton avenue between Front street and Dunellen avenue. Quite a distance from him the lanterns showed the location of the sewer trenches, but suddenly there was a crash and one side of the carriage shot into the air. On getting out to investigate he found that he had run into one of four iron rods, about four feet high, which were placed in the middle of the road. There was no light to show their presence and had not the horse so luckily escaped running into them there would have probably been a runaway.

No Trace of Darling.

No trace has yet been secured of William Darling's whereabouts. There was a rumor current Saturday that the Middlesex county officials had offered a $500 reward for Darling's capture, but upon enquiry at New Brunswick this afternoon the Daily Press was unable to verify the report.

ROGERS REUNION.

A Pleasant Family Gathering Yesterday Afternoon at the Conference.

An informal reunion of the decendents of John Rogers, the martyr, was held at the home of W. D. Rogers yesterday afternoon. A large number connected with the family are in attendance at the Seventy-Day Baptist Conference and were present at the reunion. Dr. L. T. Rogers, of Milton, Wis., was chosen chairman, and Winfred Curtis, of Westerly, R. I., secretary. A historial sketch of the life of James Rogers, the ancestor of the family in America, and his last will and testiment, were read by Dr. L. T. Rogers. A history of the reunion of decendents of Edward and Sally Rogers, one branch of the family, was given by A. E. Curtis, of Leanordsville, N. Y.

Dr. S. C. Maxon, of Utica, N. Y., has recently visited the scene of the martyrdom of John Rogers in London, and gave an interesting description of the place.

IN SUMMER DRESS.

THOSE USEFUL WRAPS FOR COOL EVENINGS.

Elaborate Capes and Collarettes. Tan Gray and Colors Are Allowable in Some Styles. Suggestions as to the Children's Dress for Warm Weather.

A light wrap of some sort is a necessary addition to a summer outfit, and as yet nothing so convenient and altogether so useful as the little cape has been invented. It is capable of great variety in material and decoration, if not in shape, and the prettiest of airy trifles is simply a yoke of silk covered with jet, to which are attached deep frills of point d'esprit lace and gracefully arranged loops and bows of ribbon. Around the neck is the ruche of ribbon and lace which is a part of every dressy cape.

All capes, if they are fashionable, are very short and show the waist line below, unless they are made in a latest style, which is fitted down to the waist at the back and front, with long stole ends reaching to the knee. Some of the prettiest little capes are full back and front and open over the sleeves, with only a fall of lace or some loops of ribbon to cover them, but the most general shape is cut circular to fall in full godet plaits on the edge. Other little collarettes which reach only a little below the shoulder have long stole ends in front. A simple but showy cape is made of black satin in a short circular, which is shimmered with moonlight sequins and finished on the edge with a ruche of black chiffon. This, with satin rosettes, forms the neck ruche, and on the shoulders are bows of black satin ribbon embroidered with spangles. Another pretty trimming for this style of cape is jet vandykes from the neck well down toward the edge, where it is finished with a tiny ruche of black lace, which is also used to finish the neck.

Collars and revers of cream white open work embroidered batiste over white satin are a novel and showy trimming for black satin capes. Some of the latest importations show a tendency toward longer mantles and a fancy for colors. They are made of shot glace silks in shades of green or violet, and plaited full in the back, where they are fitted down to the waist and bloused a little in front with stole ends hanging below. The sleeve arrangement is a full short cape and the trimming an elaboration of lace.

The latest thing for a cloth cape comes light gray, tan and dark blue, and is mmed with inch wide bands of the th, stitched on in rows of varying gths from the neck down, and lined h bright and very large plaid silk, ich forms double bias frills down the nt, made wide at the top and gradud to nothing at the edge. Transparent ck crepon is used for wraps and is ally lined with a color and trimmed h black satin ribbon.

hildren's gowns do not admit of such iety in style and decoration as those their elders, but any little change is cceptable hint for mothers who are buy the little dresses ready made. llies, in both dark and light colors, te very sensible and pretty dresses girls of all ages, and they are made ply with box plaited blouse waists satin ribbon collar and belt, or in a ion more dressy, like the model, a pointed yoke and epaulettes of over a plain color and trimmed with ls of inch wide satin ribbon of color which predominates in the ering.—New York Sun.

UNIMAGINATIVE BEGGARS.

Novelist Howells Says They Never Tell a Good Story.

The first of two chatty papers, "Tribulations of a Cheerful Giver," by W. D. Howells, is printed in the Century for June. Mr. Howells gives the following experiences with the begging fraternity:

I must say that his statement of his own case is usually incoherent and sometimes seems even a little fabulous. The poor fellows have very little imagination or invention; they might almost as well be realistic novelists. I find that those who strike me for a night's lodging, when they stop me in the street at night, come as a rule from Pittsburg and are ironworkers of some sort; the last one said he was a puddler, "A skilled mechanic," he explained—"what is called a skilled mechanic"; and, of course, he was only watching for some chance to get back to Pittsburg, though there was no chance of work, from what he told me, after he got there. On the other hand, I find that most of those who ask by day for money to get a dinner are from Philadelphia, or the rural parts of eastern Pennsylvania, though within six months I have extended hospitality (I think that is the right phrase) to two architectural draftsmen from Boston. They were both entirely decent looking, sober looking young men, who spoke like men of education, and they each gratefully accepted a quarter from me. I do not attempt to account for them, for they made no attempt to account for themselves; and I think the effect was more artistic so.

I am rarely approached by any professed New Yorker, which is perhaps a proof of the superior industry or prosperity of our city; but now and then a fellow citizen who has fallen out asks me for money in the street, and perhaps goes straight and spends it for drink. Drink, however, is as necessary in some forms as food itself, and a rich, generous port wine is often prescribed for invalids. These men, without exception, look like invalids, and I have no doubt that they would prefer to buy a rich, generous port wine if I gave them money enough. I never do that, though I have a means of making my alms seem greater, to myself at least, by practicing a little cordiality with the poor fellows. I do not give grudgingly or silently, but I say, if I give at all, when they ask me, "Why, of course!" or "Yes, certainly"; and sometimes I invite them to use their feeble powers of invention in my behalf, and tell how they wish me to think they have come to the sad pass of beggary. This seems to flatter them, and it makes me feel much better, which is really my motive for doing it.

Now and then they will offer me some apology for begging, in a tone that says, "I know how it is myself;" and once there was one who began by saying "I know it's a shame for a strong man like me to be begging, but—" They seldom have any devices for working me, beyond the simple statement of their destitution; though there was a case in which I helped a poor fellow raise a quarter upon a postal order, which he then kept as a pledge of my good faith. Their main reliance seems to be lead pencils, which they have in all inferior varieties. I find that they will take it kindly if you do not want any change back when you have given them a coin worth more than they asked for the pencil, and that they will even let you off without taking the pencil after you have bought it. In the end you have to use some means to save yourself from the accumulation of pencils, unless you are willing to burn them for kindling wood, and I find the simplest way is not to take them after you have paid for them. It is amusing how quickly you can establish a comity with these pencil people; they will not only let you leave your pencils with them, but they will sometimes excuse you from buying if you remind them that you have bought of them lately. Then, if they do not remember you, they at least smile politely, and pretend to do so.

Wilhelmina, Queen of Holland.

The sweet girlish face which accompanies this paragraph might belong to almost any little American school girl, but it is the latest picture of Holland's young queen, Wilhelmina. She is a most winsome and loveable girl, just past her fourteenth birthday, and is adored by her loyal subjects. With all her childishness she is conscious of her coming responsibilities, and that gives her manners a little touch of reserve and dignity that seem almost out of place with the fresh simplicity of her youth. She has just been over to England with her mother, to visit her aunt, the Duchess of Albany, and in the grounds at Clermont, where her aunt's fine palace stands, with her cousins, a boy and a girl near her own age, she has had as merry a romp as if she were not burdened with the coming cares of a kingdom. Everybody will wish this pleasant-faced child, who is both amiable and intelligent, a happy life and a long and prosperous reign.

SIR KNIGHTS FOR BOSTON.

Who Are Going From Plainfield and What They Do.

Boston seems to deserve her title of "The Hub of the Universe!" as quite a number of associations have made that the holding place of their conventions. The Knights Templar are to be the next organization to crowd Boston's crooked streets with their throng of members. It is the occasion of the twenty-sixth tri-annual conclave of their Grand Encampment and it promises to far outshine any of the previous twenty-five.

The Knights assemble on Monday and will remain until Friday. Plainfield is to be represented with the rest of the country. Trinity Commandery, of this city, have been planning for some time and a committee, composed Nelson Y. Durgan, William H. Sebring, Asa Collier and B. F. Coriell, have made very satisfactory arrangements for the trip and the stay while there. The party of Sir Knights and their families that go from the Trinity Commandery consists of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Codington, Mr. and Mrs. John Brooks, Dr. and Mrs. D. C. Adams, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Sebring, Mr. and Mrs. Asa Collier, Mrs. and Mrs. C. H. Rugg, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. McClintock, B. F. Coriell, J. Kirkner, N. Y. Durgan of Somerville, John Uringliman, F. E. Kinsman, R. J. Brokaw, C. C. Howard, Robert Rushmore, Henry Woodland, E. Woltman, T. H. Keller, H. M. Stockton, J. C. Pope, Frank Dunham and also a number of Sir Knights with their wives from Elizabeth and Rahway.

One of the most enjoyable parts of the week will be the reception of the California Commandery, of San Francisco, which will take place at the Parker House, from ten a. m. to midnight on Wednesday. The admission is by card and the commitee from Plainfield has secured invitations for their party. A collation will be served all day and each Sir Knight that attends will receive a basket of fine California fruit. The Plainfield party leaves on Monday morning, taking a special train from Elizabeth to Boston.

HORSE THIEVES AT WORK.

Or It May Be a Practical Joker That Took Samuel Pyatt's Horse.

Plainfield has another mystery to solve, and the theft of a horse and carriage is the cause of it. Samuel Pyatt, Ephriam Pyatt, and George Gordon rode up to the home of L. G. Fulton, of Clinton avenue, last night and spent the evening there.

Samuel Pyatt left his grey horse and two-seated carryall under the shed and went in. When he came out at about quarter past ten o'clock the horse and carriage were missing. Mr. Pyatt came to Plainfield and notified an officer at once, but so far nothing has been heard of the missing horse or the carriage.

The missing horse and carriage was found at about 11:30 this morning tied in a grove at the corner of Monroe avenue and West Eighth street, about a quarter of a mile from Mr. Fulton's house. It is thought that it is most likely a practical joke, but if it was one it was certainly not a pleasant kind to have.

I would rather have newspapers without a government than government without newspapers.—Thomas Jefferson.

Why doesn't Prosecutor Adrain offer a reward for Darling's capture? Can it be that Middlesex county officials would rather let Darling be at large than to be troubled with his trial?

John I. Alair, the New Jersey railroad man, who is said to have more than $25,000,000 invested in western railroads, boasts that he never bought a road merely for speculation, and that none of his money has been made by bulling or bearing stocks.

The News says that Silas D. Drake will shortly make a move that will benefit Plainfield. About all the moving Mr. Drake has been engaged in of late is with his mouth. Plainfield has got plenty of these, and unless the gentleman has something more than talk he had better stay away.

The complaint made by a New Market correspondent in The World this morning about the laxity of the Middlesex county officials in instituting a vigorous search for Darling seems to be well founded. The present condition of affairs about this matter in Middlesex county seems to be a parody on law and justice.

Quincy, Ill., has a mayor of the extraordinary kind. War has been declared by the temperance people of that town against Sunday liquor selling, and as a matter of course they appealed to the mayor. This official now asserts that if people really want a Puritanical Sunday he is going to classify preaching for hire, organ playing, and choir singing as violations of the law

THE NEW MANAGERS.

Stillman Theatre Should Have a Prosperous Season.

Next Thursday, August 29th, will be the inaugurating night of the newly-fitted up Music Hall, which Mr. Stillman has leased to a popular theatrical firm, of New York. The place, when open, will be known as "The Stillman Theatre," and the new lessees, Messrs. Rich & Maeder, were in town today looking over the ground and making arrangements for the occupancy of the building. They were accompanied by their general manager, Bristow Aldridge, who will represent them in this city, and all three gentlemen made many friends by their affable and pleasant manner of conducting business. The opening attraction will be Florence Bindley in "The Captain's Mate," and in connection with the managers lease of the establishment, they desire to state to the public that one of the first innovations they will make, will be to reduce the price of the dress circle to a popular level which will come within the reach of all. The reduction will be the first three rows sold at thirty-five cents each, with reserved seat, and the last three rows open for general admission for twenty-five cents. The lower floor will be as heretofore fifty and seventy-five cents, and one dollar. With the knowledge of the theatrical business which these gentlemen possess, and the ability to secure only the very best attractions, they deserve the patronage of Plainfield citizens, and the encouragement that first-class metropolitan management is entitled. Mr. Stillman has fitted up the place at considerable expense, and many innovations await the opening on Thursday, August 29th.

IN THE WRONG COUNTY.

And Dennick Escaped, as Marshal Doud Did Not Know Him.

There was a rather unexpected development in the trial of Samuel E. Dennick yesterday afternoon in Justice Mosher's court. When the case came up before the Justice, S. S. Swackhamer, attorney for the complainant, Miss Louisa Sprigg, explained that his client had made a mistake in naming the place where the crime had been committed, and that he had discovered on inquiry that it occurred in Somerset county instead of Union. The prisoner was then dismissed and walked out of the court room. This last act was not exactly as Mr. Swackhamer had planned. As soon as he had discovered the mistake of his client he had gone to Somerset county, made the complaint there and had a warrant issued for the apprehension of Dennick. Assistant Marshal Doud was intrusted with the warrant, which was indorsed by Justice Mosher, and attended the trial ready to serve the warrant the moment Dennick was discharged. But Doud did not know Dennick, and when he was inquiring which was his man, the man in question walked out and disappeared.

THE BELL BEWAILS ITS FATE.

A Soliloquy By the Editor of The Cranford Chronicle.

I am only a piece of metal, to be sure, but I must say I do not like Cranford. Here I am lying on my side in a heap of refuse behind Kleinfelder's livery stable. My tongue is buried so deep in straw and other things that I am afraid this feeble protest will not be heard.

I used to occupy an exalted position in Plainfield. When fires started, my voice rang out loud and clear, notifying the firemen that they were needed. Then, too, on holidays and other gala occasions I contributed largely to the enjoyment of the people. I understood that I was to perform similar functions in Cranford. Have I been deceived?

Am I to lie here and rest and corrode like the nails in the stable floor? I appeal for rescue to the Cranford Township Committee. Save me, somebody, from a fate so terrible!—Cranford Chronicle.

INCAPABLE OF DOING BUSINESS.

Simeon Harris So Declared By a Jury to Enquire Into His Sanity.

William V. Steel, W. J. Nelson, Simeon R. Dayton and Philip Danz, as commissioners, held a session yesterday to decide as to the sanity of Simeon Harris, of Dunellen. Harris is an old man, who has been incapable of attending to his business for the last three years. He has property in this city besides considerable money in the banks. Ex-Judge Codington acted as attorney. The following jury pronounced him incapable of handling his own affairs:

Theodore A. Wood, Howard Giles, Charles W. Blaine, A. W. Warden, Wm. J. Davis, Peter Apgar, Alva Gray, Wm. H. Terry, Chas. H. Adams, W. H. Gulick, Charles Day and T. H. Gise.

PEAPACK AND THE SMITHS.

AN INTERESTING COMMUNICATION ABOUT A NUMEROUS FAMILY.

A Great Family Gathering at Peapack Next Week that Will Attract Multitudes of People—The Programme.

To the Editor of The Daily Press:—I presume much has been written about Peapack, the residence of so many of the descendants of the original Peter Z. Smith, but I have not noticed anything concerning them recently in your valuable paper, so will venture a few remarks.

The Smith picnic is of such perennial interest to the large proportion of the population bearing the well-known name of Smith, that anything published in relation to the picnic or the place is sure to interest a large number of your readers.

It is twenty years now since the idea of having an annual reunion of the numerous descendants of the original Peter Z. Smith was put into operation. It was immediately successful in drawing together a large number of this numerous and interesting family, and has continued to be ever since, nature herself smiling on the enterprise, for in twenty years there have been only two postponements on account of rain.

Fortunately for the success of the picnic a great number of the Smiths live in close proximity to Peapack, and when they, and their many connections and friends, gather in the old apple orchard on the original farm there is a great crowd. From all the country round about the people come in multitudes. It is almost as much of a holiday for the farmer as one of the more pretentious national feast days. The picnic is always held on the last Wednesday in August which this year comes on the twenty-eighth. It opens at ten o'clock a. m., with a cornet band in attendance to furnish the music. At two o'clock p. m., Rev. Randolph Kuebler, of Hackensack, will deliver an address, and will be followed by other speakers.

Isaiah Smith is president of the association, and Abraham Smith, who was once a resident of Plainfield, is the vice-president, and I found him to be an enthusiastic and genial gentleman.

Peapack, Somerset Co., N. J.? Who has not heard of Peapack? Surely no one who bears the name of Smith. It is the mecca toward which they yearly turn their longing eyes and glad faces. From far and near gather the great tribe of Smiths. I am told here that Peapack is a corruption of Pequoid, the name of the famous tribe of Indians who once roamed over these charming hills and through these picturesque valleys. The village of Peapack lies in a narrow valley between high hills, and extends at least a mile along the highway. From the top of those hills can be had a most magnificent view of the surrounding country. It is said that fifteen church steeples can be seen from the highest of these hills. For miles and miles a beautiful panorama of well-kept farms and charming villages are spread before the eye. So charming and picturesque is the scenery around here that it has attracted the attention of some capitalists, headed by Geo. B. Post, the well-known architect of New York, Heven, the Hoboken millionaire, and Ballantine, the Newark brewer. A syndicate has already purchased the old Smith farm and surrounding land, including the gorge through which runs the north branch of the Raritan. They propose to dam up the river at the lower end of the ravine and make a lake about a mile and a half long. On this will be placed a small steam yacht and many boats. It is estimated that the work will cost $200,000. On the surrounding hills beautiful residences will be built, much after the fashion of Bernardsville, where so many wealthy men have established elegant summer homes.

The Passaic & Delaware branch of ths D. L. & W. R. R. now runs to Peapack, making it easy of access from New York, and I see no reason why the bright anticipations of prosperity for this beautiful country should not be realized. R.

A Popular Actress.

Florence Bindley, one of the cleverest actresses on the American stage, will appear at the Stillman theatre on Thursday evening, August 29th, in her gorgeous production "The Captain's Mate," which will be seen here for the first time. Miss Bindley has met with the greatest success where she has appeared, and is supported by a strong company. It is a very strange incident that a clever child actress seldom grows up a successful actress. As they mature, the genius born in them dies out. There are two cases that differ from this rule, Lotta and Florence Bindley. Lotta has retired from the stage, but Miss Bindley is still a shining star. She entered the profession at the age of three years, and now being twenty-four years old, this makes her twenty-first year before the public.

MOONLIGHT RACING.

Flying Wheelmen Will Pedal Under Exceedingly Novel Conditions.

Two nights of professional and Class A racing will be given under the auspices of the Crescent Wheelmen on their oval in this city on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, September 3rd and 4th. About $300 will be distributed among the cash class men, while the trophies for the amateurs will be numerous and fine.

This will be the first time racing by artificial light has ever been attempted in the vicinity of Plainfield, and it will be a decided novelty. On the dates selected the moon will be full and the numerous wheelmen in this vicinity will no doubt take advantage of this fact and take moonlight rides to the popular track at Plainfield, where so many successful meets have been given.

The professional events to be contested will be one-mile open heats on Tuesday, finals on Wednesday, one-mile handicap heats on Tuesday, finals on Wednesday, five-mile handicap to be finished the first, and one-mile 2.30 class to be finished on Tuesday, two-mile handicap to be run on Wednesday, and a one-mile consolation to be run also on the second day.

In Class A there will be a one-mile novice heats and finals on Tuesday, one-mile open heats on the 3d, and finals on the 4th, one-mile handicap heats Tuesday evening and finals the following night, five-mile handicap heats on Tuesday, finals on Wednesday, one-mile 2.40 class heats and finals on Tuesday, one-mile 2.50 class heats and finals on Wednesday, and one-mile consolation on Wednesday, open only to those who have not won anything during either evening.

The program is so varied as to cater to all grades of riders of both classes, and the inauguration of night racing at Plainfield should be a memorable occasion here.

A LONG RIDE.

A Barn Moved From LaGrande Avenue to West Third Street.

In these days of modern appliances it is not as difficult to move a house as it used to be. Henry & Johns, of this city, have done a number of difficult jobs before, but are now at work on one that is quite hard on account of its length. The barn of Louis Ross, of LaGrande avenue and Franklin place, which is located in the rear of his property, has been purchased by Michael Welch and is being moved to a site on West Third street near Muhlenberg Hospital. The barn will be carried through Fifth street. The red barn adjoining Mr. Ross' barn is also to be moved. Instead of sliding along, however, it will be cut into two parts and the sections carried by wagon, one to a site on East Third street and the other over on Fillmore avenue.

Knows All About Props.

Robert Mattox has been engaged by Rich & Maeder, the new lessees of Stillman Theatre, to act as stage manager for the season which opens next Thursday evening. Bob knows all about props and his experienced services should contribute much to the success of the house.

The Dover Daily Journal has made its initial bow to the public. It is well edited nicely printed, and ought to succeed.

INTERESTING SESSIONS.

The Seventh-Day Conference Is Hard at Work.

IMPORTANT MATTERS CONSIDERED.

One Delegate Makes the Suggestion that Seventh-Day Girls Marry Seventh-Day Boys, in Order that the Strength of the Church May Not Decrease—Reports Show Work and Prosperity.

Thursday afternoon the session of the Seventh Day Baptist Conference was opened with a service of song, conducted by the choir, at the close of which Robert Gorton sang a beautiful solo, "Nearer My God to Thee." E. B. Saunders, the Banker Evangelist of Milton, Wisconsin, then took charge of the devotional exercises and read a portion of the second chapter of Nehemiah, commencing at the eleventh verse. This preceded a number of sentence prayers and the singing of "Alas and Did My Saviour Bleed."

At the close of the above the executive committee made their report which showed that $2.40 had been expended for programmes and $2 for stationery and postage. It was adopted and referred to the finance committee.

Secretary of Conference S. T. Randolph then read off the following committees which had been appointed by President Utter:

On Petitions, W. A. Rogers, H. D. Babcock, Ira J. Ordway, Mrs. Phebe J. B. Waite, G. B. Shaw.

Finance, W. H. Ingram, C. C. Chipman, V. A. Baggs, Orra S. Rogers, Estie Randolph.

State of Religion, E. M. Dunn, S. S. Powell, J. L. Huffman, C. A. Burdick, O. D. Sherman.

Obituaries, W. C. Whitford, W. C. Daland.

Denominational History, B. C. Davis, T. L. Gardner, L. R. Swinney, G. J. Crandall, Mrs. W. C. Whitford.

Resolutions, A. E. Main, A. B. Prentice, G. B. Carpenter, Mrs. J. L. Huffman, E. B. Saunders.

Nominations, L. A. Platts, L. R. Swinney, O. U. Whitford, E. P. Clark, F. J. Ehret.

Corresponding Secretary W. C. Daland read his annual report which in substance was as follows:

Number of churches on list, ninety-nine; number not reporting, nine; seventy-four have pastors, one a layman acting as pastor, fifteen have no pastors. There are 101 ordained ministers, seventy-four pastors, and one licentiate. Thirteen churches report revivals during the year. Increase by baptism 274, by letter 139, by testimony sixty-three, total increase 474. Decrease by death 134, by letter ninety-six, by ex-communication seventy-six, total decrease 306; net gain 168, which is twenty more members than received last year. This makes an aggregate resident membership of 6,896, and 2,062 non-resident membership. Total, 8,958 members. There are 9,724 total Sabbath-keeping members. During the year three churches have been organized. The amount raised among the churches, which averages $4.95 per member was $45,252.91. The report was adopted.

A discussion arose as to the inaccuracy of the report, which Mr. Daland said was caused by the churches failing to send in complete reports. There was also a discussion as to whether the children of members should be counted in the membership. The matter was thoroughly ventilated. One man thought that children should be brought up to marry in their denomination. He thought that Seventh-Day girls were good enough for Seventh-Day boys and vice-versa. His remarks caused considerable laughter.

President Uttter caused much amusement by quoting Mark Twain who says "It's the duty of every newspaper man to know the first, middle and last name of every man, woman and child in the country." This remark was occasioned by the fact that when delegates arise to their feet their names should be called in full, and they need not be surprised to hear it.

Treasurer W. C. Whitford, of the conference, then read his report which showed the following money received from the various associations:

Southeastern	$ 31.85
Eastern	106.11
Central	60.40
Western	82.14
Northwestern	93.75
Southwestern	6.35
	$435.37
Arrears paid	$ 52.36
Balance August 20th, 1895	$ 50.08

It was received and filed.

The report of the memorial board was read by Secretary Randolph and filed and the report of Treasurer E. R. Pope, of the memorial fund, was read by him and also filed.

Dr. Lewis stated that at the last meeting of the eastern association at Marlboro, Dr. Lewis, Mrs. H. M. Maxson, Miss Luella Clawson were appointed a committee to briefly outline a catechism for juniors in the church. It was received and referred to a committee of three to be appointed by the chairman. Dr. Lewis also stated that the National Purity Alliance, which meets at Baltimore Oct. 14th, 15th and 16th, was desirous of having a delegate from the Seventh-Day Baptist association. The matter was referred to the committee on petitions.

Ira J. Ordway offered a resolution that provides for a committee of three to look into the advisability of a better way of holding the anniversaries. It was adopted. Rev. Mr. Livermore made a brief report of the employment committee of which he is a committe of one. Nothing of great importance had been done during the year. The hour of meeting and closing was arranged as follows:—9:30 to 12 in the morning, 2 to 4:30 in the afternoon, and 7:30 to 9:30 in the evening.

The executive committee stated that an invitation had been received from Secretary J. H. Manning to the delegates to visit and inspect the Y. M. C. A. building. After a few announcements had been made the session closed with the singing of a hymn and the pronouncing of the benediction.

The evening session was devoted to that branch of the Seventh Day Baptist work known as the Sabbath-school board. L. D. Swinney, president of the board, presided. Mr. Swinney read the scripture selection one hundred and nineteenth Psalm and Dr. Main offered a fervent prayer, closing with the Lord's prayer in which all united.

The annual report of the school board prepared by the secretary, J. A. Platts, was read by Prof. Corliss Randolph. Mr. Platts was unavoidably detained. The report specified many important items in connection with the work. "The Helping Hand," a paper published in its interest came in for a large share of recognition. It urged the securing of a competent person to compile and prepare the Sunday-school lessons for the coming year and reccomended that such a step be taken. The report was generally on the school work, and spoke of the increase in the interest and attendance.

The expenses during the past year were heavier than usual and it was hoped that men having the means would come forward to help all they could in the work.

The report of the secretary of the Sabbath-school Board was received by motion.

It was then stated that a prayer meeting would be held at 6:30 in the morning.

Dr. Main then offered a closing prayer which closed the first day's session of the conference.

The second day of the conference opened with an early morning prayer meeting at 6:30, which was conducted by E. B. Saundes. There was a large attendance of the delegates, and the service very helpful. Today is devoted to the discussion and advancement of the Missionary Society.

W. L. Clarke, of Ashaway, R. I., presided, and W. C. Daland was the Secretary. At 9:30 a devotional service was conducted by the President.

Mr. Chester, of Westerly, read his annual report. Below will be found a summary of the same:

The receipts direct from the people for Missions are $1,327.52 more than last year.

This was followed by the annual report of the Board of Managers, which was read by O. U. Whitford, Corresponding Secretary, of Westerly, R. I. The report was lengthy and published in pamphlet form, which was distributed among the delegates. Below will be found a summary:

On the home field thirty-six workers in twenty-four States and one territory; 1,102 weeks, or over twenty-one years of labor; 2,884 discourses; 1,284 prayer meetings; 4,852 visits; 89,746 pages of tracts and 1,876 papers distributed; 314 additions, 216 by baptism; forty-two converts to the Sabbath; organization of two churches, two Bible-schools and four Y. P. S. C. E's.

The report was adopted in full. The chairman then appointed the following nominating committee:

T. L. Gardner, H. Lamphear, A. B. Prentice, W. C. Whitford, G. W. Burdick and G. W. Hills. They met this afternoon previous to the regular session. The evangelistic committee and the Tract Society held a joint meeting early this afternoon to discuss the tent work in Louisville. After singing a hymn and the pronouncing of the benediction the morning session closed.

The attendance at the afternoon session of the Seventh Day Baptist Conference Friday was very large and the interest increases with each session.

The devotional services were in charge of Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis. Several short prayers were offered by the delegates for the blessings of God on the missionary work of the denomination. The singing of the hymn "Laborers of Christ Arise" brought to a close this part of the service.

J. L. Huffman followed with a talk on the same subject. He said that the office and work of an evangelist had a place in the early church. Paul charged Timothy to "Do the work of an Evangelist." In the M. E. church every pastor is an evangelist. The Adventists are all evangelists. We need this work to gather in members. Our missionary board is employing men and sending them forth to the field of harvest. Let us all be clothed with a spirit of Christ, and give of ourselves as well as our means.

A. P. Ashurst, from the South, gave a brief outline of the work in that field, which was very interesting.

An exceedingly touching incident in the afternoon's programme followed at this point, when Miss Susie Burdick, a missionary who has been laboring in China, made her appearance. The congregation arose and gave the Chautauqua salute while the doxology was being sung.

The scene was very affecting and many tears were shed as the choir sang "Home, Sweet Home," which was followed with prayer by Dr. Dame and an anthem by the choir.

Miss Burdick then related in an interesting manner something of her work in China in the boarding school where she has been located. The school work, she said, was an evangelistic work. We reach the children and find them quick to learn, especially the boys. The girls, according to custom, are naturally backward and lack eagerness. We feel the need of more personal work.

Miss Burdick spoke very earnestly and hoped that there would be more laborers who felt it their duty to go into the foreign fields of labor.

Woman's work was assigned to Mrs. Ruth H. Whitford, and she gave an interesting account. She told of the many ways that women could assist and help in the work of saving souls, with a loving heart. Her tender ways could be used to good advantage. The call for women increases daily, and there is certainly much she can do.

The last number on the afternoon programme was the paper on Y. P. S. C. E. by Miss Harriet W. Carpenter. It was an exceedingly well prepared paper. She related many things of interest, telling how a Christian Endeavorer could be helpful in his or her church.

The work of the various committees was given in an entertaining and instructive manner. The afternoon session then closed in the usual form.

EVENING SESSION.

The report of the nominating committee was called for at the opening of last night's session. Secretary W. C. Daland read the list of officers for the ensuing year as nominated by the committee. They were elected by acclamation and were as follows:

President, W. L. Clarke.
Recording Secretary, W. C. Daland.
Corresponding Secretary, O. U. Whitford.
Treasurer, A. L. Chester.
Board of Managers, G. B. Carpenter, Ira G. Crandall, Joseph H. Potter, G. H. Utter, L. T. Clawson, C. H. Stanton, Jonathan Maxson, Sanford P. Stillman, G. J. Crandall, G. H. Greenman, O. D. Sherman, Gideon T. Collins, Alvert S. Babcock, George T. Collins, B. P. Langworthy, 2d; L. F. Randolph, Alexander McLearn, Eugene L. Stillman, Paul M. Barber, Arthur E. Main, Ira A. Cottrell, L. A Platts, T. L. Gardiner, L. C. Randolph, Irving A. Crandall, Charles Potter, J. G. Burdick, Preston F. Randolph, Wm. L. Burdick, Seth L. Lee, Simeon H. Babcock.

George B. Shaw then conducted the devotional exercises, reaching the twelfth chapter of John, commencing at the thirty-sixth verse.

President W. C. Whitford, of Milton College, Milton, Wis., delivered the annual sermon. His text was taken from first Corinthians, first chapter and twenty-fourth verse—"Christ, the Power of God and the Wisdom of God." A portion of his remarks were as follows:

The principal aim of religion is to redeem men. It is as old as the human race, and is adapted to all ages, climes and conditions. It gives repose to our intellects, controls it grandly, giving spiritual life. To be known thoroughly it must be experienced and joined to the common pursuits of life. It is unchangeable and like the rising sun, reveals gradually the great truths. It is a common message from heaven, needs no amendment and admits of no codicil. One grand thing about it is that it prepares us for our last abode. Christianity is a superlative want and civilization is healthy and availing so long as it agrees with it. It's like the heat and light of the sun in its action. The satisfaction it creates in the heart is wonderful, for the "Old, Old Story" is marvelously new. If it is thus freshly revealed it must be adapted to all generations. It has transient enemies and must meet obstacles. At the present time it is given no rest by its antagonists. There is a presumptive proof that it is a master energy in our day. We can know these realities which guard the mind giving reason for our belief, and we must conscientiously accept every truth. Pure Christianity is more effective than a thousand counterfeits, for it is a divinely revealed gospel. A religious life must be on a level with everyday work. We should not be slothful in business. The past fifty years has wrought many improvements, which have broadened our judgment. Christianity is qualifying to all races and there is an assurance of success about it. The mission of Christ is to give peace. The Gospel of Christ is a practical spirit. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

The usual announcements were then made. The session closed with the singing of a hymn and the benediction by President W. C. Whitford.

MORNING SESSION.

The third day of the conference is being devoted to the Education Society. At 6:30 this morning a prayer service was held and like the one of yesterday morning was well attended.

At 9:30 the conference convened and before the regular order of business was taken up a devotional service was held, led by President L. A. Platts, of the Education Society.

George H. Utter appointed the following committee of three to arrange text books for the juniors in the church: W. L. Clarke, A. B. Kenyon and Mrs. W. H. Ingram. He also added the name of Mrs. O. U. Whitford to the committee on nominations. Acting Secretary E. B. Saunders then read a letter of greeting from Mr. Kenyon, of Illinois. The secretary was instructed to answer the letter in proper form. Prof. A. B. Titsworth, of Rutgers College was elected secretary for the day. The choir rendered an impressive anthem previous to President L. A. Platts' address. Mr. Platts is professor of church history at Alfred University. He spoke in part as follows:

My convictions are that our denomination has stood for education. Martin Luther formed the principles upon which the Baptists were founded. It caused an earnest study of the Scriptures. When these facts forced themselves upon us we began to see, to be consistent we should adhere to them. They gathered in private and public places to study. They began in the seventeenth century to organize churches. Some of them numbered 200 and 250 in membership. These people were conscientiously devoted to the study of the Bible. I think of the times of emigration to the western shores when colonies were formed. Some were sent to England to receive an education. They began to plan to educate their children at home. Soon after a school was started in Philadelphia from which eventually came Brown University, at the head of which was Gov Ward. As the interest increased we thought we should have schools of our own. Through the efforts of George H. Babcock, of blessed memory, we have Alfred University, Milton College and others. I think of the men who have graduated from the leading colleges after they have passed through our schools of learning. I think of the man who stands at the head of your Plainfield schools. In proportion to our size we stand ahead of many. I don't say this to boast, but because we may have the right conception of ourselves. We may ask ourselves what is our duty and how can we be of the most use in the world. God help us to solve these questions. As a matter of interest it may be stated that there are one-third more teachers of the Seventh-Day Baptist denomination in the various colleges than of any other denomination.

The report of the executive board of the Education Society was read by President W. C. Whitford, of Milton College, who is corresponding secretary of the executive board. It specified in detail the work being accomplished by the colleges in the denomination which showed a vast improvement along the lines of education and an increase in attendance at the colleges. The report concluded with a paper on "Intelligent Heroism" by President Whitford. It was full of interest and well prepared.

President Platts announced the following nominating committee for the Education Society: A. S. Babcock, A. B. Prentice, J. L. Huffman, M. B. Kelly, Jr., and S. R. Wheeler. They will meet this afternoon.

At present there are 381 delegates present and twenty more to come.

At the afternoon session Friday the work of the Education Society was continued after the devotional exercises which included congregational singing, an anthem by the choir, and prayer by J. L. Huffman.

The report of the executive board was adopted by motion.

Treasurer A. B. Kenyon, of Alfred, read his report which showed that $2,345.58 had been received during the past year, and as much had been expended. There is an endowment fund of $43,113.15 to the credit of the society.

President B. C. Davis, of Alfred University, gave an address on "The Place of Our Colleges in Denominational Work." In part he said:

There is something in the history of the Seventh-Day Baptists more than that which is on the surface. Our institutions of learning came out of this very movement. The time is coming when all people shall be educated alike. There are some here today who can remember the time when the public schools did little or nothing. But the system has grown and we have enlarged so much that the boys and girls are seeking education in colleges. The State does not furnish it, we must. There are three needs of our own colleges I wish to present. I wish to say a word in regard to what I mean by denominational work in our colleges. I don't mean a narrow-minded conception of denominational education. First, a personal knowledge by all our people of our colleges and what they need. It is our knowledge that causes our interest. Why is it that we pray for our colleges? Because we have knowledge of them. We know the young people who attend them. We should inform ourselves of this work. I want to insist that the best man in each association is on the board of trustees of our colleges. Second, your support and patronage. We must have it. The young people in our denomination should attend our schools. There are so many requests for free scholarship from people who cannot afford to go through. Third, financial support. We need more money, more men among our colleges. We have always depended on our own for support. But the rank and file fail to contribute their share. Each church should set apart a certain sum that will pay the expenses of a student in the colleges. We should do this for the young people.

"The Relation of Our Smaller Colleges to the Great Public School System" was the topic given Principal F. L. Green, of Brooklyn. He spoke in substance as follows:

Democratic ideas spread and with it came our common schools. It is only of recent years that the common schools and colleges have been brought together. About fifty years ago we had the academic epidemic, and ever since there has been a gradual dying out of them. They have done a great work, but the public school has supplanted it.

For several years there has been a tendency to close the gap between the public schools and the colleges. The high school has come to stay. The emphasis of our education must not be placed on academic work. A teacher cannot do good work if he gets a small salary. The cost of college education should be placed as low as practically consistent. The small college has its place, and there are young men who attend them in preference to meeting the temptations of greater colleges. We must look to our public high schools. We should have the best moral teachers, with strength and beauty of character. The public schools need more money than they have received.

Strange as it may seem boys will often take advice from strangers quicker than from ther parents.

We need concentration in our schools: I am not planning a college education for everyone, but we need more personal and direct work in our public schools. A road that leads somewhere is better than one that leads nowhere.

The nominating committee then made the following report on officers for the Education Society for the ensuing year:

President, Prof. E. M. Tomlinson, of Alfred, N. Y.

Corresponding Secretary, G. B. Shaw, of Hornellsville, N. Y.

Recording Secretary, T. M. Davis, Alfred, N. Y.

Treasurer, A. B. Kenyon, Alfred, N. Y.

Vice Presidents, L. A. Platts, Alfred, N. Y., W. C. Whitford, Milton, Wis., L. E. Livermore, Plainfield, T. L. Gardiner, Salem, W. V., E. M. Dunn, Milton, Wis., Albert Whitford, Milton, Wis., B. C. Davis, Alfred, N. Y., W. C. Daland, Westerly, R. I., L. D. Collins, Alfred, N. Y., J. F. Shaw, Fouke, Ark., J. B. Clarke, Alfred, N. Y., H. L. Jones, Wellsville, N. Y.

Directors, A. E. Main, Ashaway, R. I.; G. H. Utter, Westerly, R. I.; W. C. Burdick, Alfred, N. Y.; I. B. Crandall, Alfred, N. Y.; D. E. Titsworth, Plainfield; Charles Potter, Jr., Plainfield; H. C. Coon, Alfred, N. Y.; S. W. Maxson, Albany, N. Y.; S. S. Powell, Little Genessee, N. Y.; I. D. Titsworth, Dunellen.

They were elected by acclamation. The conference then decided by vote to have the minutes published and the matter was referred to the Executive Board. They also decided to meet next year in connection with the conference on the sixth-day of the week.

Prof. Hartwell, of Brooklyn, was then introduced and gave a very interesting talk on the Seventh-Day Baptist.

The condition of Salem College, West Virginia, was presented to the conference by President T. L. Gardiner. He stated that the college needed money badly and that they must have it. He made a strong appeal for $1,000 to carry on the work at that place. Dr. Lewis also spoke in behalf of the college. In a very short time over $900 was raised for the this object and most all of it was cash.

During the afternoon the women delegates held a meeting in the interest of the Woman's Board. Ideas were exchanged as to the best possible way of carrying on the work.

A fitting close to the four days earnest work in a business way of the Seventh-Day conference was the prayer and conference meeting last evening.

Every seat in the handsome and spacious edifice was taken. Rev. W. C. Daland, of Westerly, R. I. conducted the service which was one of deep interest. A spirit of prayer was evidenced as the zealous workers laid the important business of the conference aside for a time to gain fresh strength and grace for the coming days. A song service full of life occupied the first part of the meeting, after which Mr. Daland offered prayer and read the Scripture selection Acts 1, 1.

He then spoke in part as follows:

Christianity is a power. We are told in the Bible that "Ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you." We have had power and the Holy Ghost has been here. It was a united people of old who received such power on that Pentecostal day. They were a loving people. Let our petitions ascend freely to the throne of grace and we shall be witnesses. We are first to be witnesses for Christ at home. Sometimes we think we could do a grand good work on some foreign field, but our place may be right at home. After that we may be called to the uttermost parts of the earth to herald the glad tidings. I hope we shall feel the Spirit of God tonight and be witnesses for Christ. You all are thoroughly acquainted with the objects for which you should pray. While we are here rejoicing over our past year's work let us pray earnestly for the laborers. We must have the Spirit of the Holy Ghost to have power, and may God quicken us in our efforts.

After Mr. Daland's remarks the congregation sang very effectively "Come Holy Spirit, Heavenly Dove."

The service wus then thrown open and the balance of the hour was occupied in short earnest prayers, interspersed with spiritual songs.

Altogether the service was a helpful one and of much interest.

This morning was devoted to the regular Sabbath service, which included an organ voluntary by Miss Jessie Utter, a selection by the choir and prayer by Rev. Dr. A. H. Lewis. The responsive Scripture selection was led by Dr. Lewis, assisted by the choir. The morning lesson, the ninety-fifth Psalm and a portion of the third chapter of Hebrews, was read by Dr. Lewis. C. A. Burdick, of Brookfield, then offered prayer.

"The Ear of the Soul and the Voice of God" was the subject taken by President B. C. Davis, of Alfred University, for his sermon. In substance he said:

Dearly beloved friends, the text I have chosen today is found in Heb. 7-4, "Today if ye will hear His voice harden not your hearts." The text suggests the sense of hearing. The heart is the organ of the divine voice.

In the human body the sense of hearing is very acute, more so than sight. When we commence to analyze the ear we see the inner and outer part. Its only a half way or vestibule to the heart and mind. The ear of the soul is the seat of affection and passion, our hatred and love. The heart is the passageway to the soul which is the seat of religion. See the heart that is moved by a father's prayers and love and tell me whether it's reason or whether the heart has been touched. What causes us to be missionaries and cross the water? Is it reason? No. It is because the heart has been touched. Again, like the physical ear, the spiritual ear is very delicate. It is very easily obstructed and the sound easily shut out. Today we may hear God's voice, but something may creep in and crowd it out until we hear it no more.

What a calamity when one looses their hearing. The voice that can't hear God's voice begins to grow in evil and like it. There is often the greatest obstruction by the teachings from the home and pulpit.

Have you ever thought of Samuel who, when in bed, heard the voice of God but did not know who was speaking. When we do not expect the the voice of God it is not likely that we will hear it. Children often grow up in sin and folly. They neglect their duty in regard to the Sabbath. We are suffering because we do not obey. There are people who are living in total disobedience to the laws of God. In regard to benevolence, we are slack. We think someone else can keep the cause of God going besides ourselves.

The call of God to our young people to preach the Gospel of Christ is pressing itself upon us, and the people who ought to be preaching the gospel no longer hear the voice of God, because the ear of the soul has been closed to the call. Finally observe three important principles.

First, The eternal God speaks to human hearts. And the voice of God come to us through his blessed word.

Second. While God speaks eternally, He speaks to every one. It is our duty to hear it.

Third, The work of the Christian church is not so much to help God speak, as it is to help open the ears of those who are deaf to His entreaties. If we have a peculiar work it is to open the ears of those who don't hear the voice of God, and may He help us to do it.

This afternoon is being occupied by the Sunday-school session and Christian Endeavor meeting.

ASHORE IN HELL GATE.

The Colored Masons Return From Their Excursion One Day Late.

Those who went on the grand colored Masonic excursion on Thursday got the worth of their money, as the Plainfield participants were absent just about twenty-two hours. The train left in the morning at eight o'clock, and everything went well on the trip to the Park. There was a large crowd and everybody enjoyed themselves, but on the return the steamer grounded just as Hell Gate was reached, and the then weary excursionists had to settle down for a three hours stay, waiting for the tide to rise. The steamer was finally gotten off, and those who returned home by way of Elizabeth arrived here on the 5:45 newspaper train. Those who got off the boat at Jersey City came on the midnight train.

JOSEPH TAYLOR GETS IN TROUBLE AND LEAVES TOWN.

Was Employed by a Liberty Street Baker and While the Employer Was Sick He Did the Knockdown Act.

When Stevenson Moore, the Liberty street baker, recovered from his illness about three weeks ago he came to the bakery to find that his assistant, Joseph Taylor, had been systematically robbing him. Once before Moore had discovered that Taylor had collected about $20 from his customers and not marked it off on the books. Moore had then leniently agreed not to punish Taylor if he would agree to pay back the money he had stolen.

Then Moore's sickness came on and his wife was left to look after the entire business. Only about $8 had been falsely collected when Moore recovered, but Mr. Moore thinks that the cash receipts every day were often decreased by quite a little.

When Mr. Moore discovered the second offense he discharged his dishonest employe at once and, after he discovered the extent of his loss, went to Justice Nash and had a warrant issued for Taylor's arrest.

Taylor disappeared and has not been seen about Plainfield since. He has a wife and child in this city.

CUPID'S WORK AGAIN.

A Very Pretty Wedding Ended By a Shower of Rice.

Rice flew in all directions and another Plainfield young woman was carried away as a bride to Somerville. The lucky man was Anson V. Norton, of Somerville, and his fair bride was Miss Katie Titus, of Stone street. The marriage took place Tuesday afternoon at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. A. J. Winans, of 32 Stone street. Rev. E. G. Reed, D. D., of Somerville, performed the ceremony. William Titus, brother of the bride, was the best man, and Miss Lizzie Elwood, of Brooklyn, acted as the bridesmaid.

The bride was charmingly attired in a traveling dress of pearl-grey henrietta, trimmed with passementrie, and carried a bouquet of white tea roses. The dress of the bridesmaid was of the same material and color. She carried pink roses.

The newly-wedded couple left amid a shower of rice and good wishes of the assembled guests. The parlor in which the ceremony took place was artistically decorated with ferns and golden rod, while a horseshoe of the same was hung over the door.

About seventy-five guests from Plainfield, Somerville, and Brooklyn, were present to see the nuptial knot tied, and after it was over sat down to partake of the bounteous refreshments which were then served.

The wedding tour will be spent at Asbury Park and Lake Hopatcong, after which the happy couple will take up their residence at Somerville.

Mr. Gibson's Trip.

Rev. P. S. Gibson, pastor of the Mt. Olive Baptist church, has been obliged to postpone his vacation until September 3d, on account of the annual meeting of the Afro-American Baptist Association of New Jersey, which meets with the Mt. Olive church, September 26th and 27th. Mr. Gibson desires to perfect all arrangements for their entertainment before he leaves. Mr. Gibson will spend his vacation at Richmond, Va., and will take a Royal Blue Line train to Baltimore, going the balance of the distance by water. He will probably go to Suffolk and spend a few days with Rev. Mr. Howell who visited him in Plainfield last month.

Artistic Work.

Marsh, Ayers & Co. are now finishing the inside work at Marion Ackerman's house. They have completed the work on Ernest Ackerman's house. The work is certainly some of the finest ever done in Plainfield. The above firm is also doing some fine work for Charles Reed, of the firm of Reed & Coddington.

A Healthy Young Church.

The Church of Our Redeemer, (Episcopal) corner Grove street and Mercer avenue, Rev. Jocelyn Johnstone, rector, is steadily and solidly growing in numbers. It started with sixty communicant members, and today it numbers over 150.

Building in Watchung Park.

It is the medicine above all others for catarrh, and is worth its weight in gold. I can use Ely's Cream Balm with safety and it does all that is claimed for it.—B. W. Sperry, Hartford, Conn.

A TRIO WANT RECOGNITION.

Political Gossip About the Union County Republicans.

There is likely to be two if not three new candidates for Assembly in Union county. Judge Cross, who was Speaker, will do doubt be the Republican candidate for County Judge. Burger has had enough of Trenton life. Codding may be returned so as to keep him in touch with the people preparatory to going to the Senate.

It is conceded that he is Senator Voorhees's successor and on that account he can have the third term, but there arises a condition rather interesting and that is if the nomination for Governor does not go to John Kean it is thought that Senator Voorhees will take the second term as Senator, to which he is entitled, so as to keep himself prominent in State matters, and at three years hence he will again shy his caster in the Gubernatorial ring.

Many friends of the young Senator believe that this will be about the course that he will take. Should John Kean be nominated, it is not likely that a Union county man would have any chance for some years to come, then Voorhees would not take the renomination, but let Codding go to the front, and when Congressman Fowler gets ready to relinquish Congress, the young Union orator will probably turn his face toward Washington.—Newark

At the Eden Musee.

Not since its foundation, it is said, has the Eden Musee had so prosperous a summer season. Every day there are visitors from far and wide. The enterprise which the management has shown has had much to do with this increased prosperity. New figures are constantly added, and they are always of an attractive character. The new woman, the Salvation Army lassie, and the electrical execution chamber, are the principal recent additions, while the ones now under preparation will include some mechanical figures. The afternoon and evening concerts by Danko Gabor's Gypsy Orchestra are highly interesting.

A Bright Talker.

Robert E. Speer will be the speaker, and L. H. Bigelow, Jr., the soloist, at the Y. M. C. A. meeting on Sunday at 4:15 p. m. Mr. Speer will occupy the pulpit of the Crescent Avenue Presbyterian church next Sunday morning and evening.

THIRD AND LAST PEREMPTORY SALE

—OF—

39 Choice Cottage and Building Lots

AT AVON-BY-THE-SEA,

Saturday, Aug. 31st,

AT 2 O'CLOCK P. M., SHARP.

Must be sold without reserve to the highest bidder, in the joint interest of the Avon-by-the-Sea Land and Improvement Co. and the Asbury Park and Belmar Street Railway Co. Said Companies having amicably settled their right of way differences, are now determined to start Avon-by-the-Sea on a boom by sacrificing the lots, as was done at the two last sales, when they brought less than one-fifth their actual value, ranging from $112 to $425, averaging $194.11 each. Another such opportunity for speculation may never be offered along the sea shore. One party purchasing at the last sale has already been offered 40 per cent. advance on price paid.

Sale will take place rain or shine. Remember, no postponement. If unpleasant out doors, or rainy, the sale will then take place in Leigh's large livery stable, at Avon-by-the-Sea.

For further particulars or map of Avon-by-the-Sea, showing lots to be sold, apply to Edward Batchelor, Avon-by-the-Sea, or Nelson E. Buchanon, Asbury Park, or A. C. Hartshorne, Freehold, N. J.

AN OLD PLAINFIELDER DEAD.

Barney Coleman Dies at the Home of His Son in East Orange.

There was laid at rest today all that was mortal of an old-time resident in the burial of Barney Coleman in St. Mary's R. C. cemetery. Mr. Coleman came to Plainfield before the war, and for several years was in the employ of the late John W. Laing at Laing's hotel stables.

Mr. Coleman was known to nearly all the old residents and the traveling public of years ago. He once resided on Harmony street and later erected a residence on Jackson avenue, where he lived until about ten years ago, when he moved to East Orange. His son John conducted a hotel there, and the family has since resided in that place.

Mr. Coleman was the father of a large family of children. His eldest sons, Richard and John, were engaged in the livery business in this city for a number of years. Richard died a few years ago.

Mr. Coleman was married twice. His wife, three daughters and four sons, John, George, William and Charles, survive him. Mr. Coleman died at his son's hotel in East Orange on Sunday evening.

He leaves considerable real-estate and was rated as quite wealthy. His age was eighty-five years. Mr. Coleman was born in Ireland.

The funeral services were held at East Orange this morning, and the funeral cortege was driven over to St. Mary's cemetery where the remains were interred.

An Unhealthy Place.

There is a place in the rear of the frame buildings at the corner of Park avenue and Second street that needs attention on the part of the Board of Health. The occupants of the stores complain considerably about the nuisance.

SIR KNIGHTS TEMPLAR HOME

BUT ARE ALREADY MAKING PREPARATIONS TO GO AGAIN IN 1898.

Received a Big Ovation for Their Fine Appearance in the Parade—Open House Kept Thursday Night by the Ladies.

Trinity Commandery, Knights Templar, returned on Friday from Boston, where they have been for the last few days in attendance at the national conclave of the organization. In the great parade, which was a feature of the convention, Trinity Commandery received the biggest ovation from the assembled multitudes along Boston's crooked streets of any of the lodges in the New Jersey division. The intricate manœuvres which they executed with grace and precision, under the direction of Eminent Commander Adams and Captain General Dungan, made them the cynosure of thousands of eyes as they marched along. The members all deserved the encomiums which they received.

The Commandery had an entire house on Massachusetts avenue for their exclusive use as quarters, and here it was that the ladies of the party on Thursday evening kept open house to the Sir Knights. Their genial hospitality was the subject of much comment by the visitors.

The trip proved such a success that before returning steps were taken by the party looking to a similar trip to the convention in 1898, which will be held at Pittsburg, Pa. The "Ninety-Eight Club" was organized for that purpose, with the following officers: President, John Brooks; vice-president, Dr. D. C. Adams; treasurer, William R. Codington; secretary, J. E. MacClintock. Monthly dues will be paid by the members of the club, which will be devoted to liquidating the expenses of the trip in '98.

A SHOWER OF MILK.

George Hyland's Milk Wagon Upset by a Frightened Horse.

As is the usual custom the horses with the hook and ladder track attached, were out for exercise Friday morning. They were driving down East Seventh street toward Crescent avenue and, near the corner of Sycamore street, they passed the milk wagon belonging to George Hyland. The young man in charge had left the horse untied, and gone into one of the houses nearby to supply one of his customers with milk. The first part of the truck passed by all right, but just as the rear wheels came abreast of the wagon the horse attached to it gave a leap and started directly toward the truck. H. C. Bush, the tillerman of the truck, leaned far out and grasped the frightened horse's bridle with one hand. The horse then started ahead and as Bush dared not let go the tiller wheel with the other hand, he had to release his hold. The milk wagon never touched the truck, but when the horse made the sharp turn it was thrown on its side, and the cans and their contents scattered about the street. The horse ran as far as Crescent avenue with the wagon dragging behind and then stopped. Mr. Hyland attaches no blame for the runaway to the truck or its driver.

Disorder in General.

Sometime Monday afternoon someone entered the home of J. E. Townsend on Coddington avenue while he and his wife were away, and when they got through one would have thought they were preparing to move. The contents of the house were completely turned upside down, the clock, stoves, piano and carpets being the only things left in their place. Mr. and Mrs. Townsend were greatly surprised on their return to find their goods in such a disordered state. Mr. Townsend says that he had a late supper.

THE NINETY-EIGHT CLUB.

Six Knights Permanently Organize With Twenty Members.

"The Ninety-Eight Club of Trinity Commandery, Knights Templar," which was temporarily organized at the Boston triennial conclave, as told exclusively in The Daily Press, was formally and permanently organized Monday night with the following officers: President, John Brooks; vice-president, D. FAREWELL TO MR. BRADY.

East Third Street Mission Bid Godspeed to a Co-laborer.

The members of the East Third mission met at the mission last evening and gave Irving Brady, one of the members, a farewell reception.

There were about twenty-five persons present, and the evening was devoted to sociability. Piano solos by Clifford Braider, violin solos by R. W. Barnes and remarks by Superintendent L. W. Randolph and Irving Brady, were enjoyed. During the evening refreshments were served.

All expressed their regret upon the departure of Mr. Brady who leaves for Virginia on Friday, where he will study law, and many wished him Godspeed in his undertaking. The affair was one of pleasure to all.

HIS BICYCLE CONFISCATED.

A Newark Man Puts up His Wheel for Riding Without a Light.

George Rice, a bicycle rider from Newark, came to Plainfield last night with his wheel to witness the races on the Crescent Oval. He rode down North avenue with a friend, and when he reached Park avenue, Policeman Frederickson noticed that he had no light, not even a lamp. He was stopped and the letter of the law was explained to him. Rice pleaded with the officer to let him go, but it was of no use. His wheel was placed in the rookery and Rice was fined $5. He did not pay the fine last night, but said he would come around today and settle. As a result Rice walked to the truck.

A Novel Invention.

Captain Doane, of La Grande avenue, is completing a novel and attractive windmill which stands in the yard. He has been working on it for a long time. It consists of ten small boats, which are built from a full-rigged ship to a sloop. The lines are perfect in detail and the work is certainly most creditable. The slightest breeze causes a rapid motion of the boats that is pleasing to witness.

Why Don't the Council Act?

Mrs. DeForest, of West Second street, applied to the City Council some time ago for permission to erect a memorial drinking fountain in front of her property in memory of a deceased daughter. The Council referred the matter to a committee. Since then she has heard nothing of it. She is anxious to have the Council act on the matter.
